THE statistics which we were enabled to publish a short time since showed that the reconstituted Indian Museum had succeeded in attracting a goodly number of visitors. That they might be able to understand what they saw was the object of the handbook which Dr. Birdwood was commissioned to prepare in time for the opening of the new museum in May last. The needful pressure to be in time caused some inaccuracies to creep into the first issue; but the present form of the handbook, or of the portly and handsome volume which represents in a library form the more popular and portable guide to the treasures of the museum, has been carefully purged of such accidental blemishes. And Dr. Birdwood deserves the thanks, not for the first time, of all who are interested either from a retrospective or a prospective point of view in the industrial arts of India. At the present time there is in preparation, as our readers know, an exhibition of industrial art and manufacture to be held next year at Simla. In the programme, or rather in a memorandum explanatory of the programme, we are told that "during the last few years there has been a great revival of public taste, in the course of which it has become universally recognised as a principle that all truly national and indigenous forms of art and ornamentation are valuable in themselves, and are to be preserved." This, which is put forward as the motif of the Simla committee, might be accepted as the ruling principle of the Indian Museum and the leading idea of Dr. Birdwood's work. He necessarily takes a wide view, and, writing as he is for English readers, whose notions of the Indian arts and manufactures are vague and confused, commences by grounding them thoroughly in that which, in India as in all ancient art, is the essential preliminary to a comprehension of its development, viz., some knowledge of the religions of the people. As it would be a hopeless task to examine with any intelligence any collection of works of art, ancient or medieval, without knowing the leading features of the cultus which inspired the artists, the deities and demigods, the heroes and legendary beings, in whose honour the artists wrought, so to examine with any true power of discernment the specimens of Indian art, some knowledge of the Indian Pantheon must be adhibited. The symbolism of the multiform and monstrous figures, which otherwise are unmeaning and repulsive, will become clear when they are expounded, and reveal the gradual development of the earliest Aryan religion, its myths and legends, into the later and more corrupt and complicated Brahmanism. The exposition of their development, aided by the numerous plates, will prove a valuable companion, not only to the visitors at the Indian Museum, but the students of comparative religion. In this particular branch we look to see a wider extension of the means of study at the museum, a larger following of the subject that Dr. Birdwood has succinctly handled. Indo-China, on the one side, and more ancient and more distant mythologies need to be correlated by means of examples and teaching such as the museum and the handbook combined present for the Indian division of the mighty subject. The truth that the domestic and foreign influences which affect the arts of a country are always most satisfactorily traced in its architecture, is carefully stated and acted upon by Dr. Birdwood. As the service of the gods and the influence of the heroic legends governed the growth of art, so do the architectural peculiarities of ornamentation show the predominance of different race peculiarities. Dr. Birdwood says: "Those who are familiar with the decorative details of the art manufactures of India will recognise a distinct Dravidian style marked by the use of swami ornament. There are other distinct styles; one marked by the knop and flower pattern is called Saracenic, but I prefer to call it Aryan, because the use of its characteristic ornamentation was simply revived in India by the Persianised Arabs, Afghans, and Mongols. Another presents the Archaic forms of ornament found in the jewellery and other art work of Central India and Orissa and parts of Bengal. It is a purely indigenous style, and yet quite distinct: from the style prevailing among the so-called aboriginal Turanian tribes of the Inner Himalayas, the decorative forms of which are often quite Chinese." This first, or introductory, portion of Dr. Birdwood's volume prepares the reader for a deeper and more thoughtful appreciation of the second part, which is more practically illustrative of the modern handicrafts of India, which still are mainly unchanged from those which, in Western parlance, we call ancient. Modern mongrel imitations have partially depraved the original and traditional forms and patterns, just as engineer building has introduced the worst deformities of so-called architecture. We hope to recur to the more detailed explanation of the true specialities of the hereditary Indian manufacturers, of whom it is well said: "The mere touch of their fingers, trained for 3,000 years to the same manipulations, is sufficient to transform whatever foreign work is placed for imitation in their hands into something rich and strange and characteristically Indian."

OFFICIAL PAPERS.*

THE fourth précis of official papers for the past session has appeared, containing the essence of no less than eighty "Blue Books," occupying in their original form more pages than we care to count. The utility of these series of publications becomes more evident with each successive number, and it must become as indispensable for reference as even the volumes of "Hansard." Looking at the excellent index, we referred to reports on the use of Kopt's Erbswurst food forwarded to India and South Africa for the troops, and were surprised to find "No reports on this subject were received from India." The précis of the parochial charities of the city of London is a most valuable and instructive document, giving almost at a glance the extraordinary congeries of these foundations for wasting money. "India" has only the return asked for by Mr. Balfour of gross revenue and expenditure for eighteen years, and the army Indian home charges appropriation account for 1878-79.

COUNTY RHYMES.*

THE rural neighbourhood of Flirton Croft is "upon the uplands found, by sheltring slope of undulating ground, where health inspiring breezes never fail to spread their influence o'er th' encircling vale." Here J. T. B. "pitched his tent" poetically, as we may fairly assume he did not seek "return of strength to gain" under canvas on English uplands. And we imagine he must have regained a large amount of strength to go through the manual labour of writing out the curious quantity of metrical prose contained in the little volume. Village polemics and gossip furnish forth the subjects intermixed with small lyrics to "The Lily," to "A Favourite Magpie," &c. We fancy the best bit of autobiography is contained in the lines:—

"So he would oft'n to his friends submit
Some few short lines he called 'a pretty bit,'
For their approval, in a tone of voice
Which seemed to say 'they must pronounce them choice.'"

We are sorry for the Flirton people.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A SAD CASE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Will you kindly give insertion in your valuable paper to the following facts?—The smack Nautilus was cast on the rocks at Pendine on June 3 last, and was got off at the neap tide, since when she has been lying on the beach at Laugharne. The owner (J. T.), having no means, was obliged to resort to subscriptions to enable him to repair the smack; and he was thus enabled to commence the repairs, and has expended the whole of the amount collected—viz., £10 12s. It is estimated that about £14 more are required to complete his repairs, and as he is unable to meet this expense himself, and his vessel is his only means of subsistence for himself and family—consisting of four children—the eldest son being now dangerously ill with typhoid fever, I appeal to the kind public for assistance on his behalf, and shall be obliged with the smallest donation.—I remain, sir, your obedient servant,

THE LICENSE TAX.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—I fear that future historians will accuse us of great imbecility in our attempts to tax our subjects in India. The official report on the license-tax published in the Allahabad Pioneer Mail of the 23rd ultimo, proves our ignorance and want of sound judgment in financial matters. The following is the mode by which we try to discover the ostensible means and secret profits of merchants in India:—"The circumstances or ostensible means of some half million of persons were elaborately inquired into, not, it is true, as a rule, with the result of securing any very conclusive evidence, but laboriously and pertinaciously. Their houses were visited and mentally appraised; their horses and cattle (if they had any), their brass utensils and style of house-keeping silently estimated; the clothes they wore, the aspects of their faces even, scrutinised in hopes of gaining some just conception of their wealth. Happy was the assistant who found an elephant tied up near the house of one Drigpal Singh; here, at least, was something substantial to build on." After all the trouble that our best officers have taken they have only arrived at guesses. Now, consider for one moment what trouble has been taken: uselessly taken; what valuable time has been wasted. "Throughout the cold weather the diaries of officers teemed with entries showing that half their time (often entire days), day after day, was occupied with license-tax work." What has been the effect of the license-tax on our subjects in India? At first it inspired hatred; now it breeds contempt. The taxpayer sees clearly that the officer making the assessment can only after the most strenuous endeavours, make a guess, and, if the guess be excessive, he can only revile Government and pay; he denounces the tax as a piece of oppression which no good Government would resort to. The lists of our best officers are full of errors, and mere paupers have in a large number of cases been assessed. It was supposed by our financiers that by exempting the poorer classes justice would be done; but it has been proved that native agents employed to collect the tax have, in a very large number of cases, continued to collect it from the poor and pocket the sums obtained; they have found that disobedience to the provisions of the law has facilitated a system of embezzlement and fraud.

Under the income-tax the law declared that all the poor would be exempt, the assessment on whom was less than two shillings a year; but native officials easily evaded this provision, and poor people, unable to pay two shillings, were clubbed into parties of three and forced to pay eightpence each, their payments being recorded as the contribution of one person. I have known a beggar assessed as a banker, and when nothing could be got out of him the truth was officially confessed; a mistake had been made but was not reported for upwards of a year.—Your obedient servant,

THE LICENSE-TAX IN INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—With reference to Mr. St. George Tucker's letter of last week, showing the deplorable results of the license-tax in India, will you allow me to cite a case just decided by the High Court of Bombay, from which it would appear that, in addition to the evils denounced in that letter, the working of the License-tax Act has affected the independence or the intelligence of judges belonging to the Civil Service, and whose advancement, therefore, depends greatly on the goodwill of the Government? Pujabhai, a small dealer in the Khaira district, appealed to the collector against a charge of Rs.25 made on him for a license-fee under the Bombay License-tax Act of 1878. The collector increased the charge to Rs.60 and caused the same to be recovered; whereupon the aggrieved party appealed to the Judge of Ahmedabad. The judge dismissed the appeal on the ground that Section 12 of the Act in question authorises the collector to pass such order as he thinks fit, and that Section 23, excluding appeals, makes the collector a judge for the purposes of the Act. The High Court of Bombay, however, upon further appeal, held that in Section 12, saying "the collector may pass such order thereon as he thinks fit," the words "order thereon" must be taken as meaning an order relevant to the petition, which an order enhancing the fee cannot be deemed to be. The High Court ruled, therefore, that the collector had exceeded his authority, and that the plaintiff had a cause of action against him for the difference between Rs.60 and Rs.25, the sum mentioned in the list published under Section 10 of the Act. The order of the Court of Ahmedabad was reversed and the collector was directed to pay the plaintiff's costs of the appeal to the High Court. The numerous instances in which fees have been enhanced by collectors upon appeal will show how the people have been subjected to illegal demands on the part of the Government; while the courts instituted for their protection have, through ignorance or subserviency, connived at the injustice.—I am,
Sir, your obedient servant,

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF INDIA.

THERE is no one point brought out more clearly in the report of the Indian Famine Commission than that of the importance of extending lines of communication. The commissioners state: "It is to the future extension of railways that we look as the most complete justification of our belief that the trade of the country may be confidently left to provide for the supply of food in times of scarcity." The dissent minute of Messrs. Caird and Sullivan is based entirely on the want in India of means of communication. They urge, and with a good deal of force, the storage of food by Government in those localities "distant from the lines of railway communication; and they close with the remark, "nor do we at present counsel interference with trade, except in localities with which it has as yet imperfect means of communication. There can be but little doubt that at present the Government are, as it were, burning the candle at both ends. They are giving India the benefit of freedom of trade, under which the produce is drawn out of the country through the influence of high prices, but they fail to give that safeguard in railways which will bring food back into the different localities when needed. In old times food never found its way out; there was no demand beyond the local one, and in every locality the excess of production was stored in the ground and became a real insurance fund—unlike Sir John Strachey's—against famine. Now trade enhances the price of grain, all surplus stocks are disposed of, and, when famine comes, there is not only no reserve of food but there are no railways to carry food into the famine-stricken districts. The commissioners state: "Judging from these considerations, we can have no doubt that the surplus produce of India, taken as a whole, at present furnishes the means of meeting the demands of any part of the country likely to suffer from famine at any one time." But then further on they write: "Until, however, th whole country is more completely supplied with railways or canals, by which food can be transported rapidly, cheaply, and in large quantities to every part where severe want may exist, the possibility of some unusual demand for Government interference in particular localities, or for special classes of people, cannot be shut out, nor the danger of the occurrence of a great calamity altogether removed." This, taken with the expression of Lord Hartington's in introducing the Indian Budget, which we quoted some days ago, "I think the most satisfactory feature of that position (Indian finance) is the increasing productiveness of the public works to which I have referred," should certainly lead to a more active prosecution of railways as one of the best insurances against loss of life by famine. We would be glad to see this matter taken up with more interest in our own presidency; in Bengal they are doing a good deal quietly, but here, where there has been so much suffering from famine of late, and where a scarcity was threatening only a few days ago, there is nothing done and apparently nothing thought of. Another matter which we have urged and in which this famine commission report supports us, is the re-establishment of the agricultural department as a distinct department, and not as a subdivision, as now, only of sufficient importance to claim a portion of the time of one of the secretaries to Government. The special commission recommends the appointment of a famine commissioner, who should be the head of a department to obtain agricultural, vital, and economic statistics throughout the country; under him there should be for each province a director of agriculture who would "control the statistical officers and be the adviser of the local Governments on all matters relating to agriculture and statistics." "In ordinary times he should discharge these duties and superintend all measures designed to improve the agriculture of the country." It is suggested that all the officers of this department should prepare for their duties by a "technical training in scientific and practical agriculture." Such a department might be made of immense benefit to this country; there would be danger, we admit, of attempts to introduce at once too much science; the inclination would be to urge the immediate abolition of old practices and adopt those recommended by scientists, but if prudent men were appointed to these posts this would soon right itself. And it is not only as regards famine but also as regards trade that the statistics which such a department would furnish would be invaluable. The figures now given are generally too late to be of any use to the merchant, and trade is carried on in ignorance of the statistics so vital to its intelligent conduct. With all the means at our disposal in the shape of telegraphs we are still lamentably behind the rest of the world in prompt information as to extent and prospects of the crops. In a country so entirely dependent on agriculture an agricultural department ought to be one of the first to be established, and every effort should be made to give the promptest information. At present we have a kind of Agricultural Department as a branch of one of the secretariat departments of the Supreme Government; but so important a matter requires the whole attention of an able staff, and such a department would naturally be the one to take the responsibility of dealing with future famines. A third point brought clearly out by this report is the danger of interfering with factory labour. The commissioners state: "A main cause of the disastrous consequences of Indian famines, and one of the greatest difficulties in the way of providing relief in an effectual shape, is to be found in the fact that the great mass of the population directly depends on agriculture, and that there is no other industry from which any considerable part of the community derives its support. The failure of the usual rain thus deprives the labouring class, as a whole, not only of the ordinary supplies of food obtainable at prices within their reach, but also of the sole employment by which they can learn the means of procuring it. The complete remedy for this condition of things will be found only in the development of industries other than agriculture, and independent of the fluctuations of the seasons." Surely this should lead our legislators to deal very tenderly with factory labour when the proposed bill comes up again for discussion. It is essential before any step is taken in the way of restricting labour that it should be clearly made out that there is an evil to be met. That certain philanthropists at home who have suggested active measures in this direction are sincere in their views we do not for a moment doubt. But the picture they drew of the condition of the children working in our mills was certainly an exaggerated one. The evidence of men whose knowledge depends on what they hear from others is of but little value in such a discussion. The Local Government should take steps to ascertain the truth. It is in Bombay chiefly that the evil which will result from such legislation will mainly fall, and the members of this Government ought to be able to give an intelligent opinion on the subject—not one based on statements of the mill-owner only—not gained by visiting any one well regulated mill on a certain fixed day—but by careful investigation made by those in whom they can trust. If the children come from the mills at night wearied, worn-looking, or emaciated, by all means legislate for their protection; but if they invariably appear, as we have always met them, sprightly, playful, and healthy, they cannot be overworked, and legislation is unnecessary. We trust that this famine report will lead the Supreme Legislative Council to deal ver cautiously with a matter so vital to the general interests of the country.—Bombay Gazette.

THE MAHOMEDANS OF MADRAS AND THE DUKE OF BUCKINGHAM.

THE Mahomedans of Madras have resolved to present his Grace the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos with a farewell address before he bids adieu to the shores of that city. It may be interesting to inquire if there is anything for which the Mahomedans residing in the capital of the southern Presidency have specially to be grateful for to the duke. So far as we are aware, his Grace the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos has not in any signal way shown any decided partiality for Mahomedans in preference to other sections of the community, as appeared to be the case in the time of the late Lord Hobart, who seemed to have made it almost his duty to advance the interests of the followers of the Prophet. Yet, we are inclined to think that there are points in the ducal régime that will link it with the memories of the Mahomedans of Madras. It will ever be a pleasant and proud recollection to Mahomedans that the destinies of the Presidency were entrusted to one holding so exalted a position among the illustrious nobles of England. To have had as Governor a duke must have pleased the extravagant ideas of a Mahomedan mind as to grandeur and titular dignities. The efforts made by his Grace to alleviate distress during the time of the severe famine that has marked a dark period during the reign of the duke must call for an expression of thankfulness from the Mahomedan community, for a good deal of the charity dispensed at the time in Madras was directed to relieving the wants of the starving Mahomedan poor in Triplicane. There can be no doubt that but for the prompt measures adopted by the duke, and the policy observed by him in regard to the relief operations, the distress and suffering among the Mahomedan population would have been much greater than it was. The interest evinced by his Grace's Government in promoting the spread of education among the Mahomedan population of the Presidency ought also to afford a topic calling for sentiments of gratitude. The late Lord Hobart, perceiving the apathy shown by the Mahomedans in regard to the education of their children, endeavoured to rouse in them a feeling of interest in a subject of such vast importance to themselves. The measures begun in Lord Hobart's reign were continued by the Government of the duke, and the action of the Government was supplemented by the kindly personal efforts of the late Lady Anna Gore-Langton, sister of his Grace the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos. The Gore-Langton School in Triplicane will serve as a monument to remind all Mahomedans of the régime of the duke and of the special interest evinced in their welfare by his Grace's sister of honoured memory. In addition to the interest taken by his Grace in the spread of education among the Mahomedan population, there has been a desire on the part of his Grace to admit qualified Mahomedans into the public service; and that his Grace respected the wishes and prejudices of the community may be inferred from the appointment recently made of a successor to the late Mr. Mahomed Yusuf Saib Bahadur. The Government might have departed from the policy inaugurated by the late Lord Hobart on the ground that no sufficiently qualified Mahomedan was to be found to fill the vacancy, but his Grace, desirous of pleasing the Mahomedans, selected for the post a junior Mahomedan member of the Unconventured Service, whose claims and qualifications, as far as is publicly known, were he a member of any other section of the community, would not have given him any chance in the race for appointment. The points we have alluded to show that the Mahomedan community have grounds for the demonstration of gratitude they intend to make before his Grace leaves Madras. It is thought by some that the farewell address to the duke would be incomplete without an assurance of their loyalty in reference to the Ooty scare. Any such assurance, we think, would be a great mistake, laying the presenters of the address open to an unpleasant rebuke. It will certainly be in very bad taste for the Madras Mahomedans, in a valedictory address, to at all refer to such a disagreeable episode in the duke's reign as that which was recently enacted at Ootacamund. Further, it would be quite out of place and uncalled for, as to speak of their loyalty would be to presume that it was doubted, which is not the case, so far as the Mahomedan residents of Madras are concerned.—Madras Times.

DARING ATTEMPT AT MURDER AT LUCKNOW.—A murderous assault was recently made upon Mr. Marshall, who for many years was in charge of the Lucknow Central Gaol. Mr. Marshall was sleeping in the sitting room, with the door open on to the verandah of his house in Generalgunge, when, in the middle of the night, he was violently seized, an attempt made to throttle him, and as the would-be-murderer made his exit—apparently on some alarm being given—he slashed Mr. Marshall across the chest with some heavy cutting instrument, perhaps a tulwar, and, from the direction of the wound, extending from shoulder to shoulder across the chest just below the chin, it seems likely that his throat was aimed at.—Lucknow Times.

A CURE FOR RINDERPEST.—The Kangra correspondent of the Indian Herald writes:—"It is well known that rinderpest in various forms has proved as detrimental to the wellbeing of cattle in India and elsewhere as cholera has to mankind itself. Any addition therefore to the remedies already known for mitigating the ravages of the disease will, I am sure, be welcomed by the large number of cattle owners, European or native. To one such addition I believe they are indebted to Mr. P. R. Laval Lennox, tea planter of Bhowarna in the Palampur Valley. I allude to the strawberry leaf remedy which has been discovered by him and used with remarkable success in the treatment of rinderpest in this district. I am not aware that this discovery has already been made known, and I shall therefore be glad if I can bring it to the notice of those concerned through the medium of your paper, and thereby secure a further trial for what is here believed to be an infallible cure for one form at least of cattle disease. I should add that its chief value consists in efficacy in stopping the purging and cooling the system. Early this year, when the disease broke out with unusual virulence in the valley, it occurred to Mr. Lennox, in the absence of any specific, that the green leaves of the garden strawberry, which was well known to the Greeks to possess astringent and febrifugal virtues, might be used with advantage in the treatment of animals subject to violent purging and fever attended with ague. As the domesticated plant was not procurable in sufficient quantities he prescribed the wild species to his native neighbours whose cattle were affected, as he knew the latter possessed the same remedial properties, though in a less developed degree. He was not a little surprised to find that the experiment was tried with undoubted success. His own subsequent experience testified to the efficacy of the medicine, and he brought the discovery to the notice of the local authorities with a view to the remedy receiving a more extensive trial. The latter took the matter up with commendable promptitude and interest, and did all in their power to have it fairly tested in the parts affected. The results, which were thoroughly authenticated, have satisfactorily proved Mr. Lennox's discovery to be highly valuable in curing cattle of rinderpest attended with the symptoms specified above. Various experiments made under European and native supervision have abundantly corroborated this conclusion. The plant mostly used in this direct is Potentilla Kleimana, subtribe Rosana, mentioned by Hooker in his 'Flora Indica' (vol. 12, page 359)."

ULWAR.—A patriotic fund meeting has been held at Ulwar. A native gentleman of that State writes:—"His Highness the Maha Rao Raja of Ulwar, having convened a large and influential meeting of his principal jagirdars and officials, explained to them briefly how the Afghan war had been conducted; how bravely their countrymen had fought side by side with the British soldiers against the Afghans; and what glorious victories were won at Ali Musjid, Peiwar Kotai, and still more recently outside the gates of Kandahar. Bravery, his Highness further remarked, had from ancient times been regarded as the special qualification of the Rajputs. It therefore behoved us not to be behind others in coming forward to contribute our mite for the relief of the families of those brave ones who had been killed or wounded in this great war. His Highness's call was cheerfully responded to by all his people, and more than Rs.12,000 were subscribed on the spot."—Bombay Gazette.

CAROB SEED.—An experiment in the cultivation of the carob seed is to be tried in the Botanical Gardens under the orders of the local Government. On the requisition of the Government of Bengal some samples of those seeds have been sent down by the Government of the North Western Provinces with the necessary instructions for sowing. The autumn is the proper season for growing this plant.—Indian Daily News.

DROWNED IN THE HUGLI.—A fatal occurrence took place in the harbour on Sept 27. It seems that on that day, at between 6 and 7 p.m., an ordinary seaman, of about 21 years of age, went to bathe on the banks of the River Hugli. The moment he got out of his depth he sank and was seen no more. Only the previous Friday he had, it appears, received the good news from England that his father had come in for £3,000. The deceased was the son of a schoolmaster in England, and worked his way out to India as a seaman on board the Lucile of Liverpool.—Indian Daily News.

THE HUGLI-BRIDGE.—The receipts of the Hugli-bridge toll for the year 1879-80 have been returned at Rs.3,89,652 and the expenditure at Rs.3,69,080. The bridge tolls had been farmed out to Messrs. Stanley and Co. at Rs.9,187 per mensem. The contract for the current year has been taken by Messrs. Burn and Co. at Rs.8,250 per mensem.—Ibid.

WRECK OF THE "MELPOMENE."—The British ship Melpomene, from Liverpool to Rangoon, with salt, was wrecked on the Sunken Reef on Sept. 24, sixty miles east of the Andamans. After several attempts to stop the leak proving unsuccessful the vessel was abandoned and the captain and twenty-six of the crew took to their boats. They tried to make for the Andamans, but, owing to the high sea, they were unsuccessful, and made for Torres Island. After four days the steamer Kilwa picked them up and conveyed them to Moulmein, whence they arrived at Rangoon.—Times of India.

SUBORDINATE EXECUTIVE SERVICE.—The Lieutenant Governor of Bengal has won for the Subordinate Executive Service a substantial concession. His honour has obtained the sanction of the Government of India to the addition of four members to the three higher grades of the service, viz., one for Rs.800 grade, one for Rs.700 grade, and two for Rs.600 grade. By the addition of those four men the prospects of promotion in the service will be improved.—Hindoo Patriot.

THE KANDAHAR FORCE.—It is intended that three Bengal Native Infantry Regiments shall form part of the temporary garrison of Kandahar, which is now settled at five regiments of native infantry, which will allow of three Bombay regiments being withdrawn to India. The 3rd, 4th, and 17th Bengal Regiments are to proceed to Kandahar.—Times of India.

THE VICEROY'S TOUR.—The following notification is published in the Gazette of India:—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General will leave Simla on Thursday, October 28, 1880, at 7 a.m. His Excellency will visit Nahum, Dehra, Saharunpore, Amritsar, Lahore, Multan, Jacobabad, Sibi, Karachi, and Bombay, and will probably arrive at Calcutta on December 6, 1880. His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General will hold a levee in camp at Lahore on Thursday, November 11, at 9.30 p.m. The great chiefs in the Punjab have all signified their intention of being present at the durbar at Lahore, and the following officers have been deputed to attend upon them:—His Highness the Maharaja of Cashmere will be accompanied by Col. Jenkins; the Maharaja of Puttiala, by Col. Beadon; the Nawab of Bahawalpore, by Mr. Gardiner; and the Raja of Nabha, by Capt. Massy. The officer who will attend on his Highness the Raja of Jhind will be shortly appointed. The Lahore durbar is understood to be held in connection with the Afghan campaign, and it is expected that some recognition will be made of the services of the Punjab chiefs. Besides the great chiefs, such as the Maharajas of Cashmere, Puttiala, &c., upwards of 500 ordinary durbars have been invited.—Times of India.

ALLOWANCES TO GOVERNMENT CLERKS.—A committee is sitting at Simla to inquire into the representations of the Government clerks respecting the wholesale reduction of allowances hitherto passed to them. The first committee appointed last year, under the orders of Lord Lytton, at the instance of Sir John Strachey and Mr. Chapman, concluded its deliberations, it is said, without giving the clerks an opportunity of a hearing in the matter; but the present one is to examine and personally to ascertain from the clerks their grievances. For this purpose two clerks from each secretariat (a Christian and a native) are to appear before the committee. Lord Ripon is said to have taken a kindly interest in the matter, and it is hoped the result will be favourable to a hard-working and meagrely-paid class of servants who do not spare themselves in the service of Government.—Times of India.

EARTHQUAKE IN BURMA.—A Bassein correspondent wires that a severe earthquake was felt there on Thursday, Sept. 30, about four in the morning. The Tsunboo pagoda fell, scattering the jewels from the umbrella. The municipal bazaar and the public buildings were somewhat injured. The same shock was felt at Rangoon, but was comparatively slight.—Rangoon Gazette.

PUNJAB UNIVERSITY COLLEGE.—A meeting of the Indian Association, Lahore, has been held to take into consideration matters connected with the proposed elevation of the Punjab University College to the status of a university. After some discussion it was resolved, all but unanimously:—"That the committee are of opinion that the cause of sound, liberal education would greatly suffer by the system inculcated and acted upon by the Punjab University College, and that the cessation of all connection of the colleges and schools of the Punjab with the Calcutta University would be a calamity."—Times of India.

THE SIMLA KURSAAL.—The Simla kursaal project is thought once more to have floated off into deep water. The local authorities resolved themselves the other day into a committee of ways and means, and we hear that, with the sanction of the Lieutenant Governor, it has decided to raise a municipal loan of two lakhs for the construction of the desired building. Arrangements will be made for liquidating the principal of this loan in a period of thirty years, and as the great probability is that the building will earn an income amply sufficient to meet the charges of this settlement, the town will be quite justified in borrowing the capital. As revised by the Public Works Department the building is now to cost Rs.1,72,000, and the present designs have been carefully worked out in all their details, so that the estimates may be trusted. The building, as now to be taken in hand, has been a good deal altered. Design No. 3, which is, we believe, the work of Mr. R. Tyndall, C.E., superintending engineer at Simla, promises what will at any rate be a dignified and roomy structure, the solidity of which will be unimpeachable.—Pioneer.

MADRAS.

TEA IN NILGIRIS.—There are, it appears, seventy-nine tea estates in the Nilgiris, with a total tea acreage of 2,543 or mature, and 1,628 acres of immature plants. The yield of tea last year was 645,126 lb., being at the rate of 253 lb. per acre, reckoning the young plants as not yet bearing. This is a high average for gardens so comparatively new, and if the quality is up to the mark tea should pay in that locality.—Indian Daily News.

OUCHTERLONY VALLEY ESTATES.—The proceeds of last year's crop of the above estates must have been large, as after an allotment of a large sum of money for the up-keep of the several estates for the current year and other contingent expenses a sum of £24,000 has been ordered to be distributed in the following manner amongst the beneficiaries of the late Mr. James Ouchterlony's will:—Mr. J. W. Ouchterlony, his elder son, is to receive £2,500, a sum of £7,500 is to be paid towards the estate of his younger son, Mr. G. A. Ouchterlony deceased (for the benefit of the legatees under his will), and £3,000 each to be paid to his two daughters, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Wapshare, and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ouchterlony, is also to receive £3,000. Besides the above payments a sum of Rs.30,000 or thereabouts has been ordered to be paid to Messrs. Barclay and Morgan, Messrs. Grant and Grant, and Messrs. Tasker and Wilson, being their costs in connection with the suit of Ouchterlony v. Ouchterlony, and a further sum of Rs.18,000 has been allotted to meet the salaries of the receiver and his assistants, Mr. R. C. Walker and Mr. Straith.—Madras Mail.

THE "DUKE OF ARGYLL."—The steamer Duke of Argyll arrived in Madras roads on Sept. 26, last from London via the Suez Canal. Mr. Mathias, the chief officer of the steamer, accidentally fell overboard during the voyage in the Red Sea and was drowned.—Madras Times.

COURT MARTIAL.—At a general court martial, held at Secunderabad on June 30, Private James Gilmour, 1-21st Royal Scots Fusiliers, was convicted of having committed rape upon a child under the age of twelve years. The court sentenced the prisoner to suffer penal servitude for fifteen years, and to be discharged with ignominy from her Majesty's service. The Governor General in Council has approved of the sentence of penal servitude for fifteen years.

REGISTRATION OF BOOKS.—In submitting to Government a brief review and analysis of publications registered under Act 25 of 1867 during the year 1879, the Register of Books stated that during the year under review the copyright of eighty-three works was registered, including four publications of the Educational Department. This class of registration is optional, and there is a slight decrease this year corresponding to the falling off in the total number of works delivered for registration.—Madras Times.

EUROPEAN PLOUGHS.—The results of an exhibition of European ploughs in the Trichinopoly District were unsuccessful. The Government have ordered that when a competent person is available a fresh experiment may be attempted. From the last report on the School of Agriculture it would appear that more attention is now being paid to the practical instruction of the students, and it is to be hoped that one or more may hereafter be found qualified to regulate the working of the plough.—Ibid.

MEDICAL OFFICERS ON THE NILGIRI HILLS.—His Grace the Governor in Council has directed that the tour or duty of medical officers in civil medical appointments on the Nilgiri Hills shall, in future, be limited to a period of two years. Medical officers so appointed will retain a lien on their permanent appointments in the plains during their service on the hills and will revert to them on completion of their tour of duty.—Ibid.

PATENTS.—There have been received in the office of the chief secretary to Government copies of the specifications of the following inventions:—Mr. Max Hahn, of Berlin—"Improvements in apparatus for working switches and points, turning platforms, and the like, and communicating signals on railways." Mr. Antoine Bureau, of Brussels, Belgium—"Improvements in electric lamps." Mr. Joseph Stokes Williams, of Riverton, New Jersey, United States, America—"Improvements in railway crossings and switches and the apparatus means for signalling upon or operating mechanism connected with lines of railway." Mr. Druitt Halpin, of Thornfield-road, Shepherd's-bush, county Middlesex, England—"Improvements in lock nuts." Mr. Friedrich Breyer, engineer, of Vienna, Austrian Empire—"An improved mode of, and apparatus for, removing excreta and other similar refuse matter and for treating the same for production of a useful article of commerce therefrom." Mr. William Kitts, of Rangoon, British Burma—"An improved method of shelling rice and apparatus therefor."—Madras Times.

EDUCATION.—The new report of the Syndicate of Madras University compares favourably with the reports of previous years. Of the 3,309 candidates who presented themselves for the matriculation examination, 1,094 passed. Of the successful candidates about two-thirds came from non-Government schools, and it appears that the schools managed by native gentlemen are considerably on the increase. The majority of the eighty-five candidates who, out of the 175 who presented themselves, passed the B.A. examination, were Brahmins.—Athenaeum.

It is stated that Mr. Barlow is to be appointed as representative of Madras in the Supreme Legislative Council.

SOLDIER-TRADESMEN.—The Bangalore correspondent writes that a case was being heard in which Quartermaster Sergeant Wingfield and Bombardier Wicks, R.H.A., were charged with smuggling into the station from Madras 35,000 cigars. The quartermaster sergeant keeps a large store of European goods and also enjoys the military privilege of remitting money to England at par.—Times of India.

THE NEW DEWAN OF TRAVANCORE.—The Hon. V. Ramaengar has left Madras to proceed to Travancore in order to take up the post of Dewan of that native State. In 1873 Mr. Ramaengar was called upon by Government to proceed to England for the purpose of giving evidence before the Parliamentary Finance Committee. He became Inspector General of Registration in 1875, and in the following year attended, by request of the Duke of Buckingham, the Imperial Assemblage at Delhi, and received then the Commemoration Medal, together with Mr. Justice Moothosawmy Iyer, the only two native gentlemen of this Presidency selected for that honour. He also served during the last decade on very many special committees on great and various questions of public importance, the consideration of which required on the part of those dealing with them much varied and extensive information as well as experience and sound judgment. It will thus be seen that the new Dewan is a man whom the Madras Government has found to be a most valuable servant.—Madras Times.

BOMBAY.

THE subject selected by the Bombay university syndicate for the Manockjee Limjee Gold Medal, which is to be adjudged in November 1881, is—"The vernaculars peculiar to the Konkan from the southern confines of the Goanese territory to the northern limits of the Tanno Zilla and Khandesh." The competitive essay must not exceed 100 pages foolscap size.

THE KARACHI TRADE.—In an article upon the Karachi harbour, the Lahore paper observes that it is frequently argued that Bombay must always be the principal seaport on this side of India, but the real question is whether there is room for both. It seems to be assumed, says our contemporary, that Karachi can only thrive by diverting trade from other quarters, so that there will be no advantage, as far as the country at large is concerned, in the partial substitution of one seaport for another. We put the plain question—has the trade of Bombay been any worse for the fact that the trade of Karachi has been multiplied almost a thousandfold since 1840? The diversion that will take place will be for the advantage of the country, in so far as it will mean a cheap and speedier route. But that diversion can only proceed to a certain point, and for the rest, the chief function of Karachi will be to afford an outlet for a large and progressive traffic, for which hitherto there has been no opening. The Kandahar province possesses great commercial capabilities. So does the Herat district—"The Granary of the East"—as historians have called it. Lord Ripon's forthcoming journey to Karachi has induced us to revert to this important subject. We trust his Excellency may take the opportunity of making himself personally acquainted with the various questions connected with the Sukkur bridge and the improvement of the harbour.

TORTURE BY THE POLICE.—As painful a case of police torture as ever came before a court of justice was heard recently on appeal before Sir Charles Sargent and Mr. Justice M. Melvill at the Bombay High Court. A village watchman in the Khandeish district and his wife Phumi were arrested by the police on suspicion of theft. On the arrival of the chief constable at the village the husband was kept in custody inside the police station, where the chief constable took up his lodging, while Phumi was locked up with her infant child in the cattle pound adjoining the station in the companionship of a stray bullock. About midnight on the second night of her confinement she was taken out of the pound by two police sepoy (the prisoners in the case) and others in order to see if she would make a confession—which fact was not denied by the prisoners. The chief constable had taken the precaution of clearing the station of all but the police and the woman's husband, and he then set his men to work to see what they could get out of her. The prisoners were seen going off with her in the direction of the river side; and the evidence of some witnesses showed that their attention was drawn to the cries of the woman from the river. Some time afterwards the prisoners were seen returning, but this time they each held the woman, who was walking between them, by her arm or shoulder. She was walking with difficulty and was groaning as if in pain. The husband, who was handcuffed and a prisoner in the station, saw everything that went on in regard to the departure and return of his wife; he protested that his wife was innocent, and begged the police to do anything with him sooner than harm her. The Mahar custodian of the cattle pound was taken by the police on some pretext to a distance, and, during his absence, the woman was placed again in the pound, the gate of which was locked. When, by order of a police sepoy, he opened the gate the following morning a heartrending scene presented itself to his view. The woman, covered with blood, was lying insensible on the ground with a deep wound in the back of her head—the skull being fractured, her child lying asleep in front of her. She was placed in a cart and taken to the Civil Hospital at Dhulia, where she died some days afterwards. The two prisoners were convicted of murder by Mr. E. Cordeaux, sessions judge of Khandeish, and sentenced to be transported for life. The High Court has confirmed the sentence.—Bombay Gazette.

THE CHOTA ODEYPORE TRIAL.—The prosecution was conducted by Col. La Touche, assisted by Mr. Nurbharam Rugoonathdas. For the defence Rao Saheb Wasoodew Juganath and Gockuldass K. Parekh appeared. The Prince's pleader made a formal objection to Mr. Birdwood's jurisdiction to deal with the case. The Odeypore Dewan said the rights and privileges of the State must not be considered waived by the circumstance of his presence in court. Mr. Birdwood said he had nothing to do with the objection as to jurisdiction, but would note it. The Prince pleaded not guilty. The pleader for the prosecution, in his opening speech, said that the wife was deliberately beaten by the Prince for two or three hours one evening. She was caught descending from a window about twelve or thirteen feet from the ground. Intimation of this was conveyed to the Prince, who went with attendants and found his wife at the residence of Meniad. It was dark, and, on a lamp being brought, the paramour fled. The Prince inflicted blows on his wife with a stick, and an attendant also struck her. She was taken up and conveyed to an elder wife's room, where she was cruelly treated. Some witnesses say twenty blows were struck and the stick broken. She was then suspended from the ceiling, head downwards. The accused did not at the time possess a sword, but he went and fetched one and inflicted two cuts on his wife—one with the sword sheathed and the other partly sheathed. One cut was on the back and the other on the head. The poor woman was treated thus from two o'clock to half-past eleven, and then the accused, by the intervention of the second wife, was induced to leave the room, leaving the deceased tied to the ceiling. The accused's second wife untied her. Next morning the Prince gave her four or five blows with a stick, and she cried bitterly. A number of blows were also inflicted on Monday, and she died on Tuesday morning in bed. She could not have easily moved to obtain anything. The body was burnt immediately, and a medical man was ordered to falsify the dispensary book, to show that she died from snake bite. The Raja ordered this to be done, although the medical man had not attended the deceased as a patient and knew nothing about the matter.—Bombay Gazette.

SCHOOLS AND CASTE.—The recent educational ukase promulgated by Dr. Buhler about the admission of Dheds and Bhungies into all schools under his supervision, a correspondent tells us, has met with a cold reception in Kattywar. Col. Barton has distinctly given the authorities to understand that the order in question shall not apply to the schools in Kattywar, which are not supported by the Imperial money, but owe their existence entirely to the funds raised by the chiefs, who to a man strongly oppose the new measure.—Bombay Gazette.

FOUNDERING OF A NATIVE CRAFT.—The Guzerat Mitra hears of the foundering of a native craft with 115 passengers on board. The craft belonged to Kutch, as also most of the passengers, and was on its way from Jodia to Anjar. Full one hundred lives are said to be lost.—Times of India.

REWARDS FOR SAVING LIFE.—The Board of Trade has recognised the humane conduct of Capt. Keit, B.I.S.N. steamer Sirdhana, and the gallantry of Mr. Brown, third officer, and Mr. Piper, pilot of the steamer, in rescuing the crew of the pilot boat Fairy, in August last year, by awarding to each a handsome silver medal, and also by awarding a bronze medal to each of the eight men who formed the boat's crew.—Times of India.

A SHIP'S ENGINEER FOUND DROWNED.—A coroner's inquest was held on Oct. 4 on view of the body of James Hunter, third engineer of the s.s. Britannia, now lying in the Prince's Dock, whose body was found floating in a well on the Esplanade. The following verdict was recorded by the jury:—"That the death of James Hunter was caused by drowning in a well, but under what circumstances he was drowned there was no evidence to say."—Times of India.

NEW COURT OF SURVEY AT ADEN.—The Political Resident at Aden has been delegated with certain powers under the new Indian Merchant Shipping Act, and the First Assistant Resident is appointed as judge of a court of survey to hear shipping cases generally for the port. He will have power to summon one of the following persons as an assessor:—Port officer, Aden; commander of the Indian Government steamer stationed at Aden (it in port); chief engineer of ditto; and chief engineer, Government condensers, Aden. The local shipping master is to exercise the powers conferred, and to perform the duties imposed on the local authority under Chapter III. of the Act; and the port officer is exempted from the operation of Section 69.—Gazette.

THE marine survey party under Lieut. Petley, R.N., have arrived in Bombay, and will shortly commence operations. The survey of the harbour is expected to occupy them till the end of the year. Mr. Falle, Indian Marine, has been ordered to Burma.—Times of India.

I. G. STEAMERS.—The Indian Government steamer Dalhousie, Capt. W. G. Hotham, arrived in harbour on Oct. 3 from Karachi. She brought Col. Martin, Central India Horse; Lieut. and Mrs. Kirwan, R.H.A.; Mrs. Fellowes and child, 8th (N.I.); 1 European woman and 2 children, 2 native officers, 48 rank and file of 3rd Cavalry (Hyderabad Contingent); 2 warrant officers; 72 public and private followers. The Dalhousie left on Oct. 5, taking the following to Karachi:—Major Sartorius, 29th N.I.; Surgeon Major Macbeth; Mr. G. Yardley, Ordnance Department; Lieut. H. C. Cure, 61st Regiment; Capt. Brebner; 21 non-commissioned rank and file of 78th Highlanders; 15 non-commissioned rank and file of 13th N.I.; 16 non-commissioned rank and file of 8th N.I.; 206 followers. The Indian Government steamer Tenasserim, 1,760 tons, Commander B. P. Creagh, arrived at Bombay Oct. 7, from Karachi, towing the Indian Government ship Czarewitch, with the following detachment of the 3rd Hyderabad Cavalry. In Tenasserim, 1 European officer, 1 warrant officer, 137 sowars, 88 followers. In Czarewitch, 33 sowars, 78 followers.—Times of India.

THE "JEDDAH" CASE.—The Indian Daily News, in reproducing some remarks about the Jeddah case, says:—"Whilst, however, the action of Sir James Fergusson does him honour, we think that, as his Government is concerned, he might bring the matter before the Government of India. A change in the law is absolutely necessary, not only for the protection of passengers and shippers, but for the protection of owners and underwriters. We pointed out the other day that no thought seems to have been given to the immense loss which Capt. Clark inflicted upon the owners or underwriters in the way of salvage. The matter, we think, touches mercantile men sufficiently near to justify the Chambers of Commerce in India coming forward to strengthen the hands of the Government by such a representation as shall form a substantial basis for any action it may be disposed to take in referring the general question to the Board of Trade."—Times of India.

CROPS IN MALWA.—From Malwa we learn that the rains have been satisfactory, and that the state of the first crops is very encouraging. The same remark applies to the poppy, sugarcane, and rabi crops. Prices of food-grain are very low and are likely to remain so, adds our informant, if heavy demands do not come from outside.—Ibid.

LIEUT. BREBNER, LATE I.N.—Lieut. Brebner, late of her Majesty's I.N., proceeded to Karachi on Oct. 5 to relieve the port officer, the latter having been ordered to England on medical certificate. Lieut. Brebner's first employment was that of conveying through the Red Sea the troops sent from this country to the Crimea. He afterwards served throughout the Persian campaign, receiving the war medal and clasp; he also saw a good deal of service on the Arabian and African coasts, where he was for some time actively engaged. On the abolition of the Indian Navy he commanded the Harbour Defences, and subsequently conveyed Dr. Livingstone hence to Zanzibar. He assisted in the fitting out and despatch of the Abyssinian Expedition, which obtained for him the thanks of the Government. He also took a prominent part in the Malta and Afghan Expeditions, which again elicited the satisfaction of Government and his superiors. He had been for some time a member of the Marine Board, Fellow of the Bombay University, member of the Bench of Justices, and was also a very active officer of the Bombay Volunteer Rifle Corps.

ADEN NEWS.—We learn from Aden that the 1-6th Regiment leaves that station for England about Nov. 25 next, their place being taken by the 62nd Regiment. The 6th will be much missed in Aden, where it has become most popular, and the good conduct and excellent discipline of the soldiers are matters of common remark. Colonel Gordon put in at Aden for about a week on his return from China, and left for England in the Kaisar-i-Hind. His plans are not definitely settled, but his intentions at present are to go to Borneo. He is close on his promotion to major general, and intends positively, it is said, to retire from the army.—A Parsee clerk, employed at Steamer Point, accidentally walked over the roof of his house at night and was killed by the fall.—The heat is described as having been very great, but there are signs that the cool weather is about to set in.—Bombay Gazette.

THE PORT TRUST.—It is rumoured at Puna that the chairmanship of the Bombay Port Trust has been given to Major George Merewether, R.E., and, if this rumour should prove correct, Government will have made again a very good selection. Major Merewether has had a good deal of experience in harbour matters, having been acting superintendent of the Karachi harbour works during their construction under Mr. Parkes; he was also executive engineer of harbour defences here at Bombay for some years. He is a man of ability and of great devotion to his work, and there is no army officer we know of who would be more acceptable to the mercantile community.—Ibid.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1880.

PERSIA AND HERAT.

THE old saying, that history repeats itself, has received another illustration in the course of events in Herat and Kandahar. The great Amir Dost Mahomed, although restored to Cabul, and successful in establishing his power over Afghan, Turkestan, and Badakshan, could not unaided resist the intrigues of Persia, directed as they were to the recovery of the important district represented by the former. Colonel Malleson says that under the intriguing rule of Esau Khan the suzerainty of Persia would have become almost an accomplished fact but for the warnings which the British Government of that day caused to be communicated and repeated to that Power. The pressure of the Persian intrigues compelled Dost Mahomed to conclude the treaty of Peshawur, and ended in the temporary occupation of Herat, and its consequence, the Persian war of 1857 and the treaty by which the Shah renounced all claim of sovereignty over Herat. The subsequent virtual submission of Ahmad Khan was put an end to by the last enterprise of the Amir, who conquered Herat only nine days before his death. There have been sufficient indications of Persian intrigue, if the Government do not hold unpublished proofs of the assistance given in officers and money to Ayub Khan. The one victory has been won by this leader, and his subsequent defeat has not, we are told, prejudiced him in the eyes of his countrymen. It is obvious that, as contrasted with Abdul Rahman, he, with the added claims to be the protector and supporter of the ex-Amir or his heir, would command the most active support from all the turbulent tribesmen and the fanatic Ghazis; and, whatever the magnitude to which the movements against the Government of the Amir whom we have recognised at Cabul may have attained, it is certain that the ultimate goal of Ayub's ambition will be the subjugation of the whole of Northern Afghanistan. To accomplish this he must possess not Herat only, but Kandahar also, and it may possibly be true that he is prepared to bribe Persia with that part of Seistan which, by the arbitration of Sir Frederick Goldsmid in 1871-72, was retained as a portion of Afghan territory. The statement that he meditates establishing himself at Fort Nadali, on one of the streams into which the Helmand divides, just upon the frontier line, is consistent with this plan. But it is somewhat surprising to be told that the natives in that vicinity have thrown off their allegiance to Afghanistan and declared themselves Persian subjects. Persia has, we are also told, nourished a deep feeling of anger against England for handing over the province of Seistan to Afghanistan. It is curious that Sir Douglas Forsyth alleged, in an article in Macmillan's Magazine, that this arbitration was hurried on to please the Shah, and that Afghan villages were forcibly made over to Persian officers. This, though promptly refuted by Sir F. Goldsmid, was brought forward as one of the excuses for the hostility of the Amir Shir Ali. We may recall the latter's own words in his remarkable conversation with the British Vakeel in 1873: "As the British Government has approved of the cession of the fertile territory of Seistan proper to the Persian Government, this decision will one day cause so much injury to Afghanistan that it will not be surprising if its effects will at the end spread as far as India, as there is a straight road from Merv Shahjehan to India via Seistan." In the vigorous pamphlet in which a Persian Minister recounted the causes of animosity entertained by his Government and countrymen, against Great Britain there is no mention made of any such deep feeling as associated with Seistan. But there is every possible argument insisted on, every appeal made for the restoration of Herat to Persia. The able arguments of Colonel Malleson in his monograph on Herat proved conclusively that this ancient city should be under the dominion, if not of the Empress of India, of a ruler protected from all neighbours and invaders by the Power which would gain so much by the measure that ensured peace and prosperity to the garden and granary of Central Asia. If, as is only too likely, Persia is impelling Ayub to a fresh conflict, it is hardly probable that the borders of Seistan alone is the reward looked for. We have shown no readiness to extend the influence of our arms beyond Kandahar. The chief who has not only raised civil war against our ally, but has inflicted a defeat on our troops, and is guilty of the cold-blooded murder of English prisoners, has been allowed to retreat unmolested to Herat and there enter into new intrigues with our ally, Persia, and make new preparations for renewing the attack. We are free to conjecture that the untiring diplomacy, the never-resting secret service that is directed from Tashkent is behind all this; but it will surely be a question to which a full and satisfactory reply must be given as to what steps the Foreign-office have directed our representative at Teheran to take in view of the almost open aid and encouragement given by Persia to Ayub Khan. The circumstances are somewhat changed since Sir Bartle Frere six years ago considered it the wisest course to depute from the Persian side "an intelligent and scientific military officer with three or four good assistants acquainted with all arms of the service, and to establish them there permanently if the ruler of Herat could be induced to receive them." This advice appears to have been followed by those for whom it was not meant; but the latter portion of it may still be a guide for future dealing with a new ruler. That able statesman objected, in the same letter, to troubling the Governor General with the affairs of Persia, as the European interests they involve ought to be dealt with in Westminster and directly by the Secretary of State for India. The future of Persia, threatened, as we learn daily, by the Kurdish hordes on the western side, while hostile influences direct its Government, and slowly sap the way for the carrying out of the never-relinquished schemes of imperial progress, is of vast importance to India, and through it to England. But there seems a want of the vigour and vigilance which marked the conduct of those who formerly represented the interests of India at the Persian Court, and there might as well be a terra incognita beyond the Afghan frontier whence our enemies could derive aid and countenance without any knowledge or protest on our part. The danger to be apprehended from Ayub's rumoured plan of advance to Khelat may be provided against, for the period during which a forced march could be made across the intervening desert is limited to a very few weeks. But the existence of this resolute and determined foe in the Western borders of the country which we must either control or occupy is a standing menace, a constant cause of war, and a proof that half measures do not increase either our credit or security on the Indian frontiers, seeing that there is ground even for rumours of Persian intrigues against both, as well as of active assistance to our declared enemy.

DIVISIONAL ORDER BY GENERAL ROSS.—Before leaving Killa Abdulla General Ross issued the following divisional order:—"Orders having been received for the infantry division Cabul-Kandahar Field Force to be broken up, Major General Ross wishes to return his hearty thanks to the general officers commanding brigades, the divisional staff, the officers commanding corps, and heads of departments, for the assistance and support they have invariably afforded him. The troops it has been the major general's good fortune to command have long been celebrated for their discipline and gallantry, and these qualities have never been more promptly displayed than in the arduous marches from Cabul and in the victory which crowned their labour. His association with the Cabul-Kandahar force will always be looked upon by Major General Ross with feelings of great pleasure, and his regret in bidding them farewell is only lessened by the knowledge that the troops composing the force are returning to their homes after long and arduous service to enjoy the rest and repose they have so well earned."

SURGEON MAJOR HANNAH AND CAPT. GOODRIDGE.—The general commanding the Allahabad Division has issued a Brigade Order touching the death of Surgeon Major Hannah, of the B-4th Battery R.A., and Captain Goodridge, of the 35th N.I., both of this station, who lost their lives the other day in the terrible landslide at Naini Tal. The order runs thus:—"It is with the deepest regret that the Brigadier General Commanding has learnt that, in the very serious calamity which occurred at Naini Tal, owing to a landslide on the 18th instant, many valuable lives of officers, soldiers, and others have been lost, and that among these Captain Goodridge, of the 35th N.I., and Surgeon Major Hannah, A.M.D., attached to B Brigade 4th Battery, Royal Artillery, stationed at Allahabad, have perished. Brigadier Gen. Cobbe was unacquainted with Capt. Goodridge, but he deplors his sudden and premature death. From personal knowledge he can testify the great loss sustained by the death of Surgeon Major Hannah, whose unsparing exertions during the late cholera epidemic will still be fresh in the minds of many. He is sure that Dr. Hannah will be sincerely regretted by every officer and soldier who has had occasion to know him in his professional capacity, while many will lament the loss of a friend taken thus suddenly in the prime of life and usefulness."

GENERAL BURROWS'S DESPATCH.

KANDAHAR, Aug. 30, 1880.—To the Assistant Adjutant General, Kandahar Force.—Sir,—I have the honour to report that on the 26th ult., whilst encamped at Kushk-i-Nakhud, I received information that 2,000 of the enemy's cavalry and a large number of Ghazis had arrived at Garmao and Maiwand, and that it was Ayub Khan's intention to follow with the main body of his army immediately. A sketch is attached to this report, showing the position of Maiwand and Kushk-i-Nakhud, from which it will be seen that to carry into effect the instructions I had received—(vide correspondence from the Assistant Quartermaster General, Kandahar Force, attached)—viz., to prevent Ayub Khan from passing on to Ghuznee, it was incumbent on me to intercept him either at Maiwand or Kushk-i-Nakhud. Hitherto I have found it impossible to obtain any reliable information regarding Ayub Khan's intended movements, for although when the expedition set out it was understood we were to operate in a friendly country and in concert with a loyal army, the actual circumstances were the reverse of this. The Wali's army had gone over to the enemy; the Wali himself was a refugee in my camp. Whatever little political influence there may previously have been in the country was at an end, and every man's hand was against us. In the absence of intelligence beyond such as my cavalry patrols brought in, and from which I knew that the enemy's advanced post was at Sanghur, twelve miles in my front on the Kushki-i-Nakhud road, I considered it advisable to await events in the position I had taken up at the latter place. On learning, however, that the enemy was making for Maiwand I determined to move on that place at once. The force, strength as given below, marched at 6.30 a.m. on July 27, encumbered by an enormous quantity of ordnance and commissariat stores and baggage. This was unavoidable, as the hostile state of the country rendered it impossible to leave anything behind in safety, and I could not divide my already too weak force:—E-B ROYAL HORSE ARTILLERY.—Officers, 5; non-commissioned officers, rank and file, 141; horses, 191; 6.9-pounder M. L. R. guns, 6 6-pounder taken from the Wali's mutinous army and manned by one officer and 42 men 66th Foot. 66TH FOOT.—Officers, 19; non-commissioned officers, rank and file, 497; 3RD LIGHT CAVALRY.—Officers, 6; native officers, 13; non-commissioned officers, rank and file, 297; horses, 306; 3RD SIND HORSE.—Officers, 5; native officers, 8; non-commissioned officers, rank and file, 247; horses, 252. SAPPERS AND MINERS.—Officer, 1; European non-commissioned officers, rank and file, 2; non-commissioned officers, rank and file, 41; native officer, 1. 1ST NATIVE INFANTRY (GRENADIERS).—Officers, 7; native officers, 15; non-commissioned officers, rank and file, 626. 30TH NATIVE INFANTRY (JACOB'S RIFLES).—Officers, 8; native officers, 14; non-commissioned officers, rank and file, 603. After proceeding about eight miles large masses of troops were discovered about four miles distant, moving in a diagonal direction across our right front, and it was evident that a collision with Ayub Khan's army must take place before we reached our destination. Advancing on a village which lay about a mile in my front I placed my baggage there, and on the higher ground beyond I deployed my infantry into line, with guns in the centre and the cavalry on the left, covering the movements with two Horse Artillery guns and a troop of cavalry. It was difficult on account of the haze and dust to estimate the number of the enemy, but judging from the extent of country covered I believe I am within the mark when I set down his strength at 25,000 men. At 11.45 a.m. the fight commenced by the advanced guns under Lieutenant MacLaine coming into action on our left, followed shortly by two Horse Artillery guns and the smooth-bore battery in our centre; the remaining two 9-pounders were also brought up from the rear guard. In about half an hour the enemy began to reply from their right, gradually extending along their front, and concentrating the fire of thirty guns on our position. The infantry were ordered to lie down, and the wing of Jacob's Rifles, which had been in reserve, was brought up on the flanks, which were threatened on the right by Ghazis and on the left by the enemy's regular cavalry. In this position we remained for nearly three hours, our artillery making excellent practice, the cavalry holding the enemy's cavalry in check, and the infantry keeping up a steady fire on the Ghazis on our right. A large body of the enemy's regular infantry were on our left front, and about the middle of the day they advanced in line, but with delivered volleys checked them, and they did not come on again. Between two and three o'clock the fire of the enemy's guns slackened and swarms of Ghazis advanced rapidly towards our centre. Up to this time the casualties amongst the infantry had not been very heavy, and as the men were firing steadily and the guns were sweeping the ground with case shot I felt confident as to the result. But our fire failed to check the Ghazis; they came on in overwhelming numbers, and making good their rush they seized the two most advanced Horse Artillery guns. With the exception of two companies Jacob's Rifle, which had caused me great anxiety by their unsteadiness early in the day, the conduct of the troops had been splendid up to this point; but now at the critical moment, when a firm resistance might have achieved a victory, the infantry gave way, and commencing from the left rolled up like a wave to the right. After vainly endeavouring to rally them I went for cavalry. (I was obliged to go myself, having no staff officer left.) The 3rd Light Cavalry and 3rd Sindh Horse were retiring slowly on our left, and I called upon them to charge across the front and so give the infantry an opportunity of reforming, but the terrible artillery fire to which they had been exposed, and from which they had suffered so severely, had so shaken them that General Nuttall was unable to give effect to my order. All was now over, and I went back to the infantry to do what might be done to save them from complete annihilation. After retreating across and through the gardens near the village, a small walled enclosure was reached, and in this about 150 men of different corps with several officers made a stand and checked the enemy for a time, but, seeing we were rapidly being outflanked, and that our line of retreat would presently be cut off, I gave the order to retire. A wide open plain lay before us, and, with discipline utterly gone, and the men all scattered, the prospect was discouraging, but we succeeded in making our way without much loss for a distance of three miles, when we joined the guns and cavalry in rear of the baggage, which was by this time stretching for miles over the country towards Kandahar. Small parties of the enemy continued to hover in our rear, but no vigorous pursuit was made. After daylight we were fired on from every village we passed until we reached Kokeran, where we met a small force under General Brooke, which cleared the way for us into Kandahar. Of the four Horse Artillery 9-pounder guns and six smooth-bore guns with which we left the field the whole of the former and one of the latter were brought safely into Kandahar, the five other smooth-bore guns had one by one to be abandoned during the retreat, the horses being unable to bring them on. Of the conduct of the troops generally I have already spoken, but I wish to bring the Artillery to special notice. Their behaviour was admirable; exposed to a heavy fire they served their guns coolly and steadily as on parade, and, when the guns were rushed, they fought the Ghazis with hand spikes, sponge rods, &c. In explanation of the unfortunate loss of the two Horse Artillery guns, the officer commanding the battery has reported that Lieut. MacLaine, who was in charge of them, waited to fire another round of case after the order to limber up and retire had been given, and the delay was fatal. The detachment of the 66th Regiment under Lieut. Faunce, which manned the smooth-bore battery, also behaved extremely well. On Major Blackwood being wounded during the action, Capt. Slade, R.H.A., took command of E-B R.H.A. I beg to bring the conduct of this officer to very special notice. Capt. Slade was not only conspicuous for his gallantry during the day, but throughout the long and trying retreat of forty miles he worked with unflagging energy, encouraging his men and tending the wounded officers and men who crowded his guns. I was indebted to Major Leach, V.C., R.E., for valuable assistance during the retreat. The casualty returns have already been forwarded to you.—I have the honour, &c., J. BURROWS, Brigadier General, commanding Girishk Column.

Assistant Quartermaster General's Office, Kandahar, July 2. To Brigadier General Burrows, commanding Girishk Column.—The following telegram received from the Quartermaster General in India is forwarded to Brigadier General Burrows, commanding Girishk Column, for information and guidance. It is requested that a copy may be furnished to the Political Resident, Southern Afghanistan.—By order, F. S. ADAM, Major, Assistant Quartermaster General.

From Quartermaster General, Simla.—To General Primrose, Kandahar, Simla, 22nd.—My telegram of yesterday and yours of last night. You will understand that you have full liberty to attack Ayub if you consider you are strong enough to do so. Government consider it of the greatest political importance that his force should be dispersed and prevented by all possible means from passing on to Ghuznee.

Assistant Quartermaster General's Office, Kandahar, July 22.—To Brigadier General Burrows, commanding Girishk Column.—Sir,—I have the honour, by direction of the Lieutenant General Commanding, to forward you a copy of a cypher telegram received last night from the Commander in Chief in India:—

From Chief, Simla, to General Burrows, Kandahar.

Simla, July 21.—You have not answered chief's question relative to suitability of Burrows's position for striking a blow at Ayub. It is of the utmost importance that Ayub should not be allowed to slip by Kandahar towards Ghuznee without being attacked. As your reinforcements arrive, to what extent can you strengthen General Burrows? What are that officer's views and intentions, and what steps are taken by Intelligence Department to obtain information of Ayub's movements? The Argandab road should also be observed. You must keep chief more fully and early informed of situation, as reports of Ayub's and Burrows's moves are received by foreign long before yours. General Primrose desires you will at once report what plans you have resolved on in the event of Ayub's main body crossing the Helmand at Girishk, and what you would propose in the event of his moving north and covering himself in your direction with cavalry. He would also much like to know if you are solely dependent for information on what is supplied you by the political resident, and if any steps have been taken by you to send out spies in the direction of Girishk and Maiwand. General Primrose desires me to thank you for the letter received last night relative to an attack last night which it was reported would be made on the camp by Ayub's cavalry. But though this may not have taken place he would be obliged by your furnishing as soon as possible the information called for by the Commander in Chief.—I have, &c.

COMMENTS OF LORD RIPON AND SIR F. HAINES.

THE comments of the Viceroy are conveyed in a letter from the Secretary to the Government of India, in the Military Department, to the Adjutant General of India. After acknowledging the Adjutant General's letter, forwarding General Primrose's despatch and General Burrows and General Nuttall's accounts of the operations, the letter proceeds:—"The Governor General in Council concurs with his Excellency the Commander in Chief as to the meagre and unsatisfactory character of the accounts furnished, which, notwithstanding the time that has elapsed since the date of the occurrence to which they refer, still leave the Government of India in ignorance of the true facts of the case and the exact circumstance to which the reverse sustained by her Majesty's arms is to be attributed. The Governor General in Council, however, understands that a full report of the situation, drawn up by General Roberts after his arrival at Kandahar, is now on its way to his Excellency the Commander in Chief, and as, doubtless, this will throw much light on what these despatches leave in obscurity, the Government of India will await the arrival of that report before deciding on any further course of action in connection with the operations of July 27. It is not, however, necessary to wait for further information to enable the Governor General in Council to express his hearty concurrence in the high tribute paid by the Commander in Chief to the admirable behaviour of the officers and men of E-B Battery Royal Horse Artillery. Notwithstanding its loss of guns, and that the result of the day was disastrous, the E-B Battery Royal Horse Artillery may look back on the action at Maiwand as one in which they nobly maintained the credit of their distinguished regiment. The Government of India entertained no doubt of the good conduct of H.M.'s 66th Foot, but it is still a satisfaction to obtain the voluntary testimony of the enemy to the devoted courage with which the colours of the regiment were defended to the last against overwhelming odds. The Governor General in Council has much satisfaction in receiving the names of those officers whose services are specially brought to notice by his Excellency. The names of those killed and since dead of their wounds have been telegraphed to the Secretary of State. It is, I may add, needless to give expression to the deep grief the Government of India feels in reading the sad roll of losses sustained by the force employed under Brigadier General Burrows."

Sir F. Haines says the despatches are eminently unsatisfactory, as giving no facts regarding the precautions taken to ascertain the strength and position of Ayub Khan, and as completely failing to explain the reasons of the disaster. He believes that victory was possible had the infantry stood firm, and that the disaster was intensified by the demoralisation of the cavalry and the precipitate retreat. When the enemy only followed for three miles the cantonments ought never to have been abandoned on the false report of annihilation.

AFGHANISTAN MEMORIAL.—The Duke of Cambridge, as colonel in chief of the Royal Artillery, has approved of a regimental memorial being erected by the officers to their comrades of all ranks who have fallen in the campaigns in Afghanistan and South Africa. With a view to ascertaining the general feeling as to the form to be selected for the memorial and to obtaining subscriptions, his Royal Highness has appointed the following committee:—President, Major General J. Turner C.B., commandant of the Woolwich district; with the following members: Colonel W. Stirling, C.B., Brevet Lieutenant Colonel the Hon. A. Stewart, R.H.A., Major Francis Duncan, R.A., and Brevet Lieutenant Colonel A. Harness, C.B., R.A.

OBITUARY.—The death is announced of Col. Thomas Rattray C.B. and Companion of the Star of India, which happened at the close of last week at Sherborne, Dorsetshire, in the 61st year of his age. Entering the Indian Army in 1839, he served in the Afghan campaign under General Pollock, when he was severely wounded in the attempt to force the Khyber Pass, and afterwards under Sir Charles Napier, in Sind, against the hill tribes. In 1856 he raised and disciplined a body of Sikhs, now the 45th Bengal Native Infantry (commonly known as Rattray's Sikhs). He commanded this force through the Indian Mutiny, for his services in which he received the medal and the brevet rank of major, and was several times thanked by the Government of India. He attained the rank of brevet colonel in 1870; and his name stands in "Hart's Army List" of 1878 as assistant adjutant general of the army. For his gallant services in India and elsewhere he was rewarded by the Companionship of the Bath and by the Companionship of the Order of the Star of India.

THE LANDSLIP AT NAINI TAL.—On Monday the Lord Mayor (Sir F. Wyatt Truscott), on taking his seat in the Justice-room of the Mansion House, announced that by the Indian mail which arrived in London on Wednesday he had received details of the terrible catastrophe which had befallen the hill station of Naini Tal. From those he learnt that a large number of natives, estimated at 200, and about 30 Europeans, had perished—by far the large portion of them while endeavouring to rescue those who had been overwhelmed in first of the two landslips. It was not necessary for him to enter into the painful details of that sad occurrence, as they had already appeared in the newspapers and excited general sympathy. A committee had been formed, under the presidency of the Hon. Sir George Couper, lieutenant governor of the North West Provinces and Oudh, to appeal to the public for contributions on behalf of the widows and orphans and in aid of others injured and rendered destitute by this calamity, and he had consented, on behalf of that committee, to receive at the Mansion House subscriptions towards the fund which is being formed. He earnestly commended the matter to the liberality of the public. The bankers to the fund were Messrs. Grindlay and Co., of Parliament-street, and Messrs. H. S. King and Co. of Cornhill.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.—The 24th report of the Civil Service Commissioners has been issued, relating to the examinations held during the year 1879. The Commissioners record their regret for the death of Lord Hampton, till recently Chief Commissioner. The total number of cases dealt with in 1879 was 17,942, as compared with 17,055 in 1878. Of these, 13,171 were home Civil Service cases, of whom 4,755 were passed and certificated, as compared with 11,875 home Civil Service cases in 1878, of whom 4,609 were passed and certificated. At the competition for the Indian Civil Service, held in June and July, 1879, open to candidates between seventeen and nineteen, there were 181 competitors for twenty-eight vacancies. At the competition for admission to the Royal Indian Engineering College, in July, 1879, there were sixty-six candidates for thirty-five vacancies, as compared with 108 candidates for thirty-four vacancies in 1878. There were, in 1879, 3,325 candidates for the Military Services, of whom 549 obtained appointments, as compared with 3,013 candidates and 457 appointments in 1878. Last year the Commission for the first time held an examination for certain departments of the Naval Services, with the result that thirty-three competitors appeared for assistant clerkships, of whom fifteen were selected, and three for interpreterships, all of whom were found qualified. There are various appendices to the report.

INDO-EUROPEAN TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—The directors have declared an interim dividend, for the half-year ending June 30 last, at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, payable on and after Nov. 1.

THE ORIENTAL BANK.—The directors of the Oriental Bank have issued their balance-sheet for the first half of the present year. The figures show a reduction of about a million in the deposits at interest, the total of which is now £5,281,000. The current deposits not bearing interest amount to £2,600,000, against £2,730,000 in December last. These reductions are principally due to the transfer of the Bank's South African business to the Bank of Africa. The current expenses have fallen off from £113,372 to £92,669. The dividend proposed to be declared is at the rate of 4 per cent., but the balance to be carried forward is equal to nearly another 2 per cent. per annum.—At the general meeting, held on Thursday, Oct. 21, an interim dividend of 10s. per share, being at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, was declared, absorbing £30,000 of the half-year's profits, leaving a balance of £15,768 to be carried forward. The Chairman referred to the reduction of £75,000 under the head of debts secured by landed and other property, and to the diminution in the working expenses of £20,700 in the last six months, making £35,000 in the twelve months, and stated that the realisation of securities under the first head was being proceeded with as quickly as possible. He thought they might now reckon on seeing better times for the bank. The policy of the directors was to strengthen the bank by every means in their power rather than to pay high dividends. The usual votes of thanks to the chairman and directors concluded the proceedings.

CHARTERED MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LONDON, AND CHINA.—The directors report that the accounts for the half-year ended June 30 show a net profit of £35,702, out of which a dividend is declared at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, carrying forward £16,952. The Eastern trade is said to be improving, owing to last season's good harvest in India, and the present indications point to the probability of its continuance. As compared with the previous report, deposits and bills payable show rather larger totals. The note circulation is rather less, while the loans payable have fallen by about one-half. The total of money at call has doubled. The bills receivable show an increase of about £200,000, and the bills discounted are about half a million less.—At the half-yearly meeting, held on Oct. 19, the chairman, Mr. G. Nicol, after going through the various paragraphs of the report, said it was with regret that the directors were unable to present a more satisfactory account of profit and loss for the half-year. Irrespective of the circumstances which had paralysed banking and trade in India, they had had the exceptional disadvantage this year to labour under in the disagreeable blunder in the Indian Government finances, which had necessitated a loan to a large amount. Still, under all circumstances, he thought that the profit they were able to show for the half-year was not altogether unsatisfactory, and there was every reason to look forward to a better result in the future. Trade was now in a satisfactory and safe condition, and their prospects were sound, although he could not hold out the hope that they would make large profits. Since the last meeting Mr. Jackson, their inspector, had returned from the branches, and his report was very satisfactory indeed. It appeared that the bank was never in a more sound and safe condition than at the present moment. Irrespective of the items of building, there were few accounts which they would not be able to liquidate at once without any loss whatever. At the last meeting he told them that they had an account in Ceylon still unsettled; but that matter had been fully concluded now, and there was left nothing in Ceylon but a small property of the value of £1,500. The lesson they had learned there was not without its advantages, because by it they had been warned against incurring similar losses up again. If they had had the courage to face the loss ten years ago the bank would have been better off than it was now. Following the usual custom at the half-yearly meeting, the directors would have no resolution to propose, but he was prepared to give the shareholders any information they might desire. The few observations made by the shareholders were purely of a congratulatory character, and the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the directors, the manager, and the staff of the bank.

CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA, AND CHINA.—An extraordinary general meeting was held at the Cannon-street Hotel on Wednesday, Oct. 20; Mr. William Paterson in the chair. The Chairman stated that as this was only an interim meeting there were no accounts to submit, and only one resolution to bring forward. The balance-sheet would be laid before the shareholders at the end of the year's business as usual, but he might state that the directors had gone through the accounts and returns sent in from the various branches of the bank, and they felt quite justified in recommending an interim dividend for the half-year ended on June 30 last at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. The bank had had a fair share of business during the first half of the year, but unfortunately the profits were not what they might have been had trade been brisker and competition less keen. The shareholders were aware that the Afghan war had cost many millions, and there had been very much discussion as to how, when, and what this country should contribute towards it. The uncertainty as to these points had influenced the operations of the bank to a considerable extent. It only remained for him to move that an interim dividend for the half-year, ending June 30 last, at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, be now declared payable on and after the 27th inst. Mr. John Jones seconded the resolution, which, after a brief discussion, was agreed to.

MOYAR COFFEE COMPANY.—An extraordinary general meeting was held on Oct. 18 at the City Terminus Hotel, Mr. F. A. Hall presiding, to consider special resolutions. The chairman reminded them that at the meeting in May they were authorised to dispose of five gardens, or portions of the property, to the Devala Moyar Gold Mining Company, and they had done so for £132,000, to be paid partly in cash and partly in shares. The meeting was called to decide on the disposal of the proceeds. In consultation with their legal adviser, Mr. Courteney, it was found necessary to consult counsel for the purpose of seeing how the proceeds could be dealt with. They had accordingly consulted Mr. Beal and Mr. Horace Davey, who concurred that a portion only could be divided as profit, and that a portion must be treated as capital, and so returned to the shareholders. The portion which they now proposed to deal with was all the shares, which amounted to 61,795 shares of £1 each, and £30,897 in cash. The second sum of £30,897 would be returned as capital, and would be dealt with afterwards. They proposed that the 61,795 shares should be distributed among the shareholders as soon as they could manage to do so, thus giving for each share in the company five shares in the Devala Moyar Company. He moved a resolution distributing among the shareholders of the company pro rata, according to the number of shares therein in respect whereof they were the registered holders on the 16th inst., 61,795 fully paid-up shares in the Devala Moyar Gold Mining Company, and £30,897 in cash as dividend or profit arising from the sale of a portion of the company's estates. The motion having been seconded, some discussion ensued as to the retention of the word "dividend" in the resolution. The chairman said they had been advised that, whatever they called the sum to be divided, it must be regarded as profit; and they could only make a dividend out of profit. The solicitor said it was important that the word should be retained. The chairman said they would still keep the Dale Estates, which they believed would about represent the reduced capital—£31,000. They were not aware that there were any reets on those estates. An amendment was proposed leaving out everything beyond the word "cash" in the resolution. The solicitor said if the amendment were carried he should urge the directors to retain the money till they satisfied themselves that the words should have been excluded. In reply to a question, he stated that he could not say exactly how long it would be before the other £2 would be returned—he did not think earlier than two months. The amendment was then put and lost. In reply to a question, the chairman said the £30,897 would be paid free of income-tax. A further amendment was then proposed by General Gossett, the effect of which was that £1 should be paid as dividend and that the £4 should be paid as return of capital. The solicitor said this would merely defer the payment of the £1 for two or three months, and could not alter the character of the money. The amendment was lost and the resolution was carried, with three dissentients. Another resolution was passed altering the articles of association so as to give the company power to reduce its capital. A discussion afterwards ensued relative to the disposal of the balance remaining of the cash received from the Devala Moyar Company, and a resolution was proposed by Mr. C. Kilburn to the effect that, after making a return of £5 per share to the shareholders and providing for other payments, it should be divided among the directors. An amendment was proposed and ultimately carried distributing £5,000 as a committee of shareholders might determine among the directors, officers, and employees as extra remuneration for their services connected with the sale of the company's property to the Devala Moyar Company, in lieu of the remuneration provided for by clause ninety-four of the articles of association. The committee was afterwards appointed.

The Quickstep, which arrived at Marseilles on Oct. 11, from Singapore, reports that she had strong westerly gales and very high seas off the Cape of Good Hope. Shipped several heavy seas on deck, and had a quarter boat carried away from the davits, and forward house filled with water. She was off the Cape for eighteen days. On Oct. 5, off the Spanish coast, she encountered strong southerly gale, and lost two mastsails and jib.

COMMEMORATION OF SERVICES IN AFGHANISTAN.—The following special notice appears in the Gazette of India of Sept. 25:—"The Viceroy and Governor General in Council has much pleasure in announcing that her Majesty the Queen-Emress has been graciously pleased to confer a separate war medal in commemoration of the services of the officers, non-commissioned officers, and soldiers, European and native, who have been employed on field service in Afghanistan. Her Majesty has expressed her gracious readiness to receive for consideration the names of those British officers who have rendered distinguished service during the war, which her Majesty's Government hopes has now been brought to a happy termination. Recognising the excellent service which has been rendered by many native commissioned officers, the Secretary of State for India has authorised the creation of twenty-five additional appointments to the 2nd class of the Order of British India, and a corresponding promotion to the 1st class, to be hereafter absorbed. His Excellency the Commander in Chief in India will be empowered to furnish the Government of India with the necessary recommendations for giving due effect to these measures, in which her Majesty's Government trusts the armies of India will recognise that her Gracious Majesty the Queen-Emress of India is very sensible of the valued and distinguished services which have been rendered in the field in Afghanistan. The Governor General in Council congratulates the Indian armies on this cordial expression of her Majesty's royal pleasure and approbation. It has been his pleasing duty, as it was that also of his predecessor, to bring from time to time under the notice of their Queen the several occasions on which, under the able guidance of their commanders, her Majesty's troops, British and native, have justified the full confidence of the Government in their courage and devotion on the field of battle. The Governor General in Council now desires, on the return of a large portion of those troops to British territory, to offer the hearty testimony of the Government of India to the unflinching discipline, the high spirit, and the cheerful endurance which have been so conspicuously evinced by the whole force under all the vicissitudes of prolonged, distant, and trying service. To these most honourable and soldierly qualities it is due that rarely, if ever, has war been carried on in an enemy's country with so strict a regard to the laws of humanity and honour, and such total absence of excess of any kind, as throughout the late operations in Afghanistan. For this result, no less than for the successes they have achieved in the field, the Government of India desires to thank its soldiers of all ranks; and, while deploring those gallant and devoted men who have fallen in the performance of their duty, to offer the returning division and their leaders a hearty welcome."

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

THESE FAMOUS PILLS PURIFY THE BLOOD, act soothingly on the LIVER and STOMACH, giving TONE, ENERGY, and VIGOUR to these great MAIN SPRINGS of LIFE. Are wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to FEMALITY, and in cases of WEAKNESS and DEBILITY, a powerful invigorator of the system.

KIRKMAN AND SON,

ESTABLISHED NEARLY 150 YEARS.

3 and 9, SOHO-SQUARE, LONDON, W.

KIRKMAN AND SON'S

PATENT STEEL FRAME

SHORT GRAND PIANOS,

SIX FEET LONG, IN ELEGANT ROSEWOOD OR WALNUT CASES,

Are considered by all who have heard them to combine a greater amount and resonance of tone, consistent with adaptability of size, shape, and elegance of appearance than those of any other manufacturer.

KIRKMAN AND SON'S

OVERSTRUNG

GRAND AND COTTAGE PIANOS.

It being considered by some competent judges that the German method of over or cross-stringing Pianos is attended with great advantage. Messrs. Kirkman and Son are now manufacturing both Grand and Cottage Pianos on this principle, the latter having the plain sticker Action, which is not the case with Pianos of this class manufactured by other makers; in fact, the extreme simplicity of the action used by Messrs. Kirkman and Son in all their Pianos render them eminently suitable for exportation to the Colonies, where skilled workmen are few and far between. All useless checks and complications are carefully avoided, thus enabling any tuner, with however superficial a knowledge of the business, to regulate them or repair any damage they may sustain.

KIRKMAN AND SON

Have a reputation extending over nearly a Century and a Half.

There are now in the possession of the house Harpsichords and Virginals dated 1758 and 1778, manufactured by Jacobus and Abraham Kirkman.

The present members of the firm beg to call the attention of shippers and exporters to the fact that in ordering of this house they are dealing with a firm who manufacture on principles derived from experience of this almost unprecedented length.

KIRKMAN AND SON

Have at present a Fine Selection at their Extensive Show Rooms in Soho square.

LAMPLOUGH'S EFFERVESCENT PYRETIC SALINE.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators, also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1872, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates.

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Oct. 16; Madras and Allahabad, Oct. 14; Calcutta, Oct. 13.

REPORTS on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending Oct. 5, 1880, state that in Madras there was slight rain, and more is required in several districts. In Bombay rain has again fallen in the Deccan and the Southern Mahratta Country; crops in most districts are in good condition and the harvest has commenced in places. In Bengal the rain that has fallen has been beneficial, but more is still wanted in parts of the Patna division; the autumn harvest is generally almost over, with a good average outturn. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh there was slight rain in the eastern districts during the early part of the week, but the weather has been clear since; more rain would do much good; ploughing for the spring harvest has begun. The Punjab again had no rain; agricultural prospects remain, however, fairly favourable. In the Central Provinces the rainfall was slight; prospects are fairly good. In Burma there has been moderate rain and crops are thriving. Good rain fell in Assam: the weather is seasonable and prospects are satisfactory. In native States agricultural prospects remain generally favourable, but in some parts of Mysor and Coorg and Rajputana the want of rain is much felt. Prospects throughout the empire remain fairly good on the whole, though the kharif harvest has suffered from short rainfall in places, and more rain is required in a few districts for the rabi.

THE health report for the same week is as follows:—Bombay: health good. Bengal: fever prevalent in 24-Pergunnahs, Moorshedabad, Rajshahye, Burdwan, Rungpore, and Purneah; cholera still in Cuttack. N.W.P. and Oudh: health good, except in Bareilly, where fever and cholera (thirty deaths) have appeared. Punjab: health fair. Central Provinces: fever still prevalent. British Burma, Rangoon, and Akyab: health good. Bassein: a little small-pox. Prome: cholera decreasing. Assam: health fair. Mysor and Coorg: fever prevalent. Central India States—Morar: cholera disappearing. Rajputana—Meywar: fever prevalent. Other reports good.

THE latest news from Cabul received at Simla is of an entirely satisfactory kind and lends no support to the disturbing rumours about Cabul affairs prevalent last week. The Ameer will shortly have to collect the instalment of the revenue which is about to fall due, an experiment which will be watched with interest, as showing whether he has succeeded in attracting to himself the substantial allegiance of his turbulent subjects.

THIS week's telegrams from Kandahar, to the daily papers, contain these particulars:—

"A large caravan is daily expected from Cabul—the best proof that Abdul Rahman is getting on well there. The Foreign Secretary is still at Kandahar. The Viceroy will hold a durbar at Jacobabad about Nov. 18, chiefly for the reception of the Khan of Khelat. It is believed to be settled that no British troops will be detached from this garrison during the winter."

"Intelligence from Herat confirms the accounts of the disturbed condition of the country. A large gathering of Alizais on the Helmund continues to prevent supplies being sent to Kandahar. Ayub Khan is reported to have five regiments and one battery at Herat, and one regiment and a battery at Farrah. He has sent messengers to Meshed asking for assistance from Persia. If unsuccessful he will go there himself. A report, indeed, states that he has already gone. It is considered here that the Shah will arrest him on our behalf. On the withdrawal into Kandahar of our troops from the outlying districts the inhabitants have promptly refused payment of the revenue. The percentage of sick is amongst Europeans nine, amongst natives ten."

THE Times of India states that General Roberts is believed to favour the retention of Kandahar on strong military grounds, and from a report just issued on the trade of the Punjab it would appear that there exists no less strong commercial grounds for pursuing the same policy. The foreign trade of the Punjab has steadily and uniformly decreased from Rs.2,74,14,399 in 1875-76 to Rs.1,90,27,916 in 1879-80, yet the Punjab frontier is that by which alone a direct trade can be carried on between India and Central Asia. The chief military consideration on account of which General Roberts is understood to favour the annexation of Kandahar is that the Khojak can never prove a good frontier line as it is passable in several directions. He is also understood to favour the immediate completion of the railway as far as Kandahar for the support of the garrison there, should its occupation be continued, in order to save the great waste in baggage animals which would otherwise be unavoidable. If, therefore, the retention of Kandahar can be urged by no less an authority than General Roberts on purely military grounds, the fact that such a step, together with the opening of railway communication, would give not merely an impetus to the foreign trade of the Punjab, but an entirely new development to it, ought to decide the matter.

THE same journal hears that there is a paucity of officers with the transport train in Southern Afghanistan and that some of the few now with it are desirous of leaving. It is a most unpopular service, and naturally so, for there is no code of regulations for the officers to work by. Every general or commanding officer appears to think that he has authority over the train, so there are nothing but orders and counter-orders. How the accounts will ever be adjusted it is impossible to say. No experience was gained by the shortcomings of the transport in Abyssinia, for the simple reason that there is not one officer with the transport who had ever served in a similar capacity before.

THE special correspondent of a Bombay journal at Kandahar gives an unqualified contradiction to the report published in India that General Primrose refused or hesitated to raise the British flag after occupying the citadel. The facts are that after the occupation everyone was so busy that no one noticed the omission to exhibit the ensign for two or three days. When noticed the flag could not at first be found; when found, it was immediately raised.

LADY RIPON, who was to have left London on Wednesday for India, has postponed her departure until Nov. 10.

It is stated that the seat in the India Council vacant through the death of Sir W. Merewether will be filled by the appointment of Mr. Bertram Wodehouse Currie, one of the partners in the banking firm of Glyn and Co.

M. LAUGIER, Governor of the French Indies, has been appointed Governor of Martinique.

MR. ROPER LETHBRIDGE resumed charge of his office as press commissioner on Oct. 4.

It is said that the Hon. G. Vernon, 12th Lancers, who was recently arrested at Puna, has been ordered by the military authorities to apologise to Sir James Fergusson, the Governor of Bombay.

MAJOR E. S. BURNETT, R.A., commanding a battery at Secunderabad, was killed at that station on October 11 by being thrown from his horse.

It is said that Mr. Giles, the Inspector of the North Eastern Division of the Bombay Presidency, is to succeed Dr. Buhler, C.I.E., who, as we have already mentioned, has resigned. Dr. Buhler has accepted a professorship at Vienna.

THE Consulate at Resht, formerly held by Mr. Abbott, now our Consul General at Tabriz, and at present, it is believed, at Urumiah, was removed to Asterabad some time ago, and Mr. Churchill, the Consul, appointed to succeed Mr. Abbott, has been resident there for some time. Mr. Churchill has, however, been promoted to the consulate at Palermo, and he is shortly to be succeeded by Lieut. Col. Beresford Lovitt, C.S.I., who was formerly employed in the Telegraph Department in Persia.

MAJOR MEREWETHER, R.E., succeeds the late Col. Ponsonby Cox as chairman of the Bombay Port Trust.

CAPT. STREET, R.N., the present naval adviser to the Government of India, recently delivered a lecture on the Indian Marine at the United Service Institution, Simla. He said that the present Indian Marine, while merely maintained for transport purposes, does not suffice, and has to be supplemented by the use of commercial craft at an enormous cost. He was in favour of the extension of the marine and the acquisition of more vessels, so as to make it equal to the performance of the required transport service.

It is stated that all uneasiness in regard to the disposition of the Khan of Khelat's Pathan troops has now disappeared.

THE Government of India have issued instructions to put an immediate stop to all interference in recruiting for the Native Army on the part of the civil and police authorities. The duties of recruiting are to be again entirely entrusted to the military authorities, who are instructed to send out recruiting parties to likely districts. The Bombay journal says that the experiment of recruiting through the civil officers in that Presidency has been a dead failure. The authorities did not, or could not, secure the services of likely men; and the recruits they contrived, by hook or by crook, to collect were almost invariably returned by the military surgeons as unable to pass the ordinary medical examination. Nor was the duty of recruiting acceptable to the mofussil civilians, and all concerned will be glad that a return is to be made on the old plan.

At a meeting of the general committee of the Naini Tal Central Relief Fund, held on October 8 at Naini Tal, it was ascertained roughly that the following claims on the fund were admissible:—Europeans: twelve widows and thirty-five children of those killed in the accident. The cases of four men, eleven women, and five children left without means of subsistence, or who have been rendered destitute by their losses, were also provisionally admitted. The cases of seven men killed were still under inquiry. Natives: some thirty families were recommended for aid at once, and the distribution of relief was entrusted to Sir H. Ramsay. The sum of Rs.3,500 was voted in various sums for the relief of the immediate wants of the sufferers.

It is stated in General Orders that Col. H. R. L. Newdigate, C.B., half-pay, Rifle Brigade, having, with the sanction of Government, been permitted to resign the command of the Lower Kuram Brigade, in consequence of ill health, is allowed to reside at Murree until he is able to travel, when he will proceed to England at the public expense.

THE report of the deputy master of the Royal Mint on the pyx coins of the Calcutta and Bombay Mints issued in 1879 is published in the Gazette of India, from which we observe that the "standard weight and fineness of the coins have been maintained with accuracy."

THE Bombay Gazette says that the want of forage and provisions prevailing in Southern Afghanistan, consequent on the long drought, and aggravated almost to famine-point by the campaign of the last few months, cannot be longer ignored if the troops which are to winter in that country are to be fed and their horses and baggage-animals kept alive till spring. An officer who has just passed through Chaman on his way to Kandahar thus writes as to the present aspect of the country:—"So far," he says, "I have seen little else than dead animals and those about to die. Of the last it is possible to estimate the number. At times I feel uncomfortably hungry myself! Of the former, besides those which die on the road, there are numbers which die quietly every day in the various stations. In fact, unless some supreme effort is made there can be little doubt but that both men and beasts will die of starvation in Kandahar this winter."

IN June last, according to the report of the protector of emigrants in Jamaica, the ship Chetah left Port Royal for India with some 370 "return emigrants" on board bound for their native India. A good many of them seem to have found emigration extremely profitable. Of the 236 men eighty-nine were in a position to lodge Rs.4,970 at the treasury at Port Royal for transmission to India, an average of upwards of £55. Besides this, many took back considerable sums in sovereigns. One had with him £95 in gold. They also had amongst them £1,500 worth of jewellery. Nepaul Sing is an example of what good fortune sometimes awaits the Indian coolie in Jamaica. Nepaul Sing went there in 1861, and he returns with £1,273 in hard cash, leaving also some landed property behind him.

INDARMAN BARYA, the writer of some controversial works in favour of Hinduism and in disparagement of the religion of Mahomed, has been fined Rs.500 by the European magistrate of Moradabad, who has also directed the books seized to be destroyed.

THE returns of opium revenue show a total for seven sales of Bengal opium and six months' pass duty on export from Bombay of Rs.5,31,38,965 as compared with the estimate of Rs.5,03,66,200.

THE Ultramar announces that an order will shortly be issued by the Minister of Marine in Portugal authorising the sale of all Government property in Goa, the amount realised thereby to be applied in liquidating the Government debt and in the prosecution of works of public utility.

NINE distinguished natives of India have recently subscribed sums amounting in all to Rs.19,600 towards the Oriental Seminary Building Fund.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—Major E. S. Burnett, R.A.; Major Oliver, 66th Regiment; Capt. H. Bailey (late East India Company's Artillery); Mr. T. White (deputy shipping master, Karachi); Mr. W. G. Wait (Coonoor).

STATE OF AFFAIRS AT CABUL.

WE have received a letter from our Persian correspondent, dated Cabul, Sept. 22, to the effect that the Ameer is practising extortion of the most oppressive kind; Mirza Jafar and a few other Mahomedans have been imprisoned. Mirza Jafar has recovered his liberty on payment of one lakh of rupees, half of which was paid down, the other half to be paid in instalments. He has been presented with a khilafat and restored to his former post of manager of the octroi duties at Cabul. Amir Ahmed Shah, collector of excise revenue, who was also imprisoned, will be released in a day or two on payment of Rs.40,000 or Rs.50,000. Six or seven Hindus have also been imprisoned. Niranjan Das, clerk of the octroi duties at Cabul, has been released on payment of Rs.20,000. Misser Paloo, a commissariat contractor, is still imprisoned, and has been condemned to corporal punishment or pay exorbitantly for his release. Dewan Sada Nand has left for Peshawur with property amounting to one lakh of rupees, and hundis worth Rs.35,000, drawn by the agents of Chela Ram, Daryana Mal, and Nichal Das, on their respective principals. Meanwhile the Amir has arrested Radha Mal, the manager of Niranjan Das's business here, and is torturing him with the hope of eliciting information as to the whereabouts of the Dewan's property. The agents above mentioned have warned the bankers of Peshawur not to pay the hundis of the Dewan, as they fear his property will be confiscated; they are also making preparations for a flight, with their property, to Peshawur, whither their wives and families have already proceeded with the British force. Those Hindus who have not as yet been arrested are in fear of being so. General Mahomed Jan Khan has, in accordance with the orders of the mother of Abdulla Jan, the late heir-apparent, got together some regiments with the object of attacking the Ameer at Cabul. The Ameer is making arrangements to oppose him. Many rumours are current regarding Kandahar affairs, but nothing is definitely known. The Ameer has ordered the Governors of Kohistan to assemble men, and it is possible that he will proceed to that province before encountering Mahomed Jan. Dada Sher Khan and other merchants are preparing to move themselves and their property to India feeling that they are not free from the danger of extortion. Sirdars Ahmed Khan and Mahomed Omar Khan, who were sent for from India, have arrived and been received with distinction. The Ameer gave them Rs.5,000 to spend in amusements, and they have been ordered to enrol sowars.—Civil and Military Gazette.

THE INDIAN RAILWAYS.

The statement of receipts and expenses of the eight guaranteed railways in India shows that, from Jan. 1 up to the end of August, the total receipts amounted to Rs.6,58,77,444, a decrease of Rs.24,70,901 compared with last year. The decrease shown occurred on four of these lines, more than 20 lakhs on the East Indian, more than 12½ lakhs on the Great Indian Peninsula, and 3 lakhs on the Madras line; on the other hand, there was an increase on the Sind, Punjab, and Delhi line of Rs.6,65,000, and on the Bombay and Baroda line of Rs.4,37,000, leaving a balance of decrease as above stated. Taking the receipts on the twenty-one State railways for the same period the figures are Rs.1,29,51,472, showing an increase compared with last year of 39½ lakhs. Towards this result the Punjab Northern contributed Rs.8,20,000; the Rangoon and Irawaddy Rs.2,58,000; the Indus Valley line Rs.18,45,000, including receipts of the Kandahar line from May 2 last; and Rs.4,48,000 from the Western Rajputana, southern section. On seven of the State lines there was a decrease of receipts, the largest of which, Rs.58,837, occurred on the Rajputana line. The grand total of expenses of guaranteed and State railways together amounted to Rs.3,86,26,169; and this sum, deducted from the grand total of receipts of Rs.7,88,28,916, leaves a balance in hand of Rs.4,02,02,747, being an increase over the same period last year of Rs.9,29,786.

COLOMBO HARBOUR WORKS.

THE Governor of Colombo thus alluded to the above works in his address on the opening of the Legislative Council:—"The resolutions passed by the council in the last session relative to the proposed modification of the Colombo harbour works were transmitted, with all the papers bearing upon the question, to the Secretary of State in November last, for the consideration of the consulting engineer. It was only by the last mail that I received Sir John Coode's report, which, with the accompanying plans, will be laid upon the table. These papers will, I am sure, receive the earnest attention of the members of the council. It is pointed out by the consulting engineer, who has given his anxious attention to the subject, that to shorten the southward arm of the breakwater would have the effect of placing the entrance to the harbour in so much shallower water that, after making due allowance for the scend of sea, vessels of the largest class, iron-clads for example, or first-class steamers, could not enter the harbour. This would be a deplorable defect in the harbour, which scarcely any saving could compensate for; for not only ships of war but merchant steamers also are constantly increased in size, and the harbour would lose much of its usefulness if ships of the largest class were permanently excluded from it. Sir John Coode's report is so clear and full that it is sufficient for me at present to refer to it and to say that the question of the course to be taken in regard to the works will be brought before the council as early as is compatible with a careful consideration of the papers laid before you. In the meanwhile the breakwater works are being energetically carried on according to the plans already agreed to. I regret that owing to delays in England, which I believe were unavoidable, the dredging of the harbour within the already protected area has not yet been commenced. The steam dredge Merak was purchased for the purpose some months ago, but the buckets for dredging have not yet been received from England, but are expected to arrive at the end of the present month and the work of dredging will probably be commenced about the end of October."

AFTER MAIWAND.

In the Gazette of India of Oct. 23 is published General Primrose's despatch, together with General Brooke's despatch detailing the manner in which he performed the task allotted to him. General Primrose asserts that his instructions to General Brooke were given verbally, to the effect that he should proceed along the Kokaran road with a small force of all arms in the direction of Singiri. General Brooke was to use his own discretion in carrying out the instructions given to him for the purpose of helping in the stragglers. General Brooke, in his despatch, says that he started at 5.30 in the morning. His force consisted of forty sabres of the Puna Horse, under Captain Anderson; two guns, under Captain Law; three officers and 70 rank and file of the 7th Fusiliers, under Lieutenant Rodick; and 100 rank and file of the 28th Native Infantry, under Major Singleton. The only practicable road to Kokaran passes through the walled gardens and the main street of the Abbassabad village. The gardens were full of armed men, who fell back before the skirmishers' guns. The main body passed through unopposed. The force pushed on quickly. A large number of armed men crowded the hills on the right and the walled enclosures on the left. Although the resistance was not important, yet much time was occupied in clearing the positions, Kokaran was reached at nine in the morning. Here the force took up a position commanding the Herat road, and the cavalry were sent forward to meet General Burrows's force, which on crossing the Argandab had halted a mile from Kokaran. On the appearance of General Brooke's force Kokaran was hurriedly evacuated by a large body of armed men who had hitherto been harassing and killing small parties of the retiring force. This body established itself in a village on the Argandab bank on the right flank, but was quickly dislodged. All the further firing of the enemy was prevented until the rearguard of General Burrows's force had passed General Brooke's force on its way to Kandahar. General Brooke then recalled the cavalry, which had hitherto been watching the ford on the Argandab. On retiring, the cavalry, under Captain Anderson, were attacked by superior numbers, but quickly overcame the resistance, inflicting much loss on the enemy. General Brooke followed General Burrows's force picking up the stragglers. On the return march it was unmolested for three miles, when it received news from the front that the hills over the Abbassabad village and the walled gardens were strongly occupied. Two guns were sent forward under a cavalry escort, General Brooke following with the remainder of his force. He passed through General Burrows's force and pushed to the front, throwing out skirmishers. Well-directed shells drove the enemy out of their fortified posts on the hills, while the skirmishers cleared the gardens, enabling both forces to pass through Abbassabad with a trifling loss, and thus to reach the open ground on the Kandahar side of the village. General Brooke then halted till General Burrows's force passed, sending back one company of the Fusiliers to keep the outskirts of the village clear and to bring in the stragglers. He then followed General Burrows's force into the cantonment, arriving at a quarter-past one in the afternoon. The enemy's loss was severe. They suffered considerably from our artillery and rifle fire, and also from two well-directed cavalry charges of the Puna Horse, under Captain Anderson. Our loss was one sowar killed. General Brooke reports that the conduct of our troops was excellent; the guns were well handled by Captain Law, and he speaks favourably of Major Singleton and Lieutenant Rodick, the staff officers. Captain Leckie, Captain Keyser, and Surgeon Macnamara are also brought to notice. Sir F. Haines, in forwarding this despatch to the Viceroy, says that General Brooke's despatch records the excellent service performed by the general with the small force at his disposal. Sir F. Haines also remarks that the delay in sending in the despatch is much to be regretted, it having been obtained only when called for. The Indian Government concurs in the appreciatory remarks made by Sir F. Haines. The same Gazette also contains the report of Colonel Pierce, of the 16th Bombay Infantry, detailing the successful repulse of 2,000 of the enemy, who at four o'clock in the morning of the 16th of August attacked the Kach outpost on the line of communications. The attack was most determined. Five hundred Ghazis attempted to rush into the lines but were foiled by the steady rifle fire. They left forty-eight dead on the ground, some close to the walls of the fort. The enemy's loss is estimated to be, killed and wounded 200. Our loss was trifling, except 25 followers killed, who, panicstricken, rushed into the jaws of the enemy. The force under Colonel Pierce consisted of 300 men of the 16th Bombay Infantry and 150 sick just come in from Thall and Chotiali. The latter were in a fortified enclosure. General Phayre, in his despatch, says that this successful repulse saved Quetta and the upper part of the Bolan from molestation. Sir F. Haines and the Viceroy say that the defence was well arranged and was successful and worthy of all praise. Times Telegram.

PONY AND MULE BREEDING.

THE résumé of horse and mule breeding operations in India, 1880 has recently been issued, and shows that mule breeding occupies a prominent place in the operations of the department. The memorandum is largely filled with details of a technical kind, but we cannot help observing the thoroughness of all the arrangements and the close attention bestowed on those prejudices of the natives most likely to interfere with the working out of the end in view. Liberal concessions are made in regard to rules at exhibitions, and every encouragement is offered to the private breeder to undertake this work as a profitable industry. Instead of the old system of stud-breeding, with its costly details, the selected sires are to be distributed over 130 stations in the North Western Provinces, Rajputana, the Punjab, and Bombay, and only the owners of properly examined and passed mares will be permitted to share in the undoubted advantages of this new system. In connection with mules it is pointed out that they are reared at very small cost, and that the value of the animal, as shown by the price Government has paid, is steadily rising. The average price given for mules at Rawul Pindi fair was as follows:—

1878-79	159 0 0
1879-80	191 14 0

At these prices the breeder must necessarily make a large profit, as the rearing costs practically nothing, and does not in any way interfere with the ordinary occupations of a farmer.—Indian Daily News.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

FAR OUT.*

UNDER the happy title of "Far Out," which says more than "Far Away," and expresses a more extreme remoteness, Colonel Butler, C.B., has republished the bright sketches of travel in the two hemispheres which have been scattered among the pages of magazines. The author of the "Great Lone Land" is a very picturesque describer and a master of effect in word-painting, but he is even more remarkable as a liberal and original thinker. He touches nothing, whether in history or geography, without that which is the life of all narrative and description—comparison. The effect of epoch upon epoch, the succession of race to race, the contrast of policy with policy, furnish him with his most suggestive thoughts. The following is an instance of Colonel Butler's descriptive power:—

"A region of intense desolation is the northern coast of North America. The night of the Arctic winter lies heavily upon it, crushing out all sense or sound of life for long months together. Berg, floe, and pack upon the sea join frozen hands with a dreary waste of drifted snow upon the land, and low-lying capes and ice-piled shore lie in a chaos of desolation, where nought marks the hidden line between earth and water save when some ice-crust rock or tempest-beat boulder lifts its head above the lonely waste.

"Summer comes to this dreary region, but only as a fleeting visitor. By midsummer the snow has vanished from the shore; the ice has loosened in the rivers, long channels of blue open sea lie between the vast fields and floes of ice. On the undulating surface of the ground mosses and short grass appear; but the iron grasp of winter is never wholly loosed from the land, and even in the long day of July, which knows no sunset, scarcely a foot beneath the surface the earth remains bound in an eternity of frost. Yet this short fleeting summer brings to this northern land a host of strange visitors. From the far distant pine forest of the Great Slave Lake, from the nearer but still remote woods of dwarf firs and spectral junipers which fringe the shores of the Great Bear Lake, and from the yet farther off region where the crystal Athabasca lies amid its Laurentian wilds, there come great herds of reindeer trooping thither on their summer quest. Here along the northern sea, in this short summer which is one long day, the great herds bring forth their young. Here, too, birds in endless numbers come to nest and to increase; the wild swan, the wavy, the goose, the great crane, meet in a common feeling of peace and security, and safe at last from the universal enemy, man, make their nest along the margins of low-set pools and peaty swamps, filling the long silent air with noise and life and motion. But this season is a fleeting one. Ere September has reached its close wild storms of snow and sleet sweep the Arctic twilight; the waves freeze as they lave the wintry shore, the grass rustles dry and dead, the reindeer vanish from the scene, and in many a long waving V-shaped line the wild birds sail southward from a silent shore."

Although the volume takes us to the east to Cyprus and Natal, and pauses in its travels to prefer a soldier's "Plea for the Peasant" in Ireland, we cannot leave those transatlantic regions which the author long ago made so peculiarly his own without another quotation:—

"Wonderful are those winter nights in the north, when the glory of the aurora is abroad in the heavens, filling from horizon to zenith the dark dome of night; for it seems then as though stars and sky sent down a dew of rainbow radiance to touch the lofty shores and solemn standing pines, and to cast upon the silent reaches of frozen river and the dim waste of ice-piled lake that weird light whose essence still lies hid from science in the unreach caverns of the north."

Among the historical sketches are included a survey of England's past and present policy in Afghanistan, and an equally significant review of events in South Africa. Col. Butler has the courage of his opinions. The pen which drew the "Great Lone Land" has by no means forgotten its cunning, while the greater variety of subjects comprised in the present volume is the means of showing us the author's ripened and extended thought.

THE first number of the Army and Navy Magazine, illustrated by a portrait of H.R.H. the Commander in Chief, opens with an article from the vigorous and trenchant pen of Col. Malleon, which we recommend to the members of the Birmingham Midland Institute. The arguments against the retention of Kandahar are successively stated and successively disposed of. He most clearly puts the case of the Kandahar proper as against the Durani Afghans, and urges that we should not disappoint the oppressed and plundered inhabitants of their hope for deliverance from their oppressors. "The Garibaldi Episode," drawn from the varied experiences of Mr. Henty, is interesting, with its vivid illustration of Italian enthusiasm and of the mock Garibaldian spirit that found it easier to run away than fight the Austrians in 1866. Mr. Boulger contributes an article on "The Chinese Art of War," or the Kiau Ping Siu Chi, and argues that the Chinese possess a capacity for war as well as a manual which only needs some revision and amplification to meet the wants of the age. Such a man as Col. Gordon, as editor and practical instructor, would perhaps make the new edition successful. Captain Bennett writes very sensibly on the strength and weakness of "The Volunteer Force," and E. St. John Brenon is hopeful of the day when "Greece shall occupy a proud position among the nations of Europe and in its councils." The hero of Mr. James Grant's story of the sea is as yet only a boy on shore, who will, doubtless, go through many stirring adventures, and probably become "Lord Oakhampton." The questions raised in "Scarlet Coats and Scarlet Fever" do not affect the hearts of young ladies, but the health of our soldiers, to whom it is shown infection can be and is conveyed from the squalid homes of the workwomen employed by private contractors. Charles Kingsley pointed out this danger as affecting the customers of cheap tailors in "Alton Locke." The magazine has made a good beginning and we wish it success accordingly.

THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.*

PART IV., completing the twelfth volume of the Journal, contains three papers and the annual report. The most important contribution is furnished by Dr. Bushell, physician to the British Legation, Peking. He has translated from two books of the official histories of the Chinese T'ang dynasty a valuable paper on the early history of Thibet between the years 634 and 866 A.D. An introduction and explanatory notes precede and follow the paper itself. The kingdom founded towards the end of the sixth century by Luntsan-solung-tsan is described under the name of the T'ufan. The founder is said to have extended his dominion on the south west as far as P'olomen (Brahmana—Central India), and at the beginning of the T'ang dynasty the T'ufan, or T'ubod, army numbered 100,000 warriors. The history records that after the pilgrimage of Hiouen-thsang, or Yuan Chuang, to India, the Maharaja Siladitya sent a mission to the T'ang emperor, who returned the compliment. The ambassador, Wang Yuants'e, arrived after the death of Siladitya, and was treacherously attacked and plundered by a usurper. Yuants'e escaped and fled to the T'ufan, whose king led an army of T'ufan warriors, aided by a body of Nipolo, or Nepal troops, to attack Kanouj, where they fought for three days and inflicted a severe defeat on the enemy. Another interesting note states that in 801 occurs the first mention of Mahomedans, when the T'ufan were defeated in Yunnan. "The Kang (Samarkand) and Heiyi Tashik (black-robed Arabs—the Abbassides) troops, with their Tufan commander, all surrendered. Yachi mentioned in this history is the old name of Talifu, the seat of the short-lived Mahomedan or Panthay Power. But it is also the sacred place of the Thibetans, who regard the tombs of their ancestors and early rulers there as holy shrines. Dr. Oscar Frankfurter endeavours to prove from three Pali suttas that the Buddhist Nirvana is "the cessation of lust, anger, and ignorance." The report contains the usual full review of all that the past year has added to the general store of Asiatic studies and literature.

THE NATIONAL INDIAN ASSOCIATION.*

A USEFUL paper, signed S. Sathianadhan, is the first in this month's journal; it is intended as a guide for Indian students to English universities, and recommends Cambridge in preference to Oxford. Mr. James Long contributes an addition to his "Proverbs in the Zenana," of which we quote an Afghan proverb, "May you never eat that leek which will rise up in your own throat," i.e., your own words. We are not told that it is especially used in Southern Afghanistan. "A Lecture on Education" quotes the practical peroration of an address delivered to the Students' Association, Jessore, by Mr. Chandi Charan, Sen., the president. The account of the Mutiny and the report of the Bengal Branch Association furnishes a useful illustration. We note that the "Life of an Indian Queen" was from a Bengali book by Shrimolomini Boshak, translated by Miss E. Comyn.

CORRESPONDENCE.

REMITTANCES BY ENGLISHMEN FROM INDIA TO ENGLAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—As Consols are at 99½ and exchange with India is below 1s. 8d. I ask you to urge the Indian Government to reduce the amount of their drawings on India for the present, and, if necessary, to apply to Parliament for a loan, which might be raised at 3¼ per cent. per annum. The imports of silver into India last year exceeded 5½ millions sterling, and it would be interesting to learn how much of this large sum was despatched from Vienna, as very little business in silver appears to have been done in London. Europeans in India sending home money for the support of their families are at present heavily taxed—1. By the enormous drawings on India by bills issued by the Indian Council; and 2. By the sale of enormous quantities of silver by Austria to India.—Your obedient servant, Nov. 1.

THE FUTURE OF THE ARMY.

A FULL inquiry on the future of the Indian Army has been spoken of, if not actually promised, by Lord Hartington in the House of Commons, and there can be no doubt that such an inquiry is much wanted. It could not be made at a more opportune moment. The public mind is very much stirred on the question both at home and in this country; the exhaustive labours of the Army Commission of last year are available as a basis to work on; and last, but not least, advisers will be at hand, in the shape of officers of high rank, with the very latest experience of how the army as at present constituted works in the field. It behoves everyone with the interests of the country at heart to consider the subject seriously, so that if he should happen to have any influence it may be used in the right direction. We propose to discuss a few of what appear to be the most important features of the subject. First in importance, we think, must be the question, whether it is best for India to continue to draw her European army from England, as at present, or to have a local European force of her own. There can be no doubt that the latter would prove a very great economy to India, if carried out, as it should be, if at all, on a far larger scale than the old local army. We would suggest a force of all arms of 40,000 or 50,000 men, as a suitable one for a modern local Indian army, which would still leave a considerable contingent to be supplied from England in order to bring the total up to what is accepted as the proper strength—a total which recent events are not likely to diminish. By this arrangement the English army would retain the advantages of India as a training ground, while the service in the home army might be expected to become more popular, by reason of the decreased proportion of foreign service, and great difficulties as regards the system of short service would also be removed. The saving ensured by the substitution of permanent local for temporarily imported troops might be partly used to raise the pay and pensions of the non-commissioned ranks, so as to tempt even a better class of recruits than those obtained for the old local service, who were always, we believe, a superior set of men to the average English recruit. Of course the term of enlistment would be a long one, say for twelve years, with the option of taking a pension then, or continuing in the service, in the case of an approved soldier, for a further period of eight or ten years. Some people may probably advocate the idea of old soldiers, in receipt of pensions, remaining in this country as colonists, but we cannot anticipate anything of that sort on a large scale, for it is difficult to see how a colonist in India can ever compete with native labour, to say nothing of the doubtful effects of the climate on the future of a naturalised European population. There can be no doubt, however, that many suitable berths could be found under Government, in the railways, or on tea or other estates, for retired soldiers after even twenty or twenty-two years' service, who wished to remain in the country; and it would be difficult to over-estimate the value of a large number of such men scattered over India in the event of a contingency such as the mutiny of 1857. Each, with his long experience of military life and discipline, would afford a rallying-point for the quasi-latent power of self-defence in his immediate neighbourhood. The deterioration of our race, when continued in this country, may be advanced as an argument against a local army; for, as a matter of course, the naturalisation and continuance of the breed would be very largely increased by such an institution, as would be also the number of the half-caste population. This is, we allow, a serious consideration, and might lead to stringent regulations to prevent pensioners remaining in this country without special permission, only to be granted in cases of men obtaining suitable employment. The saving of money would be so great, that, as a correspondent suggests, it might be feasible to found institutions in England to which soldiers' children of pure European blood might be sent when young for education, to return to India after a few years. Such a system would obviate the deleterious effects of an Indian climate on the European race, while it would produce a constant supply of young men, who would, no doubt, eventually join the army as recruits in large numbers, and of young women who would naturally marry into the army, thereby doing much to prevent the increase of the half-caste population—an increase which we believe to be considered on all hands as an evil to be avoided. For the sake of economy such institutions as that referred to might be started in the colonies as well as in England, where, probably, they would be heartily recognised, and assisted by the Colonial Governments, if it were agreed that the young men and women turned out should have the option of remaining where brought up instead of returning to India. The expense of such institutions would, no doubt, be considerable, as it would be necessary to keep the boys and girls until the age of fifteen at least before allowing them to return to their parents in India. Something might be done towards making them self-supporting by the work of the elder children, all the boys of whom should, of course, be taught trades; small subscriptions might be levied from the army at large—very much on the principle of the military funds for officers only now existing; while, of course, the fathers would be obliged to contribute according to their rank. We are not prepared to say that the scheme so sketched would be found practicable, as careful statistics would be required before any conclusion could be arrived at; but it seems to merit consideration.—Bombay Gazette.

IRRIGATION IN BENGAL.

THE report of the Chief Engineer, Public Works Department, Irrigation Branch, Bengal, for 1879-80, tells us what has been done for irrigation in recent years. The amount of benefit conferred on the country from these operations can hardly be overrated. We shall look, for instance, at the Sone Circle Works. Here are a few details:—

Length of canal in operation	217 miles.
" " " Still to finish	2 "
" " Distributaries in operation	957 "
" " " To finish	232 "
Acres at present irrigated	1,104,893 "
" (When finished) to be irrigated	1,740,610 "
Capital expenditure to date	Rs.2,17,64,070 "

Consequently the capital expended for each acre that can be irrigated is under Rs.19. Now, if payment for canal water were made compulsory, every acre of this would be well watered, and famines practically abolished in the area served by the canal system. As we have said before, there can be no unfairness in making this charge compulsory, in the face of the fact that, when a famine does come, that famine is practically superinduced by the neglect of these water privileges on account of the charge. The whole country is compelled to expend immense sums in saving life and in mitigating suffering. On a former occasion we suggested that a charge of Rs.3 per acre be added to the land revenue on all lands within the reach of the water. Such a charge would evidently not be necessary here, as Rs.3 per acre would give a return of over 15 per cent. on the capital expended. A charge of Rs.2 per acre might in the Sone circle be sufficient, as this would realise 10 per cent.; and besides this income from irrigation there is an income from navigation. There are already completed 191 miles of canal available for navigation. This water-road ought to yield something in dues and tolls. From this general income would have to be deducted the annual cost of up-keep, which in the year under notice amounted to Rs.7,74,804. This sum included a liberal expenditure in maintenance and repairs. A charge of Rs.2 per acre would give a return at the rate of 6½ per cent. plus whatever might be earned from navigation fees. It may be mentioned to the credit of the department that this capital outlay is Rs.55,99,433 under the sanctioned estimate. We note this as rather an unusual occurrence in connection with great public works. The department has a paddle steamer, the Umpire, trading on the canal between Arrah and Dehree. Between October 16, 1879, and March 31, 1880, a period of five-and-a-half months, this vessel earned Rs.5,502 against an outlay of Rs.2,422. As the entire cost of the steamer was only Rs.22,000 this profit is equal to 30½ per cent. per annum on the capital. During the year a large number of works were transferred from the Provincial to the Irrigation Branch of the Bengal Public Works Department; among others, the Calcutta canals, including Tolly's nullah, a length of 220 miles; also 280 miles of channels in the Soonderbuns between Calcutta and Burrial, and the three great Nuddea rivers—the Bhagiruthi, Jellinghi, and Matabhanga, with their embankments, aggregating 439 miles in length. A large amount of work was done on the Orissa rivers and canals. These ordinarily cause much anxiety from the rapidity with which they rise and their liability to silt up. This is due to the proximity of the hills to the sea. During the year under notice the Dehree Training School for mechanics was transferred to Howrah and great things are now expected from it. Mr. Fouracres, whose large experience marked him for the post, has been placed in charge of the new school at Seebpore, and from his well-known energy and skill we should augur that the intentions of the Government in making the change will meet with the success they deserve.—Indian Daily News.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

MEETINGS OF COMPANIES.—At the half-yearly meeting of the Burkhola Tea Company, held Sept. 30, the report of the agents was passed.—At the half-yearly meeting of the Holta Tea Company held Sept. 30, the report and accounts were passed.—Englishman.

THE NORTHERN BENGAL RAILWAY STEAMER.—The trial trip of the Government steamer Osprey, one of the three constructed for conveying passengers and goods over the railway ferry at Sara on the river Padda, took place on Oct. 2. Her performance over the measured mile showed a speed of over fourteen knots per hour. The vessel reflects the greatest credit on Messrs. McArthur and Mitchell, the chief engineer and shipwright at the Government dockyard at Nidderpur.—Ibid.

BISHOP COTTON'S SCHOOL, SIMLA.—On Sept. 25 Lord Ripon distributed the prizes at Bishop Cotton's School. The Lieutenant Governor and a considerable audience were present to meet him, and the school corps of volunteers, many of them successful riflemen, formed a guard of honour. Lord Ripon delivered an interesting address to the students, who were enthusiastic in their applause, in which, inter alia, he expressed the warm interest he has always taken, and continues to take, in the volunteer movement, and dwelt on the necessity and importance of making religious instruction go hand in hand with secular instruction. I believe that religious instruction forms part of the curriculum, but I am not aware whether similar instruction is provided for those not of the Established Church. Anyhow the institution is an excellent one, and steady, studious boys have succeeded well in life on leaving it.—Simla Correspondent of Englishman.

AN APPROACHING MARRIAGE.—The celebrated Maharatta lady, Roma Bye, we are credibly informed, is going to be married at Bankipore under the provisions of Act, III. of 1872, and Oct. 13 has been fixed for the celebration of that auspicious event. She has bestowed her affections upon a native gentleman of Sylhet, Baboo Bepin Beharry Dass, M.A. and B.L., pleader of the judge's court.—Indian Christian Herald.

A COMMISSARIAT FRAUD.—Rawul Pindi has been the scene of a gigantic commissariat fraud. A correspondent, writing to an up-country paper from there, says that a commissariat gomastha has just been arrested there on the charge of criminally appropriating some three lakhs of rupees during the last fifteen months in money and stores.—Bombay Gazette.

TAXATION AND DISCONTENT AT MAULMAIN.—The indignation meeting lately held at Maulmain was the outcome of a deep feeling of discontent that has been excited in the town by the imposition of a new tax going under the name of a land rate. The tax is objected to as being a direct violation of good faith on the part of the Government of India with the people of Maulmain. It is urged that, according to a Governor General's resolution of January, 1861, the people, among others, of Maulmain were allowed to redeem their land from payment of land revenue for ever, and freehold grants were issued granting the land in perpetuity, subject only to payment of municipal tax. It is also stated that at the time of the second Burmese war, owing to the steadfast loyalty of the people of Maulmain, a general promise was made by Lord Dalhousie that there should be no increase in taxation on the town. Finally, objection is made that the tax has been suddenly imposed without due notice, and that the people knew nothing of the measure until the demand was made upon them for payment. The indignation meeting was attended, it appears, by both Europeans and Burmese. A petition has been despatched on the grievance to the chief commissioner.—Englishman.

A WINDFALL FOR THE TREASURY.—As Thakur Madho Sing, known as Kayam Singh, has been recognised as Maharaja of Jaipur, the Indian Exchequer is likely to receive a windfall which will come in very opportunely. It is stated that in Lord Northbrook's time it was decided that, when the succession in native States passed from the direct to a collateral line, a year's revenue should be paid in future by way of nuzzerana to the Paramount Power, as was the practice under the Moguls and the Peishwas. This order was never promulgated, but it nevertheless exists.—Englishman.

MONUMENT TO THE LOST NAINI TAL VOLUNTEERS.—The Naini Tal Volunteers have lost ten members in the recent catastrophe at that station. The surviving volunteers intend to erect a monument to the memory of those of their comrades who lost their lives in the landslide.—Indian Herald.

MUSKETRY RETURNS.—The returns of the annual course of musketry for the season 1879-80 of the British and native armies serving in the Bengal Army are published in general orders. The number of men and regiments untrained is considerable, owing to the employment of so many on field service, but the general results of the training are considered satisfactory, though the figures of merit have been much affected by the performances of third-class shots being included under a late order. We are sorry to see that, "in the cases of certain regiments of the Madras Army stationed in Bengal, the marking has not received close supervision." The instruction of recruits, notwithstanding the very large number exercised, improves yearly in Bengal, and the results are very good; the extraordinarily high figure of merit of 164'82, made by 162 recruits of the 4th Punjab Infantry, a regiment distinguished for exactness, should be prominently noticed; the necessity for carefully teaching their men at this, the most important period of a soldier's training, is evidently recognised by the officers of the Bengal Army. Field firing has been instructively carried out where practicable, and every effort will be made to develop this useful practice. Firing at a moving object has, with a few exceptions, been generally practised; and it is hoped that every regiment will, by the end of the coming season, have supplied itself with the necessary apparatus. Much attention has been given to the improvement as instructors of the native commissioned and non-commissioned officers; and tentative measures are in progress towards extending the responsibilities of native officers and relaxing the duties now demanded from British officers. In the British Cavalry the 15th Hussars heads the list, with a figure of merit of 37'89, and the 2-1st Foot among the infantry with a figure of merit of 126'52, the 73rd Regiment coming next with 123'43. Private J. Dalton was the best shot amongst the infantry, with a score of 196. Altogether there were 1,397 trained soldiers and ninety-five recruits exercised in the cavalry, and 15,885 trained soldiers and 722 recruits amongst the infantry. In the native cavalry the 3rd Madras Light Cavalry comes first with a figure of merit of 32'50, which, the Commander in Chief says, "deserves special notice," as the system of musketry has only been lately introduced in the native cavalry. First amongst the native infantry regiments comes the 40th N.I. with a figure of merit of 103'36, but the Commander in Chief regrets that he is obliged to again withhold the first infantry prize from the native army, and for the same reasons as those assigned last year, inaccuracies in marking.

N.W.P. AND OUDH.—The assimilation of the Government of Oudh to that of the North Western Provinces is being very gradually brought about. The Indian Daily News observes that from Oct. 1 the separate mail service, which has hitherto existed in Oudh, will be placed under the jurisdiction of the superintendent of the Allahabad District. The sooner the distinction between these two provinces is abolished the better, and it is to be hoped that the double title enjoyed by the present Lieutenant Governor will be abrogated when a change in the personnel takes place.—Pioneer.

THE STRUGGLE FOR EMPLOYMENT.—About three hundred persons presented themselves on Saturday, 25th ultimo, in the office of the Deputy Accountant General, Bengal, as candidates for admission as apprentices, among whom fifteen were holders of First Arts certificates; a large number passed in the entrance examination in the first, second, and third divisions, and the rest were without certificates. A dozen men of the First Arts only were admitted without any examination being held. The apprentices previously taken on have nearly all been provided for.—Indian Daily News.

KASHMIR WINE AND SILK.—Some Sauterne has been manufactured from French grapes by Monsieur Ermens. It has been pronounced excellent by those who are good judges of wine. A large quantity of claret will be manufactured this year, the machinery for making it having arrived from France. The kharif crop has been collected, and is abundant. The late famine having affected the rearing of silkworms in Kashmir, the Maharaja has ordered a large quantity of eggs to be imported from Europe to supply the want.—Pioneer.

THE NAINI TAL COMMITTEE.—The following gentlemen have been invited to join this committee:—The Hon. Douglas Straight, Brigadier General Barlow, Col. F. Anderson, Lieut. Col. P. Dalmahoy, Major Barron, Mr. Petman, Mr. E. Morrison, and Mr. F. E. G. Matthews.—Pioneer.

AFGHAN REFUGEES.—There is a large number of refugees from Afghanistan at present in Lahore; many of them are men of rank and position, who have received invitations to the durbar to be held next month.—Times of India.

NAINI TAL.—We hear from Naini Tal that the engineer committee entrusted with the inquiry as to the safety of the station have pronounced that the hill can be made safe and that the local Government will go there again as heretofore.—Himalaya Chronicle.

NEW VICARIATE APOSTOLIC.—We hear that the Holy See has decided upon erecting the Punjab into a separate vicariate apostolic. Bishop Tosi of the Patna Mission will be transferred to the new vicariate, with Lahore as his seat of residence. A new bishop will be consecrated for Patna. At present the Punjab is a portion of the Agra Mission. The plan of raising the Punjab into a distinct jurisdiction was for some time under contemplation by the late Pope, and his successor, doubtless, considers the present time opportune for giving effect to the idea.—Delhi Gazette.

A GREAT NUMBER OF MURDERS.—We hear that a great number of murders have lately been committed at Peshawur. During the last week the sessions judge passed sentence of death in the greater number of cases and sent up his report for approval to the Chief Court. These murders are attributable to the large numbers of Afghans who have lately settled in Peshawur.—Times of India.

THE CENSUS.—At the suggestion of the Government of the North West it has been decided to make the numbering of houses for the approaching census permanent in each moholla.—Times of India.

DIVORCE.—A Mrs. Isabella Samuell has applied to the session judge at Allahabad for a dissolution of marriage on the ground of her husband having turned Mahomedan and married a Mahomedan wife. The application was granted.—Ibid.

MURDER.—A murder has been committed at 68, Circular-garden, Reach-road, the victim being Mrs. Rodriguez, a widow, who resided alone. A large hole had been made in the house wall, and the house had been plundered, the dead body of Mrs. Rodriguez being found in the bath-room. Two of her servants have been arrested.—Times of India.

THE Press Commissioner communicates a telegram from the Chief Commissioner, Burma, dated Oct. 12, stating that rumours have been current in the Thayetmyo district of bands of Upper Burmese troops collecting on the Thayetmyo frontier with a hostile intent. The deputy commissioner of Thayetmyo on Sunday, Oct. 10, proposed taking precautionary measures, but on the following day the deputy commissioner was convinced that the rumour was groundless and telegraphs that no cause for alarm exists.—Times of India.

SERIOUS AFFRAY ON A BRITISH STEAMER.—A serious affray occurred on the British steamer Thomyadine, trading between Mandalay and Bhamo, on Oct. 9, whilst lying at Mandalay. The captain found some Chinamen cooking on the steamer's deck which is forbidden. One of them, on being remonstrated with, was very abusive to the chief officer and struck a lascar. An hour afterwards the same man was again found cooking on deck and refused to leave, striking the crew and captain. He was eventually handed over to the police. On Oct. 10 a Chinese mob invaded the steamer armed with billets of firewood. The captain and chief officers used their revolvers, wounding three of their assailants, and the rest fled. The Burmese authorities detained the steamer and have taken various depositions.—Ibid.

THE ALARM ON THE BURMESE FRONTIER.—The Thayetmyo correspondent of the Rangoon Gazette wired on Oct. 12 that a body of Burmese, estimated at a thousand men, have mustered on the frontier on the left bank of the river with the avowed intention of attacking the Yuatoung village, opposite Thayetmyo, of about four thousand inhabitants. The force is reported so well armed that it is probable they are either soldiers or have been supplied by the Burmese Government. The Allanmyo garrison is fully sufficient for defence, but the civil authorities have demanded aid from the military for the protection of Yuatoung, and a company of the Trichinopoly Light Infantry, under the command of Captain Campbell, proceeded to Yuatoung on Oct. 12, where they will encamp under canvas. An attack is expected on Wednesday. Apothecary Baker and Conductor James Minty, a Crimean and Mutiny veteran, have been acquitted in the commissariat prosecutions. The trial of Conductor Quin is now proceeding at Viapoor in a special court.

PUBLIC FEELING.—Public feeling is not very active in some parts of the Bengal Presidency. In an official report just issued it is stated that "perfect ignorance appears to prevail of matters likely to cause any feeling. Except the educated few living in towns nobody seems to be aware of the existence of the new Arms and Press Acts. The former has been accepted in a quiet, contented spirit by the few who have felt its effects; and the latter, which affects no one here, is not talked of. The Cabul war now hardly excites any remark." The license tax is still a cause of discontent, but the sphere of its unpopularity has been much narrowed since the exemption of the lowest class of assesses.

THE CALCUTTA CUSTOM HOUSE.—The Lieutenant Governor of Bengal has issued a resolution in connection with the late piece-goods cases which, as our commercial correspondent told us the other day, have excited much comment at home. The Englishman says that Sir Ashley Eden's explanations are far from satisfactory, and the local chamber of commerce seem to be of the same opinion, for we see they recommend that some modification of the law or of its interpretation is required. The Indian Daily News accuses the Calcutta Custom House of worrying merchants, and says the idea seems to prevail there to be that it is the duty of the officials to strain the words of the Act and the intentions of the Government, and to understand by the words "discretionary power" a direct instruction to carry out the technical wording of the orders of the Government with unflinching and blind severity. The justice and expediency of allowing merchants a margin for honesty is quite forgotten, and action is taken as if the piece-goods houses were somehow joined in a sort of quiet league to defraud the Government. There ought to be a margin between plain accidents of manufacture or packing and wilful dishonesty. But in the custom house such a margin is said not to exist. Sir Ashley Eden directed the collector to act with discretion, and, as was thought, with the intention of mitigating the penalties hitherto imposed. But the result has been not more discretion, but greater severity, and a more intensified grievance.—Times of India.

BRITISH BURMA FORESTS.—The early enactment of forest law in British Burma is stated to be very desirable, and the chief commissioner of that province has submitted a draft bill to the Government of India.—Ibid.

INHUMAN CONDUCT OF A SYCE.—In consequence of his having been reprimanded some three days ago for not discharging his duties properly, a syce employed at the Government Remount Depot at Garden-reach cut the throat of the horse entrusted to him during that night. The horse had been purchased very recently by Major Roberts, for H.E. the Governor of Bombay.—Englishman.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—Notwithstanding the Doorga Poorjah holidays the freight market has continued very active and a large forward business has to be reported. Dead weight by steamers has advanced further. £3 5s. for wheat is freely paid, whilst at the closing of the mail £3 7s. 6d. to £3 10s., according to time of shipment, is being asked. Sailing tonnage is equally firm. The Star of Scotia has taken the London berth at £2 12s. 6d. for wheat, £2 17s. 6d. for linseed, and £2 15s. for jute. For Dundee there is absolutely no ready tonnage available for immediate shipment, and for November loading several ships have been chartered at £3, but £3 2s. 6d. to £3 5s. is now the closing quotation. For the United States the market keeps very firm, and business has been done at $9 to $9 1/2 for wooden ships. In the country trade there is not much doing. The disengaged tonnage now in port stands at 22,722 tons.—Englishman, Oct. 13.

THE President of the Rafah-i-Amm Society of Lucknow has received the following letter from the Right Hon. H. Fawcett, M.P.:—"I have presented this afternoon the petition which you forwarded to me on behalf of the Rafah-i-Amm Society of Lucknow.

I beg to return you my thanks for your most kind letter, although I am fully conscious that you place much too high a value on any service that I have been able to render to India. I can assure you, and those in whose name you write, that I warmly appreciate the general recognition of the little that I have been able to do on behalf of your country."

THE DOVETON COLLEGE.—The Archdeacon of Calcutta states that the financial position of Doveton College, Calcutta, is unsatisfactory, a capital of Rs.181,000 having been reduced to about Rs.41,000, and Rs.140,000 expended on maintenance out of capital instead of out of income. The fault is ascribed to carelessness on the part of the managers of the institution.—Athenaeum.

RECRUITING.—The Commander in Chief has directed that all native regiments of the Bengal Army, with exception of those serving across the frontier, shall cease recruiting until the strength shall have been reduced to that of the ordinary peace establishment, viz., 384 sowars, including one assistant salootrie and six farriers for the cavalry and 600 privates for the infantry. This order does not apply to Goorkha corps, which will continue to recruit up to the increased establishment. Those regiments now serving across the frontier will come under the conditions of this order as soon as they return to India.

MADRAS.

SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY.—The following is the consulting engineer's note on a recent inspection made by him:—"The section of the South Indian Railway between Chingleput and Walajabad (Conjeveram branch) was inspected by me on July 16 in view to ascertain if it would be ready for traffic on August 1. The length of the section is thirteen and a-half miles. The tabulated details of construction for the whole of the Conjeveram branch are herewith submitted in the prescribed forms. The Palur station has not yet been commenced, as the railway authorities are anxious to obtain some experience regarding the traffic before undergoing the expense. The only large bridge on the section is one of 120ft. openings over a large affluent of the Palar river which is crossed about one mile west of Chingleput. This bridge will not be completed for some time, and the railway is for the present carried over the stream on a temporary bridge, consisting of three 30ft. openings supported on substantially built piers of piles. The other bridges are of small dimensions and are completed in all respects, with the exception of four 12ft. openings, the girders for which have not been received from England. These openings are at present crossed on strong timber trestles. Subject to the restriction of speed to five miles an hour on the unfinished bridges, I authorised the opening of the section on August 1." The Government approve of the action of C. J. Stewart.—Gazette.

THE TELEGRAPH IN CEYLON.—According to the arrangements made last year the management of our insular telegraphs was handed back by the Government of India to this Government on July 1. The Telegraph Department has been placed under the control of the Postmaster General, assisted by an electrician and special staff. For the sake of economy it is proposed to work the department in connection with the General Post-office. It has for some time been foreseen that it would be necessary very shortly to reconstruct the line between Colombo and Kandy, and measures have been taken for procuring the materials required for this work and for the extensions of the telegraph which have already been resolved on. I am glad to inform the council in connection with this subject that the cable which unites Ceylon with India has lately been examined and found to be in good condition.—The Governor's Address.

REWARD FOR GOOD SERVICES.—Government, in compliance with the wishes of the board of directors of the Madras Railway Company, upon the recommendation of their agent in India, have sanctioned a gratuity of a sum of Rs.1,050 or six months' pay to Mr. Apothecary Harris, and Rs.280 or four months' pay to Mr. Apothecary Hassey, who, after having served the company for seventeen and thirteen years respectively, have now been declared unfit for further duty.—Madras Times.

THE CHURCH IN THE WAINAD.—His Lordship the Bishop, accompanied by his domestic chaplain, left Ootacamund during the week en route to the Valley and Davala, on a short tour. The people of Davala, we hear, are taking steps to secure funds for the purpose of building a church at that station. Some Rs.3,000, it is stated, have already been contributed. With the church rapidly progressing at Guodalore, and the one in prospect at Davala, our Wainad friends will not have reason to complain of neglect of their spiritual wants.—South of India Observer.

ROYAL ENGINEERS.—We regret to learn of the deaths of Sergeant G. Dove and W. Bassett of the 42nd Company R.E., who died on the line of march from Cabul en route for Bangalore. Both these non-commissioned officers were highly respected and had many friends in Bangalore whom we are sure will deeply regret to learn of their sudden demise in the prime of life. This unfortunate Afghanistan affair has made sad havoc in all branches of the service, many excellent officers and men having succumbed to sickness or the sword.—Bangalore Spectator.

TIDAL OPERATIONS.—Capt. A. W. Baird, R.E., assistant superintendent of the survey of India, in charge of tidal and levelling operations, has, we hear, notified his intention to the Government of prosecuting his work in the Madras Presidency. The line of levels proposed is along the railway from Raichore to Madras, and permanent beach marks are to be embedded about every eight or ten miles along the line of railway. These operations being carried out partly with a view to determine whether there is any appreciable difference of level in the mean level of the sea, with several ports where tidal stations have been established, and partly in order to reduce to one common datum the several hitherto isolated system of levels which have been executed throughout the country for canals, railways, and other engineering works.—Madras Times.

A HARDSHIP REMOVED.—The medical officers who are charged with the duty of granting certificates of physical fitness to recruits intended for enlistment in native corps have long felt it a hardship that they should be held responsible for the final acceptance of the men by the military authorities, it being the rule, up to this time, that the medical officers who passed the men as fit in the first instance were liable to pay the travelling and all other expenses of the candidates in the event of their rejection by the military authorities. It often happens that two or three months elapse before recruits selected in out-stations reach the headquarters of the regiments in which they serve, so that, what with the fatigue of travelling, exposure to sudden changes of temperature, and other uncontrollable causes, it is often the case that men originally pronounced sound by the medical officer of their district are eventually found unfit for military service by the regimental boards entrusted with the duty of finally passing the recruits. In many instances the district examining officer was of no higher standing than a native hospital assistant, who could hardly be considered competent to give an authoritative opinion in a matter of this kind. The injustice of mulcting district medical officers under such circumstances has been represented to the Government by Sir Neville Chamberlain, who has pointed out that no such practice obtains in the other two Presidencies. It is satisfactory to learn that the Government have at last admitted the justice of his Excellency's representations, and, in rescinding the obnoxious rule hitherto in force, have decided that recruits intended for enlistment must be passed only by commissioned medical officers.—Madras Times.

MADRAS APOTHECARIES' FUND.—The report of the Madras apothecaries' fund for the official year 1878-9 has just been issued. On April 1, 1879, there were 249 subscribers on the list, namely, 214 married and thirty-five unmarried. Of the total of subscribers seventy-six belonged to the first class, twenty-eight to the second and 145 to the third class. In the official year twelve passed hospital apprentices having advanced to the grade of assistant apothecary were admitted as third-class subscribers. There were thirteen casualties among the subscribers; nine died, two were dismissed, and two withdrew their names. By the deaths of subscribers eight widows (including one whose husband died in the year previous) and twenty-four children came upon the fund; in the same period the fund was relieved of the payment to ten widows and twenty-one children, so that on March 31, 1879, there were on the fund 123 widows and 188 children. The fund paid away to widows and fatherless children in the year Rs.30,505, Rs.6,000 to the actuary who valued the fund, refunded about Rs.24,000 to the Government advanced some years ago, and had in Government promissory notes and in cash Rs.2,80,372-3-2 in favour of the institution.—Madras Standard.

MADRAS REGISTRATION DEPARTMENT.—His Grace the Governor has conferred the appointment of inspector general of registration, Madras (void by the appointment of the Honourable V. Ramiengar, C.S.I., to the Dewanship of Travancore), salary Rs.1,500, on Mr. G. Hamuett, U.C.S., 1st assistant to the chief secretary to Government, but as his services cannot be spared until about the beginning of next month, when the Government will return to Madras, Mr. Ruthnavain Chetty, C.S., will continue to discharge the duties of the office for the present.—Pioneer.

RAILWAY FROM ERNACOLLUM TO COCHIN.—The Government of India have intimated to the Resident of Travancore and Cochin that they are willing to recommend to the Secretary of State for sanction the construction of this branch of railway communication provided the Travancore Cochin States are respectively willing to accept the conditions specified in regard to the proposed guarantee on the capital of £550,000 (Rs.66,00,000) required for the construction of the line, the Government bearing the remainder of the 10 per cent.—Madras Times.

SUICIDE OF AN EX-MILITARY STUDENT.—The Royal Artillery barracks at North Trimulgherry was the scene of a very sad affair on Friday morning, Oct. 8. Gunner M'Murry, 1st Battery 1st Brigade, committed suicide in a very deliberate manner. It appears that M'Murry, who was only about twenty-two or twenty-three years of age, was sent to study engineering in the C.E. College at Madras about two years ago. Not having given the authorities satisfaction he was ordered to revert to his battery at Trimulgherry, which he did, and arrived there only a short time ago. The idea of having been sent away from the Engineering College seems to have completely disturbed this young soldier's mind, and his having to work like an ordinary artilleryman went further to provoke him to take his life. The act was perpetrated with an ordinary carbine, which he presented over the left side of his chest before pulling the trigger and discharging its contents. M'Murry enlisted in India, and is said to have relatives both in Kamptee and St. Thomas's Mount.—Madras Times.

FATAL ACCIDENT TO MAJOR E. S. BURNETT, R.A.—We learn from Secunderabad that a great gloom has fallen upon the whole garrison owing to the sudden death of Major E. S. Burnett commanding the C Battery B Brigade Royal Horse Artillery, which sad occurrence took place about 10.15 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 9. Being officer of the day, the deceased was going round the guards at night, when his horse, a rather troublesome Australian, must, it is conjectured, have bolted with and thrown him. He was found lying unconscious, with blood flowing from his mouth and ears, about a hundred yards outside the north gate of the entrenchments. The military police, seeing a runaway horse with no rider, looked around and saw that somebody had been thrown. They immediately made it known to the officers of the 1-21st Foot, some of whom were still at mess. Lieuts. Blake and Bowes ran out, and finding Major Burnett in the sad condition described above went themselves, one for Dr. Jozdowski of the 21st, and the other for Dr. Stewart of the Artillery. On the arrival of the doctors they at once saw that the case was hopeless, as the base of the skull had been fractured. The major was put into a dhooly to be conveyed to his quarters but died on his way.—Madras Mail.

THE HARBOUR WORKS.—On Oct. 6 the entire curve of the southern arm of the Madras harbour was completed. This brings the total distance of the south arm to 2,938 feet out of the entire length of 3,870 feet. The progress achieved during the past two months is unprecedented, and must have taxed the resource of the staff heavily. The north arm has advanced with as great rapidity as the south, and now stands at 3,512 feet, or only about 300 feet wanting to complete. Should the present clear weather continue it is anticipated that the north arm will be completed by the end of the year.—Englishman.

THE LATE CAPT. BAILEY.—We regret to record the death, at Madras, on Oct. 11, of heart disease, of Capt. Henry Bailey, son of Thomas Bailey, of Mount Charles, Belfast, Antrim county, Ireland. He entered the late Honourable East India Company's Artillery 1844, joined the Company's Sappers and Miners, went through the usual course at Chatham, and arrived in India on June 3, 1845. After serving with the headquarters of the Sappers and Miners at Dowlaishweram, and under the direct orders of the Board of Revenue he joined the Department Public Works, and was posted to Saugur, whence, after labouring there for five years, he was transferred to Jaulna, to superintend the erection of the barracks at that station. As a reward for his efficient services at Saugur and Jaulna he was, on the organisation of the department in 1857, promoted to sub engineer and posted to Malabar, where, with the exception of a short period spent in the Salem district, he served until he had to leave through the illness that has proved fatal. It is believed that Capt. Bailey is nearly one of the last of the old Company's sappers and miners, a body of men well known to the old Engineer officers. Malabar owes much to Capt. Bailey in roads and ghauts, as when he joined the district, with the exception of a few trunk lines, the country was closed to all except cooly and bullock transport. Perhaps the best proof of the estimation in which he was held by the local authorities lies in the fact that, on his retiring under the terms offered by Government at the end of last year, the Local Funds Board of Malabar unanimously proffered him the appointment of district engineer, which he accepted; he was engaged in estimating for placing an iron superstructure on the piers of Irutty and other large bridges, when he was forced to leave to seek medical advice in Madras. As Capt. Bailey has held that rank since 1864 it is possible that Government may see their way to presenting his widow with a tangible token of their appreciation of his long services.—Madras Times.

THE RAMPA DISTRICTS.—The removal from Rampa of the 3rd Cavalry of the Hyderabad Contingent has been ordered. All the other Madras troops there are to be detained till the capture of two noted rebel leaders now at large has been effected. The holding of eighteen posts by the military authorities is considered inadvisable at present, and arrangements are being made for transferring the charge to the police force.—Madras Times.

BOMBAY.

THE GOVERNOR ON NATIVE MUSIC.—Recently at Puna H.E. the Governor, Sir James Fergusson, attended a native musical entertainment. In the course of the evening H.E. delivered the following short address:—"It has afforded much interest and gratification to Lady Fergusson and myself to attend this exhibition of native music as cultivated by your society. I am glad to observe, by the numerous attendance of native gentlemen of position, that this institution meets with their approval and support. I concur in the sentiments so beautifully expressed by Mr. Mahadeo Moreshwar Kunte with reference to the preservation and study of national music. In it are, as it were, embalmed the traditions, the affection, and the aspirations of a people. In all countries patriotism finds its tenderest expression in music and song; they embody the inmost sentiments of our nature, and the higher longings of the soul are directed to the unseen world in their accents of praise. It is impossible not to commend the zeal and energy which the promoters of this society have displayed in the maintenance and diffusion of a taste for the vocal and instrumental music handed down by your forefathers. I hope that with the application of musical science it may be still further developed, and prove a source of pleasure and profit to this and future generations. In supporting this society, gentlemen, it seems to me that you honour yourselves, and I shall be glad if any encouragement that I can give will contribute to its success."—Bombay Gazette.

THE VEHAR LAKE.—The height of water in Vehar Lake for the week ending Saturday, 2nd Oct., was 57 feet and 4 tenths; in the corresponding week last year it was 58 feet and 4 tenths. The rainfall up to date was 70 inches 53 cents.; in the corresponding week last year it was 76 inches 4 cents.—Ibid.

NOT MENTIONED IN DESPATCHES.—With regard to the recently published despatches a matter which has attracted much attention is the omission of all mention of such men as Major Blackwood and Lieut. Henn, both of whom died fighting gallantly to retrieve the mistake that had been made. Out of Lieut. Henn's little company of forty men, including three European non-commissioned officers, he himself, the three non-commissioned officers, and twenty-seven native sappers were killed and nine wounded. Mention of such gallant men should find place in a general's despatches in justice to them and for the encouragement of their fellow-soldiers who may be called upon for similar noble self-sacrificing service.—Bombay Gazette.

A CURIOUS MARRIAGE CASE.—A dispute about a marriage between members of the Telooogo Fulmalee caste, the hearing of which had occupied more than three weeks, has been disposed of by Mr. Justice Marriott at the High Court. The plaintiff, Oomajee Lingoo, and the defendant, Ruckmabai, were married in their infancy; and for a long period subsequently the defendant lived partly at her father's and partly at her husband's residence, until the year 1879, when she went to live with her husband. They lived as husband and wife for about eight months, but in November, 1879, the girl's grandfather and father, who were made co-defendants in the suit, removed her to their own house from her husband's and wrongfully detained her. The plaintiff's father complained to the caste, and at a caste meeting held on Jan. 12, 1880, the boy's father and the girl's grandfather signed a writing in the books of the caste whereby the former agreed to raise no objection to the re-marriage of Ruckmabai and relinquished all control over her. In the suit filed by the plaintiff he submitted that the writing in question was not binding upon him. For the defence it was argued that such releases were executed by the elders of the family, and that according to the custom of the caste they were binding upon the juniors, even without their formal consent. His lordship held upon the authorities that the husband was a most material party to a release, and that the release in the present case was not a document made by the husband or purporting to be made on his behalf. It was also clear that although the release was alleged to be passed with the consent of the caste the caste could not give a divorce. His lordship decided that the father had no power, according to Hindu law, to give a release; and there was both affirmative and negative proof that the custom of the caste, as appeared from documents produced in court, was in accordance with Hindu law, namely, that a release must be given by the husband. On the authorities cited the learned judge declined to grant restitution of conjugal rights; but passed a decree for the plaintiff, declaring that the release given by his father was in no way binding upon him; restraining Ruckmabai from marrying again; and at the same time restraining her grandfather and father from giving her in marriage to any one other than the plaintiff.—Bombay Gazette.

LORD E. P. CLINTON.—Among the passengers for Europe by this mail was Col. Lord E. P. Clinton. His lordship was a very popular commanding officer, and there was quite a demonstration of feeling at the Puna railway station on Thursday, when he left for Bombay. Officers and men loudly cheered as the train started, and the band of the regiment struck up "Auld lang syne."—Times of India.

MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS.—The following homeward movements of troopships have been ordered by the authorities at Simla:—Euphrates, departs Oct. 26, 48th Foot; Orontes, departs from Bombay Oct. 31, 59th Foot; Malabar, departs Nov. 5, 2nd Battalion 1st Foot; Jumna, departs about Nov. 8, 1st Battalion 5th Foot; Serapis, departs about Nov. 13, takes 62nd Foot, 13-8 and 16-8 Royal Artillery to Aden, and 1st Battalion 6th Foot, 2-9 and 9-8 Royal Artillery from Aden to England. The dates of departure of the Jumna and Serapis are not positive. In addition to regiments each ship will be filled up with time-expired men and invalids.—Ibid.

I.G.S. "DALHOUSIE."—The I.G.S. Dalhousie, Capt. W. C. Hotham, arrived on Oct. 13 from Karachi, bringing the following officers and details:—Col. Crispin, 4th N.I.; Major Hogg, Puna Horse; Capt. Garratt, 3rd Hyderabad Contingent; Capt. Groube, Capt. Manning, Lieut. Thunder, 2-7th Regt.; Veterinary Surg. Spooner, R.A.; Surg. Vellings, A.M.D.; Rev. — Baynham, Ecclesiastical Department; Lieut. Capel Cure, 61st Regt.; Capt. Parker, I.N.; one warrant officer, wife, and three children; 167 invalids from 2-15th Regt., 2-11th Regt., R.A., 78th Regt., and 2-7th Regt.; forty-eight public and private followers. The Dal- housie left again on Oct. 15 for Karachi, taking details 1 N-1 R.A., 2-26th Regt., one warrant officer, wife, and child, and 100 public followers.—Times of India.

THE IRISH RELIEF FUND.—The final report of the Hyderabad (Deccan) Irish Relief Fund has now been issued. The accounts show the total sum collected and deposited in the Bank of Bengal to be Rs.79,274-10-1, out of which £5,572 13s. 8d. have been remitted. It is stated that the resolution come to at one of the first meetings of the committee, that amounts collected should be equally divided between the funds of the Duchess of Marlborough and the Lord Mayor of Dublin, has been scrupulously adhered to.—Times of India.

MR. THOMAS WHITE, deputy shipping master, the oldest European inhabitant at Karachi, died on Tuesday last.

THE MILITARY RELIEF FUND.—Col. L. C. Barton, political agent, Kattywar, has forwarded to the Bombay Military Relief Fund Rs.5,768,800. Of this sum the Dhrangadhra State contributed Rs.2,500; the Vankauer, Rs.600; Wadhwan, Rs.1,000; Beyla, Rs.300; Lakhtar, Rs.300; Chuda, Rs.300; Muli, Rs.200; Bajana, Rs.250; Vanod, Rs.50; Patri, Rs.75; Rajpur, Rs.25; Raesankli, Rs.20; and Joravar-Khan of Dasada, Rs.30.—Times of India.

THE BOMBAY HUNT.—The hounds, twenty-one couple in all, arrived on Oct. 13 from England, and have been safely landed and housed at Worlee in the accommodation secured for them there by the master of the hunt, and they seem to have suffered no ill effects from their long sea voyage. The Bombay community is greatly indebted to the B.I.S.N. Company for the liberality displayed in bringing the hounds out to Bombay, free of freight, thereby saving the hunt close on two thousand rupees.—Times of India.

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE PORT TRUST.—The appointment of Major A. Merewether, R.E., to the chairmanship of the Bombay Port Trust, which was announced, as had been anticipated, in Thursday's Government Gazette, will be received with general satisfaction. He has evidently been selected in the single view of his fitness for the post. And as the Government seem to have made up their minds that the appointment shall always be held by a Royal Engineer it is impossible to suggest any other officer whose training and capabilities and personal popularity would have made him so welcome to the commercial community. Much of his professional life has been spent in connection with the harbour works at Karachi, and the technical knowledge he will bring to the assistance of the trustees will be invaluable. Twenty years ago he was first connected with the Karachi harbour works, and this connection was kept up, with intervals of other employment, for more than ten years. Since then Major Merewether has served for the most part as executive engineer of the Bombay defences. The work he has done in that capacity must have been very similar to the work he is now about to undertake, and the experience then acquired can now be utilised on an extended scale. For the last few months he has been executive engineer in Lower and Central Sind. But his long connection with Bombay was only severed at the end of last year. Major Merewether is an Associate of the Institute of Civil Engineers and has a high character as a practical man of affairs in addition to his well-known scientific attainments.—Ibid.

EDUCATION.—A recent resolution of the Bombay Government places educational officers in that Presidency more directly under the control of the district officers. It will be the duty of the latter to visit the primary schools periodically and to review the reports of the inspectors. It is hoped that this measure will put a stop to the falling off in the numbers attending the schools which has taken place in recent years.

The mail news from Kandahar reports sickness prevalent amongst the troops, there being 10 per cent. of the Europeans and 15 per cent. of the natives in hospital. The chief disease is dysentery, and there are a few cases of smallpox.

INSTITUTION OF CIVIL ENGINEERS.—A paper will be read on Tuesday, Nov. 9, at 8 p.m., on "Machinery for Steelmaking by the Bessemer and the Siemens Processes; by Benjamin Walker, M.Inst.C.E.

INDIAN RELIEFS.—The Himalaya, Capt. Brent, arrived at Portsmouth on Tuesday afternoon from Bombay. She brought home seventy-three invalids and time-expired men, eleven women and thirty children, and the following officers from India:—Col. Bray, C.B., 4th Foot; Lieut. Neeld, 17th Lancers; Surg. Major Land, Army Medical Department; Capt. Carruthers and Lieut. Reilly, Bombay Staff Corps; Lieut. Hamilton, 14th Hussars; Capt. Larmie, Royal Engineers; Capt. Gore, 76th Foot; Lieuts. Saunders, Temple, and Beaumont, Royal Horse Artillery; Lieut. Chippendale, Royal Engineers; Lieuts. Williams and Buckley, Royal Artillery; Lieut. Lugard, 9th Foot; Lieut. Cox, 25th Foot; Lieut. Brooke, 33rd Foot; Capt. Wilkinson, 54th Foot; Deputy Surg. General Jameson, Army Medical Department; and Capt. Woodhouse, Bengal Staff Corps. The Himalaya also brought seven men and one woman from Malta, and 135 men, twenty women, twenty-five children, and Lieut. Freeman, 20th Foot, from Gibraltar.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1880.

LORD NORTHBROOK ON INDIA.

THE audience that assembled at the Midland Institute last Friday could not be considered either an uninformed nor an uninterested one as regards English politics. In regard to our Indian Government the Birmingham politicians have made themselves loudly heard and deeply felt. The leading member for Birmingham not so long ago presided at the crowded meeting when the accomplished and eloquent delegate of the Liberals of Bengal expounded the so-called grievances that his consociates sought the aid of the English Liberals to remove. Yet, although both in general education and in active participation in home political movements the men of Birmingham hold a high position among their compeers of our cities, it may be safely asserted that the majority of the hearers listened with unaccustomed ears to the facts which the personal experience of an ex-Viceroy of India enabled him to bring to their knowledge. It is certainly a sign of the times to be well marked, that, in lieu of an abstract dissertation on knowledge or a special study of some historical or scientific subject prelected on by some savant, the Midland Institute should devote their attention to a president telling them facts about the history and condition of the natives of India. The same week witnessed the publication, if the issue of Blue Books may be so termed, of the controversy between Mr. Caird and the Government of India, as well as the second part of the report of the Famine Commission. The name of the title-page of the latter is, "Measures of Protection and Prevention." The subject-matter of the former consists of the sweeping condemnation of the existing condition of things in India which the eminent agriculturist deputed to examine the soil and weigh the productiveness of the vast and diversified area of country found time and opportunity to formulate. To this are appended the rejoinders of the Government. Both need a separate notice; but both are curiously brought into relief by the apparently fortuitous concurrence of Lord Northbrook's address.

No one will dispute the thoughtful labour which the Viceroy brought to bear on Indian administration. His relations towards the native chiefs owed a great deal, at least so those say who should know, to the talents and exertions of Major Evelyn Baring, of whose appointment to the Indian Exchequer even political opponents could not question the fitness. Of the large and small independent but protected States which the lecturer surprised his audience by enumerating, at least in their aggregate of nearly five hundred, Lord Northbrook chiefly adverted to the Princes of Rajputana, and selected for prominent notice the splendid efforts for the improvement of his people of the late Maharaja of Jeypore. But he managed in this, as in other portions of his interesting and instructive address, to point a political moral. He contrived to deal a hit at the policy of Lord Dalhousie, which he described as "one of a ruler inclined to embrace every legitimate opportunity of annexing independent States." With this he contrasted the terms of the proclamation of 1858 and the assurance of maintenance in their existing possessions which has cemented the loyalty of the Princes. He did not, however, touch then upon the question of extension of our borders, nor did he at all tread upon the delicate ground of the embarrassing, though treaty-bound, armies of the greater Princes. He was content to leave the just and broad impression that the majority of the Princes of India are both loyal and desirous of the substantial improvement of their subjects. The subject of the native armies of India occupied Lord Northbrook and his audience for some time, and even those members of the Peace Society who may have been present must have thrilled with sympathetic pride at the rapid review of the gallant fidelity of the sepoy through 130 years, whether of the Madras, Bombay, or Bengal army. The gallant defence of the Guides at the Residency of Cabul gave occasion for the remark that those who discuss the organisation of the native armies of India should remember the importance of giving openings for the honourable ambition of native officers. Hence was inferred a direct approval of the present system, under which there are but few British officers attached to a native regiment, and native officers are placed in command of troops of cavalry and companies of infantry. This was scarcely intended for the Midland Institute members only, and it was a somewhat premature comment on the practical lessons to be learned from the Maiwand disaster. The question of the widespread ignorance of the population of India arose, as it were, naturally out of the necessarily brief allusions, for the remarks on the natives who were neither princes nor soldiers could hardly be called more. The immense work done in the way of education was eulogised in the words of a foreign traveller, which left unremarked the increasing difficulty that is pointed out—not by pessimists alone—the difficulty of finding occupation for the cultivated and educated numbers who have owed to public instruction a training which, although the recipients may, compared to the ignorant masses, be few, yet yearly increases the crowd of clever and superficially educated men who demand employment and bread from the Government. Lord Northbrook could urge upon his audience the importance of remembering the enormous extent of Indian ignorance and thence deduce the importance of caution and patience in changes or reforms. His words are worth recording:—"In India changes cannot safely be introduced trusting to their merits alone. Especially in regard to taxation it would be highly impolitic, and it might be dangerous, to introduce financial changes which would make it necessary to impose taxes to which the people are unaccustomed." In a subsequent section of his address he contrived, it would seem to a careful reader, to make his audience carry away with them the idea that the license tax would be so regarded, as he quoted the recommendation of Raja Sahib Dyal to put a little more duty on salt, as the people would never feel it, instead of any attempt at direct taxation. Lord Northbrook would thus be understood by the Birmingham men to approve of extending the salt duty, but disapprove of any form of license tax, which would be very puzzling to such of them as, obeying the impulse given to their studies, should hereafter apply themselves to the study of the Radical commentators on our Indian Government. The hint that the English-speaking and English-reading natives of India are numerous and increasing, and that they, both princes and subjects, pay close attention to what is printed, either as written or spoken in England, was a well-timed one. The mischief that can be wrought by speeches and articles meant to damage home political opponents could not very well be touched on in a non-political address, even were those responsible for such mischief of an opposite political party. But it may be worth recalling, and many who heard the admonition will probably add it to the principles which were laid down for sound Indian administration. Lord Northbrook boldly suggested to English manufacturers that Indian consumers were able to discover and reject spurious and worthless wares. It may take a longer time for Indian subjects of our Queen to discover the spurious unreality, the worthless shams, of sundry doctrinaires and political empirics who broach the theory of English indifference to India. Everyone accepts the truth of the peroration that it is our duty to govern India, not for our own profit and advantage, but for the benefit of the natives of India. At the same time, if we, as Lord Northbrook says, have assured by the labours and blood of our rulers and soldiers the profitable peace that India enjoys, we must maintain that peace by prohibiting, not merely successful invasion, but menace of attacks without and encouragement to sedition within her borders. The large maps which Lord Salisbury recommended have been succeeded by plainer and more accurate military maps to illustrate the line along which it has proved possible to menace the line of the Indus. Lord Northbrook's warning against rivalry with Russia for the supremacy of Central Asia cannot be understood, is not understood, in India to forbid the securing of the roads which lead thence. Sir W. Palliser's apt remark that the same objections forbid the fortification of Portsmouth as the occupation of Kandahar disposes of the sneer at the fears of irresponsible writers and the warning against extension of the Indian Empire. It is for the benefit of the natives of India that they should be able to point to substantial proofs of the impregnability of the frontier, just as much as Londoners should be able to show the strong batteries that defend the Thames.

THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.—It may interest many to know that the receipts on the Eastern Bengal Railway have recently reached Rs 1,023 per mile per week, thus nearly equalling the earnings of the principal lines in England. The London and North Western averaged last year £104-17, and the Great Northern Railway £105-19 per week. This should go some way towards satisfying Mr. Hyndman and his followers that India, or, at any rate, Bengal, is not yet bankrupt. The result is the more satisfactory when it is remembered that the receipts are not obtained from a heavy mineral and a high-fare paying passenger traffic, but mainly from the carriage of surplus produce of the cheapest kind which is brought down to this port chiefly for shipment to England for the benefit of her manufactures.—Englishman.

A STAFF OFFICER'S ACCOUNT OF THE BATTLE OF MAIWAND.

A FULL and most valuable account, which corrects many of the misapprehensions that have prevailed, has been communicated by Major Hogg, Puna Horse, who was present as brigade major Cavalry Brigade. He says that General Burrows had resolved to march on Maiwand, and at the council of war held July 26, the only questions were of details. The orders issued were to march at 6 a.m., the next morning, and that the baggage was to accompany the column. Considering the tremendous number of baggage animals which had to be loaded—1,900 camels besides ponies and mules—the orders were carried out with great punctuality, and at 6.30 the brigade was on the move in the following order:—Fifty sabres 3rd Light Cavalry, under Lieut. Geoghegan, formed the advanced guard, followed at a distance of half a mile by a squadron of the same regiment under Capt. Mayne. Next came four guns E.B. R.H.A., under Major Blackwood, followed by the remainder of the 3rd Light Cavalry. Then came the infantry in line of columns at deploying distances, the smooth-bore battery captured by us in the action on the Helmund with the infantry, whilst the column was closed by the rearguard under Col. Malcolmson 3rd Sind Horse, which consisted of a company from each infantry regiment, ninety-six sabres 3rd Sind Horse, and two guns E.B. under Lieut. Osborne. Lieut. A. Monteath commanded the left flanking party, which consisted of fifty sabres 3rd Sind Horse; the baggage was on the right of the column, and on the outside of the baggage was the right flanking party of fifty sabres 3rd Sind Horse under Lieut. Smith. At 10 a.m. we caught our first glimpse of the enemy. Mounted men were seen on our left front as we were marching along, and they were apparently marching across our front to Maiwand. The column was halted, field glasses were brought into requisition, and whilst the two generals and the cavalry officers in front were trying to make out whether what they saw was the enemy's cavalry escort or not a report arrived from the advanced vedettes of Lieut. A. Monteath's flanking party that some of the enemy's cavalry were on our left front. General Burrows then ordered Major Hogg, the brigade major of cavalry, to ride forward and reconnoitre, and the result of his reconnaissance was a report to the effect that no infantry or guns were then visible, that the horsemen we had seen were apparently the enemy's cavalry, that they had evidently seen our column, and were, in consequence, inclining to their left in a northerly direction, as if making for Goormao, and that their advanced posts were all standing still watching our movements. The first order given by General Burrows was to clear a village on our front should it be occupied by the enemy. Two guns of E.B. unlimbered at close quarters all ready to shell it, and a troop of the 3rd Sind Horse, under Lieut. Geoghegan, advanced and rode through it without any resistance. Orders were then given to Lieut. Geoghegan to remain behind the village to await the arrival of the baggage, which was to be collected in rear of it whilst the battle was being fought. At the same time instructions were sent to the rearguard to order up the two guns E. B. under Lieut. Osborne to the front. Major Hogg describes the unexplained advance of Lieut. MacLaine's two guns against the enemy's cavalry, the advance of the cavalry across the nullah, and the position of Ayub's army diagonally across the front—masses of men stretching for four miles, and estimated at 25,000. Having thus taken up a position in an open plain, about 1,200 yards beyond the nullah before alluded to, the battle commenced with an artillery cannonade, Blackwood's first gun on the retreating cavalry having opened fire at 10.50. For twenty-five minutes the enemy took no notice of our fire; but during the interval they brought up their right shoulders and gradually got into a position nearly parallel with us. At 11.15 the enemy's guns replied; battery after battery rapidly developed its fire, and in a short time thirty guns were playing on us a well-directed and concentrated fire. No sooner had the action become general than the enemy developed, turning movements on both flanks. He sent the bulk of his cavalry round by our left, and some Ghazis and the remainder of his cavalry round by our right. It was quite impossible to prevent these turning movements, as the enemy was in such enormous strength; but to prevent the cavalry pressing in rear of our infantry two troops of fifty sabres each of the 3rd Sind Horse and 3rd Light Cavalry, under Lieut. A. Monteath and Lieut. Reid, respectively, were wheeled to the left and faced the enemy's cavalry very early in the action, and subsequently fifty sabres of the 3rd Sind Horse, under Lieut. Smith, who had originally commanded the right flanking party, and half a troop of the 3rd Cavalry, under a native officer, were similarly wheeled to the right to meet corresponding movements of the enemy on that flank, the remainder of the cavalry, one hundred and twenty sabres, under Major Currie and Captain Mayne, supporting Major Blackwood's guns, echeloned on their right rear. This work the cavalry did most effectually, and during the whole action, which lasted four-and-a-half hours, the enemy's cavalry never once succeeded in establishing themselves in rear of our infantry, all the stories which have appeared from time to time about the furious charges of the Afghan cavalry being absolutely without foundation. Although, however, we were able to prevent the enemy closing on the immediate rear of our infantry, we could not in any other way interfere with their turning movements which threatened to surround us; and in a very short time we were completely hemmed in, fighting as it were inside a huge horse-shoe, with our rearguard fully engaged for the protection of our baggage, which was threatened before we had been in action an hour. The enemy's cavalry appeared in such large masses on our left that it was thought judicious to strengthen the 100 sabres of the cavalry who were watching that flank, and accordingly two smooth-bore guns, under Captain Slade, were sent, who after treating them to several rounds resumed his former position in front. After the artillery cannonade had been going on for some time the infantry opened at long ranges, and the 66th, who were on our right, soon got hotly engaged with some Ghazis who were turning us on that flank. The enemy here met with a very warm reception, the 66th throwing back their right to meet the turning movement of the enemy. After a furious musketry fire, which was sustained for some time, the fire of the 66th had told with great effect, and this movement on the part of the enemy was fairly checked. Failing on the right, Ayub seemed suddenly to make up his mind to try his luck on the other flank; and though streams of Ghazis and some cavalry still kept going round our right—though at a more respectful distance than heretofore—the bulk of his army—regulars and Ghazis—eventually followed the mass of their cavalry and turned our left, forcing us gradually to throw back that flank, and eventually to fight in a direction nearly perpendicular to that in which we had commenced the action. At half-past one things looked critical; but still the troops were firing steadily with great execution, and all branches were standing as firm as rocks, though the losses, especially in the cavalry and artillery, had been appalling. The smooth-bore guns had by this time been taken out of action as their ammunition had failed; but the Horse Artillery were still firing away rapidly, the officers and men serving their guns in splendid style. Just at this time some Ghazis, who were coming round our right, were seen to be approaching our right rear very rapidly, the moolahs who led them planting their white flags on the ground and the Ghazis advancing up to them by rushes. There were not more than about 100 of them at this point, and it was a good opportunity for a cavalry charge, as it was the only spot where the cavalry could attack without interfering with the infantry, who were engaged, more or less, in an all-round fire. Accordingly, fifty sabres of the 3rd Sind Horse, under Lieut. Smith, and about forty sabres 3rd Light Cavalry, under Lieut. Owen, who were on that flank, were ordered to attack them. The men, from having stood still so long passive under a murderous fire, had at the time their carbines in their hand, and seemed disposed to trust to powder and lead. However, a little hard swearing soon brought them to a sense of duty: carbines were returned to the buckets, swords drawn, and, with their heads in the right direction they were soon advancing on the Ghazis at a gallop. When within one hundred and fifty yards of the enemy, just as the charge was going to be delivered, the halt was ordered by General Nuttall, in consequence, it is said, of there being a nullah in front of the men. The result of this was that the enemy's courage went up and the spirits of the men fell in a corresponding ratio. They were, of course, heavily slated by the enemy's fire, and had to retire all in confusion some two or three hundred yards, till they arrived nearly in rear of our centre. As they were re-forming the three artillery guns were trotted out of action in front of them, in consequence of there being no more ammunition for the guns. Immediately afterwards on the top of this the crash came and the infantry gave way. General Burrows, who had been in the thick of the fight throughout, then rode up to General Nuttall and said, "Nuttall, the infantry have given way; our only chance is a cavalry charge; do you think you could get the cavalry to charge the line of Ghazis in rear of the infantry? and they might perhaps be induced to re-form." There were not many cavalry left. Only 300 had gone into action—the other 146 sabres having been told off to rearguard with orders not to come to the front. Out of the 300 sabres 149 horses had been knocked over and were hors de combat, and the remaining squadron of 150 sabres were more or less demoralised already by their heavy losses. However, the order was given at once to advance and charge, General Nuttall and his staff placing themselves in front of the men. At that time the Grenadiers were completely surrounded by Ghazis, who were not only cutting the men down over their bayonets, but in some instances had actually forced themselves inside their square. The cavalry, instead of advancing straight to the front where the Ghazis were the thickest, inclined without orders to the right, and fell on the Ghazis who were cutting down the Grenadiers, and there is no doubt they saved the regiment from very heavy loss. Having done this much the cavalry seemed to think that they had done enough, and instead of advancing straight on to charge the whole line of the enemy, seeing that our infantry had all given way and that all our guns were out of action, they wheeled to the rightabout without any orders and retired. General Burrows a second time came up to General Nuttall, but the cavalry were by this time completely out of hand and in spite of the endeavours of the officers they could not be induced to front again in the right direction, and retired steadily towards the guns and baggage. General Burrows failing to get the required assistance from the shattered remnants of the cavalry went straight off to rejoin his infantry, and, as stated in his despatch, rallied some of them and made a final stand in the enclosure. When this failed all was over, and there was nothing left but to retire in the Kandahar direction. The bulk of the infantry dispersed over a very wide extent of country, and in spite of every endeavour to induce them to close on the cavalry and artillery they would incline a long way to the left. The result was that the further they went to the left the further they went away from water; and, furthermore, wounded and exhausted men who might have been picked up had they stuck to the road were doubtless, in many cases, cut up without any chance of being saved. The cavalry and artillery kept up their military formation all through the retreat, and, with the few infantry who had the sense to keep to the road, checked the attempts of the enemy to follow up their victory. The enemy pursued us with their cavalry for about eight miles; but the pursuit was not what could be called vigorous, and was easily checked by the artillery and cavalry, Lieut. E. Monteath commanding our extreme rearguard, a duty which he performed in a cool and steady manner.

THE KANDAHAR NEWS.

THE Kandahar News of Oct. 2 reports that the following movements of troops returning to India has been ordered:—On the 5th inst., a sick convoy, escorted by 120 rank and file, 1st Grenadiers, under Colonel Griffith, would start for Quetta. The same day E. B. R.H.A. would move in from Kokeran. On the 8th E. B. R.H.A. was to march for Quetta, escorted by the remainder of 1st Grenadiers. On the 15th, 5-11 R.A., escorted by Jacob's Rifles, would march for Quetta; and the 28th Native Infantry would move to Chaman and Killa Abdulla, relieving the 2nd Beloochees, who would march on Quetta. The 23rd N.I. were to march to Abdul Rahman and the line Kandahar-Chaman, relieving the 12th N.I., who were to march for Quetta. General Baker's brigade has made a successful raid on the Achatzai, on the Toba mountain, carrying away flocks and herds, also grain. This, it is hoped, will have the desired effect of preventing them in future from molesting our convoys, one of whom was looted in the Khojak on September 20. General Macgregor left with the 25th P.N.I. and six mountain guns for Kach and the Hurnai route, on which he is about to establish the posts for the protection of the railway, the work on which will recommence shortly. He will be joined by the 2nd and 3rd Sikhs at Gundakindiff, via Sibi, and by a British regiment, and will proceed to punish the Murrees for their late raids along the railway line, obtaining restitution of the treasure carried off, or in default their villages will, most probably, be burnt and their cattle carried off. The 1st Regiment C.I. Horse left Quetta on 23rd, the 23rd Pioneers on 24th, and the 2-60 Rifles follow in a day or two en route for India. The 28th N.I. arrived at Kandahar on Sept. 27 from Mandi Hissar, and marched the next day to the Argandab Valley to join the 1st Brigade, 2nd Division. The 2nd Light Cavalry arrived from the Argandab on the 26th, and marched from Kokeran on the 28th, where they were to remain for a short time previous to marching down to Quetta. The 7th Fusiliers were to leave Kokeran for Kandahar on Sept. 29, leaving two companies as a guard, and the 4th Rifles were to follow the next day. The following transport officers have arrived at Kandahar here from Quetta:—Capts. Rutherford, 65th Foot; Watson, 30th Foot; and Lieut Gordon, 1st Light Cavalry.

HOME NEWS.

DEVALA-MOYAR GOLD MINING COMPANY.—A meeting of the shareholders of this company will be held to-morrow (Friday, Nov. 5), to confirm the agreements for the sale of the Rhodes Reef Estate for £80,000 in cash and £50,000 in shares of the purchasing company. It is proposed out of these proceeds to distribute 5s. in cash per share as a bonus, and, in addition, one share of the new company for every four shares of the original company.

COMMERCIAL BANK OF ALEXANDRIA.—The annual report states that, after providing for all expenses, including income-tax and bad and doubtful debts, the net profits amount to £16,355, including £3,735 brought forward from last account. When an allowance of £451 has been made for rebate of interest the amount to be divided is £15,903, which the directors propose to deal with in the following manner, viz.:—To pay a dividend of 2s. 3d. per share, which, with the interim dividend of 1s. 6d. per share paid on May 1 last, together are equal to 6¼ per cent. per annum and amount to £15,000; and to carry forward to next account £903.

BOMBAY GAS COMPANY.—The directors have declared an interim dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum (free of income-tax) for the half-year ending June 30 last.

THE MARQUIS CORNWALLIS.—Lord Braybrooke has presented to the Public Record-office his entire collection of American and East Indian papers of Charles, first Marquis Cornwallis. Much of the correspondence was, of course, included in the work edited by Mr. Charles Ross and published in 1859. Mr. Jeaffreson has prepared a report upon them, and also upon the family papers still remaining at Audley End, which will appear in the forthcoming eighth report of the Historical MSS. Commission.—Athenæum.

THE OXFORD MISSION TO INDIA.—This mission, of which Mr. Willis, late vice principal of Cuddesdon College, is the head, is about to leave England. There was a farewell service on St. Simon and St. Jude's day in Christ Church Cathedral, at which the Bishop of Oxford preached, and there have likewise been special services at Cuddesdon, Dorchester Missionary College, and St. Margaret's, Anfield, Liverpool, from which church two curates have gone.—Times.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders were received yesterday at the Bank of England for Rs. 30,00,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, Rs. 29,70,000; to Bombay, Rs. 21,000; and to Madras, Rs. 9,000. Tenders on all Presidencies at 1s. 7 13-16d. will receive about 2 per cent.; above that price in full. Compared with last week this price shows a decline of ¼d. The same amount will be offered for tender on Wednesday next. The effect on the silver market of the decline in the rate was of a somewhat depressing character. A limited quantity of bar silver was disposed of at 51 13-16d. per ounce, the market being almost bare of supplies.

MR. ADAM, M.P., ON EDUCATION IN INDIA.

YESTERDAY afternoon a deputation waited upon the Right Hon. W. P. Adam, M.P., in the Royal Hotel, Edinburgh, and laid before him a memorial on the subject of education in India, which set forth that in the opinion of the friends of India the position and prospects of education in that country have long been most unsatisfactory. While the education despatch of 1854, confirmed after the Mutiny by that of 1859, was satisfactory in its terms, there was a lack of energy in carrying out its ample provisions for the education of the masses, and a growing tendency to disregard some of its rules in regard to higher education. The memorialists go on to state that the present arrangements for the elementary education of India are utterly inadequate to the wants of the population. As evidence of this they state that of 24,000,000 children of school age in British India only 1,600,000 are on the roll of the Government or aided schools—that is to say, only one in every fifteen of school age is attending any school deserving of the name, while the rate of increase in the number of schools is so slow that it can never overtake the population. If we were to overlook the important work of missions, of Government, and others in the education of the youth of India before the great Act of 1854 came into operation, and to allow that the 1,600,000 now at school were all pure gain to the cause of education, that would only give 60,000 as the annual rate of increase during these twenty-five years. At this rate, even if the number of the population were to remain stationary, it would be 400 years before India came up to the stage of education actually reached by several countries in Europe. The memorialists were also of opinion that a disproportionate amount of money and attention were devoted to higher education by those who have now the practical control of education in India. Of the entire sum set apart from the Imperial Treasury for education, amounting only to £738,000 per annum, they found that, apart from the expenses of management and supervision which were common to both the higher and the lower, a large sum was expended on the higher education of 9,000 youths, chiefly of the richer class, than was spent on the elementary instruction of the millions of the poor. Mr. Adam would find in Madras a striking example of the unequal treatment of aided institutions as compared with the favour shown to Government colleges. In the Government college of that city there were by the last report 154 undergraduates. In the Christian college alongside of it, supported by all denominations in Southern India, but to a large extent at the expense of the Free Church, there were 245 educated up to the same standard, and yet, while the Government college received from the State funds, Rs. 62,400, or about £6,000 a year, the Christian college only received Rs. 5,400 or £500 per annum.—Mr. Adam, in reply, admitted that the behests of the despatch which arrived when he was in India had not been carried out as fully as could have been hoped, but he reminded the deputation of the pressure of duties upon Central Governments. He would do all he could in Madras to advance education, but urged the importance of avoiding proselytism or any preference of one religion by the State.

CASUALTIES.

A telegram from Port Said, relative to the fire on board the Clan Ranald (s), states that she has been filled with water and the fire extinguished; extent of injury not yet known; vessel scuttled in 24ft. of water.

Lloyd's agent at St. Michael's telegraphs that the British ship, Lord Northbrook, belonging to Liverpool, had put into St. Michael's with fire burning down in the hold, which had been burning eighteen days; surveyors recommended that she should be scuttled, in order that the fire might be extinguished. This vessel has been regarded as an overdue ship, having sailed from Calcutta as far back as May 27, and from that date up to the time of her putting into St. Michael's she had not been heard from.

EDUCATION IN BENGAL.—We have received the third annual report of the Backergunge Hitaishina Sabha (Society), which was founded by students of the schools and colleges chiefly in Calcutta, with the object of promoting female education, and encouraging other reforms in their own district of Backergunge, Bengal. The practical difficulty in the working of this society has been that the students, except in the vacation, are not in the district where the work is carried on. It is satisfactory therefore to find that two branches have been now established at Barisal and Gubha. The efforts for improving girls' education are directed to establishing new and improving existing schools. Two schools are maintained entirely at the cost of the Sabha. There is also an annual examination of the girls in all the schools and Pathshalas affiliated to the society, and prizes are awarded. In some cases the society pays for the education of girls who could not otherwise go to school. The Sabha endeavours, too, to repress intemperance. Its aims are most praiseworthy, and there is special interest attaching to the fact that it is worked by young students, who, having the advantage of education themselves, are anxious to enable others to share it.

MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY'S CANAL BILL.—At the meeting of the Viceregal Council on Sept. 24, the Hon. Mr. Gibbs moved for leave to introduce a bill to regulate the traffic on the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company's Canal. He said that this company was established under the 21 and 22 Vic., c. 8, that it entered into a contract with the Secretary of State on June 3, 1863, for the carrying out of certain works, some of which had been completed. Under the twenty-seventh section of that agreement it was provided that the company should be authorised and empowered to charge such fares and rates for the conveyance of passengers, animals, and goods as should not exceed the fares and rates which should be defined and sanctioned by an Act of the Indian Legislature. Doubts had arisen in Madras as to whether the term "Indian Legislature" included the Council of the Governor of Madras for making Laws and Regulations, and in order to prevent any difficulty arising on this point it had been deemed advisable to introduce the proposed bill in this council. The motion was put and agreed to.

C. H. SHARP AND COMPANY, PATENT INLET

PURE AIR VENTILATING WALL FILTER.

C. H. SHARP and COMPANY call special attention to their new Wall Inlet, which is admirably adapted for the Ventilation of Private Dwellings, Churches, Schools, Public Buildings, Hospitals, &c.

It is constructed upon sound scientific principles, and is superior to any other vent filter yet introduced.

ADVANTAGES.

1. It is simple in its construction.
 2. It is sensitive in its operation.
 3. It is not liable to get out of repair.
 4. The air being pure the atmosphere is more healthy and agreeable, as a fog, smoke, dust, and other foreign particles in which the atmosphere of towns abound, are kept back by the Filter, which allows only a supply of pure air to pass through the regulating spaces in an upward direction into the room without causing a draught.
- The supply of air can be regulated by partially opening or closing the valve. When closed it is flush with the inside wall, and can be papered or coloured to match the same, which renders it scarcely noticeable. Fixed at 6ft. 6in. from the floor, with an ordinary air brick in the outside size of Filter.

THE "PISTON" FREEZING MACHINE (ASH'S PATENT).

The "Piston" Freezing Machine Freezing and Moulding Dessert Ices, Icing Wines, and making Block Ice.

ASH'S "PISTON" FREEZING MACHINE is the most effective and economical method of freezing known. It is rapidly becoming a part of the "cuisine" in the establishments of the aristocracy of this country; it has received the highest patronage, and is used in all parts of the world. By this process Ice Creams are frozen in shapes ready for table—an operation never before accomplished—entirely superseding the use of ice pots and moulds; it also forms a Wine Cooler and produces Blocks of Ice. When not used with the usual ice and salt mixture, as on board ships, in the Tropics, &c., Ash's Freezing Powders are most effective, and guaranteed to succeed.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, 18th July, 1884.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Oct. 23; Madras and Allahabad, Oct. 21; Calcutta, Oct. 20.

REPORTS on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending the 12th ult. state that there has been slight rain in all the districts of Madras from which returns are received; more is wanted in parts of the Presidency; prospects continue fair. In Bombay there was good rain in Canara and Dharwar, and slight rain in parts of the Deccan, but none elsewhere; harvesting of the early crops and sowing for the spring harvest are progressing. Slight rain has fallen in most districts in Bengal and has been very beneficial, but more is still required in several places; the autumn harvest, as noted last week, is an average one. There was no rain in the North Western Provinces and Oudh; rabi sowings continue; but unless rain falls the full area cannot be sown. In the Punjab also no rain fell; but prospects continue, on the whole, fairly favourable. In the Central Provinces, too, the weather has been clear and fine; prospects are good. In Burma agricultural prospects are satisfactory. There has been favourable rain in Assam, and crops are doing well. In Mysor and Coorg the crops have been benefited by the rainfall of the week, and prospects are fair. In Berar, Hyderabad, Central India, and Rajputana, with the exception of a slight fall in Hyderabad, there was no rain, and in a few places its want is much felt. Prospects throughout the Empire are now generally good or fair; but rain is required in several districts or States for the rabi sowings.

THE health reports for the same week are as follow:—Bombay: fever of mild type in Hyderabad (Sind); fever continuing in Ahmedabad and parts of Surat; subsiding in Kanara. Bengal: fever in many places, public health otherwise good; cholera disappearing in Cuttack; small-pox still in Pooree. North West Provinces and Oudh—Benares: ordinary fever, no other sickness; cholera decreasing in Bareilly; general health fair. Punjab: health good. Central Provinces: fever still prevalent in Jubbulpore, Raipur, and Sambalpur. British Burma: a few cases of small-pox; cholera stopped in Thayetmyo, but reported severe in Prome; public health otherwise good. Assam: good. Mysor and Coorg: health good. Central India States: health good. Rajputana: fever prevalent in Meywar and Ulwar; much fever about Bhurtpure.

THE Standard Kandahar correspondent telegraphed on Thursday as follows:—"Two chiefs have gone to Herat to express to Ayub the devotion of the people towards him, but recommending him to enter into negotiations with the British. My Herat correspondent writes to me that warlike preparations continue there. Ayub has sixteen field guns, but these at present are not horsed, and two heavy pieces of artillery. He has three complete regiments, all of which were with him in his last expedition against Kandahar. He is forming others from the fugitives and mutineers of the Wali's army. Ayub's colonel of artillery has gone to Herat. Fifteen cases of small-pox have occurred among our troops."

NOTHING has occurred to vary the statement at the beginning of the week that there was no important news from Afghanistan. Cabul was quiet at the date of the last advices some ten days ago. The report of the murder of Abdur Rahman is unconfirmed and is generally discredited.

THE latest official reports are that the people in the vicinity of Kandahar are paying their taxes. It is finally arranged that the garrison of Kandahar will consist of one British and two native cavalry regiments, four regiments of British infantry, three of Bengalis, and three of Bombay infantry, with thirty guns. A movable column will be stationed at Pishin and will consist of one regiment of British and two of native infantry, one regiment of native cavalry, and twelve guns. The Murries have now made their submission.

A PUNITIVE expedition on a small scale has been undertaken against the Waziri tribe and conducted with complete success. One thousand men, under General Gordon, marched by night from Thall and surprised a Waziri village on the 27th ult. They captured 126 prisoners, 1,500 head of cattle, and 700 loads of fodder, all of which were carried back to Thall. One Waziri was killed and two were wounded. Only slight resistance was offered.

THERE appears to be a good deal of cholera prevailing in Upper India, and the Toondla Rest Camp has been closed in consequence. Some anxiety is felt lest the sickness should extend to the large camp which will be formed at Lahore during the durbar.

THE Government offices will close at Simla about the 12th and reopen at Calcutta on the 29th. Sir John Strachey will probably not accompany the Government to the capital, but will proceed direct from Simla to Bombay.

THE Viceroy arrived at Lahore on Wednesday from Simla and was met at the railway station by Mr. R. E. Egerton, Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab; General Sir Frederick P. Haines, Commander in Chief in India; the ruling Punjab chiefs to the number of fourteen; and several high British officials. The municipality attended on the railway platform and presented an address to his Excellency on the arrival of the train. A very brilliant procession was formed from the railway station to the Viceroy's camp, and on its way passed round the city, occupying upwards of two hours in making the circuit. The Viceroy, mounted on a richly caparisoned elephant, headed the procession, followed by the Rajas and their respective retinues. A large force of the British troops took part in the procession and lined the roads. The Viceroy's reception was most cordial, and the whole proceedings passed off very successfully.

A REUTER'S telegram from Simla, dated Nov. 12, says that "the Viceroy to-day returned the visits made by the Rajas to his Excellency yesterday. The municipality give a grand fete to his Excellency this evening in the Shalimar Gardens, which are brilliantly illuminated for the occasion. A display of fireworks is also announced. The Viceroy has been enthusiastically received by the large concourse of people assembled to witness the festivities."

THE carved sandal-wood table sent to the Native Industrial Art Exhibition at Simla by the late Hon. Morarjee Goculdas has been offered to and accepted by the Queen.

THE Marchioness of Ripon and her son, Earl De Grey, left Carlton-gardens on Wednesday for Paris, on their way to Brindisi, where they embark for Suez, whence they go to Bombay, to meet his Excellency the Viceroy. They were accompanied by Capt. E. H. Clough Taylor (23rd Royal Welsh Fusiliers), and Lady Elizabeth Taylor, Dr. and Mrs. Anderson. The Duke of Argyll was there to see his daughter and son-in-law off, and several of Lady Ripon's friends were at the Charing-cross station to bid her adieu.

It is believed that Col. McGregor, lately Gen. Roberts's chief of the staff, will shortly succeed General C. Johnson as quartermaster general in India. Brigadier Charles Gough, now commanding the Khyber Brigade, is to have the command of the Hyderabad contingent on the retirement of Col. Wright.

WE understand that Mr. Trotter, now sub agent in the Immigration Department in British Guiana, has been appointed Protector of Indian Immigrants at the Mauritius.

He succeeds Mr. J. G. Daly, who goes to British Guiana as Agent General for Immigration in that colony.

GENERAL SIR E. JOHNSON, late Military Member of Council, left Calcutta for Marseilles in the s.s. Meinam on Oct. 17.

THERE is no truth in the report that Sir Ashley Eden intends to retire from the Lieutenant Governorship of Bengal.

THE Secretary of State has sanctioned the erection of a new official residence for the Viceroy at Simla. The building was commenced in Lord Lytton's time, but interrupted owing to the financial embarrassments.

THE Bombay papers contain notices of the death of the eminent citizen of Bombay, Mr. Morarjee Goculdas, C.I.E., a leading millowner, and an independent member of the Legislative Council. His persistent opposition to any factory legislation was sincere and influential, although, as we believe, mistaken. His numerous public services fully deserved the high esteem in which he was held by all classes in Bombay.

THE state of affairs in Rai Bareilly, where signs of distress are already visible, has induced the Government of India to pass orders relating to the probability of relief works. In no other part of India is distress expected.

THE value of the "one-man power," says the Examiner, is clearly shown by the last files of the Indian papers. The Calcutta Daily News has a telegram from Mach, in the Bolan Pass, stating that "the roadway between Sir-i-ab and Darwaza, the two stations at the head of the Bolan, has not yet been completed; for several miles even the stones have not been picked off the roadway." Now this road was completed to Sir-i-ab by Sir Richard Temple, and most of it under his own eye. No sooner is he off the scene than the road is neglected, so that the men returning to India complained of it as the worst bit of marching they had had since leaving Cabul, notwithstanding the bad roads about Ghazni and the bad road down the Khojak Pass. When the eye of the master is off there is no certainty the work will be done—in India.

MR. J. H. G. GODFREY, a mining engineer, who recently arrived from England, committed suicide by stabbing himself at Calicut on October 16.

THE Government of India has sanctioned the continuance, till the end of the Afghan campaign, of the concession granted last year—viz, a free passage to their regiment or station to officers who may on return from field service be permitted to break journey and proceed on privilege leave in India, on expiry of such leave, provided the State is put to no expense beyond what would have been incurred had the officer not been granted leave.

THE concession of ninety days' privilege leave to officers of regiments returning to India from Northern Afghanistan has been extended to all officers serving under the orders of the several military departments of Government or the Commander in Chief who have returned, or may hereafter return, thence, either by the Khyber or Quetta line of communication, and in like manner to officers returning from Kuram and Kandahar, who are entitled to the ordinary privilege leave of sixty days. This leave may be granted irrespective of the limits of the usual leave season.

A QUESTION of precedence has recently cropped up in the Ecclesiastical Department. The Rev. A. G. Cane, of the Kandahar Field Force, mooted a point in relation to the rights of a junior chaplain as to the selection of quarters in a cantonment, no mention of this matter being made in the new tables of precedence laid down by the Government. The question was referred to the Secretary of State for India, who, at the representation of the Government of India, has decided that a junior chaplain of six years' service shall have the relative rank of a captain, junior chaplains of from six to ten years' standing taking rank as majors.

THE following notification has been issued by the Commissioner in Sind:—"It is with the greatest regret—a regret which will be shared by all classes throughout Sind—that the Commissioner in Sind has seen announced the death of Major General Sir William Lockyer Mervether, who was so long and so honourably connected with this province, where the mention of his name is always accompanied with expressions of affection and respect."

THE St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs that to-day is the date when General Scobelev will commence his march with the main column from Bami to a point in the rear and north east of Geok Tepe on the border of the oasis nearly midway between Geok Tepe and the new fort, already in course of construction, named Fort Scobelev. It will be speedily completed, as a strong entrenched position where General Scobelev's forces will wait the suitable moment for making their attack simultaneously on two sides—namely, from Bami (and this new important position intended to isolate the Tekkes from all assistance on the side of Merv), Kuropatkine's column from Samarcand being posted to defeat any attempt to succour Geok Tepe from the great Tekke city.

THE Indian Museum was visited during the month of October by 8,759 persons. During the week ending Oct. 2, 2,992 were registered. Since the opening the total number of visitors amounted to 113,664.

A PAPER on "Indian Theistic Reformers" will be read before the Royal Asiatic Society, by Professor Monier Williams, at next Monday's meeting.

NEXT Monday week, the 22nd inst., a concert will be held in the opera theatre of the Crystal Palace in aid of the Afghan Relief Fund. Among the patrons are the Earl of Derby, the Earl of Lytton, Lord Napier of Magdala, Sir Samuel Browne, Sir Henry Norman, Sir Michael Bidolph, and Sir Richard Pollock. The occasion is one of more than ordinary interest, as there is every reason to expect that Sir Frederick Roberts himself will be present. A good programme has been arranged and the fund will doubtless receive substantial aid.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—The Hon. Morarjee Goculdas, C.I.E., Member of the Bombay Legislative Council; Lieut. Colonel J. J. Collens, 60th Rifles; Capt. A. G. Carthew, 16th Bengal Cavalry; Capt. J. O. Butler, H.M. Indian Army; Lieut. H. E. Ravenshaw, Central India Horse; Mr. F. Thompson, P.W.D.; Mr J. H. G. Godfrey, mining engineer.

DURING the week ending the 8th inst. there were 261 deaths in Madras, giving a death-rate of 32·8 per 1,000 per annum. In Bombay during the week ending the 12th inst. there were 469 deaths, being a death-rate of 33·97 per 1,000 per annum. No returns have been made in Calcutta owing to the closing of the offices for the Durga Pujah holidays.

THE Council of the Northern Indian Rifle Association have made a new rule, by the terms of which first-class meetings may be held in Bombay, Puna, Madras, and Bangalore, provided there are fifteen paid-up members, and that at least three competitors shoot in the "any" rifle matches and seven in the "M.B.L." matches. Second-class meetings may be held in the Bombay, and Madras Presidencies at any station provided there are seven paid-up members and at least seven competitors in each match. The prize list this year is expected to be the best ever offered. Nearly Rs.7,000 have been presented, exclusive of added money. No ratable deductions are to be made, and all prizes are paid in full.

DOUBTS having arisen in regard to the treatment of military prisoners undergoing sentences of imprisonment passed before March 1, 1880, when the Army Discipline Act came into force in India, it has been notified that all sentences of imprisonment under the Mutiny Act will, as heretofore, be carried out in that country, unless the prisoners' regiment or battery goes home, in which case special orders will be issued for their disposal.

THE BATTLE OF DEH KHOJAK.

THE official account of this sortie is published in the Gazette of India. Lieut. General Primrose says that "no words of mine can express my appreciation of the cool and gallant behaviour of all ranks. Brigadier General Brooke was killed whilst attempting to save the life of Captain Cruickshank, R.E., and by his death the service and the country have suffered a heavy loss. Lieutenant Colonel W. H. Newport, 28th Native Infantry; Major R. J. Le P. Trench, 19th Native Infantry; Captain G. M. Cruickshank, R.E.; Lieutenant F. C. Stayner, 19th Native Infantry; and Second Lieutenant F.P.F. Wood, 7th Fusiliers, all died whilst leading their men in the most forward manner; and Second Lieutenant E. S. Marsh, 7th Fusiliers, was killed in helping to bring in Lieutenant Wood, who was then severely wounded. The Rev. G. M. Gordon, Church Missionary Society, was also mortally wounded whilst attending the men under a heavy fire; and I take this opportunity of paying my small tribute of admiration to a man who, by his kindness and gentleness, had endeared himself to the whole force, and in the end died administering to their wants. Brigadier General Nuttall brings to favourable notice the following officers:—Lieutenant Colonel C. D'U. La Touche, commanding the Puna Horse; Captain Mosley Mayne, commanding the detachment of the 3rd Light Cavalry; Lieutenant T. P. Geoghegan, 3rd Light Cavalry; Major G. C. Hogg, Puna Horse, brigade major; and Lieutenant John Monteith, 2nd Sind Horse, his orderly officer. I would myself wish to bring forward the names of Lieutenant Colonel A. G. Daubeny, 7th Royal Fusiliers, who gallantly led the assaulting party right through the village. Lieutenant Colonel T. R. Nimmo, 28th Regiment Native Infantry, who commanded the support and was severely wounded; and Col C. T. Heathcote, 19th Native Infantry, whose coolness under a heavy fire inspired his men with the greatest confidence. My thanks are also due to Brigadier General T. Nuttall and Brigadier General G. R. S. Burrows; to Col. W. French, commanding the Royal Artillery; Major P. H. Greig, commanding C-2nd Royal Artillery; Capt. J. R. Slade, commanding E-B Royal Horse Artillery; to Lieut. Col. A. M. Shewell, deputy commissary general, who attached himself to my staff; to Deputy Surgeon General J. O'Nial, whose arrangements for the sick and wounded were all that could be desired; to Surgeon Major B. T. Giraud, M.D., Army Medical Department, doing duty with 7th Fusiliers, whose great attention to the wounded on the field has frequently elicited my admiration; to Surgeon Major J. Arnott, M.D., and Surgeon E. W. Kelsall. I cannot overvalue the services rendered on the 16th and on many other occasions by Father T. Jackson, who was always in the foremost of the fight, attending upon and offering every assistance to the wounded, both European and native. I would wish also to bring to notice the gallant conduct of Lieutenant W. St. L. Chase, 28th Regiment Native Infantry, who under a heavy fire carried a wounded man (Private Murray, 7th Fusiliers) from the front into a place of safety; also of Private Ashford, 7th Fusiliers, who accompanied and remained with Lieut. Chase. I purpose making a further recommendation on the part of this officer and private. My best thanks are due to Major C. J. Burnett, my assistant adjutant general, and to Major F. J. S. Adam, my assistant quartermaster general, who possess my entire confidence, and in their arduous duties have rendered me the greatest possible assistance. Lieut. E. C. F. Hamilton, 2nd Queen's, my aide de camp, has invariably performed his duties much to my satisfaction."

Attached to the despatches are the usual returns:—Killed, wounded, and missing. A numerical return relating to the storming of the Deh Khojak village shows that 106 persons were killed and 117 wounded; total 223. OUR COMMERCE WITH INDIA.

ON Wednesday a deputation from the Manchester Chamber of Commerce waited upon Major Baring, the new Finance Minister for India, at 15, Seymour-street Portman-square, for the purpose of placing before him certain representations with respect to our trade with India. Mr. Armitage, M.P., in introducing the deputation, remarked that the Chamber to which he and his colleagues belonged represented a very large manufacturing constituency and a district which was largely connected with the trade of India. They desired that good economic laws should prevail, being sure that both India and England would thereby enjoy reciprocal advantages. What they wanted to see was all obstacles removed which at present impeded the fullest development of the commerce of our great Eastern dependency. While we are urging upon neighbouring countries that they should either abolish or modify the tariffs which now hinder our trade with them, we ought to feel some reflection upon ourselves that there was a remnant of protection remaining in India in the importation of goods from the mother country.—Mr. Lord urged the complete abolition of the duties levied upon cotton goods and yarns imported into India. Those duties had been condemned in principle by successive Secretaries of State; and a vote of the House of Commons had declared that they ought to be got rid of as soon as possible. The amount which they yielded was so inconsiderable in relation to the total revenue that special efforts ought to be made to do away with them entirely. With reference to the Trade Marks Act, the Manchester Chamber had made a representation to the effect that marks already admitted and passed under the English Act should be passed also by the Indian registrar—sufficient protection being given to natives and others in India, at smaller cost, and with less subsequent examination, than would take place in the case of perfectly new marks. Those for whom he spoke thought this was only reasonable.—Mr. Gaddum hoped Major Baring would direct his attention to the octroi duties, and referred to the reduction this year, to a sum of two millions and a half, of the expenditure, which was to be devoted to public works in India.—Major Baring, in the course of his reply, said the customs duties were maintained not with any view to the protection of native industries, but for the sake of the revenue which they yielded. Any steps in the direction of a further remission of those duties must therefore primarily depend upon the state of the revenue. As regards the trade marks acts, the common object of the Chamber and of the Indian Legislature was to afford by means of registration a ready and inexpensive means of proof of title. The manner in which this object might best be secured raised many questions of considerable difficulty and intricacy. The draft bill and the report of the Committee of the Indian Legislative Council had been submitted to them and to some other of the leading Chambers of Commerce in England. There was no need to enter into a general discussion on the subject of the octroi duties. The merits and demerits of this system of raising revenue were well known. He would only on this point observe that the very wise tendency of recent legislation in India was to give the local taxpaying community a voice both as to the means by which local funds might be most advantageously raised and as to the manner in which they should be expended. To what extent octroi duties were popular in India he was not at present sufficiently well informed to be able to express any opinion. In forming his own opinion on the subject the degree of their popularity or unpopularity would constitute a very important item. He believed, however, that it was the declared policy of the Government of India to prevent the octroi duties from degenerating into a tax upon goods in course of transit. The most obvious method of securing this object is to create a system of bonded warehouses. As regards public works, he entirely agreed with what the last speaker said, that it was exceedingly desirable to make as many railways in India as possible. But the limit of expenditure of the Government—two and a-half millions—was fixed after a long discussion, and after a report of the Committee of the House of Commons; and, although that limit was not intended to be final, he did not see any probability of its being increased just yet. He would take this opportunity of urging upon the gentlemen who are influential in the money market whether it would not be possible to construct some of these railways out of private capital without any guarantee. If they would take up the matter and endeavour to form companies to construct such railways he could say for himself they would receive every possible encouragement. As regards the gauge of the Western Rajputana Railway, the question was fully considered by the late Secretary of State, who, in answer to various memorials which were addressed to him on the subject, stated that the Government, after full consideration, had decided to adhere to the metre-gauge.

INDIAN ART AT SOUTH KENSINGTON.*

SECOND NOTICE.

THE subjects treated of and illustrated not only by the artist, but quite as fully by the descriptive pen of the accomplished author, in the second part of Dr. Birdwood's "Industrial Arts of India" can hardly be better described than in the eloquent words of Lord Northbrook, who thus spoke of the mechanics of India to their Birmingham fellow-workers and fellow-subjects:—

"Their marvellous artistic qualities have been recognised from the earliest ages of antiquity. The productions of the Indian loom and potters' wheel, and of Indian goldsmiths, silversmiths, armourers, and carvers in wood, stone, and ivory, together with the spices and dyes of the country, formed the chief staples of the trade between the East and West in ancient times. In modern days, owing to the introduction of machinery in manufactures, and the astonishing industrial productiveness of this fortunate island, accompanied, at first, I am ashamed to say, by high protective duties against the manufactures of India, their hand-wrought goods were driven out of the Western markets, where the appreciation and almost the tradition of them became nearly lost. The Great Exhibition of 1851 first brought the people of Europe back to the consciousness of the forgotten world of traditional decorative art which still existed in all its pristine perfection in India. But their fame has been carried into all parts of the world by the magnificent display of Indian manufactures, and especially by the presents presented to the Prince of Wales, exhibited in Paris in 1878. A great demand has consequently arisen in England, on the Continent, and in the United States. The excellence of the art industries of India is due, not simply to the admirable traditions of form and colour they preserve, but, above all, to the patient, truthful workmanship expended on them by the Indian handicraftsmen."

The products of these long descended workers, who have succeeded to a heritage of unbroken traditions of art and unchanged processes of what is literally manufacture, and not machine making, are classified and exhaustively treated of one after the other. It is of course impossible in our columns to mention the various products of Indian industry which are represented by specimens in the museum and examined from their economic, artistic, and commercial points of view in these pages. Dr. Birdwood especially warns his readers to contend against the debasing effects on Indian art of imitation and machinery, which "should be the servant and never the master of men. It cannot minister to the beauty and pleasure of life; it can only be the slave of life's drudgery." But though we may admit that the perfection of art work can only be attained by hand labour, we are not prepared to agree that there will be a loss instead of a gain to the country, resulting from the "colossal mills of Bombay." We could have wished that in his able and earnest defence of the hereditary workers in metal and other materials, who still produce articles equalling those wrought by their forefathers, Dr. Birdwood had found a word to say against the duties which, as a relic of protection, still linger and heavily handicap the Indian jeweller or silversmith in his competition with our home artisans. Those who read his delightful pages and feast their eyes with the exquisite specimens as figured therein, or stored in the museum, will learn the history and distinctive characteristics of Indian works of art. Their fineness, as is well pointed out, is more than made up for by their wonderful beauty of design and ornamentation. But, although a certain taste for bangles and swamy jewellery prevails, the English manufacturer entrenches himself behind the import duty upon plate, while his Manchester brother clamours for the removal of the Indian import duties on his cottons. But, on the other hand, the careful analysis and the comparative view of the Indian jewellery and metalwork, which certainly compresses into a small compass the essence of all that can be known on the matter, can scarcely find room for such a topic of financial polemic. We should, however, like to direct Dr. Birdwood's attention to a practical opinion on some special Indian manufactures which we recently noticed in a Calcutta journal, and which is more germane to a critical review of those manufactures. The Indian Daily News quotes an account of a conversation held in England between one who is always ready to promote any Indian industry and a large manufacturer of silver and silver-plated ware:—

"The manufacturer was anxious for information about the brass-ware of Benares. He said he had seen specimens of it, and was struck, not so much with the work itself, as with a conceivable potentiality in the workmen to do much better. He said of some of the forms in outline of vases, suraes and other articles in brass, that there was only one reason that he could see why a large trade should not be done in these things. He said that the native workman or manufacturer did not seem to have an adequate idea of the value of mechanical accuracy, which is easy of attainment, but the absence of which spoiled much that would otherwise be admirable. He proceeded to illustrate his meaning. He said, 'Now, take one of those beautiful vases, perfect in outline, rich to repletion with quaint ornamentation, not perhaps highly finished, but still interesting, and placing this on a sideboard, or in a cabinet, what do you see? Probably it is "lopsided;" it stands perhaps half an inch or more out of the perpendicular, one of the last faults that the eye of an educated Englishman would overlook. The reason simply is that the base—which is mostly fastened to the body of that vase by a screw—is put on with a twist which the slightest mechanical skill ought to obviate. Or, again, take the lid or cover of the vase. It is mostly surmounted by a figure of a Hindu god or a plain spike. But almost invariably this figure or spike is leaning on one side. Now, why should this be? It would be just as easy to make these several parts straight as crooked, and until that is done it will be perfectly useless to offer them in the English market.' Here, then, is the opinion of a practical man, who knows the public wants, tastes, and feelings, and he points out practically what is the defect that chiefly strikes the eye of an English purchaser in the industrial productions of Benares. Then he pointed out one or two other defects which he said required attention. The tops of suraes, utturdans, and other works that have 'lids' to them rarely fit. They either will not close or are so loose as not to stay on. In illustration of this point, even in works of art, where the workmen ought to be both competent and well remunerated, this was palpable. Some Cashmere silver muffineers were pointed out. The top of the pepper-caster always fell off as soon as the article was held in a horizontal position. It would require but little mechanical skill or appliance to make these parts fit with sufficient accuracy to be really useful. Again, the unseen parts of these brass articles are often left as rough as when they came from the sand mould of the caster. This should not be, for as curiosities of art or Indian manufacture they are minutely examined, and an educated taste is apt to resent the presentation to the eye of a rough piece of workmanship, as though the effort was not worth making."

The efforts of the promoters of the Simla Exhibition, and the co-operation and advice of those who are surely promoting a permanent exhibition of Oriental art at South Kensington, will not be wanting to procure the remedying of such defects as these, which are in no way essential to the most jealous conservatism of true Indian art. In this we feel sure that its zealous exponent and conservator will concur. An important section of the work is devoted to the subject of carpets. Dr. Birdwood has, as our readers will recollect, broken a lance in fair encounter with lieutenant governors in the quarrel of the genuine work of the Indian weaver with the products of the Indian gaols. In the Simla memorandum it "may be specially reported in the woollen textile class of goods" that no prize will be given for any carpet not purely oriental or original in design or not copied from a good oriental original. Special effort, therefore, should be made to borrow old Kabul, Persian, Herat, and other rugs and carpets. There is no need for English admirers or intending purchasers who seek for accurate guidance to go beyond the museum. "The carpets shown at the India Museum have been arranged by Mr. Vincent Robinson, by whom many of them are lent, and the extent and completeness of the series is a sufficient evidence of the important trade in Indian carpets which has sprung up since 1851." Dr. Birdwood charges the falling off in the quality and art character of Indian carpets not only to the competition of the Government gaols, but to the desire of English importers to obtain them quickly and cheaply, aided by the want of knowledge and appreciation on the part of English purchasers. Just as the temptation has proved irresistible to English cotton manufacturers to send out cheap and inferior calico, so it seems India has been able to requite in kind by supplying carpets inferior in colour, design, and durability. The endeavour to alter or imitate the old-fashioned textile products seems as hopeless as that to copy the ponchos of the Indians of South America, which met with such complete failure some years ago. But the maintenance of the valuable carpet industry and trade is of such importance that all who, either as votaries of æsthetic art culture, or as caring for the welfare of the Indian weavers, are interested to prevent the deterioration complained of, will feel grateful to Dr. Birdwood for his pages, on the subject. We have regarded the practical utility, as regards production and trade, of the lucid and learned exposition in his pages, rather than the antiquarian and artistic instruction to be derived from them. But that is in no degree because we have failed to appreciate the utility of this guide to 'Indian Industries,' whether to the student of Indian history or the votary of cosmopolitan art.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE PAPER CURRENCY RESERVES.

WE regret that we cannot consider as satisfactory the Government resolution published in our issue of yesterday in regard to the coin reserves of the Paper Currency Department. We cannot admit that the coin reserves of the Currency Department may remain in any part of India, and we demur to the statement that "the law does not require the head commissioner of the Department of Paper Currency to hold his metallic reserve at any particular place." The paper currency system of India is divided into ten circles, in each of which there is a centre at which by law silver is payable for notes. These centres are Calcutta, Allahabad, Lahore, Madras, Calicut, Coconada, Bombay, Nagpur, Karachi, and Akola. Silver is by law demandable for notes at no other places than those named, and we therefore contend that the currency coin reserves should be distributed among these centres in proportion to the circulation of the circle which each represents. It is possible that the Government resolution intends that the distribution should be made in this manner, but we very much doubt it. The words "any part of India" are very significant, and appear to us to have been used designedly with the object of covering the use of the currency reserves to assist Treasury requirements. No possible objection can be urged to legitimate remittances of money through the Currency Department on account of the Treasury. For instance, if the Currency-office at Lahore has surplus silver and the Treasury at Calcutta wish to remit money to Lahore it is a perfectly regular transaction for the Treasury at Calcutta to make payments to the Currency-office at Calcutta for equivalent payments by the Currency Department at Lahore to the Treasury at Lahore. But we protest against the currency reserves being utilised for Treasury requirements in any other manner. We protest against the currency coin reserves being removed from the centres where the liability to pay currency notes in silver only exists to other parts of India where no liability to pay notes exists at all, to in effect do duty as Treasury balances. We do not know what has in recent times been done with the currency reserves, but a general impression exists that they have been utilised to such an extent to effect what is called remittances for the Treasury that the stability of the paper circulation at even such an important centre as Calcutta has been placed in jeopardy. If rumour does not always lie, Sir John Strachey may be able to find that this has been so, if he calls for a daily balance of the coin reserve held by the Currency Department at Calcutta during the past three years. We observe the Government resolution states that "the coin reserve store within a currency circle should never exceed the amount of its note circulation." Are we to understand from this that the coin reserve stated in the monthly currency statement to be at Calcutta, Lahore, or any other currency centre, does not represent the reserve actually held at Calcutta, Lahore, or elsewhere, but the total reserve held at all places within the circle? If so, it may happen that a portion of reserve stated to be held at Lahore may be held at Quetta.—Englishman.

VITAL STATISTICS OF BOMBAY.

THE number of births registered among the civil population of the presidency in 1879 was 287,870 as compared with 243,253 in 1878, the year in which the effect of the famine was most felt in the birth-rate; or 17.74 per mille as compared with 15.04 per mille. But it is still upwards of 4 per mille below the average birth-rate. The great famine centres show the most significant improvement. In Belgaum the births per mille last year were twenty as against twelve in 1878; in Dharwar seventeen against ten; in Kaladgi eight against three; in Ahmednuggur 24.51 against 15.64. The rates, however, vary throughout in the most curious manner, from Nassick, where the birth-rate is 27.92 per mille to Shikarpore in Sind, where it is only 5.00. This is essentially due to defective registration. "In last year's report," says the sanitary commissioner, "I spoke of the utter worthlessness of this return, and I wish something could be said in its favour now; but as it was then, so it is now, grossly incorrect, grossly inconsistent. In two instances only does the birth-rate exceed the death-rate, so in twenty-two the extinction by depopulation is, by their own returns, a mere matter of calculation. It is disappointing to find that in regard to its British registration the city of Bombay is so behindhand." There is no doubt about the accuracy of this charge, and it is a serious one. The death-rate of Bombay city is 34.60 per mille to a birth-rate of 22.45, so that the whole city would be depopulated in some eighty years. But, as a matter of fact, the population is very rapidly increasing, and the fault must lie with the system of registration. Turning, however, to Dr. Weir's report, we find that he takes credit for the improved efficiency of birth registration, which has, he tells us, only been secured by the continuance of severe discipline towards the staff of peons who collect birth intelligence and reports. "I regret," he adds, "having had to discharge nine peons during the year, and I have frequently to adopt severe measures, in the way of fining, in regard to others." The system is, however, obviously to blame as well as the peons, and we hope that the new census will be the signal for introducing a very much more efficient system. It is useless to go to the cost of an elaborate census every ten years if one of the chief purposes for which it is prepared is almost altogether neglected. Still from the mass of figures provided some accurate deductions may be drawn. The proportion of male to female children shown in these returns is, for instance, approximately correct. There are 110 male children to 100 female. Over a period of seven years the male children average 10 per cent. more than the females—a good contradiction to the popular fallacy that in countries where polygamy is permitted nature provides for the institution and the women outnumber the men. The birth-rate invariably varies with the month, and being at the minimum in February it attains its maximum in October. Taking last year as an example, we find that in February the birth-rate was 16.316, in March 18.332, in April 19.525, in May 20.755, in June 22.288, in July 25.560, in August 27.515, in September 29.968, and in October 31.301. This curious progression is, we presume, governed by some physical law, and we wish the sanitary commissioner had made it the subject of "suggestion or comment." While Dr. Lumadaine and Dr. Weir differ as to the efficiency of the birth registration of Bombay they are certainly at one with regard to what Dr. Weir, with his usual impressiveness, styles the "appalling" rate of infant mortality in Bombay. "The figures," says Mr. Nugent in the Government resolution, "show that he had only too good cause for doing so." For every thousand infants under one year of age the mortality throughout the presidency was 76.13 per thousand; but for every thousand infants under one year of age in the city of Bombay the mortality was 458.13, which would virtually mean that one child out of every two born in Bombay dies before attaining the age of twelve months. This is not really the case, for as we have shown the registered deaths in Bombay are fifty per cent. greater than the registered births. But we believe all experts are agreed as to the "appalling" infant mortality in Bombay, and agreed, too, that a considerable proportion of it is due to the crime of infanticide.—Times of India.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

FORESTS IN THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.—The area of the Government forests is as follows:—1st class reserves, 16,22,454 acres; 2nd class reserves, 107,82,99 acres; unreserved forests, 1,44,416 acres; total, 1,25,49,861. While attention is paid to ancient forests we are pleased to note that large extensions are made in the direction of putting out young plantations. During the year under notice 282 acres were sown with teak, 106 acres with teak and bamboo, and 540 with bamboo alone. Supply stock for extensive bamboo nurseries were also made to future plantings. Prosecutions for breaches of the forest laws were very numerous, having amounted to 1,408 cases as against 367 in the preceding year. In 92.3 per cent. of these cases, convictions were obtained, which points to carefully got-up cases. The financial statement shows well. The total expenditure amounted to Rs.5,22,573, while the income from all sources aggregated Rs.10,06,723, leaving a surplus of Rs.4,84,150, as against Rs.4,59,147 during 1878-79.—Report.

MASONIC BENEVOLENCE.—On hearing of the disaster at Nynee Tal the District Grand Lodge at Calcutta voted from the Masonic Fund of Benevolence the sum of Rs.1,000 in aid of the sufferers belonging to the Nynee Tal Masonic Lodge. This example was at once followed by Lodge Humility and Fortitude by a donation of Rs.100 from its funds. Other lodges will doubtless contribute to this cause. The Nynee Tal Lodge has been wholly destroyed and many Masons are among the sufferers.—Indian Daily News.

ODDH AND NORTH WEST PROVINCES.—The past season seems to have been one of the driest on record throughout Oudh and the greater part of the North West Provinces. The Cawnpore district suffered most severely, having had only ten inches of rain since June. In twenty out of the forty-nine districts the monsoon rainfall has been from a quarter to half of the average. The crops have, of course, suffered severely; but there are large stocks in hand, which tends to diminish the fear of scarcity.

BANKIPORE.—A monster meeting of the landowners of Behar was held at Patna on Nov. 5; Maharaja Durbhungah presided. Mr. O'Donnell's charge of rack-renting was successfully refuted. A resolution protesting against the proposed Bengal rent law as tending against a permanent settlement was adopted amid great sensation.—Telegram.

THE VICEREGAL TOUR.—His Excellency the Viceroy was expected to arrive at Lahore, where the great durbar is to be held, on Nov. 10. Already great preparations for the event are being made at the Punjab capital. The house-owners of the city are even whitewashing and otherwise embellishing the fronts of their houses in honour of the occasion. The works of the water-supply tank are being hastened to completion, so as to be ready in time for a visit from Lord Ripon. Early in the week it was announced that the numbers of followers who are to be allowed to accompany the various chiefs and notables attending the durbar will not exceed those allowed to be present on the occasion of the Delhi assemblage. This restriction has been found necessary on sanitary grounds. Since this order was made news comes from Simla that the durbar may have to be put off or held on a reduced scale in consequence of the prevalence of cholera in the neighbourhood. Eighteen cholera seizures and fourteen deaths have occurred at Jhelum in a regiment recently returned from the front. Many cases are reported from Peshawur. The Afghan ball, which is to take place during the viceregal visit, is to be on a large scale. All military and political officers who have served across the frontier in the late campaign are to be invited "to meet their Excellencies the Viceroy and the Commander in Chief." European residents of the Punjab and their families who have the entrée to Government House will be admitted on subscription only, and a limited number of visitors from other provinces will be invited by the ball committee. His Excellency's party from Simla to Lahore will consist of Lieut. General Sir D. M. Stewart, military member of council; Mr. H. M. Durand, foreign secretary; Mr. H. W. Primrose, private secretary; Major G. S. White, military secretary; Dr. Muir; Lieuts. Muir, Brett, and Fitzwilliam, aides de camp. From Lahore to Bombay it will comprise the Hon. J. Gibbs, C.S.I., member of council; Mr. A. C. Lyall (if he should be back from Kandahar in time); Col. A. Johnson, military secretary to the Government of India; and the members of his Excellency's staff. It is understood that Brigadier General Hugh Gough will command the cavalry brigade at Lahore during the Viceroy's visit. Sir John Strachey is to act as president of the council during his Excellency's absence from the seat of Government.—Times of India.

CHANGES AT JEYPORE.—Great changes at Jeypore seemed to have followed the death of the Maharaja. The photographic and meteorological departments have been abolished and the Parsee troupe of actors dismissed. The new Maharaja has entered into all the religious ceremonies of the season. On October 10 he went to Ambair to worship Shilla Davi, the image of Kali, taken to Jeypore from Bengal by Maharaja Man Sing. On the following Tuesday, the 12th, the Maharaja went in state to worship the Khajra tree outside the Zorawar Sing-aka Durwaza. He also held a durbar, and, according to custom, worshipped all the implements of war.—Indian Daily News.

A NEW CLASS OF CULTIVATORS.—It is stated that a new class of cultivators is attracting the notice of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal. These are known locally as belati grehusts, and are Englishmen who have taken small grants from the zemindars of holdings in the Scopole jungles. They clear the forest and grow crops like native cultivators, each holding being about 200 bighas. Sir Ashley Eden has asked for further information.—Times of India.

CALCUTTA PUBLIC LIBRARY.—His Excellency the Viceroy has been pleased to become the patron of the Calcutta Public Library. His Excellency has also become a proprietor by contributing Rs.500 to the institution.—Times of India.

THE RUMOURED PROBABLE RETIREMENT OF SIR A. EDEN.—Various rumours have lately gained currency regarding the ill health and probable early retirement of Sir Ashley Eden, which rest upon a disproportionately slender foundation of fact. During his late tour to Gaya Sir Ashley was, we hear, exposed to wet, which brought on a troublesome attack of bronchial catarrh. The effects of this ailment have, however, now entirely passed away. After such an attack extra care is of course necessary, and accordingly, acting under medical advice, Sir Ashley has determined to postpone for a time his proposed tour to Chutia Nagpur, which would have involved considerable fatigue and exposure to abrupt changes of temperature. Not only has his Honour no intention whatever of retiring from the service, but the state of his health has never been such as to suggest to him the necessity of such a course.—Englishman.

NAINI TAL.—A correspondent at Naini Tal writes:—"The end of the tragedy has, we hope, arrived. Poor old Mr. Bell, who came up here on hearing of his son's death, died recently, and thus ends the house of Bell and Company, so well known for years in Naini Tal, Meerut, Lucknow, and Calcutta. Mrs. Francis, the grandmother of the child, killed in the first landslide, has also died; and there is no doubt that the shock in both cases caused these deaths, for though both were well stricken in years there was no other immediate cause. Naini Tal is beginning to pull itself together. A meeting is about to be held to build new assembly rooms by a debenture company. The committee of experts have decided that if certain remedial and preventive works be undertaken there is no reasonable anxiety for the greater portion of the affected hill. The Government will come up here as usual next year, and the levelling operations have already made some progress. The directors of the railway, too, have resolved to relaunch their project, for the conditions are not altered."—Ibid.

SACRILEGE.—The Kohat church has again been broken into, and the communion cloth as well as part of the floor cloth carried away. A correspondent mentions that during the Jowaki blockade the same church was broken into, and the sacrilegious thieves, strange to say, carried off what one would have considered the most useless of possessions to an Afghan, namely, the church prayer books and hymn books. These were afterwards discovered when we took Jammu in one of the most remote villages of that valley.—Times of India.

THE NEPAULESE EMBASSY.—The Embassy, consisting of fifty-two Nepaulese and a sirdar, which went last year to China with some presents to the Emperor, has returned in safety, with a reward of two lakhs of rupees and a dress of honour. It is stated that Sir Runoodeep Sing, Prime Minister of Nepaul, will start on a pilgrimage on Nov. 21 for Pooree, Juggernath, Tedhband, Ramesher, and Dwarka. On arriving at Calcutta, on or about Dec. 10, he will pay a visit to the Governor General. From thence he will start by steamer to Pooree.—Ibid.

LADAKH AND YARKAND.—Advices from Ladakh, dated Sept. 15, state that large quantities of merchandise have been brought up lately by traders from India for transit to Yarkand, and the trade is apparently reviving; carriage, however, is wanting, for the price of horses has risen since the Chinese occupation of Turkistan to about three or four times what it was previously. Most of the carriers have abandoned the trade. For though the cost of transport for one load between Leh and Yarkand has risen since 1878 from Rs.40 to Rs.70, even the latter figure does not pay them. Thus a great part of the goods now at Ladakh will probably have to remain there until next year at all events. The greater part consists of English manufactures. Straits produce and China tea paid duty at Bombay, which is recoverable here according to the treaty, so that the revival of trade means a great drain on the funds of this agency. Three of the wives of the late Andijani envoy, Syud Yakub Khan, arrived at Ladakh on Sept. 4 on their way to Yarkand. The stream of pilgrims appeared to have partially stopped, not many having arrived during the last few days. The young Raja of Ladakh, aged about fifteen, son of the last independent Raja, was married on Sept. 11 to the daughter of the Thakore of Baruk in Lahoul, a relative of Hari Chand, magistrate of Lahoul. The girl, who is about eleven years old, arrived from Lahoul on Sept. 10, escorted by a large procession of Lamas and others and all the native officials of Ladakh. Great preparations have been made for the marriage, and the ceremonies will last for several days. The Raja is treated by the natives of the province with the same respect as they formerly paid to the independent Rajas. He enjoys a small jagir near Leh, and an allowance of eighty chilkis a month from the Maharaja. The joint commissioner presented a piece of kincob to the Raja on the occasion. A letter from Yarkand, dated 1st Ramazan (August 8), had been received in Ladakh on Sept. 14, in which it was stated that some native traders from Kokand, who had left that town six weeks previously, reported that the Russians were collecting large quantities of provisions and fodder on the Alai and at Gulcha. On Sept. 15 Mr. Godwin Austen had left for Cashmere and India, taking with him the presents sent by the Chinese Resident of Turkistan to his Excellency the Viceroy.—Press Commissioner.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—Quotations: Tea, £3 10s.; wheat, £3 5s.; rice, £3 2s. 6d.; hides, £3 5s. to £3 10s. Throughout the Pooja holidays the freight market has remained firm, a further advance of 2-6 having been established for wheat, jute, and lin, rates closing strong at 55s., 57s. 6d., and 60s. respectively for Cape shipment. Steamers are equally firm.—Englishman.

RANGOON NEWS.—The Chief Commissioner and suite returned on October 19 from Moulmein in the Enterprise. His Excellency Admiral Gore-Jones has arrived in the flag-ship Euryalus. Conductor William Anderson, recently arrived from Afghanistan, has been acquitted on all the charges in the commissariat bribery cases.—Times of India.

A NEW INDUSTRY.—We see that a proposal is on foot to start a paper making company at Allahabad, under the name of "The Allahabad and North West Paper Mills Company," with a capital of three lakhs, in shares of from Rs.10 to Rs.500 each.—Englishman.

THE LAKE MEMORIAL FUND.—We understand that the Lake Memorial Fund, which has been established by the friends and admirers of that distinguished Punjab officer, the late General Lake, will be devoted by the Church Missionary Society, which is its trustee, in part to religious and in part to secular educational purposes. As regards the latter the society has, with commendable liberality and thoughtfulness, awarded an annual prize to the native Punjabi student of the Lahore Government College who, being under twenty-three years of age, shall stand first in the examination in history (with special reference to that of India) in the honours in arts examination in that subject held by the Punjab University College.—Englishman.

THE TOBACCO SMUGGLING CASE AT BANGALORE.—His Honour Captain E. P. Maltby, town and cantonment magistrate, has delivered judgment in this case, fining Quartermaster Sergeant Wingfield Rs.100 and Bombardier Hicks Rs.5. The tobacco was ordered to be confiscated and handed over to the municipality. His Honour awarded mut uddi Annawar Rs.10, and octroi peons Ali Sultan and Narrainsawmy Rs.5 each as rewards.—Bangalore Spectator.

PATENTS.—There have been received in the office of the Chief Secretary to Government specifications of the following inventions:—Mr. Thomas Threltall, San Francisco, California, America—"Processes of, and machines for, separating and cleaning vegetable fibre." Mr. Samuel Cleland Davidson, Belfast, Ireland—"Improved aerated beverages." Messrs. Algernon Edwin Abbott Running, engine foreman of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, Bhosowal, and George William Pitt, enginedriver, Bhosowal—"Invention for dropping and cleaning fires of locomotives or any engines either when running or stationary, and preventing clinker from collecting and for saving fuel and labour."—Gazette.

MR. J. WILKINS.—Mr. J. Wilkins, subordinate judge of Cochin, has retired from the public service after forty years' hard work. Mr. Wilkins was well known in Madras as a shrewd judicial officer; and as a member of the Uncovenanted Service he was highly respected. The members of the bar presented Mr. Wilkins with an address on the eve of his retirement.—Madras Times.

THE COLLECTOR OF MALABAR.—Our correspondent at Calicut writes:—"The shipping news gives, in the list of passengers to leave Southampton by the Peninsular and Oriental steamer of October 13, the names of Mr. Logan, the collector of Malabar, and his wife, who should therefore arrive in Madras about the middle of November. At that time it is rumoured that Mr. M'Gregor, the resident of Travancore, contemplates taking leave in anticipation of retirement from the service. This has given rise to some speculation as to whether Mr. Logan will succeed him or not, as he is the most eligible man that people in this neighbourhood can think of. He has been connected with Malabar for a great part of his service, is well acquainted with the country, its people, language, laws, and customs, takes an interest in the development of its resources, and is much liked by both Europeans and natives, the former including the important body of coffee planters of Wynaad. As the peculiar laws and customs, as well as the language of Malabar, prevail also in Travancore, and as there is a large body of European planters there also, familiarity with these must be a qualification much to be desired in the resident. Should Mr. Logan be sent to Travancore it is then thought that Mr. M'Watters, who is acting for him, will continue in charge of Malabar—an arrangement decidedly preferable to sending a new man, who would have to begin to learn all the peculiarities of the district, while Mr. M'Watters, having been here a year and a-half, is just mastering them all, and particularly seems to be getting the local fund and municipal boards well in hand. There is one subject absorbing much interest and conversation at present—viz., Wynaad gold, that will require careful watching, and would seem to ask that as few changes as possible should be made in the administrative officers."—Ibid.

A DISTINGUISHED NATIVE OFFICER.—Few native officers of the Madras Native Army, and perhaps of the sister Presidencies as well, can boast of such distinguished services as those recorded against the name of Subadar Major Vurdarajoo of the 32nd N.I., whose admission to the Order of British India we chronicled the other day. He is now 56 years old, thirty-one of which have been spent in service. He served with the late 49th Regiment N.I. during the second Burmese war, accompanied the Martaban expeditionary force to Tounghoo, and was present at Gongakand and minor affairs. When only a private he volunteered to proceed, disguised in Burmese dress, and at the risk of his life, to reconnoitre a stockade of the enemy near Shoaygheen. This object he accomplished with much difficulty, and returned with a rough sketch, whereby his commandant, Major Seton, was enabled to plan and carry out a successful attack on the stockade. He was mentioned in despatches and promoted to naique by order in Council, receiving a medal. Served with the Madras Rifles as a havildar in Bengal and Central India from October, 1857, to January, 1860. Was brought to notice for "conspicuous" gallantry in the field on various occasions, and admitted to the 3rd Class Order by G.O.G. of Nov. 6, 1860, receiving a medal. His emoluments now must amount to about Rs.200 a month, including allowances for the two Orders to which he has been admitted.—Ibid.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE IN THE MADRAS PRESIDENCY.—We have received a copy of "Report on the Administration of Civil and Criminal Justice in the Presidency of Madras for the year 1879," just published. That a report for the year 1879 should be issued not earlier than the last quarter of 1880 is a fact that is only in keeping with the manner in which official reports are brought out in this country in regard to time; but the lateness of the appearance of the present report is more than compensated by its completeness and interest; being in this respect very different from the reports of previous years. It is divided into five sections, besides having an appendix, and occupies forty-five pages. The first and second sections deal with civil justice, high court (original and appellate jurisdiction) and provincial courts; the third and fourth sections with criminal justice, high court and provincial courts; and the fifth miscellaneous. There are several interesting tables given. We hope to review the report in our next issue.—Ibid.

THE LABOUR IN WYNAAD.—Grain is exceedingly cheap in Goodalapet and Mysore; gram selling at sixty-four seers for the rupee, and raghee at a price which seems almost absurd. The Canarese coolies are in high feather of course, and display their joy (perhaps not unwisely) by forgetting the small obligations of advances, and revelling in the luxury of unlimited plenty, under the shadows of their own palm trees. Fortunately crowds of Chermas are flocking up, and will, in a great measure, supersede Canarese labour during the crop season. The experiment of employing Brinjaries on some estates has been a great success; that they soon learn what they have to do, and are perfect giants in the matter of work when compared to the Canarese capabilities in that line. They are very independent, however; their bumps of veneration, with regard to the Dorais, being exceedingly small, and the gipsy blood shows itself in what may be called "hastiness," especially amongst the ladies of the community. Even the children work well until some small topic of disagreement arises between them, when, in one moment, the whole gang will be scrambling and worrying each other like a pack of small dogs.—Madras Times.

BANK OF MADRAS.—A petition is being prepared by the subordinates of the Bank of Madras to be laid before the board of directors, praying that a pension be granted them after long and faithful services, as some apprehension is felt owing to a late employé, after a service of twenty-three years, having been awarded only a gratuity of one year's salary instead of a pension.—Ibid.

THE UNIFORM OF THE MADRAS SEPOY.—The uniform worn by the Madras Sepoy has long been regarded as an eyesore to the discriminating public, and a great source of personal discomfort to the wearer. It has been condemned on the right hand and on the left, so that, had the unequal fief disrepute into which it has fallen been all that was necessary to ensure its being discarded, the costume would, long before this, have been delegated to the limbo of things condemned. But, somehow, the military authorities or the Government would seem to have some inexplicable reasons for retaining the obnoxious dress, and thus it was continued in use up to the present day, in spite of all that has been urged against it. There, is, however, now some hope that the long-desired reforms in this direction will be undertaken before long. We are told that Sit Neville Chamberlain, ever since his return from his abortive embassy to Afghanistan, when he had opportunities of noticing the advantages the Bengal native corps have over their Madras confreres in the matter of dress, has been impressed with the necessity for assimilating the uniforms of all native regiments in the country. His Excellency, we are assured, is in favour of a costume à la Zouave, consisting of turbans in lieu of caps vests and jackets combined in lieu of tunics, and knicker-bockers with leather gaiters, in lieu of trousers. The style of uniform, besides being more picturesque and comfortable, is, in the Commander in Chief's opinion, calculated to be less costly than the dress in vogue. His Excellency has, therefore, been in great pains to move the Government to adopt the change without further delay, and we are glad to learn that the Government, falling in with Sir Neville's views on the subject, have taken steps to ascertain the probable amount of saving that would be secured by adopting the proposed change.—Madras Times.

THE THEFT OF THE TRIVELLORE JEWELS.—The thieves who stole the jewels from the mutam of Trivellore, on the night of Sept. 1 last, seem to have well understood their business. The approximated value of the property lost was Rs.1,53,012. A golden decanter set with large cut diamonds, of a blue colour, and of Hyderabad workmanship, was valued at Rs.50,000. Three other ornaments were worth from Rs.10,000 to Rs.26,000 each, and many of the other sixty-four articles missing were worth from Rs.1 to Rs.8,000. Of course the stones will not be sold or even offered for sale in this Presidency, but we shall not be astonished if some of them be traced to Burma, Northern India, and even to London, the greatest market in the world for all that is valuable.—Ibid.

THE LATE MR. WILLIAM WAIT.—We learn from Coonoor that intelligence has been received there by telegram of the sudden death of Mr. W. Wait, of the Ashby Works, at that station. Mr. Wait, it would seem, proceeded to Madras lately to meet a brother who was expected from England. From Madras Mr. Wait went on to Tinnevely on a month's holiday. The intelligence received by telegram was that he was drowned at the Falls in the Tinnevely District. Our correspondent at Coonoor says that the news of Mr. Wait's death has cast quite a gloom over the station. Mr. Wait had been for some years a resident at Coonoor, was an active, intelligent, kind man, and a clever mechanic. He leaves a wife and two children.—Bangalore Spectator.

FAREWELL PICNIC AT OOTACAMUND.—A farewell picnic was recently given at Fairdowns by the residents of Ootacamund to the Duke of Buckingham, the Ladies Grenville, H.E. Sir N. Chamberlain and Lady Chamberlain. His Grace, in replying to Mr. Roupell (who proposed the health of the Duke and the Ladies Grenville), said that he should look back on his five years in India with pleasure, and not the least would be the remembrance of the occasion on which they were then met. The only other toast was that of their Excellencies Sir Neville and Lady Chamberlain, proposed by General Russell.

MELANCHOLY SUICIDE OF A MINING ENGINEER.—We regret to hear that Mr. J. H. G. Godfrey, mining engineer, committed suicide by stabbing himself with a sportsman's knife, in Plantation House, Calicut, on October 26. He arrived in Calicut, from England, on the previous Tuesday. He had been sent out by the London manager of the Tambercherry Coffee Company to report on the gold prospects on some of their estates in Wynaad, and he was to have proceeded to Wynaad on Saturday. Early in the morning he was seen and spoken to by other gentlemen at Plantation House, but they noticed nothing unusual in his appearance. About eight o'clock the gentleman in the room adjoining Mr. Godfrey's heard a peculiar noise, and then a heavy fall; and on running in he found deceased lying on the bath-room floor in a pool of blood and the large knife beside him. Medical aid was at once summoned, but life was extinct long before the doctors (Bourke and Roberts) arrived—the heart having evidently been lacerated by the knife. Very little is known of the deceased, as he was reserved in his manner. He appeared to be between forty and fifty years of age, and it is said that he leaves a widow and four children. He seemed to be a man of temperate habits, and, so far, no motive can be assigned for his rash act. Calicut has been very hot for the last few days, and it is thought not improbable that deceased may have had a touch of the sun.—Madras Mail.

BANGALORE.—The 4th Native Infantry, under the command of Col. Hodding, arrived by train from Afghanistan on Oct. 19. The men looked well and were accorded a warm welcome. Lieut. Col. Sim has been appointed commandant of the Sappers and Miners in room of Lieut. Col. Prendergast, promoted. Heavy rain has fallen.—Times of India.

WRECK OF A GERMAN STEAMER.—The German steamer Asia, of Hamburg, from Amoy to New York, was totally wrecked on the east point of Socotra on Sept. 28. The crew were landed at Galle on Oct. 23 by the Dutch gunboat Madura. The captain was taken off by a Dutch steamer 4,500 chests of tea saved.—Ibid.

ATTEMPTED ESCAPE OF A DACOIT.—The notorious dacoit, Wassudeo Bulwunt Phadke, who a year ago was sentenced to transportation for life, escaped from prison at Aden recently, but was recaptured.—Times of India.

BOMBAY.

A USEFUL SOCIETY IN PALITANA.—The first meeting of the Society for the Encouragement of Arts and Manufactures in Palitana was held on Sept. 26, in the Durbar Hall, on which occasion several Bhayads, officers of the State, merchants, and mechanics were present. His Highness the Thakore Sahib took the chair and explained the object of the society in Guzerati, of which the following is a translation :—"The object of my forming this society is to consider the best means to promote the welfare of the people of this State by the dissemination of education and the knowledge of arts and manufactures among them. In these days not to advance with the onward progress of civilisation is to recede. In countries the most civilised new inventions and appliances are daily made to subserve the purposes of man. I must therefore regret that the importance of manufacturing industries and commerce, which are the main levers of national wealth and prosperity, are not sufficiently appreciated here. So long as our country is not, by the diffusion of knowledge, able to produce and export many of the articles hitherto unproduced here, and thereby increase the sources of wealth of the State by commercial intercourse with foreign countries, we shall not be considered to have taken any real steps towards our material welfare. Those countries that have reached the highest pitch of civilisation owe their rise to education and the application of arts and sciences to manufacturing and other industries. I am aware of the difficulty of such works being undertaken in the first instance without the aid and fostering care of the durbar. I shall therefore be most happy to lend you my full assistance in that respect. At present I see that service and labour are the two objects eagerly sought after by you. But I need not say that they are insignificant agents in the promotion of the work of national prosperity. There are thousands of arts and manufactures which can be practically introduced into this State with only a small outlay of money and labour, and which are a hundredfold more profitable than the products of mere manual labour. Man is not made simply to provide for his own wants, but to make use of his natural gifts, and to contribute his quota to the general improvement. Idleness has been the root of all evils and the bane of national prosperity. I hope, therefore, that my subjects will shake off all idle habits and betake themselves to industrial and manufacturing pursuits. We have now in our territory some educated gentlemen imbued with the knowledge of Western arts and sciences from whom you may expect considerable assistance in this direction. We have, besides, a fertile soil, and possess many other natural advantages. By our thus meeting together at appointed times we shall be able to consider what arts and sciences and manufacturing industries we may conveniently be able to introduce into our territory. As a proof of my deep interest in this movement pecuniary assistance will be given for this purpose to those who require it through the Durbari firm." At the conclusion of the address some of the speakers drew the attention of the audience to the several works of public utility started by his Highness for the welfare of the people, and thanked him for the warm interest and liberality manifested by him on the present occasion.—Bombay Gazette.

THE RELIGIOUS FOUNDATIONS IN GOA.—The Goa Government having already suppressed all confraternities connected with the Christian churches for not having obtained Government sanction to the rules by which such associations are guided, have turned their attention to the funds of the Hindu pagodas and threaten to confiscate money and property belonging to them in favour of the public treasury unless rules for the management of the funds are submitted for Government approval within the prescribed time.—Bombay Gazette.

THE VOLUNTEERS.—General Hewett gives notice to the volunteers in a regimental order that the drill season of 1880-81 is about to be opened. By this time last year work had been begun; but, considering the present very trying weather, the general shows a consideration for the men which they will appreciate, in putting off calling parades till they can cool down a little. If called out, men would not like to stay away after their long rest; but they would not turn out willingly, the weather being so oppressive that it is really as much as one can do to pull through a day's work. When drills do begin, we trust that men will take to the work in earnest, and that at the end of the season the local corps will equal the proud position of the East India Volunteers, of whom not a single member is returned as non-efficient. The drills afford a capital means of exercise to many who don't ride, or play cricket, or lawn-tennis, and who, but for some such motive for out-door recreation, would simply mope at home, and fall into a languid, listless state, wholly unfavourable to the healthy condition of that most troublesome organ, the liver.—Bombay Gazette.

A GOOD MARCH.—Some of the natives in the Bombay Presidency are fine fellows for a march. The other day, when there was a probability of a disturbance at Godra, Mr. Spence, with about ninety men of the Bheel corps, marched into the place from Dhond, a distance of nearly fifty miles, in twenty-nine hours, a considerable portion of the road being covered during the heat of the day.—Ibid.

DEATH OF THE HON. MORARJEE GOCULDAS, C.I.E.—It is with extreme regret that we record the death of the Hon. Morarjee

Goculdas, C.I.E., which took place at his residence, the Chinese Baug, at Girgaum, on October 16. The deceased gentleman was the leading member of the Bhattia community, and has been for some time past one of the most prominent native gentlemen in the Presidency. His death, which occurred suddenly and unexpectedly, will cast a shade of sorrow over a large circle of friends, and brings to a premature close a busy and honourable career. On the 30th August, 1878, he was gazetted member of the Legislative Council, and in September he went to Puna and took his seat for the first time. He was also appointed vice-president of the East India Association. In 1879 the Famine Commission, of whom Mr. Caird was the president, arrived in Bombay and visited the mill at Parell; and in February, Mr. Morarjee gave his evidence in connection with the Famine Commission before the president, Mr. Justice Cunningham. In January of the same year he was appointed a fellow of the Bombay University; and on the 3rd April he entertained the Hon. Mr. Gibbs, who was returning to England. His Excellency Sir Richard Temple was present on that occasion, as well as some three hundred European and six hundred native gentlemen. In recognition of the valuable services rendered by him during the last famine he was invested with the Order of the Indian Empire, and was also a member of the Municipal Corporation, of the Millowners' Association, a Justice of the Peace, a member of the Military Relief Fund Committee, a director in several mill companies, and was only recently re-elected a member of the Legislative Council. The news of his death was received with general regret; the Morarjee Goculdas Spinning and Weaving Mill and the Mahaluxmee Spinning and Weaving Mill were closed on Saturday afternoon; and, in reply to a telegram despatched to Sir James Fergusson on the following morning, his Excellency said he had "heard with sincere regret the death of so valuable a citizen, for whom he had a great regard." His Excellency the Commander in Chief has, through Mr. Byramjee Jeejeebhoy, C.S.I., expressed to the widow of the late Hon. Morarjee Goculdas his sincere condolence and deep regret at the loss of that gentleman, who, General Warre adds, was "an honourable and truly honest councillor, one who was not afraid to express his opinions—opinions generally founded on his own high principles and his knowledge of the character of the natives he represented."—Times of India.

THE OODEYPORE TRIAL.—The protracted investigation by Mr. Birdwood into the charge of murder against the Raja of Oodeypore's son has finished. The case for the prosecution closed on the 4th of October, the concluding evidence being mainly directed to proving the fabrication of the dispensary records in order to support the snake-bite theory. Sadat's letters found in Rajkooverbai's box after death were put in. They are poetical effusions, which when translated are merely a farrago of nonsense. In one place the writer expresses a wish that he might be a wasp in order to be near his beloved. Mr. Nurbheram, the Government advocate, summed up the case for the prosecution on Saturday. Mr. Branson made an able and effective speech on behalf of the accused. He claimed that the accused might be congratulated on the result of the inquiry, as it would clear him in the eyes of the Government and of the world at large from all those idle rumours and audacious falsehoods spread not only by the thousand-tongued rumours of the bazaar, but by one of the Bombay papers. Alluding to the constitutional questions involved in the case, Mr. Branson made a strong protest against the Bombay Government endeavouring to interfere with the jurisdiction of independent chiefs, and to try their subjects upon charges based on English law, unless it was proved that some crime against humanity had been committed which the chiefs had refused to inquire into. Jetsing had never abandoned his right to try his son, although he had thrown no obstacles in the way of the present trial. Jetsing's loyal attitude towards the Government since the dark days of the Mutiny should have protected him from the indignities to which he had been exposed since his son had been at Godra, and should have prevented the ridiculous scare some of the newspapers made so much of. He contended that the movement of troops was calculated to prejudice the case against the accused, and strongly animadverted upon the witnesses being kept in police custody. Passing on to deal with the evidence, he expressed wonder at the accused's forbearance, remarking that it was marvellous that, Rajpoot as he was, if the sword story was true, he did not cut Rajkooverbai down immediately she made a shameless confession of her guilt. He maintained that the prosecution had not proved the cause of death, and suggested it might be due to suicide, or even grief and shame. Mr. Birdwood reserved his decision. There was a large crowd in court to hear the conclusion of the case.—Times of India.

MR. J. H. GRANT, C.S., has been reappointed by Government as Municipal Commissioner of Bombay.

CONVICTS AT LARGE.—The gang of twenty-nine convicts, whose desperate escape from the Damaun gaol about three weeks ago has been reported in these columns, are, according to our latest advices, still at large. They are under the leadership of a notorious individual, named Wamaghee, who has been clever enough so far to elude the strong body of police who are engaged in the pursuit. There is considerable alarm in the district in consequence of a report that the convicts are all armed and may do something desperate. The report, however, is probably an exaggeration, although it is believed in Damaun that a few of the men have firearms. They are reported to have committed robberies at Khululwaka in the talooka Sunjan on the 5th and at Apta, in the Damaun territory, on the 11th. They stole a quantity of food at each of these places, but when their supplies run short it is thought they will surrender. When last heard of they were, in the words of a native correspondent, "rambling about the frontier on the Tanna side."—Times of India.

PUBLIC INSTRUCTION IN THE BOMBAY PRESIDENCY.—The Government resolution on the Public Instruction Report for 1879-80 has been published. The expenditure was a lakh and twenty thousand rupees in excess of that of the previous year, the increased amount being required to pay for the recovery which had fallen off on the three years of famine and agricultural distress. It is most satisfactory (say Government) to observe that this increase has restored the number not merely to what they were before the distress commenced, but to what they would have been had there been during the three years in question little interruption in the steady rate of school expansion which had been established in the years preceding the distress. In the Civil Engineering College of the Deccan now called College of Science, the number of students in the University Department has fallen from 100 to seventy-seven, in direct consequence of the reductions which Government had to effect in the Public Works Department. The Governor in Council is glad to notice that while the increase in the number of Government schools pertains mainly to primary education, it includes, nevertheless, 38 middle class schools with 5,375 pupils. There is an increase of 2,095 in the students of English. Government are glad also to note an increase of 34 night schools with 918 pupils, as this denotes a desire for education on the part of the adult population. It is also satisfactory to note that the number of children of parents who are wholly agriculturists have increased from 615 to 1,495 in Anglo-verrucular schools, and from 44,358 to 52,373 in vernacular schools. The increase includes 11 girls' schools and 797 pupils. The number of Mahomedans in Government schools has risen from 24,545 to 29,748. The suggestions made by the director for the appointment of special deputy inspector for Mahomedah schools, and for the formation of Anglo-Hindustani classes, should be brought under the consideration of Government by a separate letter. It is hoped that the annual report of next year will contain a favourable mention of the school which is now being established in Bombay by the Anjumani-i-Islam with special assistance from Government. In conclusion, the Governor in Council expresses his satisfaction with the way in which the business of the department has been conducted by the director and by his able subordinates. His Excellency in Council takes this opportunity of expressing his great regret at the loss which the department has sustained by the retirement from the service of Dr. Bühler, whose zealous labours have done so much to lay the foundation of a sound popular education in Guzerat, while he has no less distinguished himself by his successful exertions in the collection of some thousands of manuscripts in Central India, Rajputana, the Punjab, Cashmir, &c., as well as in this Presidency; in the preparation of standard works on Hindu law and literature, and in adding to the stock of philological and archæological lore. By his influence as a teacher in Government colleges and examiner in the University of Bombay he has not only kept alive an interest in Sanskrit, but has extended the study of that language and raised the standard of Oriental scholarship throughout the west of India.—Ibid.

GRAVE CHARGE AGAINST PATHAN SEPOYS.—Our Kandahar correspondent writes as follows:—"A native of Kandahar, of Persian origin, alleged to me a few days ago, in conversation, that in the Maiwand disaster he overheard Pathan sepoys of Jacob's Rifles declare that they would not fight against their brothers the Pathans of Afghanistan. This man states that he accompanied General Burrows's force to Kushk-i-Nakhud, and that at the commencement of the fight at Maiwand he saw sepoys discharge their rifles in the air. I have failed to obtain any corroborating evidence, but the man says many in the town can substantiate his statements. The inquiries I have made relative to this man lead to the belief that his character for truthfulness is doubtful. He is, I hear, related to some men now in our employ here, and is of respectable rank. This statement may have found some foundation of truth or may prove utterly unfounded. His race are bitterly opposed to the Pathans. They are Shiah Mahomedans. The others are Sunnee. Pending communications from Col. St. John I withhold other particulars."—Times of India.

THE ATTACKS ON GENERAL PRIMROSE.—The greatest indignation is expressed at Kandahar with reference to the recent attacks made by a portion of the Indian Press upon General Primrose. It is considered that the fair limits of criticism have been exceeded, and that his motives and actions have been misrepresented and misconstrued, while if inquiries had been properly made they would have effectually rebutted the charges made. The incident of the stoppage of commissariat mules is an instance. General Primrose simply forbade the despatch of one or two mule loads unescorted, and temporarily delayed the party to keep the road clear for artillery, which was being sent out in compliance with General Roberts's urgent demand, as the danger of his reconnaissance party being forced into action was imminent, and a general action might have followed. As to the Bengal division being unable to obtain information regarding the nature of the country towards Mazra, the assistant quartermaster general and many others knew it thoroughly. Neither can General Burrows in the action of the 1st be held liable to censure, as by arrangement he was all day in direct heliographic communication with and under the command of General Roberts; therefore, he was unable to act independently. General Primrose has already been censured by the Commander in Chief. Whatever his faults as a general may be, all who know him esteem him as an upright and honourable man, who would himself be the last to throw the stone at fallen men. It is therefore felt that he is not deserving of such ungenerous, not to say unjust, attacks.—Ibid.

MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS.—The Indian Government steamship Tenasserim, towing the Indian Government ship Czarewitch, arrived in Bombay harbour on the Oct. 16, from Karachi, with 174 men, 116 followers, 182 horses, five ponies and eight bullocks; 3rd Hyderabad Contingent, and the following officers:—2nd Lieut. Fortescue, 2-60th Rifles; Lieut. Elverson, 2nd Queen's Regt.; Major Nicolson, Bombay Infantry; Major Cunningham, Staff; Capt. Willoughby, 3rd Cavalry; Lieut. Richardson, 23rd N.L.I.; and Surgeon Major Preston, A.M.D. The Indian Government steamship Dalhousie, 1,060 tons, Commander Walter Powell, arrived in harbour on Oct. 21, from Karachi, with the following officers and troops:—Major Beauchamp, 7th Foot, Capt. Stevens, 3rd Bombay Cavalry, Capt. Hope, 1st Madras Cavalry, Capt. Warner, 1st Madras Cavalry, Lieut. Forbes, 7th Foot, Lieut. Trevelyn, 98th Foot, Mr. Mackenzie, C.S., Mrs. and Miss Gardner, twenty-three European invalids, one assistant hospital apprentice, fifty-five commissariat followers, twenty-eight private followers, and one woman. Battery 8-11 R.A., at Colaba, left for Calcutta on Oct. 25, and will be relieved by 17-8 R.A. from Mhow. The 16-8 R.A. arrive in Bombay about the same time from Lucknow, and proceed with the 13-8 R.A. to Aden in the troopship Serapis, in relief of the 2-9 R.A. and 14-8 R.A., who proceed home. The 1-6th Foot at Aden will be relieved by the 62nd Foot. The Serapis is expected to leave Bombay on Nov. 13.—Times of India.

THE BRITISH FLAG.—There is at present a large Bombay native vessel lying here condemned by order of the British Court as a slaver. The question will probably be raised how this vessel obtained the register and right to use the British flag. The owner is an Arab, who, so far as is known, has never resided in India, but has carried on the slave trade in Madagascar for upwards of ten years. The issue of the British flag to foreigners is generally understood to be a high offence, and the Bombay Government will have to see to this, otherwise we may have the British flag dragged in the dirt, like that of France, for the benefit of a few slave traders.—Times of India.

THE MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONER.—The members of the Bombay corporation will be glad to learn that Mr. J. Hay Grant, C.S., their popular municipal commissioner, has been reappointed to his office from and after the 11th November, when the term of his present appointment expires. It is understood, however, that Mr. Grant still purposes to resign the municipal commissionership next February, when he goes home on two years' furlough.—Ibid.

SILVER WORK.—Messrs. Hamilton and Co., the jewellers of Bombay and Calcutta, have now on exhibition at their establishment in Bombay some beautiful specimens of silver work by their native workmen. The principal of these is a large and costly cup of beautiful design, presented by Lord Lytton as a prize to the Calcutta Rifle Volunteers. In addition they have a salver, surrayer, and two goblets made for presentation to Dr. Partridge, of Calcutta; and a silver tumbler, of exquisite design and elaborate workmanship. The design of the latter is taken from the rock carvings in the ruined tope of Bharut, and represents a Raja issuing from his palace gate and proceeding on a visit to the shrine of Saroodana (the father of Buddha). The work in every instance is remarkable for the beauty of its finish.—Times of India.

A CUSTOMS UNION.—We hear that Mr. Arthur Crawford, C.S., has been nominated by the Governor General in Council to negotiate a customs union with the Native States bordering on the Western Coasts of India. The principal Native States with which he is empowered to negotiate the union are Travancore, Cochin, Baroda, Hubsan, and Bhownugger.—Ibid.

THE NUNDYDROOG GOLD MINING COMPANY.—Another Indian mining venture has been launched this week, the prospectus of which will be found on another page. The capital is £100,000, in shares of £1 each, of which £33,000 is taken by the vendors, and the balance of £67,000 is now offered to the public at par. The object for which the company has been formed is to purchase and work certain mining rights, extending over an area of about half a mile in width and three-quarters of a mile in length, on the line of reefs of the Ooregum claim, which is situated in the Nundydroog division of the Mysor territory of Southern India. The amount to be paid for the property has been fixed by the vendors at £50,000, of which, as already stated, £33,000 is taken in the shares of the company, and £17,000 in cash. The gold bearing veins of the district have been extensively worked by the natives to the depth of 60 to 70 feet, and most favourable reports have been received from different mining engineers who have examined them. The climate is healthy, and native labour is cheap and plentiful.

THE FAMINE COMMISSION.

We elsewhere give what is necessarily a brief summary of the important and interesting lecture delivered at Edinburgh by the Director General of Indian Statistics, Dr. Hunter, who has been accused of being too optimist an upholder of the British rule in India. He has been charged with making more than the most of the advantages conferred less than the least of the injuries inflicted by the English Raj. Taking his two lectures together, no one will fairly allege this against him. This is an age of intensity: everything to some people must be either very bad or very good; evils that pass unregarded in England are viewed in India much as the struggling animaculæ are regarded in the magnified drop of water, which people drink unhesitatingly in the country and shudder at in a London lecture room. Dr. Hunter has fully admitted, nay, has insisted on what many thoughtful men who have had quite his experience or observation of Indian affairs have often suggested, that under the tutelary fostering of Anglo-Indian administrators the population of many regions of India has multiplied beyond the power even of that prolific soil to sustain them. We can for the present pass by the question of land tenures, wherein he dealt with Indian holdings, of which he knows much, and the Irish land question, of which he seems to us to know very little. As to the primary necessity, however, of feeding the population, or, as the Famine Commissioners would put it, preventing starvation, we find a narrow ground of statistics and facts common to him and to these gentlemen. We confess that on perusing the portentous Blue-book, which is entitled the second part of the Report of the Indian Famine Commission, we were extremely puzzled as to the be-all and end-all of the inquiries pursued by the commissioners. Mr. Hunter could in his lecture at Edinburgh embark upon any depths of history and land laws—nay, might even find a north east passage from Indian land tenures to Irish agrarian discontent. A lecturer has a right to disport himself as he pleases, and as far as the faith or imagination of his audience will permit him to range; but when we attend ourselves to listen to the measures of protection against and prevention of Indian famines recommended by the carefully-incubated wisdom of able Famine Commissioners, we feel puzzled to find chapters on Population, on Incidence of Taxation, and Trade. Our astonishment grows greater when we come upon Proposals for Administrative Changes. It is true that Mr. Caird, with the happy omniscience of an authority on agriculture, thought himself quite qualified to tell the civil servants of the Crown in India that they really knew nothing of the administrative business, and ought, in point of fact, to be obliterated without further delay. But this seemed an individual eccentricity, which was amply punished by the comments of the Government of India, the only regret being that able public officers had been obliged to waste their time in replications to the sage conclusions of a tourist in India, even though he was deputed to examine Indian soils and Indian agriculture. But when we find a Commission whose ostensible duty it was to discover the causes and point out the possible remedies against the ravages of famine in India devoting their time and the pages of their Report to the questions of "promotion, supersession, and compulsory retirement," we begin to think that under the mask of a Famine Commission was disguised the reality of an inquiry into Indian administration. We can pass by the chapters on the population, the trade, &c., of India. Mr. O'Connor gives annually a review of the latter, which the commission might just as well have quoted verbatim. The census of the next year will tell more about the population than this roving inquisition could have gathered, and the annual reports and resolutions furnish year by year with punctilious accuracy more and more accurate information on many heads comprised in the curious encyclopædic volume on the condition of India which is before us. We can only hope that its enormous mass of information will be made more useful to the students and members of Parliament, and others who may find in it a sort of Indian vade-mecum, by means of an index. But we must not be misunderstood as ignoring the practical remedies or means of prevention recommended by the Commission. Some, indeed, are not particularly new, viz., the recommendation of forest conservancy. The Commissioners might with advantage have reprinted Sir R. Temple's speeches on this subject. The pages which refer to the railways which are desirable as tending to open up and improve the respective localities may be strongly recommended for perusal to the Manchester capitalists who are doubtless desirous of putting into practice the excellent advice which Major Baring gave them anent the floating of Indian railway schemes by private capitalists without relying on the swimming bladders of a State guarantee. On the other hand, the remarks as to the extension of irrigation by direct State action are carefully reasoned out and deserve the utmost attention. The past experience will have taught our engineers to avoid the errors which have encumbered the benefits of irrigation works with injurious effects, and the survey of the possible advantages which the several provinces reviewed may derive from judiciously planned works of irrigation should bear practical fruit. The new Governor of Madras has been urged by his Scotch friends to interfere in the matter of education. We commend to his notice the following words:—"In short we consider that in the Madras Presidency the subject of irrigation requires a more comprehensive and systematic treatment than it has ever yet experienced. We have little doubt that it cannot be put on a satisfactory basis without increased expenditure and the abandonment of many time-honoured practices and traditions. But, without a policy of vigour as well as of judgment, irrigation in Madras will not be brought into a condition in which it will supply to the country all those extremely great advantages it can confer, or afford the full protection against famine which can be obtained from it, and which, in our judgment, the British Government is bound to secure for the people." Another especially valuable section of the Report relates to the improvements effected or attempted in agriculture; although it is admitted that failure has largely waited upon the efforts of the past, mainly arising from the want of first recognising the fact that in order to improve Indian agriculture it is necessary to be thoroughly acquainted with it and to learn what adaptation is needed to suit modern and more scientific methods and maxims to the Indian staples and climate. "In some cases," adds the Report, "men have been sent out to teach or practise agriculture who were not agriculturists, and too often, when they were beginning to learn the elements of the problem before them, the Government has thrown up the attempt as expensive and a failure." It is also admitted that, as is the common case with agriculturists, the Indian farmers do not like to be improved. What they want is to see results of improvement, not merely a display of a machine, but steady, slow work; and this will be best achieved by the proposed establishment of a thoroughly practical and sensible Agricultural Department, the officers of which should be men possessing special qualifications and training, who will not ride hobbies or indulge in useless experiments of acclimatisation. The scheme draughted in the Report is certainly inclusive enough, and it is to be hoped that it may assume a permanent and practical form.

OFFICIAL PAPERS.

PROMOTION IN THE P.W.D.

THE following is the resolution by the Government of India on the revised proportion of upper subordinates in each rank :—

RESOLUTION.—The proportion of upper subordinates in each grade was last fixed in 1865, and was intended to remedy what was then described to be an almost complete stoppage of promotion. The increase in the relative numbers in the higher grades no doubt accelerated promotion and improved the prospects of this class of officers. The Government of India has been led to consider the subject afresh in connection with the late reduction in the number of engineers, and has arrived at the conclusion that, owing to the larger areas now supervised by officers of the Engineer Branch, greater responsibility has been thrown on the subordinates, and that it is proper, both on this and on general grounds, to afford them some further improvement in their prospects of promotion. Under the present rules the number of sub engineers is $\frac{1}{2}$ and the number of supervisors 2-8ths of the whole establishment of upper subordinates. The Governor General in Council is now pleased to issue the following revised rules :—(1). The number of sub engineers will be 3-16ths of the whole number of upper subordinates, adding one for a fraction. (2). The number of supervisors will be 5-16ths of the whole number of subordinates, adding one for a fraction. (3). The remainder will be overseers. (4). The proportions in the several grades of those ranks will be determined by present rules. The revised rules may be brought into force on Oct. 1, 1880.

MR. HUNTER ON "WHAT THE ENGLISH HAVE YET TO DO FOR THE INDIAN PEOPLE."

ON Tuesday, Mr. W. W. Hunter, C.I.E., Director-General of Statistics to the Government of India, delivered an address in Edinburgh on the above subject. There was a large attendance, and a number of gentlemen of distinction in politics and literature accompanied the speaker to the platform. As the address is to appear immediately in the Nineteenth Century we have been asked to limit our report to a summary of the topics dealt with. Mr. Hunter said that last winter, amid the anxieties respecting Afghanistan and the general dependency regarding Indian famines and finance, he had stated "What the English have done for the Indian people." Those anxieties had now to some extent cleared away, and he thought the present opportunity a fitting one for explaining "What the English have yet to do for the Indian people." In this and his next address, on Friday, he would ask attention to two of the saddest problems with which a State can be called to deal—namely, the poverty of the people, and the alleged inability of the Government to pay its way. With these fundamental problems yet unsolved, it might seem a delusive optimism to speak of the success of the Indian administration. All our good work in India profits little if the people have not enough to eat, and if the country cannot support the cost of our rule. Judged by the old standards of a nation's wealth, by its power of accumulating the precious metals, or by the magnificent entertainments of native grandees, India was as rich as ever. But we now judge of the wealth of nations, not by the splendour of individuals, but by the general prosperity of the people. Judged by these standards, India is, and has always been, a poor country. The struggle for life in many parts of India is growing harder under our rule; for in many parts the population has outstripped the food-producing powers of the land. Each square mile of land in Bengal has to feed three times as many mouths in 1880 as each square mile had to feed in 1780; and each square mile of British India (excluding the outlying provinces of Assam on the frontier and Burma beyond the sea) has to support nearly three times as many persons as each square mile in the Native States. The cruel density of this population was shown by comparison with England, Ireland, and France. Throughout vast tracts, each acre has to support a human being; in smaller areas two people are trying to live off each cultivated acre. According to the Famine Commissioners, two-thirds of the whole tenants of Bengal are struggling to feed their families on holdings of under three acres. The land is being exhausted in the struggle; the jungles have been cut down and reclaimed, and the cowdung has to be used for fuel instead of as manure; the cattle are degenerating for want of the old pasture grounds, which are now ploughed up; and the peasant is face to face with a permanent insufficiency of food. We have put a stop to the old checks on the population, to invasion from without, to the internecine wars within, to the annual devastations of the predatory Indian races. The old epidemics which decimated a province we combat by an army of doctors, by sanitation and quinine. The sword and pestilence are no longer allowed to perform their old work in the rural economy of India. Under the protection thus secured to person and property by British rule, the population has so increased as to threaten the bankruptcy of the soil. Every Hindu marries at the close of boyhood, as a religious duty, and irrespective of the means of subsistence. We see the result of a people living by petite culture and neglecting the first condition of that system—namely, such prudence in marriage as shall not permit the population to outstrip the productive powers of the land. Mr. Hunter then drew a striking picture of the present situation in rural India. He showed that the deterioration applies only to the over populated provinces, and that large sections of the population are rapidly advancing in wealth and comfort. But the contented classes keep silence; the suffering classes very properly cry out. The cultivator gets a decreasing return from the exhausted land; and of that smaller return he has to pay away a larger share in the shape of rent to his landlord. The Government can do little to avert these two penalties of a population living in defiance of economical laws, but its efforts are directed to mitigate both of them. It is trying to increase the effective food supply by irrigation, agricultural schools, facilities for distribution, and other administrative measures, which Mr. Hunter detailed at some length. It is trying to secure to the tenant a fair share of that food supply by legislative restrictions on the enhancement of rent. The rise of rent is the natural result of the increased population having to fall back on inferior soils; the subjection of the small cultivators to the money-lenders is also a result of the same process. In Southern India the cry of the tiller of the soil is for protection against the village usurers; in Bengal, it is for protection against the landlord. Mr. Hunter described very fully the recent law to relieve the peasantry of Southern India from the grasp of the money-lenders and the long series of legislative measures to restrain the enhancement of rent in Bengal. He explained the proposals, just arrived in England from the Bengal Rent Commission, for recognising a firm and practically universal tenant right, and for securing "compensation for disturbance" of a far more stringent character than ever before contemplated. He concluded by a comparison between the rural situation in Bengal and in Ireland. He believed that in both countries the tiller of the soil will win the day; for in both the state of things of which they complain is repugnant to the awakened conscience of the British nation. The problem is how to do right to the peasant with the least cost to the State, and with the least infringement of vested proprietary rights.

THE ATCHIN WAR.—During the last seven or eight years the occupation of Atchin has cost the Dutch close upon a hundred million florins, irrespective of expenses incidental to the war. The cost in 1873 was 5,807,000; in 1874, 8,153,000; in 1875, 10,367,000; in 1876, 15,784,000; in 1877, 16,940,000; in 1878, 14,240,000; and in 1879, 13,245,000 florins. The Indian war budget for 1880 has been fixed at 7,082,000 florins. Meanwhile the paper warfare between the two commanders of the expedition, Generals van Swieten and Verspijck, continues in a not very friendly tone, and the Liberal members of the Second Chamber have agreed to interpellate the Colonial Minister on the subject of a new Governor for India.

OBITUARY.—We have to record the death, on Sunday last, at Percy House, Twickenham-park, of Lieut. General Charles James Dalton, colonel commandant of the Royal Artillery. He entered the army as second lieutenant in the Royal Artillery in 1829, and became first lieutenant in 1831. His subsequent promotions were—captain in 1841, brevet major and lieutenant colonel in 1854, brevet colonel in 1857, colonel in 1859, and colonel commandant in 1877. He attained field rank in 1868, and was promoted to lieutenant general in 1877.

(2.) That the plans for the building be approved by the Hebdomadal Council. (3.) That the Institute be managed by a board appointed by the University. THE INSTITUTION OF CIVIL ENGINEERS.—At the meeting on Tuesday, November 16, there will be renewed discussion on machinery for steel making, and, time permitting, "New Zealand Railways," by Mr. J. P. Maxwell, and "Ceylon Railways," by Mr. J. R. Mosse.

DEVALA-MOYAR GOLD MINING COMPANY.—An extraordinary general meeting was held on Friday, Nov. 5, at the City Terminus Hotel—Sir David Salomons presiding—to consider a provisional agreement for the sale of fifty acres of land, a portion of one of the freehold estates of the company, known as the Strathearn estate, with all mining rights. The agreement was conditional on the formation of the purchasing company, with a subscribed capital of £190,000, out of which the purchase money of £130,000 would be paid—£80,000 in cash and £50,000 in shares. The chairman stated that the quartz which had been assayed by Messrs. Johnson, Matthey, and Co., and Messrs. Johnson and Sons, of Finsbury, had produced an average yield of gold of 1 oz. 1 dwt. and a few grains, but Messrs. Johnson, Matthey, and Co. stated in a letter that the quartz had been taken indiscriminately, without any appearance of having been selected. They also testified that the rock was favourable for treatment. The solicitor having read the agreement for the proposed sale, Colonel Llewellyn moved the approval of the agreement and Mr. Staples seconded the motion. Mr. Andrewes thought it would be unwise to press the resolution at present. He held that the agreement should be open to the inspection of the shareholders, or that an epitome should be forwarded to them. He was also of opinion that the property proposed to be sold should be worked for the benefit of the company. The chairman said it was only a draft agreement. In reply to questions he stated that they paid £132,000 for their entire property of 2,055 acres, and the fifty acres they proposed selling cost them £3,500. It was proposed to place to capital account £30,000 of the £130,000 to be received. Mr. Brough Smyth would certify that the remaining property was worth £132,000. In disposing of the Rhodes Reef they did not sell the pick of their property, for they had five reefs, all of which were probably as good, but the Rhodes reef was the most developed for a company to take over. Only half the property had been prospected, but Mr. Brough Smyth would in a few days return to India by way of Australia with miners, and would prospect the remainder. The quartz assayed was from the reefs generally. The Devala-Moyar Company was started as a parent company to establish other companies or sell portions of their property to others. They could not possibly work the whole of the area at their disposal. In favour of the amendment only one hand was held up, and the resolution was then unanimously carried. Other resolutions were subsequently passed, authorising a return of 5s. per share as a bonus on the receipt of the £80,000 cash from the purchasing company allotting one share of the purchasing company for every four shares held in this company, &c. Mr. Brough Smyth, who was called upon to address the meeting, said it was impossible to say which of their reefs was the most valuable. He reiterated his confidence in the future of the company.

SOUTH INDIAN GOLD MINING COMPANY.—The shares of this venture have been actively dealt in on the Stock Exchange on the publication of a telegram from the manager stating that he has now driven the tunnel "into the reef six feet," and that "free gold is seen" in the quartz. It is believed that the tunnel referred to is about 300 feet below the outcrop. This, writes the secretary, is "the first time that the auriferous reefs on the estate of the South Indian Gold Mining Company have been intersected and proved so far below the surface, and the important question as to whether these reefs would carry gold in depth has thus been satisfactorily decided. The work which now has to be done is to lay open the mines in the ordinary way, so as to ensure an ample supply of gold-bearing quartz for the reduction works. This must be to some extent a work of time." The machinery is on board the Vespasian, bound for Calicut, about seventy miles from the mines. There are skilled superintendents and plenty of labour on the spot, and arrangements have been made to continue the work by gangs of coolies day and night. Letters, with detailed information as to the width of the reef to which the important telegram refers, and depth of the "backs" intersected, may be expected about the end of the month.

INDIAN GLENROCK GOLD MINING COMPANY.—The directors publish the following extract from Mr. R. C. Syson's letter, dated Glenrock Estates, Devala, Oct. 11, 1880:—"I beg to report that the No. 3 tunnel is now in soft, and that from to-day it will be kept going night and day. No. 1 tunnel is still driving in hard rock, and the progress there is consequently slow, as blasting has frequently to be done. This week I propose starting a prospecting tunnel near the pulping house for the purpose of proving Nos. 1 and 2 reefs at a much lower level, and where facilities for working the reefs, should the tunnel prove successful, are very considerable."

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

This company is formed for the purpose of purchasing and working mining rights situate in the vicinity of the village of Ooregum, in the Nundydroog division of the Mysore territory, Southern India.

The mining grant to be acquired is about half a mile in width and three-quarters of a mile in length on the line of the reefs, and is a portion (Block No. 1) of the Ooregum Claim.

The property is situated about forty miles east of the well-known military station of Bangalore, and ten miles from the Colar-road Station on the Madras and Bangalore Railway.

The Report recently published by the Mysore Gold Mining Company, made by Captain John Rogers, the Agent appointed by Messrs. John Taylor and Sons to manage the mining operations in that Company's property, is as follows:—

"There are five well-defined lodes running north and south through the entire sett."

"The lode that most pleased me is the Champion Lode, which has been more worked on than any other, judging from the large excavations made by former workers. The character of the quartz is different from any of the other lodes, being more masterly and compact."

"The ground appears to be very favourable for sinking in, and I hope in the course of two or three weeks to be able to report the reaching of the lode and producing gold."

"I am greatly pleased with the appearance of the lodes, and think them to be true fissure veins. Taking the geological formation as a guide, the amount of work done by former workers, and the finding of gold in the quartz at surface thrown away by the natives, we shall open out a good and lasting mine."

"The climate I think to be very favourable for Europeans; all the men and myself are in perfectly good health."

The Block No. 1 is situated at the northern end of the Ooregum Claim, and the continuance of the reefs or lodes in this direction has been clearly proved by the mining works already executed in the adjoining No. 2 Block.

The amount to be paid for the property is £50,000, the whole of which would have been accepted by the vendors in fully paid-up shares but for the rule of the Stock Exchange not allowing more than one-third of the capital to be taken by the vendors in shares; £33,000 is consequently payable in shares and £17,000 in cash, leaving ample capital for developing the Mines.

The vendors themselves are the promoters of the Company, and have fixed the price to be paid for the property.

The following agreements have been entered into:—

26th July, 1880.—Between John Hunter Blair, on behalf of the persons interested of the one part, and Arthur Lionel Preston of the other part.

3rd November, 1880.—Between Arthur Lionel Preston of the one part, and William Gunter Williams, as trustee for and on behalf of the Company, of the other part.

3rd November, 1880.—Between the firm of John Taylor and Sons of the one part, and the said William Gunter Williams, on behalf of the Company, of the other part.

These agreements, also a copy of the lease from the Mysore Government, together with the Memorandum and Articles of Association, may be seen at the Offices of the Solicitors.

Prospectuses, with Forms of Application for Shares, may be obtained at the Offices of the Company, No. 6, Queen-street-place, London, E.C., or of the Bankers or Solicitors.

LAMPLOUGH'S EFFERVESCENT PYRETIC SALINE.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators, also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates.

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,

Says page 13:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physic—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cocker's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact, the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines, when I administered to him five

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Oct. 30; Madras and Allahabad, Oct. 28; Calcutta, Oct. 27.

THE reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending Oct. 19 state that favourable rain has fallen in some Madras districts, and the north-east monsoon is reported to have broken in the Kistna District; more rain is still required in parts; but prospects, on the whole, remain fair. In Bombay there was little or no rain; and it is still wanted in Surat and parts of the Deccan. Good rain fell in most parts of Bengal, with much benefit to the standing crops, but more is still required in portions of Behar; rabi sowings are progressing satisfactorily. In the North West Provinces and Oudh rain is reported only from Benares and Fyzabad, and some is also believed to have fallen in Partabgarh; rain is urgently needed in most of the central districts. Failing a further fall, the kharif outturn will be poor, and much of the rabi area must be left unsown; some distress has begun to be felt among the poorer classes in Cawnpore, Lucknow, and Rae Bareilly; and in Allahabad, Jhansi, Sitapur, and Partabgarh prices are rising. In the Punjab there was slight rain in Sialkot but none elsewhere; the yield of the autumn harvest will, it is expected, be below the average. In the Central Provinces there was generally slight rain; but in Nagpur, Bhandara, and Bilaspur, where the fall was apparently better, the reaping of the kharif harvest has begun, and preparations for the spring crops are in progress. There was moderate rain in Burma during the week; more is required in parts of Pegu and in Akyab; agricultural prospects are generally favourable. In Assam prospects remain good. In Mysor and Coorg the crops have been further benefited by the week's rainfall. In Berar and Hyderabad there were slight showers. No rain fell in the Central India States, and it is badly wanted in places. In Rajputana also the weather was clear. Prospects throughout the Empire continue on the whole fair, except in some districts of the North West Provinces and Oudh, where the insufficiency of rain has shortened the yield of the kharif crops and is likely to materially lessen the area usually put under spring crops.

THE health reports for the same week are as follow:—Bombay, Karachi, and Hyderabad (Sind): fever in some talukas. Ahmedabad: fever continues. Bengal: fever very prevalent in Purneah, also reported from several other places; cholera disappearing in Cuttack. North West Provinces and Oudh: with the exception of some cholera in Bareilly (sixty deaths), and fever in Moradabad, the health of the people is generally good. Punjab: no remarks. Central Provinces: fever and small-pox prevalent in some districts. British Burma: cholera continues in Prome; general health otherwise good. Assam, Mysor, and Coorg: health good, also in Central India States. Rajputana: generally good, but fever still prevalent in Meywar.

THE Standard correspondent at Kandahar telegraphed on Sunday as follows:—

"We hear from Herat that Ayub Khan is still apparently bent upon action, and that he had ordered a great tribal levy to take place at Farrah. Although Ayub's popularity among the Pathans of Western Afghanistan is undoubted his hold on the Heratees appears precarious; indeed, his position there seems to be maintained solely by the influence of his father in law, who possesses great influence with the inhabitants. I learn that some time since a letter was sent from Herat to the authorities here, signed by the leading sirdars of that city, who offered to seize Ayub and hold him as prisoner if we would advance with a small British force to occupy the city. This document was forwarded to the Government, but I am not aware whether any reply has been received or sent forward. From Ghazni we hear the important intelligence that the great Ghilzai tribe has definitely pronounced against Abdul Rahman and in favour of the Yakub faction. This, in the opinion of native judges, will render his position at Cabul altogether untenable. To-day being the feast of Bukkreed, extra precautions have been taken, by doubling sentries and ordering the men not to go out alone, to guard against the attacks of fanatics, who are always especially dangerous on these occasions. Colonel St. John reports that the Kakar tribesmen are again assembling, and that attacks upon convoys and isolated parties may be expected. In the neighbourhood of Kuch the natives have already become troublesome."

SOME small raids by Afridis have lately been reported, in one of which 140 Government camels were carried off, while in another the marauders succeeded in destroying a fort which was being constructed near the frontier.

MR. A. LYALL, Foreign Secretary, has returned from Kandahar and joined the Viceroy at Lahore.

It is reported that Mr. J. B. Lyall, Financial Commissioner of the Punjab, will succeed Mr. Melville as Resident at Baroda next March. The post of Resident at Hyderabad will also fall vacant shortly, owing to the retirement of Sir Richard Meade. It seems likely that it will be offered to Colonel Bradford, now the Governor General's agent for Rajputana, and that he will be succeeded by Colonel J. Watson.

THE Afghan War Patriotic Fund is rapidly increasing, committees being formed in the principal cities of India with the view of collecting subscriptions. The Calcutta committee, under the presidency of Chief Justice Garth, has commenced work.

LIEUT. GENERAL SIR FREDERICK ROBERTS arrived yesterday at Dover, and was loudly cheered as soon as he was distinguished on deck. General Roberts was accompanied by the following officers, who had travelled with him from India:—General Hill, General Macpherson, General Baker, General Gough, Colonel Chapman, Major Woodthorpe, Major Prettyman, Major Kennedy, Captain Holditch, R.E., and Lieut. Childers. After receiving a most enthusiastic welcome from the Mayor and Corporation, and a large assemblage gathered in the Maison Dieu Hall, where an address was duly read and replied to by the general, the party proceeded to Victoria. A more informal but not less hearty welcome awaited the brave and successful general, not only from the many distinguished friends assembled to meet him, but from a large and enthusiastic crowd. This was the conclusion of a journey which commenced with a little triumphal progress on the Indus Valley, and was attended with great demonstrations of respect and honour at Allahabad. At Bombay there was no formal or public reception, but enthusiastic greetings of the public attended the general's departure from India as they have welcomed him to his own country.

THE Pioneer says that the appointment of General Sir Alexander Taylor, K.C.B., to be President of the Royal Indian Engineering College at Cooper's Hill, is one upon which the India-office may justly be congratulated. When Sir Alexander Taylor not long ago retired from the service it was commonly felt by his brother officers and those who had served with him in the mutiny that neither his services nor his abilities had been sufficiently recognised, and General Taylor's contemporaries will probably be agreed in thinking that he should long ago have held some one or other of the highest military posts in the country. It is something to find, however, that, in a different capacity, his claims to employment even at this late hour have not been disregarded. On other grounds, too, the appointment commends itself. The Engineering College has recently reached a stage when its success may depend in some measure at least upon the support of the outside public—and therefore, if it is not to go to the other Indian colleges, any reputation which it may have attained, both professionally and otherwise, as a desirable place of education needs to be maintained; and no better means could have been taken for ensuring this than the selection of so distinguished and able an officer as Sir Alexander Taylor to be its president.

LIEUT. J. C. BAMPFIELD, of the Royal Artillery, who had been transferred to the Horse Artillery of the Hyderabad contingent, shot himself at Bolaram on Oct. 3. Excessive anxiety about the result of an examination is supposed to have induced the temporary insanity under which he was labouring at the time. The deceased officer was only twenty-three years of age.

LIEUT. H. M. TEMPLE, son of Sir Richard Temple, has been appointed assistant to the Resident and assistant to the General Superintendent of Operations for the Suppression of Thuggee and Dacoity in Hyderabad, vice Lieut. Meade.

THE question of amending the patent law of India is under consideration.

It is stated that a Quaker mission, the first of this sect in India, has been started at Hoshungabad.

At the meeting of the Legislative Council, held at Simla on Oct. 22, the re-presentation of the report on the Census Bill was postponed. The report on Taj Mahal's Pension Bill was presented by Mr. Colvin.

THE Press Commissioner has informed the Indian journals that information has been received from Persia that the Persian Government, owing to the fact that the harvest and crops are not generally sufficient to supply the internal requirements of the country, has considered it advisable to continue the prohibition imposed in January last on the export of grain and provisions from all parts of the kingdom. This interdict extends alike to all the provinces, and applies to all grain, whether purchased and stored for the purpose of exportation previous to the issue of the notice or not.

THE Supreme Government have declined for the present to reduce the cost of inland telegraph messages. The proposed reform is strongly supported by H.E. Sir James Fergusson as well as by the Chambers of Commerce at Calcutta and Bombay. A rupee is charged for every six words, and, looking at the expense of establishing and maintaining telegraphs in India, Government say they are not prepared to adopt any revision of the tariff the effect of which would be to burden the general revenues in order that the senders of telegrams might be enabled to transmit them at a lower rate than the cost price. When, however, there is a surplus revenue, Government promise to reconsider any proposals for reduction that may be put forward.

THE Karachi Harbour and Pilotage Board have resolved to propose that the ship pier, for Keamari, which was initiated some years ago by the late Sir W. L. Merewether, K.C.S.I., shall be called the Merewether Pier, as a small tribute to the memory of one who did so much for the harbour during his period of office of nearly ten years as Commissioner of Sind.

AN influential committee of noblemen and gentlemen has been formed in Dublin, under the presidency of Sir George Young, and met yesterday to make arrangements for entertaining General Sir F. Roberts in that city on his return from Afghanistan. A deputation was appointed to wait upon the general with an invitation to a banquet as soon as he arrives in England.

THE prospectus of the Kumaon and Bareilly Railway, which was withdrawn temporarily on account of the mishap at Naini Tal, has been reissued, and a considerable proportion of the proposed capital has been already subscribed.

THE earnings of the State railways for the first half of the present year were 114 lakhs, against 76 lakhs in the corresponding period of 1879. The guaranteed railways, on the other hand, show a slight falling off, their earnings for the same half-year being 57 lakhs, or a little less than they earned during the same time in the previous year.

THE net Indian sea and land customs revenue for the first six months of the financial year has amounted to Rs.1,07,92,000 against Rs.97,59,000 in the corresponding period last year.

CONSEQUENT on the absence of Sir Frederic Goldsmid in Egypt, Mr. Arthur N. Wollaston has been selected to conduct the ensuing examination in Persian at the Royal Staff College, Sandhurst.

DURING the week ending Oct. 15 there were 192 deaths in Calcutta, giving a death-rate of 23.6 per 1,000 per annum. In Madras the same week there were 264 deaths, giving a death-rate of 34.5 per 1,000 per annum. In Bombay, during the week ending the 19th October, the deaths numbered 408, the death-rate being 30.26 per 1,000 per annum.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—Mr. J. C. Bampfield, R.A.; Mrs. Obbard, wife of Lieut. Col. Obbard; Mr. F. F. Shattock, assistant traffic superintendent, E.I. Railway; Mrs. C. D. Allnutt, late Assam Emigration Service; Mr. J. W. Wilkinson, Medical Department.

A LETTER from a correspondent at Bushire, which is published by the Pioneer, strongly urges that the Government should retain Kandahar, and take every means for securing the friendship of Persia. With this end in view the suggestion that the portion of Seistan awarded to Afghanistan by Sir F. G. Goldsmid's arbitration should now be given back to Persia seems to the Pi. a good one; whatever may be thought as regards the further proposal for the transference of Herat also. The latter measure might entail the necessity of helping Persia to obtain possession of the place, even to the extent of sending a co-operating force, which would never be contemplated in the present temper of the Ministry, however desirable the arrangement might seem. But the recession of the disputed territory in Seistan would cost us nothing, while it would be a very gratifying gift to Persia; and the most scrupulous would hardly now deny our moral right to dispose of Southern Afghanistan as seems best for our future peace.

THE REPORTED MURDER OF THE AMEER.

THE story of the Ameer's murder appears to have arisen from his having made too prolonged a stay in the house of a lady to whom he is betrothed. All business was at a standstill, no one knowing what had become of him. Rumours of his death then began to spread, and acquired such strength that he was obliged to ride in state through the streets of the city to dispel them. He is said to have grievously offended his tribe by marrying or permitting the marriage of two of the late Ameer Shere Ali's widows to Muhama Jan, a Wardak, and another to Kohistani General. Even though the ladies were not Duranis, their remarriage to men of inferior race is certainly a bitter insult to the whole of that haughty people especially, of course, the Muhamidzais. This step may or may not have been a wise one, but no doubt it was deliberately resolved on to show that the Ameer looks for support to the tribes generally, and not to the Duranis, whose predominance very likely is as much disliked at Cabul as that of the Wardak, Ghilzai, and Kabilash in Kandahar and Herat. It is further stated that the Ameer is levying the revenue successfully as far south of Ghazni, beyond which the Ghilzais refuse to pay, and, on the whole, I gather he is prospering fairly well.—Times Telegram.

THE GARRISON OF KANDAHAR.

THE gradual transmutation of the garrison from a purely Bombay force to one almost entirely of Bengal constituents is commencing, the 3rd Bengal Native Infantry having arrived, to be followed at an early date by several other regiments. The 3rd Sind Horse has gone, and the 3rd Bombay Cavalry, the last of the Maiwand regiments, are under orders to leave. Much sympathy is felt with this regiment, which is known to be a well disciplined and gallant corps, worthy of its ancient fame. Fortune has been against it, and I am sure there is not an officer or man belonging to it who does not long to have an early opportunity of showing that they had not a fair chance at Maiwand. The 15th Foot has gone to Quetta, very weak and sickly, and the 11th Regiment, which has just been withdrawn from the outlying camp at Dahalah, is nearly as bad; but the 7th Fusiliers, though not very strong in numbers, are in first-rate health. The 63rd are strong every way, and we hear good reports of the 78th, now on their way to replace the 15th.—Times Telegram.

THE VICEROY AT LAHORE.

THE Viceroy has now returned from his sporting trip, the result of which may be deemed fairly successful, two tigers having fallen by his rifle. The first stage after leaving Dehra Dhoon was to Saharunpore, where he arrived on Monday. On the following day he proceeded to Umritsur. One day was spent there and devoted to visiting the Golden Temple and other places of interest. In the evening the town was illuminated. On Wednesday Lord Ripon arrived at Lahore, and was received at the station by the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab and the Maharaja of Cashmere, and the chiefs of Jhind, Nabha, Kapurtalla, Mandi, Malu, Kotla, Faridkot, Chumba, Suhel, and Dujana. The town was entered in procession, in which all the chiefs took part. Thursday was devoted to receiving the chiefs in a private durbar, and Friday to the Viceroy's return visits and the races. On Saturday a review was held of the troops now encamped at Lahore, including the 92nd Highlanders and several other regiments that had returned from Afghanistan. After the review Lord Ripon addressed General Haines and the troops in a long speech. He commenced by expressing his pleasure at meeting the worthy representatives of the British army, European and native, and then went on to allude to the events of the Afghan war.

We might, he said, be proud of what history would have to tell of the deeds of the British army during that war, whether in the earlier and shorter campaign, or in that which had followed the treacherous murder of Sir Louis Cavagnari. The soldiers of England had done their work nobly at Cabul and again when, under his gallant friend General Stewart they had defeated tremendous odds at Ahmed Khel. After that battle peace and a speedy return home had seemed probable, but another circumstance had occurred which called for great exertion. He need not remind them of the history of the great march from Cabul to Kandahar. He had written to General Roberts before that general left Cabul and told him he had no doubt the march would be famous in history. His prophecy had been amply fulfilled. The great march had been nobly accomplished. Its speed and skill had attracted the admiration, not only of Englishmen, but also of continental military critics, and it had wound up by a battle which he hoped might have a lasting effect. Nor could he forget the services rendered by the officers and regiments set to guard the line of communications. Gratitude was not less due to those who had performed that difficult duty with unwearied patience than to those who had been engaged in the front. He also desired to say how proud he felt to have heard from all hands of the discipline, moderation, and justice displayed by the troops towards the people of the country. Their conduct in this respect had done as much for the fame, reputation, and honour of England in a political point of view as their victories had in a military. A finer force had never been collected in India, and he ventured to think that General Haines would not fear to lead it against any army in the world. In conclusion, it was a pleasing duty to inform the troops that he had on the previous evening received a telegram from the Secretary of State intimating that her Majesty had been pleased to grant, in addition to the Afghan medal, six clasps for Ali Masjid, Peiwar Kotal, Charasiab, Cabul, Ahmed Khel, and Kandahar, and also the special decoration of a bronze star for those who had taken part in General Roberts's march to Kandahar. He was confident the troops would consider this as another proof of the Queen's regard for her army and as an incentive to deeds such as they had performed so well, and for which, in her Majesty's name, he thanked them from the bottom of his heart.

The Viceroy on Monday held a Chapter of the Order of the Bath. General Stewart was invested with the Grand Cross. A grand durbar followed, which was attended by the Punjab chiefs and a large and brilliant gathering. The ceremony, which lasted four hours, was carried out with the greatest pomp and splendour. The proceedings opened by the presentation of chiefs and sirdars, who offered nuzzars. Killuts were then presented by the Viceroy to the chiefs, and awards of honour to the officers of the Native Contingent who assisted in the Afghan war. The Viceroy then made a long speech, expressing his satisfaction at the signs of progress and prosperity in the Punjab. He also expressed his pleasure at the friendly and cordial reception which had been accorded to him. He referred at length to the questions of land tenure, agriculture, railways and education, and also to the steady growth of the reciprocal relations between the Government and the chiefs, making special mention of their readiness to assist in the late war, which he recognised in various ways, saying that the Government was fully prepared to mark by substantial public tokens its approval of these and other services. Lord Ripon next pointed out that there had been no such durbars as the present since that held by Lord Lawrence in 1864, and it would be his constant endeavour to walk in his footsteps and apply his principles. He could not give a better assurance than this declaration of his earnest desire to promote their prosperity and welfare.

MINING LEASES IN THE WYNAAD AND NEILGHERRIES.

THE Government have issued the following notification regarding the terms on which lands for mining purposes will be granted:—"It is hereby notified for general information, in accordance with the decision of the Secretary of State in his despatch, dated March 25, 1880, No. 35, published in the Fort St. George Gazette, dated June 15, 1880, that the right of the State to metals and minerals is fully reserved in all waste lands the property of Government. The State asserts no claim to minerals in estates held on Sanad of permanent settlement or in land held on title-deeds hitherto issued under the Waste Land Rules, in which no reservation of the State right in minerals is made, and the Jenm title in Malabar will be held to include the right to minerals. In future sales and leases of waste lands for agricultural purposes the full right of the State in mines and minerals and the right of access and other reasonable conveniences for working them on behalf of Government or the assignees of Government will be expressly retained. Persons desirous of obtaining permission to mine for gold on Government waste land in the Wynad or of the Neilgherry Hills should apply for mining lease to the collector of Malabar or the commissioner of the Neilgherry as the case may be, specifying distinctly the situation of the land within which it is proposed to mine, and its boundaries as accurately as can be stated, together with its estimated area. Every application should be accompanied by a rough sketch of the tract applied for, or the approximate position of the lot required be marked on the survey plan. No such lot shall exceed thirty acres in extent, nor will more than thirty acres in all in one or more blocks be given to one and the same applicant; the breadth of each lot shall not be less than seventy yards. Applications will be dealt with in order of receipt by the collector or commissioner. On an application being accepted by the collector or commissioner the lot or lots will be durably demarcated and surveyed at the cost of the applicant, to whom a lease in the prescribed form will be granted on the following conditions:— That the lease shall be for a term not exceeding twenty years; that an annual rental of Rs. 5 per acre or portion of an acre shall be payable in advance by two half-yearly instalments, by the 1st January and 1st July in each year, the first payment to be made on the date of the execution of the lease for the then current half-year, and thereafter on or before the first day of the next half calendar year; that within three months from the date of the execution of the lease not less than five labourers, per acre, shall be regularly employed during the ordinary hours of labour on bona fide mining operations on each block in such manner as the Government may approve. Returns of the number of labourers employed per diem shall be sent in to the collector or commissioner at the expiration of each month; that the lease shall not be sublet or assigned without the consent of Government being previously obtained; that the lease shall be liable to forfeiture on failure to observe either of the conditions specified in Clauses 2 and 3, or for any breach of clause 4, the Governor in Council being the final arbiter as to whether the conditions of the lease have been duly observed or not; that the lease shall be renewable at the lessee's option on such terms as the Governor in Council for the time being may settle at the expiration of the original lease. That during the term of the original lease there shall be no liability to any royalty or other tax in addition to the rent specified in Clause 2, except in accordance with the provisions of the Local Fund Act, No. 4 of 1871 (Madras), and with the further exception of any taxation which may hereafter be found necessary to provide, at the expense of the lessees, the cost of such special police, communications, water supply, sanitation, or other administrative arrangements as may, in the opinion of Government, be dictated in the interests of the local community immediately or directly affected by the results of the lessee's operations. Without the written permission of the collector or commissioner previously obtained the land applied for must not be entered upon nor operations commenced. Waste land required for purposes connected with mining operations, but not for actual mining, will be granted on cowle or lease at the same rate per acre and under the same conditions as land granted for mining—Clause 3, as regards the employment of labourers, excepted. No lessee or grantee of any block leased or granted under these rules for mining or other purposes shall divert any watercourse beyond the limits of the block leased or granted to him, and all water running waste on such blocks shall be returned to its natural channel within the limits of the same block. Failure to observe this condition will entail forfeiture of cowle or lease."

OOREGUM GOLD MINING COMPANY.—The following letter from Col. de la Puer Beresford, Madras, dated Oct. 19, has been received:—"We commence crushing in about fifteen days. About 1,200 to 1,500 tons of stone are on the bank, which will give an average of over 10z. of gold per ton. The stone is taken first from open working; secondly, from an underlay shaft 74ft. deep, reef 5ft. thick; thirdly, from a drive from the south of No. 3 shaft towards the underlay, 72ft. long and within 20ft. of the underlay; reef 7ft. thick, and rich. The find is further north, 50ft. from the underlay. The reef cut in No. 4 shaft last week, reef 3ft. thick, and very rich; gold visible in the stone, and lots of good rough gold in the 'mullock,' or mud casings."

INDIAN APPEAL CASES.—In the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council yesterday the case of the Zemindar of Pittapur v. the proprietors of Kolanki was heard. This was an appeal from the High Court of Madras, which affirmed a decree of the District Court. The point was as to the testamentary powers of a Hindu widow. Mr. J. D. Mayne was for the appellants; Mr. Leith, Q.C. (Mr. Doyné with him), for the respondents. The question was whether the widow, without the aid of the estate left by her husband, had the power by will to dispose of her property to the sons of her second son to the exclusion of the sons of her first son. Sir J. Colvile, after hearing the case for the appellants, said their lordships would not trouble the other side, and proceeded to give judgment, dismissing the appeal with costs.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

ARMY LIFE IN RUSSIA.*

MR. GREENE'S reputation, achieved in a moment by the publication of the only complete history of the Russian campaign in European Turkey, will serve to secure for his present volume a very large circle of deeply interested readers. His former book, great and rapid though its success was, flew rather over the heads of general readers. This appeals to a wider area, and its merits will be as heartily recognised outside military circles as those of the previous book were wherever soldiers most do congregate. The fidelity of its word-painting, its variety, its accuracy as regards facts, and even its enthusiasms, are all eminently attractive, though we are on many questions of opinion compelled to differ from the author. For example, it is quite natural that he should have adopted so completely the Russian view of the Eastern Question. We remember General Skobelev saying once that a correspondent or a looker on with an army, if he were an honest man and without previously conceived and deeply rooted opinions, could hardly help falling in with the views of those among whom he was placed. Mr. Greene was so well treated by the Russians, from the Czar downwards, that he would be more or less than human if he did not take a very friendly view of their pretensions, a view which a longer acquaintance with the conditions of the problem will hardly tend to confirm. However, as we have said, it is not for the opinions expressed in it that the book will be eagerly read; the vivid portraiture of scenes and persons in field or quarters will be the main attraction, and we know hardly any book of our time which gives a more correct idea of the conditions of a soldier's life on active service than these modestly named "sketches." Mr. Greene has shown in his chapter on the Czar that, firm Republican though he is, he has realised some at least of the conditions under which Russians venerate the person of the Autocrat. We think, however, that he is rather rash in adopting what we might call the official view of Nihilism and kindred organisations both in Muscovy and its acquired territories. He does no more than justice to the devotion and obedience of the Russian soldier; and his chapters on the "Shipka Pass," "Plevna," and the "Winter Campaign," which ended at Makrikeui and Pirindjikeui, under the walls of Constantinople, are equal in descriptive merit to anything produced by any pen about the war, and are free from the overloading of details which would have interfered with the broad effect. But the best chapters, unquestionably, are those upon Russian generals and war correspondents. Skobelev, upon whom all eyes are now fixed, and who hardly, perhaps, frank though he was and is, told Mr. Greene all that he thought about Russia and England in Central Asia, has his likeness limned lovingly, as who could help doing who knows the man. Mr. Greene does not, could scarcely, exaggerate the excellent qualities of this brilliant and capable young soldier, who has just entered on his thirtieth year. Every word in this chapter is worth reading and weighing. Of all the war correspondents whom he met Mr. Greene has not a very high opinion, and he rightly lays the palm over all the rest on the grave of poor Macgahan. We cannot do better than quote some words which may be equally commended to English generals and to English correspondents in the field, for they seem to us to afford a solution of some of the difficulties which have arisen, and which are certain to arise again in British armies on active service:—

"The secret of his (Mr. Macgahan's) popularity lay in the simple fact that he applied the plain rules of ordinary morals and common honesty to his calling as a correspondent. No one has criticised more freely than he the mistakes of the campaigns or the faults of individual men, but he never did so with malice, he never used his paper to ventilate personal revenge; his criticisms were the result of long and intense thought, and were an honest judgment founded on the best information he could obtain. He applied this same rule of honest manly dealing in utterly rejecting that theory of certain journalists who disgrace their profession by maintaining in practice the principle that news, being the commodity of their business, and priority in publishing it being the first essential of their success, is to be obtained in any manner whatever, not even omitting means which would be considered utterly dishonourable in any other business or profession. According to the practice of these men, whatever they overhear by chance, whatever they learn at a dinner, or at other times when men are off their guard, whatever is told to them under the trust of secrecy, is to be used as freely as their notions of its value may seem to require. Otherwise, they reason, some one else will in some way get an inkling of it, and then they have lost a piece of property; for fresh news is the article they deal in, and stale news has no market value."

The chapter on Constantinople contains not merely a fine description of the Queen City of the World, as Mr. Greene saw it, almost in the clutch of the victors, but certain particulars of the visit of the Grand Duke Nicholas and his staff to the Sultan which have never been published before. Evidently, then, from what we have said—and we might say much more—this is one of the books of the season which no one should allow himself to miss.

THE STATESMAN.*

THE fifth article in the current number of this "Monthly Review" states what are called simple facts on the subject of "Public Works Waste in India," which the author, an anonymous P.W.D. man, admits embrace a sweeping charge against the officers of the Public Works Department. The real motive is found in the words—"the military element predominates in the department." A paper on the important question of the prohibition or permission of "Export of Grain in Famine" is, as is the wont of this periodical, marred by intense personal hostility. Surely the question of feeding the people need not be peppered with political acrimony. There is much good sense and reasoning in it, and we can only account for the peculiar bitterness of the attack on Lord Lytton and the famine commissioners by the fact that it was necessary to disapprove of Lord Northbrook's policy in not prohibiting the export of grain from Bengal. There is little noteworthy in the "New Indian Gold Mines," except the expression of an opinion that the Indian Government should concentrate its own resources upon the enterprise instead of leaving it to others. We should have thought that the working of the mines lay within the option of the Madras Government. The discovery of Mr. Hume's pamphlet on Indian agriculture has given an occasion for some editorial remarks, in which there are suggestions worthy of careful consideration, though we do not see that mental culture and scholarship disqualify a man for Indian administration.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE INDIAN STAFF CORPS.

THE Government of India is scarcely doing its duty by the public or the army in retaining two such well proven and well admitted evils as the Indian Staff Corps and the present organisation of the Native Army. Why the first, which contains over one thousand field officers, and but a very few subalterns, should continue to exist in its present form, we know not, unless it is that its abolition might wound the amour propre of Sir Henry Norman. As for the last, the battle of Maiwand, the experiences of the war generally, and of the Rampa campaign in particular—all evince so clearly the extreme feebleness of the present Indian military organisation that the wonder is how it could possibly have been permitted to continue so long! If there were any advantage to be had now, or in the future, from the maintenance of the Indian Staff Corps, we might overlook the extraordinarily heavy cost of that institution in consideration of its usefulness; but, in point of fact, the Staff Corps shows no gain in this latter respect. As already said, it has produced a prodigious army of colonels and majors, but only a few subalterns; so few, that the Royal Marines and the West India regiments have now to be indented upon as the last resource in this direction for recruits. It has overwhelmed the native regiments with four and even five field officers to a single corps, and it has upset the proper equilibrium of promotion in her Majesty's army generally, by causing supercession here, there, and everywhere, but without in any case producing content. Such is the Indian Staff Corps and its results; and in the interests of the army and the public it should be abolished as a costly failure.

Perhaps the system which will command most favour is the one which proposes to link a certain number of battalions together, and, calling the whole a regiment, to give promotion to the officers on the regimental system. The number of battalions to be so linked together would necessarily depend upon the number of European officers considered proper for the battalion. If the officers were numerous three linked battalions would suffice for purposes of promotion; if the officers were as few as they are now it might be needful to link seven or eight battalions together in order to form the regiment. But it is evident, from the great unpopularity of the Staff Corps with young men, that even this system of promotion would fail unless fortified by an Indian military college of the Addiscombe pattern, from which cadets could be drawn for the native army. The system of drawing young men from the British army has signally failed. It is apprehended that the abolition of the Staff Corps and the introduction of a new system of officering the army would cost more money than Government can afford; but this is quite a mistake. On the contrary, a large money saving might be shown. The first step to be taken is the reduction of the number of Staff Corps field officers to within reasonable limits, and this can be easily effected by giving the superfluous field officers—of whom there are seven or eight hundred—liberal pensions, which, however liberal, need not be more than the one-half of the incomes they receive from the State at present. This alone would effect a saving of one-half of the pay and allowances of seven or eight hundred superfluous field officers at once! Organisation is not costly, but disorganisation is. It is simply throwing away £15,000 a year on a native corps if the State does not get the full value of its outlay money out of it at least. The next step in the way of useful reform would be to inaugurate a military college for the training of Indian cadets, chiefly the sons of Indian officers. This would be no great expense, considering the gain to be accomplished. We do not see why a certain number of young native gentlemen of good family and position should not be admitted to the college, with a view to their eventually obtaining cadetships and commissions in the service. It is evident that the native officer, unless he be a very exceptional man, is at present almost worthless in the sense the Germans understand the word officer; and it would be of immense advantage to the army, and a great economy to the State, if there could be substituted for the old-fashioned subadar and jemadar a really smart and well educated native captain and lieutenant. That this can be done we have no doubt whatever; but before it can be done there must be a clearing away of the Staff Corps, with all its wonderful accumulations of field officers. The Marquis of Hartington has promised an inquiry into the state of the native army on the close of the war. He cannot do better than start that inquiry as soon as possible, with a view to three important things—(1) the abolition of the Indian Staff Corps; (2) the introduction of a system of promotion by linked battalions; (3) the inauguration of an Indian Military College, open to sons of British officers and young native gentlemen of the same social position as their European class-fellows. Though the Simla Army Commission has not gone quite the length which we have here suggested, we by no means think we have gone too far. The fact is that the native army requires a thorough overhauling from top to bottom, and a complete and uncompromising reorganisation.—Indian Daily News.

EXPERIMENTAL AGRICULTURE.

THE death of the Hon. Morarjee Goculdass will, we fear, put an end to a very interesting experiment which he was making as to landed estates in the Deccan. During his many visits to Sholapore at the time of the famine he was impressed with the idea that a possible means of improving the condition of the ryot lay in the application of capital to the land under the system of large estates. Struck with this idea, he went into it, as into everything he engaged in, with conspicuous energy. The advice of his friends he disregarded, and finally resented, having determined to risk a certain definite sum in the experiment. At the time of his death he had taken up between 2,000 and 3,000 acres of land, mostly from Government, and on favourable terms as to rent. A certain portion was devoted to a forest, and was being planted with trees, part was devoted to cultivation, and part to grazing. He had invested capital in agricultural instruments, cattle and manures, and he was determined to spare no reasonable expense in giving his scheme a thorough trial. His land was adjacent to the canal, from which in time of drought he could secure the means of irrigation. He was himself sanguine of success, and under his shrewd management the prospects were good. He went into the project not as a philanthropist, but with the conviction that it would succeed as a business operation if only prudently managed. His ultimate success would, without doubt, have led other capitalists to follow his example, and to establish themselves as zemindars, giving to the Government the advantage of a landlord able to pay the land tax in bad as well as good seasons, to the land the improved cultivation necessary to stop its continued impoverishment, and to the ryots the advantage of a livelihood irrespective of the amount of rainfall in any particular season.

We are not sure that in this system lies the remedy for the evils under which the ryot of the Deccan is now suffering. We distrust a zemindari system which necessarily gives to a handful of landlords the lion's share of the fruits of the cultivator's toil; but there is room for experiment, and that of the late Mr. Morarjee would have been watched with the greatest interest. There is no doubt that in this part of the country not only the cultivator, but the land, too, is growing poorer year by year. Mr. Hume, in his "Agricultural Reform in India," states:—"Owing to a variety of causes agriculture in India has become, and becomes daily more and more, what Liebig happily designated a system of spoliation. Deep as the purse may have been, and rich as much of our soil undoubtedly was, it is clear that a time must arrive when by continually taking out a great deal and putting back very little both purse and soil are exhausted." Government officials hesitate to acknowledge this; the exports and imports of the country at large are pointed to as sure signs of gradual improvement; and the submissive and patient disposition of the people presents all public expressions of discontent. The experiment of Mr. Morarjee near Sholapore was a step in the direction of applying the new order of things to India, to give to agriculture the advantage of the capital which the spinning and weaving industries have gained in the machinery which capital has given to them; and we had strong hopes that his success would induce others of our wealthy inhabitants to give to the land the benefits which capital alone can confer, or at least to prevent that gradual exhaustion of the land the evils of which grow in a geometrical progression. With the rapid growth of her population the Deccan cannot long produce her quantum of food unless the soil is renewed by frequent manuring. For this there is now no opportunity, as what should be applied as manure is the only resource of the people for fuel. It is not that the ryot is ignorant of its value or that he is unaware of the advantages of rotation of crops and other agricultural improvements; he is unable to use his knowledge from his poverty. Mr. Hume says:—"They know to a day when it is best to sow each staple and each variety of each staple that is grown in their neighbourhood; they accurately distinguish every variety of soil, and, so far as the crops they grow are concerned, the varying prospects and capabilities of each; they fully realise the value (though they can command but little) of ordinary manure, ashes, and the like; they know the benefit of, and practise, so far as circumstances and poverty permit, a rotation of crops. Imperfect appliances, superstition, money troubles, and the usurer's impatience often prevent their practising what they do know, but so far as what may be called non-scientific agriculture is concerned, there is little to teach them." It is, therefore, with much regret that we see the danger of an end to the experiment, or at best its transfer to some less energetic hands. It still lies, however, with Government to encourage the experimental application of capital and intelligence to the cultivation of the soil.—Bombay Gazette.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE TRADE OF THE PUNJAB.—The war in Afghanistan does not seem to have affected the import and export trade of the Punjab so largely as might have been expected. The decline only amounted to a falling off of 12 per cent. This decrease was entirely on the northern frontier, and in connection with the trade to and from Cashmere, Chinese Thibet, and Ladakh. That, on the western frontier towards Cabul, on the contrary, actually showed a small increase, equal to about a quarter per cent. This statement, it must be borne in mind, does not include war material, but only the ordinary articles of commerce which are constantly being interchanged between the Punjab and its neighbours outside the frontier of India. The import and export have lately been as follows:—1875-76 Rs.2,74,14,399; 1876-77 Rs.2,53,31,618; 1877-78 Rs.2,35,10,445; 1878-79 Rs.2,15,80,628; 1879-80 Rs.1,90,27,916. The decline has been steady and continuous, but the financial commissioner does not think it real, and attributes it to a falling off in registered value—the maundage continuing high without the same annual decline, as will be seen from the following table:—1875-76 20,81,147 maunds; 1876-77 21,10,500 maunds; 1877-78 22,43,273 maunds; 1878-79 20,41,624 maunds; 1879-80 18,78,572 maunds. The apparent decline may also be due to imperfect registration, which is also a shaky institution in India; it has not been found practicable to employ sufficiently intelligent registering agents. That there is something wrong in connection with registration is admitted by all. Indian tea, other than the produce of the Kangra Valley, is described as "foreign." The value of this tea, too, is absurdly irregular, Indian, that is, Kangra tea, being valued at Rs.50 per maund, and what is described as foreign at Rs.150 per maund. The Cashmere shawl trade seems to be dwindling rapidly, and this decline was doubtless helped by last year's famine. In the last three years the imports of these shawls from Cashmere have been—1877-78 Rs.15,28,142; 1878-79 Rs.18,16,140; 1879-80 Rs.8,61,900. Raw silk, too, showed largely in the decrease column, as will be seen from this table:—1877-78 Rs.7,01,700; 1878-79 Rs.7,16,000; 1879-80 Rs.1,86,610. The opening of the Northern Punjab State Railway beyond Wazirabad is having its natural and expected effect in diverting the Cashmere trade from the Sealkote route. Up till now fully half of this trade found its way through Sealkote. Rawul Pindi is, however, a much nearer point, and the increasing quantity of goods passing that station to and from Cashmere will doubtless continue and the old Sealkote route be comparatively neglected. The total imports and exports between the Punjab and the trans-frontier districts are shown in the following table, which gives the value in rupees:—

	Imports. Rs.	Exports. Rs.	Total. Rs.
Bajaur ...	4,03,830	6,37,408	10,45,238
Cabul ...	26,64,264	62,75,300	89,39,564
Cashmere ...	40,97,434	28,34,262	69,31,698
Ladakh ...	1,70,132	1,57,290	3,27,422
Sewestan ...	4,67,448	8,70,611	13,38,659
Thibet (Chinese) ...	3,39,745	13,015	3,52,759
Tirah ...	63,064	34,112	97,176
Total ...	82,05,918	1,08,21,998	1,90,27,916

Difference from 1878-79 32 p.c. + 14 p.c. — 12 p.c. For the last four years the trade between India and Cabul, and Persia by Cabul, has been in a declining state owing to the want of security in the passes leading to the Punjab. If Abdur Rahman Khan should succeed in getting the upper hand over the turbulent tribes between the Khyber and his capital a revival may be looked for, for there is a large demand on both sides for the produce of the different countries. We want Cabul fruits, horses, and silks, and the Afghans want our piece goods, indigo, sugar, and tea.—Indian Daily News.

THE STATE OF THE NORTH WEST PROVINCES.—Although the latest weather and crop returns from the North West Provinces and Oudh show a slight improvement in the prospects the situation is still such as to cause considerable anxiety. It would be premature to say that there is any danger of actual famine, but there can be no doubt that a scarcity necessitating Government aid will prevail for some months in certain districts. The worst of these districts is Rai Bareilly, where the rainfall has been so deficient that the kharif, or autumn crop, which consists chiefly of rice and millet, will fall far short of the average, whilst the almost entire failure of the late autumnal rains renders it impossible to sow more than a very small portion of the rabi, or winter crops. According to the latest estimates the outturn of the autumn millet crop will only be three-tenths of the average, and no more than two-fifths of the usual area is likely to be sown for rabi. Fodder is already very scarce, and the people are said to be feeding their cattle on leaves and withered rice. There has been a slight rainfall lately in Hamerpore, Banda Kirwee, Allahabad, and Hurdul, and a somewhat heavier fall in Lalitpore and Jhansi, which has to some extent improved the prospects of the rabi sowing. Scarcity is imminent in all these districts, although the danger is not so great as in Rai Bareilly. If the usual Christmas rains do not fall a fair proportion of the rabi crops may yet be saved and the distress greatly mitigated; but, in any case, a certain amount of distress is inevitable, and that it has not already begun to show itself is apparently due to the fact that considerable stocks of food grains are still in hand from the plentiful harvests of last year. The provincial Government is fully awake to the danger. Rules for the management of relief works and the inspection of villages in the threatened districts were issued more than two months ago. The commencement of relief works in Rai Bareilly is already sanctioned, and no efforts are wanting on the part of Sir George Couper and his officers to give every assistance to the people and to reduce the distress to a minimum.—Times Telegram.

CRIME IN THE N.W.P. AND OUDH.—The year 1879 was marked, in the North West Provinces and Oudh, by a decrease of crime which the inspector general of police begins by calling extraordinary. Afterwards, as will be seen, he changes his note, and says that it was the returns of the year before which were extraordinary, and that in 1879 they were normal. Compared, however, with those of 1878, the figures of 1879, for every district except two, and for almost every class of offence, show a decrease. Two causes are cited to explain this. In the first place it is said that the year was one of comparative prosperity, coming after two years of distress; and secondly, that during the autumn months a large proportion of the population of these provinces was prostrate with fever and unable either to commit, report, or investigate crime with its usual efficiency. Some classes of crime, however, show an increase; thus "riots increased by 117 cases" and were 538 in number. On the other hand, there were in the year 1876, which, for the sake of comparison, is chosen rather than the abnormal years 1877-78, 587 cases of rioting. In the Lower Provinces last year there were 1,959 cases of rioting. An elaborate comparison between the figures for the years 1876 and 1879 shows that the extraordinary decrease of crime observed last year, as compared with the year before, is but a return to the normal state of things which prevailed in 1876. This so far is satisfactory, but when we come to the percentage of cases in which police action resulted in the conviction of the offender the figures are by no means favourable. The convictions barely exceeded 25 per cent. of the cases reported. Of the riots of which mention has already been made, the majority, 302, took place in Oudh, and here only 169 convictions were obtained. Of divisions, Benares was the most riotous, with 110 cases. In murder, the Rohilkund Division takes the first place; Agra, second; Rohilkund being first again in robbery. Dacoities are still numerous in Oudh, and the action of the police in dealing with this crime are considered by the local Government to be the reverse of satisfactory.—Pioneer.

THE AGRICULTURAL SCHOLARSHIPS.—Out of the numerous candidates who have already appeared in the field for the agricultural scholarships offered to native students by the Government of Bengal four names have been submitted to the local Government for selection by the committee, of which the director of public instruction is a member.—Indian Daily News.

THE ASSAM TEA INDUSTRY.—The unsatisfactory state of the tea market during 1879-80 is seen in the fewer number of coolie labourers imported under the provisions of the Emigration Act into Assam. From the report issued by the chief commissioner it appears that in 1879 only 34,712 coolies were imported against 43,061 in 1878, and 31,897 in 1877. This great decrease is certainly in a measure due to a difficulty in inducing labourers to emigrate from the plains in consequence of the good harvests and cheapness of food. But the main cause is to be found in the fall in the price of tea. Every garden has been worked in the most economical manner, and as the price of labour has risen instead of diminishing there has been a natural tendency to restrict importations as far as possible. The chief commissioner, however, does not take a gloomy view of the future of tea cultivation in Assam. He hopes that the ominous signs of the past season will pass away without leading to any permanent contraction of the operations of this most important industry. It is improbable, however, that tea cultivation will extend at the rapid rate of the last few years. The low price of tea and the small returns of existing companies will check the eagerness of speculators. Much of the best land has already been taken up, and sites for gardens otherwise good are at present useless in consequence of the badness of the communications. Sir Steuart Bayley well says that the most important measure which Government can adopt in furtherance of the tea interest is to improve the communications. A quick passenger service is greatly needed on the Brahmaputra. It appears hopeless to expect that private enterprise will supply this want, and the provincial funds at the disposal of the Assam administration cannot meet the cost. The Government of India refused to help the struggling province in consequence of the financial pressure, and Sir Steuart Bayley is now in the cheerful position of one who hopes that something may turn up. He has applied for aid to the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, and in the interest of Bengal Sir Ashley Eden will doubtless co-operate in improving the communication on the great water highway of the two provinces.—Pioneer.

OFFICIAL MOVEMENTS.—On Major Ommaney's vacating the Mooltan Civil Division he will be succeeded as commissioner by Lieut. Colonel F. M. Birch, now officiating commissioner of Delhi. The Delhi appointment will probably be given to Major Gordon Young, who is about to return from furlough.—Indian Daily News.

THE POVERTY OF INDIA.—At a recent meeting of educated natives of the Punjab on the subject of the extension of the Punjab University College, one of the speakers made the quite irrelevant statement that the general poverty of the people is the fault of the British Government, on which the Lahore paper remarks:—"This complaint is a common one, and when it is made in a broad, economical sense by large-minded monomaniacs of the Hyndman type it can be dealt with; but as a gibe carelessly flung out in a meeting it is difficult to mete out the exact amount of respect it deserves. We may ask the educated orator, in a similar strain of easy confidence, in what golden age in its history was the Punjab richer than now? Will he be good enough to compare the present state of the country, and especially the standard of comfort and freedom enjoyed by the masses, with the awful condition of things under one of the best of the Mogul Emperors, as described by the French physician, Bernier? That traveller's admirable letters furnish pretty complete data for comparison, and a question of this kind is essentially a comparative one. More recent authorities give full information as to the wealth and prosperity of the province under the Sikh rule. Careful inquiry would probably lead to a modification of a hasty ad captandum statement. To use a homely metaphor, the British Government is the most convenient Aunt Sally in the world, and everybody is welcome to have a shy. But an educated native gentleman should first make sure that he has got hold of the right end of the stick."—Bombay Gazette.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.—The Western Rajputana Railway is to be opened as a through line, with or without some flourish of trumpets, as may ultimately be ordered, on January 1. Probably a month earlier than this the first through engine will have made its way from the Agra to the Bombay end of the line. When opened the whole line will be called the Rajputana Railway, tout court. The total length of the new section is 299 miles. Southward from Ajmere the line has been open for some time to Raipur, a distance of fifty miles. On Oct. 20, 1880, a further length of twenty-one miles, to Sujat-road, was opened. At the southern end the line is open from Ahmedabad to Pahlapur, a distance of eighty-two miles. Construction trains are now running from Sujat-road to the Nana Pass, a distance of about seventy-six miles; and from Pahlapur to the south end of the Nana Pass, a distance of about sixty miles. A gap through the Nana Pass of about ten miles of heavy banks and cuttings is the only hindrance now left, and it is fully anticipated that the rails will be laid through this pass by Dec. 1. There is still a good deal of unfinished bridging between Raipur and Pahlapur, which will take some months to complete; but good practical diversions have been made at all of them, and it is confidently expected that the line will be so far advanced as to be opened for through traffic by Jan. 1, 1881. It will, however, be May 1, 1881, probably, before all the bridges are completed.—Pioneer.

NAINI TAL.—The committee of experts appointed by Government to inquire into the results of the landslip at Naini Tal have come to the following conclusions:—1st, the injury caused by the excessive rainfall is confined to a portion of the Sherka Danda Hill to the north of the lake, and there is further danger in those parts which lie to the east of Cheena Lodge and to the west of Melville Hall; 2ndly, that the damage done was much enhanced by the reckless way in which the hills had been cut up and distorted by building speculators; 3rdly, that though there are slips and cracks all over the affected parts there has been no general subsidence of the hillside; 4thly, that there is no insuperable difficulty in dealing with the slips that have occurred, and that the remedial measures suggested will be sufficient to protect the settlement from further danger. The committee has condemned, as unsafe, twelve houses; but six of these only until works for the control of flood water have been finished. Even if all these twelve houses were condemned, as well as the eighteen others needing repair, their loss would hardly be felt, as there is more room along the Lariya-kanta, Ayar-putta, and Charta ridges than will be needed for many years to come. Such are the considerations which the promoters of the Bareilly and Kumaon Railway urge. As they say, "the landslip, but for the terrible loss of life, was in no way greater than the landslip of 1867, of which no one speaks." The remedial measures proposed by the committee will be carried out under skilled supervision, and for this Government has sanctioned an expenditure of two lakhs. The settlement at Naini Tal, it is hoped, will then be safer than it was before.—Pioneer.

LADAKH.—Advice from Ladakh state that the backwardness of the season is having a bad effect on the crops of many parts of this province. In Tankse and other districts, lying about 12,000ft. in altitude, the autumn has already set in, and the crops have had to be reaped, although still unripe. The loss caused by cutting the grain in an unripe state is estimated at about a third of an average crop. In the Leh district a certain amount of loss will also be sustained from this cause; but in districts below an altitude of 10,500ft. the grain is already off the ground, and is estimated to be about an average crop. The night frosts began at Leh (11,500ft.) on Sept. 14 and no further ripening can be expected. It is now definitely settled that no agent (Lupchuk) is to go to Lassa this year on the part of the Maharaja's Government.—Times of India.

FORTIFYING THE N.E. FRONTIER.—It is rumoured, and the rumour is not without some foundation we believe, that our late enemies, the Nagas, are strutting about their villages openly boasting that it is their intention to pay our frontier another visit, December being the month talked of for the undertaking. We give the rumour for what it is worth, but we are able to announce that the authorities, feeling that prevention is better than cure, have not been idle, and, since the last fatal raid made on the Balladhun estate, have bestirred themselves in fortifying their frontier for the protection of the valuable property there situated. Mr. W. W. Daly, district superintendent of police, Kachar, a gentleman well known in the district, has been employing his leisure time most profitably, and has constructed a road some twenty-six miles in length, which encircles all the outlying and exposed tea-gardens. Commencing at Jiraghat it skirts the boundary line, keeping the gardens of Balladhun, Joypore, Pathecherra, and Isacherra in the inner circle, and finally terminates at Gooabari, a point some six miles beyond the last named estate. The object of this road is at once patent, for by its means rapid communication is attained between the stockades which Mr. Daly has built adjoining the various gardens, and should any raid be made near one outpost the garrisons of the others can march up quickly to the rescue. Each stockade is held by about twenty-five men of the police force, most of them sturdy little Goorkhas, and at Silchar there are four companies. With a view of perfecting the defence of the frontier Mr. Daly is now employed in fitting up each stockade with a signalling apparatus on the semaphore plan.—Englishman.

THE PUNJAB STATE RAILWAY.—The Northern Punjab State Railway will probably be opened as far as Haji Shah, the temporary terminus near Attock, on the 1st of December. Already the line is opened as far as Rawul Pindi, whither, on the completion of the long-delayed bridge over the Sohan River, trains have been running ever since the beginning of October. The completion of the line as far as Peshawur must still be a work of time, as the bridge over the Indus has yet to be put up. Meanwhile in the other direction, on the branch to Kohat, the line is to be opened to Khushalghurh on the 1st of January next.—Pioneer.

CHOLERA.—Between the 13th and 20th October forty-four natives and thirteen Europeans died in Lucknow from cholera.—Times of India.

MISSIONARY WORK.—It is stated that the home authorities of the Church Missionary Society, on reconsideration, have decided to continue their work at Lucknow.—Ibid.

THE TELEPHONE AND THE TELEGRAPH.—A telephone is about to be set up between the Punjab Government Secretariat and the private residence of Mr. Mackworth Young, the secretary to Government, during the durbar fortnight. It is to be hoped that this will be of greater use than the telegraph lines by which the Government offices in Lahore were connected with each other at some expense a few years ago. These, it is said, have never yet been utilised in any way whatever.—Times of India.

THE AFGHAN REFUGEES.—The number of Afghan refugees in Lahore has greatly diminished. To avoid a certain amount of unnecessary expense, Government have released and permitted Zakaria Khan and Allan-ud-din Khan to go back to Cabul; they have accordingly left. Mirza Mahomed Hussain, late secretary of State, has left for Bagdad, without awaiting to witness the durbar. Sirdar Wali Mahomed Khan is now at Peshawur. He will not attend the durbar, he says, if he is not allowed a seat not lower in grade to that of any native ruling chief.—Civil and Military Gazette.

GENERAL HUME.—A salute of eleven guns on October 25 announced the return to Allahabad from Simla of Major General Hume, C.B., lately commanding this division, who has come down here to make his arrangements for proceeding to Kandahar to assume the chief command there. General Hume, as we announced the other day, went up to Simla from Mussoorie to consult with the Viceroy, the Commander in Chief, and General Roberts as to the course he should pursue in Southern Afghanistan. We regret to hear that a wound which this gallant officer received in the Crimea has been giving him some considerable trouble just now, but General Hume, in spite of his suffering, is resolved upon taking up the important command for which he has been selected.—Indian Herald.

A RAID IN THE PUNJAB.—On the 5th ult. a raid was made on Loharu territory in the Punjab, by a party of men, seventy in number, at about nine o'clock in the morning. The raiders rode up in front of the Loharu Fort and drove off all the village cattle grazing in the neighbourhood, including some camels belonging to the Nawab of Loharu, who, while himself witnessing the raid, was unable to prevent it, or to do more than send a few men to follow up the tracks of the robbers. The latter were traced to the town of Dudwa in Jaipur territory, and are said to have been the Thakurs of Dudwa and Rompura.—Times of India.

HIS HIGHNESS THE MAHARAJA OF OODEYPORE has expressed his intention to visit his Excellency the Viceroy in Calcutta.—Ibid.

THE VOLUNTEERS.—The formation of a Sylhet volunteer corps has received the sanction of the Government of India, and Mr. Luttmann Johnson, C.S., is appointed captain commandant.—Ibid.

THE CHURCH IN KASHMIR.—Further particulars have been received regarding the destruction by fire, already announced, of the visitors' church at Sona Murg. The fire had evidently smouldered for at least two days, so that it could have been extinguished without difficulty had any attendants been present. Dewan Anant Ram has sent a special officer to investigate the cause of the fire, which, the Press Commissioner says, will doubtless be found to have been accidental.—Ibid.

The son of the Prince of Bokhara, who has been staying at Peshawur, has died of cholera, as well as several of his followers.

The Lieutenant Governor of Bengal has appointed Babu Ambika Churn Sen, M.A., and Sayad Sakhawat Hossain, B.A., to the two scholarships recently established by the Bengal Government at the Agricultural College, Cirencester.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—At date of mail the disengaged tonnage in port stood at 29,865 tons. London vid Canal: The market closed weak at £2 7s. 6d. to £2 10s. Rice or wheat at £2 15s. nominal; jute, £3 to £3 5s. for tea, hides, &c. Linseed, rape, poppy, none offering: quotation nominal. For London vid Cape: The market closed quiet at £2 for saltpetre, £2 10s. to £2 12s. 3d. for rice or wheat, £2 15s. for jute, £2 17s. 6d. for linseed, £2 18s. 9d. for rape, and £3 for poppy, and £2 5s. to £2 10s. for light freight. For Liverpool vid Cape: A good demand for tonnage. £2 7s. 6d. for rice, £2 10s. for wheat, and £2 13s. 9d. for linseed may be considered the closing rates.—Englishman.

MADRAS.

THE SITUATION AT RAMPA.—Towards the close of last month his Grace the Governor in Council called upon the official agents in the Vizagapatam and Godavari districts to report whether any, and what, vigorous efforts were being carried on for the active pursuit and capture of the Muttadars of Nedlur and Gudem Pathavithi. The Government desired that an efficient police officer should be deputed for the especial duty of following up the Muttadar of Nedlur till he could be captured. He is one of the men who first rose in rebellion, and his non-capture up to last month kept, and perhaps still keeps, the Muttas unsettled. In answer to these injunctions, the agent at Vizagapatam reported that Mr. Knox, the acting assistant agent, had proceeded to the hills with all available police, and was engaged in searching for the Gudem Muttadar; that the gang had for the most part been captured or dispersed; that Chinna Virayya had surrendered; that the Muttadar was hiding with a few companions, and that his early capture was expected. A more detailed report from Mr. Knox goes to show that the Kondakombero gang no longer exists, but that some Fituridars may be hiding in the country about Punakur, Lakavaram, and Gudimamidi; that open resistance is at an end, and the stronger gangs are completely broken up and dispersed; that the offenders are scattered and hiding all over the country; that the work for which the sepoys were called in has been done, so that the work now to be done is police work proper; that as the present police force is insufficient to hold those stations which must be held, some portion of the troops must remain to hold them, so as to leave the police free to trace out the criminals. Since this report was written, Chinna Virayya is reported to have given himself up, while four members of Virayya Dora's gang have been captured. From all accounts the work now to be done is purely police work, requiring two or three patrol parties, about twenty strong, moving freely about the country between stations held in sufficient force to allow ten or fifteen men being sent out to effect captures. Experience shows that it is only by such parties working independently and with the aid of old Fituridars that we can pick up the skulkers and eventually hunt down the ringleaders. Things having come to the present pass, it is thought that the Muttadars, too, can now be required to aid us. It is impossible for them or their villagers to overcome large bodies of men, but they can catch single men and track out small parties. It is thought that a civil officer would be able to deal with these Muttadars in a way that military and police officers could not, and a strong effort during the next two months will probably settle the whole job.—Madras Times.

THE WORK DONE IN OUR CIVIL COURTS.—The report on the administration of civil and criminal justice in this Presidency for the year 1879 shows that during the year 526 new suits were instituted in addition to 126 uncontested petitions for probate and letters of administration; four petitions regarding the custody and guardianship of infants and lunatics; six claims to attached property, and 124 petitions for the benefit of the Act for the relief of insolvent debtors. The value of the subject matter of suits instituted during the year was Rs.31,40,000. The receipts from court fees amounted to Rs.1,36,994, against Rs.1,04,363 in 1878. Of this sum Rs.62,212 were paid on account of probate and administration ad valorem duties. In the appellate jurisdiction of the court 132 appeals from first decrees and 666 appeals from appellate decrees were filed. In all 739 appeals were disposed of, and at the close of the year there were pending 105 appeals and 270 second appeals. The most useful thing for the public to learn about these matters is perhaps the fact that the average pendency of regular appeals was 245 days, and of second appeals 185 days. The judges evidently worked harder during the year than they did in 1878, or 224 benches sat on 175 days during 1879, as compared with 145 benches on 131 days in 1878. The value of the property involved in these appeals was Rs.15,75,000; the receipts from court fees amounted to Rs.64,935.—Madras Times.

THE WYNAAD PLANTERS.—The planters of the Wynad have such strong faith in the prospects of gold being successfully mined in the district in which their lot has been cast that they have changed the name "Planters Association" and adopted that of "Wynad Planting and Mining Association." Whether the members of the association will be as successful in mining as they have been in the cultivation of coffee remains to be seen.—Ibid.

FAST TRAINS.—The agent of the Madras Railway Company, we learn, at the instance of Government, has pressed upon his directors in England the necessity for charging enhanced fares when the accelerated service comes into operation on this company's system, as otherwise these fast trains will not be remunerative but a drain upon the purse of the company; increased speed resulting in increased wear and tear of machinery, rails, &c., and also of maintenance and fuel.—Ibid.

RETIRING OFFICERS.—Four more officers of the Madras army have accepted the colonels' allowances and retire this month. They are Colonels Robert Sutton Burge, De Symonds Barrow, William Thomas T. Farewell, and Charles James Richards. Col. Burge, who is wing commandant of the 41st Regiment Native Infantry, entered the service in 1848. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in 1854, captain 1861, major 1868, lieutenant colonel 1874, and colonel 1879. He was employed on field service in Saugoor and Nerbudda territories, in the suppression of the Indian mutiny, from Feb. 6, 1858, to Dec. 31, 1859; present at Jushung, Kobrai, the battle of Banda, April 19, 1858, surrender of Kirwee, when the rebel chiefs Narrain Row and Madda Row surrendered themselves prisoners, and escorted them as State prisoners through the disturbed districts of Jubbulpore, when they were handed over to the civil authorities; was present at the affair at Larcherra, Dec. 6, 1858 (medal with clasp). Col. Barrow was deputy inspector general of police in Oudh for a long time. He entered the service in 1842, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in 1848, captain 1854, major 1862, lieutenant colonel 1868, colonel 1873. He commanded a regiment of the Oudh military police during the Oudh campaign in 1858 and 1859 under Sir George Barker, K.C.B., was present in the action of Sundula and Jammu, and at the reduction of Rewah, and all subsequent operations of that column (mentioned in despatches); commanded a force consisting of two companies H.M.'s 8th Foot, a wing of Irregular Cavalry and Regiment of Oudh Military Police, watching the fords of the Surayam in December, 1858, and January, 1859 (India medal). The commissions of Col. Farewell, deputy chief engineer and under secretary to Government in the P.W.D., date as follows:—Ensign 1843, lieutenant 1845, captain 1858, major 1863, lieutenant colonel 1869, and colonel 1874. Col. Farewell was also employed on field service in Saugoor and Nerbudda territories in the suppression of the Indian mutiny, present at the affair of Kabrail, battle of Banda, and surrender of the rebel Narrain Rao and occupation of Kirwee (medal and clasp for Central India). Col. Richards, of the infantry, saw no war service. He entered the service in 1849, was promoted to lieutenant 1852, captain 1859, major 1869, lieutenant colonel 1873, and colonel 1878.—Madras Times.

THE MADRAS CIVIL ENGINEERING COLLEGE.—The ex-director of public instruction, Colonel Macdonald, suggested, before he left, the remodelling of our local Civil Engineering College somewhat upon the same principles as those adopted in the remodelling of this branch of the Presidency College at Calcutta, viz., the training of the pupils as mechanics. The matter was referred to Colonel Sankey, R.E., C.B., the secretary to Government, Public Works Department, and Colonel Mullins, R.E., the chief engineer of irrigation, and their replies being in favour of the director's proposal a committee is to be formed consisting of a number of professional gentlemen to inquire into the remodelling proposed and to report what extra expenditure would be incurred thereby. His Grace the Governor, in sanctioning this proceeding, impresses upon the Educational Department the necessity for men being taught mechanics, &c., which, he observes, is the greatest "defect" in the present education of students in college, and the "best prospects for employment," seeing that such men are wanted by railway and other companies much. The committee referred to above will be constituted as follows:—Colonel J. H. M. Shaw-Stewart, R.E., consulting engineer for railways, president; Lieutenant H. D. Love, R.E., principal, Civil Engineering College; F. S. Evans, Esq., M.A., professor of mathematics; W. H. Wilson, Esq., P.W.D.; and two others in place of Messrs. Hanna and West, of the Madras Railway Company, who are unable to assist.—Gazette.

THE LATE MR. O. B. IRVINE, C.S.—A white marble tablet, prepared and engraved at the School of Arts, has been placed in Christ Church, Cuddalore, in memory of the late Mr. Octavius Butler Irvine, for many years judge of South Arcot. The expense has been delayed by private subscription.—Pioneer.

THE TRAVANCORE-COCHIN RAILWAY.—The Resident of Travancore and Cochin has been informed that, if the Governments of these States are willing to accept the proportion of guaranteed interest which it is proposed they should bind themselves to pay, the Government of India are willing to pay their share of the same on the capital required. The Government of India have intimated to the Resident of Travancore and Cochin that they are willing to recommend to the Secretary of State for sanction the construction of the railway from Ernacollum to Cochin, provided the Travancore and Cochin States are respectively willing to accept the conditions specified in regard to the proposed guarantee on the capital of £550,000 (Rs.66,00,000) required for the construction of the line, the Government bearing the remainder of the 10 per cent.—Ibid.

BOMBAY.

SCHOOLS AND CASTE.—Two of the Government schools at Neriad and Kaira had to be closed early last week as the boys in a body left the school owing to the admission of some Dheds, in pursuance of the now famous Government circular. Mr. Giles, the energetic inspector, went down promptly, but what course he has followed has not yet transpired. It is to be earnestly hoped that, in spite of such defection, the Government circular will be strictly enforced. The public schools must be open to all classes, without any distinctions of caste or creed, and the educational authorities must show a determined front in a case of this sort to the already too-much pampered Brahmins and those who imitate them in pretending to extraordinary sanctity. Under the shadow of the British Crown there should be no class distinctions, and this must be eminently so in our public schools. Much opposition will, of course, be raised, and a great deal of disloyal clamour; but if Government is firmly bent on carrying on its benign policy of strict and absolute toleration and equality the over-weening Indian Pharisees, the "twice-born" classes, must soon come back to their proper senses, and must be made to recognise that under British rule the temple of knowledge is open to all.—Correspondent of Bombay Gazette.

ARRIVAL OF THE 1ST KING'S DRAGOON GUARDS.—Her Majesty's Indian troopship Orontes, Capt. Richard G. Kinahan, arrived in Bombay harbour on Oct. 22 from Natal, which port she left on Sept. 29, with twenty-two officers and 444 men of the 1st King's Dragoon Guards. The following is the list of officers:—Col. H. Alexander, Capt. J. M. Benthall, A. Gibbing, W. H. Thompson, H. P. Douglas-William, H. C. Vetch, G. E. Rogers, Lieuts. N. H. Sadlier, J. Alexander, R. S. G. Lowry, Sub Lieut. W. H. Harkness, Second Lieuts. W. R. Gould-Adams, J. S. Willett, E. L. Wright, G. Hearn, Capt. and Paymaster J. G. Elliot, Lieut. and Adjutant R. G. Nicholas, Ridingmaster J. Crowdy, Quartermaster J. O. Donnell, Veterinary Surgeon S. Loughurst, Surgeon Major S. E. Manuell, A.M.D., Surgeon J. R. A. Clark, A.M.D. The regiment left Bombay the same evening for Meerut.—Bombay Gazette.

ECCLESIASTICAL PRECEDENCY.—With the sanction of the Government of India the Governor in Council is pleased to notify that for choice of quarters junior chaplains of six years' service and under shall be allowed the relative rank of captain, while those having over six and less than ten years' service that of major.—Gazette.

LEAVE.—Under instructions from Government the Commander in Chief of the Bombay Army is pleased to notify that ninety days, instead of sixty days, privilege leave may be granted to all officers serving under the several military departments of Government or the Commander in Chief who have returned or may hereafter return to India from Kandahar. This leave may be granted irrespective of the limits of the leave season.—Gazette.

RELIEFS AND MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS.—H.M.'s troopship Euphrates, 4,173 tons, Commander Henry Hand, sailed on Oct. 26 for England with 60 officers, 19 ladies, 25 children, 924 men, 64 women, and 164 children. She took the following officers:—Surg. J. M. Beamish, M.D., Capt. Bally, 48th Foot, Lieut. G. Thunder, 2-7th Foot, Lieut. R. Oakes, R.A., Lieut. W. A. Plant, R.H.A., Lieut. W. Richardson, S.C., Lieut. W. J. Elverson, 2-2nd Foot, Second Lieut. F. A. Fortescue, 60th Rifles, Second Lieut. C. C. Lucas, S.C., Capt. J. V. Nugent, 51st Foot, Lieut. J. W. C. THE MUNICIPALITY OF PUNA.—The Government of Bombay has declined to grant to the inhabitants of Puna the privilege enjoyed by the cities of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay of electing the members of the local municipality.—Ibid.

RELIEF FUNDS.—The Bombay Military Relief Fund on Oct. 28 amounted to Rs.1,39,062, and the Irish Relief Fund on Oct. 8 totalled Rs.1,00,582.

BOMBAY SAW MILLS COMPANY (LIMITED).—The ordinary annual general meeting was held on Oct. 25. The following report of the directors was then read:—"Your directors beg to submit the audited accounts of the company for the year ending July 31 last, which, they are glad to state, show a most satisfactory result. The sales are considerably larger than those during the previous year—1878-79, Rs.5,39,142-11-10; 1879-80, Rs.6,50,797-7-11. In accordance with the articles of association, Rs.6,000 have been transferred, as usual, to 'machinery depreciation account.' The directors propose to pay a dividend of Rs.60,000, being at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum on the paid-up value of the shares. This will leave a sum of Rs.24,628-15-11, of which your directors propose carrying to 'working capital account' Rs.15,000, raising the amount of this account to Rs.75,000, and the balance, Rs.9,628-15-11, to 'reserve fund.' It was resolved and seconded "That the report and audited statement of accounts for the year ending July 31, 1880, which have been already printed and circulated, be adopted, and the dividend of 10 per cent. declared."—Times of India.

CUTCH SILVER WORK.—The annual report of the master of the Bhuj School of Art, Mr. d'Esperance, shows that satisfactory progress has been made during the past year by the students, the number of whom has increased from eleven to forty-five. Twenty-four of these attend the wood-carving class, which was opened a year ago; nine attend the modelling and stone-carving classes; and the remaining twelve are in the school division. Forty-one competed for prizes. At the annual meeting of the supporters of the school the late Dewan of Cutch (Rao Bahadur Manibhai Jusbhai) mentioned that there are already two scholarships of Rs.20 and Rs.15 a month, respectively, open to Cutchees wishing to attend the Bombay School of Art, and the Cutch State would, he had no doubt, be prepared to give more help in this direction if needed. It was also proposed to have a small museum attached to the school of art. Cutch is famous for its skilled artisans as everybody in Bombay knows. Before leaving for England some silver Cutch work was received by Lord Lytton from the political agent, and his Excellency's military secretary wrote that it was immensely admired. He added—"We have now specimens of almost all Indian as well as Burmese silver work, and I think I should have no hesitation in awarding the palm for richness of effect to the Cutch silver."—Times of India.

HORSE SHOW.—The Majji Exhibition and Horse Show will be opened on Monday, the 21st of February. Prizes will be issued about eight or ten days after, the intervening days being occupied by the judges in examining and awarding prizes. The date of distribution of prizes can be ascertained on application to the Mamlutdar. All exhibits are to be consigned to the Mamlutdar, and should be accompanied by the certificates required by the terms and conditions connected with each class. Exhibits will not be received after Monday, the 21st, except in the case of perishable articles, which will be received up to the time of examining the particular class concerned. The total value of the prizes amounts to Rs.5,595.—Ibid.

VOLUNTEERING AT KARACHI.—The Sind Volunteer Rifle Corps have had an accession of strength, more than equivalent, we believe, to what they lost by the withdrawal of the railway members to join the 3rd Punjab Volunteers, by the enrolment of a number of the men of the hill tribes—Mano.a—under the auspices of our new master attendant, Captain Brebner, himself a volunteer of Bombay note and much popularity in the island. We should like to see every man who is young enough to bear arms enrolled in this excellent movement.—Karachi Civil and Military Gazette.

BOMBAY VOLUNTEER RIFLES.—The drill season of the Bombay Volunteer Rifles was commenced on Oct. 27, when the corps paraded with its band in front of the Gymkhana for drill under the adjutant, Captain Stokes. The number was not a large one, there being only about eighty rank and file present. Amongst the officers present, in addition to Captain Stokes, were—Majors Bayley and Fraser-Hore, Captains Wyer, Tennant, and Kemp, Lieuts. Manson, Moorhouse, and Brown. The men were exercised in company and battalion movements, and taking into consideration the fact that the drill was the first of the season the parade was a very satisfactory one.—Times of India.

PROMOTION.—Captain F. O. Barrington Foote, Royal Artillery who proceeded to India on the personal staff of the Marquis of Ripon, has been offered and has accepted the appointment of aide de camp to General R. P. Radcliffe, R.A., the inspector general of artillery at the Horse Guards, and will shortly return to England to take up his duties.

NEW OPIUM FIELDS.—Our Shiraz correspondent has repeatedly called our attention to the steady increase in the growth of opium in Persia, and from a Mozambique correspondent we now learn something as to the prospects of the opium-producing fields of Eastern Africa. As compared with Indian opium, both the Persian and African opiums are virtually untaxed, and in spite of their inferior quality, which may probably be improved, this freedom from export duty gives them a great advantage with the Chinese customers. It is not difficult to imagine a time when they may seriously affect the most important branch of the Indian revenue. In Persia the new industry has taken firm hold; in Mozambique it is still something of an experiment. The Mozambique Opium Company was formed in Lisbon three years ago with a capital of £100,000 sterling. The Portuguese have granted the directors 20,000 acres of picked land at a nominal rent, and given them the exclusive right of cultivating opium in Mozambique for ten years free of any tax, and thereafter for a further twenty years on the payment of a duty of £5 per chest only. Judging by the letter of the inspecting engineer, which we publish elsewhere, the land and the water supply seem all that could be desired, and the present crop seems to be quite up to an Indian standard. From a letter, written by one of the directors of the company we learn that the plants had then attained a height of nearly three feet and had commenced to yield opium. Five and one-third beegahs had yielded 170lb. of opium, equal to the rate of 32lb. per beegah.—Times of India.

INDIAN REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

COINCIDENT with the publication, by delivery and report, of the lectures on the revenue and expenditure of India by the Director General of Indian Statistics, the public have had placed before them the fourteenth number of the statistical abstract relating to British India, which brings up to the year 1878-79 that exhaustive compilation of statistics which is presented to Parliament for the purpose of disseminating accurate information on the subject of Indian revenue and expenditure. This at least is the main, though not the only, object of this valuable Blue-book. Its various headings comprise the separate items which together enumerate the progress and development of the commercial and educational activity, the internal communications, and all other departmental agencies which make up the administrative work of the Government of India, however exercised. This statistical abstract furnishes a text upon which Dr. Hunter's lectures, which have now assumed collectively the dimensions of a volume, may be said to constitute a comment. He took occasion to compare, in reviewing the question of Indian revenue, the past of the Mogul Empire and the present of the British rule. It is one of the unconsidered services, which have been, as fruits of scanty leisure, rendered to India by the civil servants of an alien race who have in grand succession devoted their best energies to her service, to explore and gather together the records of her history. Never have Englishmen been ashamed to give every opportunity for comparison of what was done in India before the advent of their rule with what has been accomplished under it. Of the many such works throwing light upon the condition of things which slowly but certainly necessitated the incoming of new foreign rulers a short but most instructive one is a review of the "Revenue Resources of the Mughal Empire" in India during a period which may be roughly described as the seventeenth century. This work, which was published by that accomplished Orientalist, Mr. Thomas, as a supplement to his "Chronicles of the Pathan Kings of Delhi," contains the materials from which he deduces as the general result very much what Dr. Hunter stated in his lecture at Edinburgh. Thus he gives in a table recapitulating "the revenues of the Mughal Empire" at various periods, rejecting all imperfect returns, the following:—"In the reign of Akbar, 1593, the revenue from all sources amounted to £32,000,000, of which about one-half was raised from the land revenue. In the reign of Jahangir, 1601, the revenue was £50,000,000 with a like proportion to that accruing from the land; and under Aurangzeb, in 1695, it had amounted to £80,000,000, being more than double the land revenue, which is given at about £35,000,000." It will be seen that the computation of Mr. Thomas falls below the estimate made by Dr. Hunter. There is obviously no attempt made to equalise the value represented by such sums then with the value of corresponding numbers of pounds or rupees at the present day. But the averaging process over a century is somewhat misleading. It is really more striking to put it thus, that at the beginning of the seventeenth century the "Great Mogul" drew a revenue of thirty-two millions sterling, which, in the course of a hundred years, waxed to the sum of eighty millions, and this brings out Dr. Hunter's argument most forcibly. The Statistical Abstract places the revenue of India before the student of its pages in every possible manner, and enables him to contemplate it from every possible point of view, and compare it in respect of periods and years as well as of totals and separate items. The point of comparison that is afforded as to the land tax is that, in 1646-9, the land tax collected for the exchequer of Shah Jehan was £22,000,000, and in 1879 the land revenue collected in British India was £22,330,586, being somewhat in excess of either of the previous ten years. There is no occasion to pursue the question of Indian revenue into the comparison of the component items, their increase or decrease. There does occur, however, one thought which Dr. Hunter has not suggested, rather has he left the vacant occasion for it. He tells us that the weak point of our financial position is, not that we take more from the people than their native rulers did, but that what we take barely suffices for the cost of our administration. From this he proceeds to discuss the administration expenditure, which is kept up by the taxation, which he places at 3s. 6d. per head of the Indian subjects. The thought that occurs is whether the Government of India are boldly acting on the time-honoured principle which Mr. Thomas explains in the following words:—"In attempting to fix the fiscal returns of the land at any given epoch it must primarily be recognised that India is, and ever has been, a relatively poor country, depending mainly upon the produce of its soil and the industries of its prolific people. The revenues of India then, as now, followed the type of her own great anthills, and were built up of immeasurable minute accessions and aggregations. Going back to earlier periods we find that the whole theory of the Hindu law of taxation proceeded upon the primitive village system—that the elected authority or raja should take his portion of all gains of whatever description local knowledge could reduce into a tangible form." The exposition and defence of the administrative expenditure of the Government of India, ably and lucidly placed before his Edinburgh audience by Dr. Hunter, nevertheless was tinged by a sort of tacit admission that the cost was excessive. He boldly stated, and he deserves all thanks for it, that the civil and military services of India now yield simply enough for a man to discharge the duties of the position in which he may be placed. At the same time, he stated his belief, which is indeed shared by an increasing number, that, if we are to give a really efficient administration to India many services must be paid for at lower rates than at present. In other words, he advocated a cheaper administration by means of English officials at lower rates of salary, or of native officials paid on a still lower scale. This, indeed, was the ultima ratio. We may pass by the burden of the British Indian Association's petition, as far as it relates to military retrenchment, and we approve it as far as it refers to the regulation of Indian finances in the interests of the Indian taxpayer; but, while we welcome the earnest and careful consideration of possible and prudent measures of economy, we are inclined to ask Dr. Hunter to apply his power of analysis and his skill in exposition to the question whether the principle which is described by Mr. Thomas is still practically adhered to. We hear the demand urged for a commission of inquiry into our Indian administration. We note the urgent demands for representation, which, as Dr. Hunter knows well, can but be of a very limited order, and for admitting the educated natives into a larger share of the administration, which is being slowly accomplished. These matters are to form points of, and be considered instructions in, directing the inquiry. But, in the interests of the Indian taxpayer and of the Indian exchequer, it is to be hoped that able financiers will examine inquisitorially, if needs be, but certainly in the most exhaustive manner, whether those native classes who have profited so largely by the results of the British rule, who are undoubtedly loyal and indisputably prosperous, do nevertheless furnish as due a proportion of the revenue of the country as the old principles of Indian taxation permit, and the wants of the country and their own self-seeking and self-assertion demand of them.

Lieut. Col. the Hon. J. H. Fraser, whose retirement from the service was notified in the London Gazette of August 24, 1880, should have been described as belonging to the Bengal and not to the Bombay Staff Corps.

MENTIONED IN DESPATCHES.

THE despatch of Sir Frederick Roberts describing the battle of Mazra concludes thus:—"Where all did their duty so willingly and effectually there may seem little room for the selection of individuals for prominent notice. I cannot, however, refrain from recording the names of some officers whose exceptional services, I consider, entitle them to the favourable consideration of his Excellency the Commander in Chief. Major General J. Ross C.B., commanding the Infantry Division and 2nd in command, afforded me every assistance during the march from Kabul and the operations at Kandahar. By the able manner in which he conducted the attack on the Afghan position on Sept. 1 he has given a fresh proof of his many soldierly qualities and of his fitness for command. Major General Ross speaks in high terms of the following officers of his staff:—Major G. de C. Morton, assistant adjutant general; Major R. G. Kennedy, assistant quartermaster general; Officiating Deputy Surgeon General J. Ekin, M.B.; Captain J. D. Mansel, Rifle Brigade, aide de camp; and Lieut. A. Davidson, 2-60th Rifles; Lieut. the Hon. M. G. Talbot, R.E.; and Lieut. F. B. Longe, R.E., orderly officers. I am greatly indebted to Brigadier General H. T. Macpherson, C.B., V.C., commanding the 1st Infantry Brigade; Brigadier General T. D. Baker, C.B., commanding the 2nd Infantry Brigade; Brigadier General C. M. M'Gregor, C.B., C.S.I., C.I.E., commanding the 3rd Infantry Brigade; Brigadier General Hugh H. Gough, C.B., V.C., commanding the Cavalry Brigade. With such able and experienced officers in command of brigades success was a certainty. Throughout the long and trying march from Cabul they maintained the strictest discipline, and brought their troops to Kandahar in the highest state of efficiency. I desire to bring to the special notice of his Excellency the Commander in Chief the valuable services of these distinguished officers. Brigadier General Macpherson reports favourably of the following officers, who served under his command:—Major J. C. Robinson, R.A., commanding No. 6-8th Royal Artillery; Lieut. Col. G. H. Parker, commanding the 92nd Highlanders; Lieut. Col. A. Battye, commanding the 2nd (P.W.O.) Goorkhas; Lieut. Col. H. Collett, commanding the 23rd Pioneers and Col. F. B. Norman, commanding the 24th Punjab Native Infantry. Captain R. E. C. Jarvis, 67th Foot, brigade major, for the intelligent manner in which he carried out the duties of his appointment. Captain A. D. M'Gregor, 92nd Highlanders, deputy assistant quartermaster general, for his intelligence and untiring energy. Captain R. P. Tickell, R.E., field engineer, for his valuable services during the march from Cabul and usefulness during the action of Sept. 1. Lieut. E. S. E. Childers, R.E., orderly officer. Brigadier General Macpherson records that the devotion of the medical officers of the brigade in attending to the wounded in the field under fire was most admirable. He mentions—Surgeon Major S. B. Roe, M.B., 92nd Highlanders; Surgeon Major W. Finden, 2nd (P.W.O.) Goorkhas; Surgeon E. H. Fenn, No. 6-8th Royal Artillery; Surgeon H. J. Linton, 24th Punjab Native Infantry; and Surgeon H. Hamilton, M.D., 23rd Pioneers. Brigadier General T. D. Baker would wish to mention specially the names of the following officers:—Major G. Swinley, R.A., commanding No. 2 Mountain Battery; Major C. M. Stockwell, commanding the 72nd Highlanders; Lieut. Col. J. J. Boswell, commanding the 2nd Sikhs; Lieut. Col. A. FitzHugh, commanding the 5th Goorkhas; Col. O. V. Tanner, commanding the 29th Bombay Native Infantry; Captain W. C. Farwel, General List, Infantry, brigade major; Lieut. F. T. N. Spratt, R.E., deputy assistant quartermaster general; Captain W. G. Nicholson, R.E., field engineer; Captain M. N. G. Kane, 72nd Highlanders, ordinary officer; Surgeon Major G. W. M'Nalty, M.D. Surgeon Major C. A. Atkins, for the manner in which he attended the wants of the wounded in the fighting line. Brigadier General M'Gregor desires to record his appreciation of the support and assistance he received from Major J. M. Douglas, R.A., commanding No. 11-9th Royal Artillery; Lieut. Col. J. J. Collins, commanding the 2nd Battalion 60th Royal Rifles; Lieut. Col. G. R. Hennessy, commanding the 15th Sikhs; Col. J. W. Hoggan, commanding the 25th Punjab Native Infantry; and Lieut. Col. F. F. Rowcrott, commanding the 4th Goorkhas. Captain R. Chalmer, 2-60th Rifles, brigade major, who proved himself a most zealous officer; Captain A. Gaselee, deputy assistant quartermaster general, who aided much by his knowledge of the country; Captain M. C. Brackenbury, R.E., field engineer, an excellent and energetic officer; Captain H. M'L. Hutchinson, 14th Foot, orderly officer, who rendered every assistance in his power. He further brings forward the following regimental officers:—Captain A. E. Duthy, R.A., 11-9th Royal Artillery. 2-60th Rifles—Major W. G. Byron and Captains J. N. Blackwood-Price and H. S. Marsham. 15th Sikhs—Major D. W. Inglis and Captain H. A. Abbott. 25th Punjab Native Infantry—Captain W. V. Ellis and Lieut. C. H. H. Beley. 4th Goorkhas—Major E. P. Mainwaring, Captain C. A. Mercer, Surgeon Major G. C. Chesnaye, and Surgeon Major E. C. Markey. Brigadier General Hugh Gough states that his thanks are specially due to Major J. A. Tillard, R.H.A., commanding E-B, Royal Horse Artillery; Lieut. Col. H. A. Bushman, commanding the 9th (Queen's Royal) Lancers; Lieut. Col. A. R. D. Mackenzie, commanding the 3rd Bengal Cavalry; Lieut. Col. C. Martin, commanding the Central India Horse; Major A.

Vivian, commanding the 3rd Punjab Cavalry; Captain J. P. Brabazon, 10th Hussars, brigade major; Major B. A. Combe, 10th Hussars, deputy assistant quartermaster general; Captain C. F. Call, R.E., field engineer; Captain H. Burnley, 6th Dragoon Guards; and Lieut. M. O. Little, 9th Lancers, orderly officers; and Surgeon Major R. Lewer. I beg to acknowledge with thanks the aid I have received throughout from Col. Alured C. Johnson, R.H.A., commanding the Royal Artillery, and Col. Æ. Perkins, C.B., R.E., commanding Royal Engineer. Officers commanding batteries, whose names are brought forward by the officer commanding the Royal Artillery, have already been mentioned by the brigadier generals commanding the brigade to which their batteries were attached, with the exception of Major P. H. Greig, R.A., commanding C-2nd Royal Artillery, whose services on Sept. 1 Col. Johnson desires to acknowledge, and Major T. Graham, commanding No. 6-8th Royal Artillery, who shared the arduous march from Cabul, but was unfortunately prevented by sickness from commanding his battery during the operations at Kandahar. He mentions also Captain H. Pipon, R.H.A., adjutant, Royal Artillery, and Lieut. R. A. Bannatine, R.A., orderly officer, both of whom afforded him every assistance. Col. Perkins speaks favourably of the assistance he received from Lieut. T. P. Cather, R.E., adjutant, Royal Engineers. I trust I may be permitted here to record my opinion of the excellent services performed by the following regimental officers who have been with me throughout all, or the greater part of the campaign in Afghanistan, and are still serving under my command:—Royal Artillery—Lieut. E. A. Smith, 9th (Queen's Royal) Lancers—Captain H. W. Apperley, Captain J. H. Stewart-Mackenzie, Captain B. Gough, and Lieut. E. B. McInnis. 72nd Highlanders—Major C. W. N. Guinness, Captain R. Garnett, Captain M. N. G. Kane, Captain. R. H. Murray, Lieut. R. N. Milne, and Lieut. S. C. H. Monro. 92nd Highlanders—Major G. S. White, Captain L. C. Singleton, Captain R. F. Darvall, Captain the Hon. J. Scott-Napier, Captain C. W. H. Douglas, and Lieut. W. H. Dick Cunyngnam. 3rd Bengal Cavalry—Lieut. Col. B. Cracroft and Major G. W. Willock. 3rd Punjab Cavalry—Major W. C. Anderson, Major J. D. Macpherson, and Captain C. C. Egerton. Central India Horse—Major H. M. Buller, Major J. Colledge, and Major M. G. Gerard. 2nd Goorkhas—Major S. E. Becher and Lieut. H. S. Wheatley. 23rd Pioneers—Captain H. Paterson and Captain S. V. Gordon. 24th Punjab Native Infantry—Captain E. Stedman. 2nd Sikh Infantry—Major H. M. Pratt, Major J. B. Slator, and Major F. E. Hastings. 3rd Sikh Infantry—Major C. J. Griffiths, and Major W. W. Aislabie. 5th Goorkhas—Major J. M. Sym, Captain E. Molloy, Lieut. A. B. Martin, Lieut. C. C. Chenevix Trench, and Lieut. C. C. St. E. Lucas. Lieut. Col. E. F. Chapman, R.A., who has held the important post of deputy adjutant and quartermaster general, has afforded me throughout the most valuable and material assistance. His services in Afghanistan are well known to the Commander in Chief in India; I am glad, however, to have this opportunity of bringing the name of this excellent staff officer prominently before his Excellency. Deputy Surgeon General J. Hanbury, M.B., proved himself to be an efficient administrative medical officer, and carried on the duties of his responsible office to my entire satisfaction. To Major A. R. Badcock, deputy commissary general, the entire force is deeply indebted. The manner in which he and the officers under his orders overcame difficulties of no ordinary nature, and the way in which they exerted themselves to procure the daily supply, are deserving of particular mention. The administrative talent possessed by Major Badcock is of the highest order, and I cannot recommend his services too strongly for recognition by his Excellency the Commander in Chief and the Government of India. Major Badcock speaks in the highest terms of all the officers of the Commissariat Department with the force, but he brings forward especially the name of Captain A. T. S. A. Rind, Bengal Staff Corps. The valuable services performed by Lieut. Col. R. C. Low, Bengal Cavalry, chief director of transport, and the officers of his department, can scarcely be considered apart from those of the Commissariat Department. I would wish here to record my high sense of the admirable work accomplished by Lieut. Col. Low and his able staff of assistants. The mobility of the force depended upon the efficiency of the transport, and it is mainly due to the untiring energy of these officers that the troops were able to perform such long and continuous marches and to reach their destination with the transport animals in such excellent condition. Lieut. Col. Low brings to special notice Captain W. A. Wynter, 33rd Foot, and Lieut. L. E. B. Booth, 33rd Foot. Major C. A. Gorham, R.A., deputy judge advocate general, has carried on his duties entirely to my satisfaction. Major C. Cowie, R.A., commissary of ordnance, had a difficult and arduous task to perform, his successful accomplishment of which deserves my acknowledgment. My thanks are also due to Lieut. W. G. Small, 50th Foot, in charge of the field treasure chest. The Rev. J. W. Adams, B.A., chaplain, Church of England; the Rev. G. W. Manson, B.D., and the Rev. Alexander Ferrier, M.A., the Presbyterian chaplains, and the Very Rev. Father G. Browne, were throughout most attentive to their duties. Major E. G. G. Hastings, chief political officer, and the following officers of the political staff:—Captain J. W. Ridgeway, Major C. B. Euan Smith, C.S.I., and Major M. Protheroe have rendered me every assistance and have spared themselves no trouble nor exposure in their endeavours to gain information and to procure supplies for the force. It affords me much pleasure to bring forward the names of the officers serving on my personal staff, who have at all times been unremitting in the performance of their duties. Major G. T. Pretymann, R.A., has, in addition to his duties as aide de camp, held the position of commandant of field force headquarters; Lieut. J. Sherston, Rifle Brigade, aide de camp; Captain R. Pole-Carew, Coldstream Guards, and Captain the Hon. W. C. Rowley, R.A., orderly officers; Surgeon J. F. Williamson, M.B."

HOME NEWS.

MR. E. STANHOPE, M.P., ON INDIA.—Mr. Edward Stanhope, member for Mid-Lincolnshire, attended the annual dinner of the Alford Agricultural Society on Friday, and in the evening addressed a large number of his constituents. Responding to the toast of the "County Members," the hon. gentleman referred to affairs in Afghanistan as being a subject with which he was specially connected. He was happy to think the war in that country had now come to a conclusion. He yielded to no man in his horror and detestation of war if it could possibly be avoided; but he feared in the present condition of the British Empire, with its many dependencies, that they would not be free from war in future. The Afghan war had been brought to a conclusion in a manner which reflected the greatest possible credit upon the British army. General Roberts would arrive in England next week, and he hoped shortly afterwards they would hear that her Majesty, advised by her Ministers, would think fit to confer greater honours upon the gallant general than had hitherto been bestowed upon him. (Hear, hear.) Mixed up with that triumph there was a great disaster—a defeat most crushing. He thought the causes of that defeat had not yet been made clear to the English people. So far, however, as they could at present understand—and there had been very little material to enable them to understand it, except what they gathered from the very able report sent home last week by a correspondent of the Standard—he did not think they could possibly doubt that a very grave error had been committed in sending out a very small army to a distant place to fight against an army known to be so superior to them in point of numbers and artillery. Another mistake was that reinforcements were not sent at once to General Burrows. They had been told that a strict inquiry should take place into the causes of the disaster, but months had now passed by and he had not yet heard of any inquiry. He could only say that he believed the English people would not be satisfied unless they knew the causes of such a terrible disaster were probed to their very bottom. (Hear, hear.) There were one or two prominent principles affecting their connection with Afghanistan, independent of anything that had happened, and independently of the war which had recently come to a conclusion. They ought never to forget that the primary condition of their existence on the frontier was that they should always be ready to resent the encroachments of Russia, and they must be very careful to watch her in the future. It was far from his intention to be jealous of Russia in Central Asia, but above all things they must have no intriguing in Afghanistan. He did not wish to suggest that Russia intended anything of that sort; but, from what had already taken place, he was led to the conclusion that they ought to keep a watchful eye in that direction. Their second principle was that they could never in the future afford to ignore Afghanistan. If people said they must flee from a policy of watchfulness which was attended with such disaster or danger he would say to them it was not by fleeing from difficulty and danger that our Indian Empire was won, and it will not be by doing so in the future that that Empire will be preserved. (Applause.)

INDIAN PHOENIX GOLD MINING COMPANY.—The directors notify that the explorations made on the Phoenix estate by Capt. Giffard, the mining engineer of the Indian Glenrock Gold Mining Company, have resulted in a very satisfactory exhibition of gold in the reef examined, which he describes as six feet wide. The directors have secured the services of Mr. Daniel Grove, late president of both the mining boards of Bendigo, Victoria, and the Thames Goldfields, New Zealand, who left England last week to proceed direct to the Wynaad for that purpose.

THE BOMBAY ARMY.—The command of a division of the Bombay Army is about to fall vacant by the return to England of Lieut. General J. Forbes, C.B. The appointment is proposed to be given either to Major General R. Phayre, C.B., or Major General J. Watson, V.C., C.B.

ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.—On Tuesday afternoon the inaugural meeting of the 50th session of this society was held at the offices of the institution, 22, Albermarle-street, Piccadilly. Major General Sir H. C. Rawlinson, K.C.B., F.R.S., president and director, occupied the chair, and amongst the numerous attendance were the following:—General MacLagan, Sir Richard Temple, G.C.S.I., C.I.E., Sir T. E. Colebrook, Bart., M.P., Colonel Keatinge, V.C., C.S.I., Cclonel Yule, C.B., Lieutenant-Colonel T. H. Lewin, Mr. James Fergusson, D.C.L., F.R.S., Mr. W. S. W. Vaux, M.A., F.R.S. (secretary), Mr. E. L. Brandreth, Mr. A. Grote, and Mr. R. N. Cust. There were also several native Indians present. Some routine business having been gone through, the secretary announced the receipt of numerous presents to the society during the vacation. The following gentlemen were next unanimously elected by ballot:—As resident members: Mr. S. S. Thorburn, Bengal Civil Service, 33, Canning-street, Liverpool; Sir William Rose Robinson, Captain R. Gill, R.E., and the Rev. Marsham F. Argles, M.A., Oxford. As non-resident members: The Right Rev. the Bishop of Lahore, Lieutenant H. E. M'Callum, R.E., assistant colonial engineer Straits Settlements; Mr. S. W. Bushell, M.D., Peking, and Abd-er-Rahman Moulvie Syed, barrister-at law.—The chairman said at the commencement of a new session he had to congratulate the society on the progress it had made. He had no reason to doubt of the future of the society, for the sphere of their labours was inexhaustible, and they had the services of a most indefatigable secretary, who had done wonders for the institution.—Professor Monier Williams, LL.D., C.I.E., Sanskrit professor in the University of Oxford, then read a paper on "Indian Theistic Reforms," in which he pointed out that Theism was really the original form of religion in India, and had never been wholly lost sight of by the people, however gross might have been the idolatry preached in some times or places. The old hymns of the Rig-Veda showed what the ancient faith was, and the Brahma Samaj, or modern Theistic Church of Bengal, was in fact only a revival of the ancient belief in one God. Professor Williams then gave a detailed account of the modern revival and revivalists, of which the most eminent, he said, was Rammohun Roy.—A short discussion followed the reading of the paper, the author of which was accorded the thanks of the meeting.

SOUTH EAST WYNAAD ESTATES AND GOLD MINING COMPANY.—It is notified that eight bags of quartz, taken from seven cases, ex Puna, were forwarded by Messrs. Pixley and Abell to Messrs. Johnson, Matthey, and Co., whose assay shows an average of 60z. 9dwts. per ton, inclusive of the Bolingbroke leader. Further certificates from the same firm and from the Royal School of Mines give the assay of leaders on the Elizabeth estate 80z. per ton, and on the Needlerock estate at 600z. and 6080z. per ton.

ENGLAND AND INDIA.

ON Friday Mr. W. W. Hunter, C.I.E., director general of statistics to the Government of India, delivered his second and concluding address in Edinburgh on what the English have yet to do for the Indian people. Mr. Hunter said, as his previous address had been devoted to the poverty of the Indian people, so the present one would be directed to the difficulties which that poverty gives rise to in the government of the country. The revenue-yielding powers of a nation are regulated not by its numbers, but by the margin which exists between its national earnings and its requirements for subsistence. It is because this margin is so great in England that the English are the most taxable people in the world; it is because this margin is so small in India that any increase in the revenue gives rise to serious difficulties. But in estimating those difficulties we should realise that we take much less taxation from the Indian people than our predecessors did. The Mogul revenue demanded from an empire smaller in area and less populous than our own, between 1593 and 1761, varied from 40 to 80 millions sterling; and the land tax averaged over 28 millions. The whole average net taxation of British India, excluding opium, was 34 millions during the past ten years, and the average net land revenue was just over 18 millions. Our Indian taxation also contrasted favourably with that of other Asiatic countries at the present day. In Japan, the only other empire in Asia with an attempt at a civilised government, the net taxation is about 6s. per head; in India it is 3s. 6d. The weak point of our financial condition in India is not that we take more from the people than their native rulers did, but that what we take barely suffices for the cost of our administration. We take less taxation from the people, and we try to give them a much better Government in return. No previous Governments of India ever maintained an army on such a scale as to permanently put down invasion and piracy from without and the predatory races within. No native dynasty ever attempted to develop the resources of India by a complete network of communications. No Mogul Emperor ever mapped out India for judicial purposes, assigning to each small rural district a court of justice paid for from the Imperial Exchequer. The police of the Mogul Empire were an undisciplined, half-starved soldiery, who lived upon the peasantry. The task of educating the whole Indian people, rich and poor, of whatever caste and creed, was never attempted. In these, as in many other departments, we have had to build up, from the very foundations, the fabric of a civilised government. The cost of the mere material fabric, of its court-houses, schools, gaols, barracks, hospitals, &c., has exceeded one hundred millions sterling. The truth is, we have suddenly applied our own English ideas of what a good Government should be to an Asiatic country, where the people pay not one-tenth per head of the English rate of taxation. It is easy enough to govern efficiently at a cost of over 40s. per head, as in England; the problem before Indian finance ministers is how to attain the same standard of efficiency at a cost of 3s. 6d. a head. Indian finance ministers in endeavouring to solve this problem had cut down salaries and abolished highly-paid posts, but he believed that if we are to govern the Indian people efficiently and cheaply we must govern them to a still greater extent by means of themselves, and pay for the administration at the market rates for native labour. He maintained the more extended employment of natives to be not only an act of justice but a financial necessity. He also looked forward to a large saving from the reorganisation of our military establishments, which is now being proposed by the Indian Army Commission. But he believed that, in addition to such savings, there is in India a necessity for a steadily-increasing revenue, and that there is no use in shirking that fact. The Indian revenues do not stand still, but they do not augment with the same rapidity as the increased demands upon them. The finance ministers of India had tried to meet these demands partly by a new system of local taxation and partly by the introduction of direct taxation. Local taxation was now giving an impulse to local self-government. Direct taxation is even more unpopular in India than it was in England thirty years ago. Year after year we are assured in England that the income-tax was only temporary; by slow degrees we have been constrained to recognise it as a permanent item in our national taxation. The Indian people are now learning the same lesson with equal difficulty. In a country where the people are poor the Government ought to be poor; for it must either be poor or oppressive. No financial dexterity will get rid of the poverty of the Indian people, which lies at the root of the poverty of the Indian Government. The rigidity of our revenue demand was the inevitable result of the rigid punctuality in our public payments. The proposals to relax that rigidity were impracticable. The leading points of the native programme of reform were that they were asking for a larger and more independent share in the legislative councils of India; for military economies; for the larger employment of natives; for a commission of inquiry similar to those great parliamentary committees which sat every twentieth year in the time of the Company to inquire into its administration. They were also asking for the complete liberty of the press and for representative institutions. The Government was trying to concede many of these points, and he believed that the concession of most of the others was only a matter of time. The natives of India must themselves reform themselves; they must restrain the increase of the population to the food-producing powers of the land, and more equally distribute the pressure on the soil by migration to the less thickly inhabited provinces. In conclusion, he made an earnest appeal that his countrymen here should study India more carefully; that they should act in a spirit of absolute honesty to the Indian finances, and that they should deal with any proposals for Indian reform which may be sent home, not in the interest of English class influences or party claims, but in the sole interest of the Indian people.

GENERAL ROBERTS'S RETURN.

YESTERDAY General Sir Frederick Roberts, V.C., K.C.B., landed at Dover and received a cordial welcome from the Mayor and Corporation of that ancient borough. Accompanying him were the officers who have been serving in Afghanistan:—General Hill, General Macpherson, General Baker, General Gough, Colonel Chapman, Major Prettyman, Major Kennedy, Major Woodthorpe, Captain Holditch, R.E., and Lieutenant Childers. The weather was not of a favourable character. For the previous twenty-four hours a hard south westerly gale had been blowing, and as the time for the arrival approached it seemed to increase in violence. The sea broke in cascades of spray and drift over the length of the noble Admiralty Pier, which was deserted till about the hour fixed for the arrival of the Calais boat, when crowds of people of both sexes took up their positions on the upper terrace. The lower roadway on the level of the line of rails was reserved for visitors with special claims to consideration, such as relatives of the officers who were expected, and amongst them came Lady Roberts, escorted by General Sir Thomas Bruce, General Newdigate, commanding at Dover, and his staff, and a crowd of local notables. In front and under the lee of the Lord Warden Hotel many hundreds of spectators found a much more agreeable resting place. Shortly after four o'clock the boat was run alongside, and as it was dead low water the disembarkation was effected at the wooden landing-stage, which was occupied by the immediate friends of the officers on board. General Roberts was soon recognised as he came into the outer air, enveloped in a long brown ulster shaped wrap, and there was hearty cheering from the moment he stepped on shore, while he received the affectionate salutation of his wife and friends, the soldier-like greeting and congratulations of General Newdigate, and a round of handshaking from all and sundry the favoured occupants of the landing-stage. Mounting to the level of the pier a tremendous burst of applause broke from the spray-beaten crowd on the upper terrace, which was continued all along the pier while the party were moving towards the Lord Warden. Here the cheering was taken up by the crowd, who were sheltered by the hotel, and continued while the party were taking their seats in the carriages which were in waiting to convey them to the Town-hall. As the cortège proceeded through the streets of the town the passengers and inhabitants took up the greeting, the passage being quite a triumphal procession. At the Town-hall a fresh enthusiastic crowd contributed their full proportion to the acclamations which everywhere arose as soon as the honoured guest made his appearance. The floor of the hall was laid with crimson cloth, having at one end a raised dais with fine carved table and chairs. The Mayor and Corporation, with their officials, marched in state from the dais to the entrance gate, where Sir Frederick and his companions were received with the strains of a band playing "See the conquering hero," and escorted to the dais, the whole company rising and taking up the cheering which had announced the arrival outside. Here, surrounded by the municipal officers in all their bravery, and flanked by General Newdigate and his staff in uniform, the returned officers—albeit travel-stained, storm-tossed, and weary—formed quite a picturesque group. The mayor, after a few brief remarks, called upon the town clerk to read the address, which was received with cheers, to which

Sir F. ROBERTS replied as follows:—Your Worship, Aldermen, and Burgesses of Dover,—I scarcely know how to thank you for the kind manner in which you have greeted me on my return to England, and for the flattering terms in which you have alluded to my services in Afghanistan. On any other occasion I should hesitate to accept such terms of praise as your worship and the Corporation of Dover have seen fit to address to me to-day; but I feel that the cordial welcome which you have given me here is not intended for me alone, but also for those officers who have accompanied me from India, and for the whole of the army, British as well as native, with which it has been our privilege and our good fortune to have been associated during the last two years. (Loud cheers.) On behalf of those officers and of the army I accept, without reserve, all that your worship has been kind enough to say. The report of the reception which the good people of Dover have been good enough to give me to-day will be read with great interest throughout India, but with peculiar satisfaction by those who have been recently under my command, one and all of whom will feel that a share of the great honour you have done me is theirs. (Cheers.) I am glad to have so early an opportunity of letting it be known how much gratified we in Afghanistan were by the deep personal interest with which all in England, from the highest in the realm downwards, regarded the welfare of our troops during the whole campaign. The kindly words of sympathy enabled us to make light of hardships, and encouraged us to do our duty in a manner which I am proud to learn, from the generous words which your worship has used, has earned us the approval of our countrymen. (Cheers.) Whatever soldier I may be, I am a shocking bad sailor, and the tossing I have had for the last three hours has quite taken out of me whatever speechifying power I may have possessed. (Laughter.) I will therefore say no more, but ask you to accept, on behalf of myself, and of those who have shared the fortune of war with me, our sincere thanks for the great honour you have done us. (Loud cheers.)

General BRUCE then proposed three cheers for Lady Roberts, which were given with hearty good will, the fairer portion of the assembly waving their handkerchiefs as her ladyship bowed her acknowledgments. Three cheers were then proposed and given for the gallant men who were left in India, the Mayor judiciously bringing the vociferous epidemic and the proceedings to a close by three cheers for the Queen.

The Mayor and Corporation then escorted the honoured guests from the dais to a chamber where light refreshments were laid out. No long stay was made, for Sir Frederick and his gallant companions had arranged to leave for London by special train on the London, Chatham, and Dover, and they speedily betook themselves to the carriages in waiting, receiving a fresh ovation from the crowd that surrounded the Town-hall, and a running fire of cheering accompanying them to the station. Here there was a fresh assembly, from whom vociferous indications of approval were received as the party took their seats and steamed out of the station. Victoria was reached at 7.15, after a capital run of 1½ hour. Here a space was barricaded off by temporary barriers, within which a little group of Sir Frederick Roberts's relatives and friends were waiting to receive him. Outside the barriers a considerable throng of people collected and cheered vigorously as soon as the train arrived. This welcome was continued during the brief interval that General Roberts was engaged in receiving the salutations and congratulations of his friends and until he and they occupied seats in the carriages which were in waiting, the whole party leaving amid similar expressions of popular approval.

THE "PISTON" FREEZING MACHINE (ASH'S PATENT).

The "Piston" Freezing Machine Freezing and Moulding Dessert Ices, Icing Wines, and making Block Ice.

ASH'S "PISTON" FREEZING MACHINE is the most effective and economical method of freezing known. It is rapidly becoming a part of the "cuisine" in the establishments of the aristocracy of this country; it has received the highest patronage, and is used in all parts of the world. By this process Ice Creams are frozen in shapes ready for table—an operation never before accomplished—entirely superseding the use of ice pots and moulds; it also forms a Wine Cooler and produces Blocks of Ice. When not used with the usual ice and salt mixture, as on board ships, in the Tropics, &c., Ash's Freezing Powders are most effective, and guaranteed to succeed.

Price of the Machines, from 50s. each.

The "Piston" Freezing Machine (without the Fittings) forming a complete Wine Cooler.

Ash's Freezing Powders, 34s. per cwt., or in Boxes at 11s., 22s., and 40s. each.

THE SELF-FEEDING REFRIGERATOR.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Nov. 6; Madras and Allahabad, Nov. 4; Calcutta, Nov. 3.

REPORTS on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending the 26th ultimo state that in Madras general and favourable rain has fallen; the autumn crops are being harvested, with an average outturn. In Bombay there was rain in Guzerat and the Deccan; and the prospects of the spring crop are so far good. Beneficial rain fell in most districts of Bengal, but more is required in some places; the rabi sowings are progressing satisfactorily. In the North Western Provinces slight rain is reported from a few districts; it was general in Partabgarh, and has secured the rabi sowings in that district. The sowing of cold weather crops is also progressing elsewhere; but unless rain falls in the south western portion of the North Western Provinces and in the southern districts of Oudh, except Partabgarh, there will, in many localities, be little hope of much rabi harvest. There is some distress amongst labourers in Cawnpore and part of Rai Bareilly; but so far there is no immediate need for the opening of any relief work in the latter district. In the Punjab there was no rain during the week, and the yield of the autumn harvest will not be up to the average; but prices have not yet been much affected. Rain has been general in the Central Provinces, but heavy only in Jubbulpore; it has caused injury to crops in a few places and has interfered with preparations for the rabi in others. Prospects, however, continue to be favourable on the whole. The rainfall in Burma during the week was again moderate; crops are doing well, but more rain is required in Akyab and in several districts of the Pegu division. In Assam the prospects of the crops remain good. In Mysor and Coorg there was general and abundant rain; prospects are satisfactory, and prices are falling. In Berar and Hyderabad slight rain fell, and the crops seem to be thriving. In the Central India States rain was more or less general. There was rain also in Rajputana, where spring sowings have begun. Prospects throughout the Empire remain generally favourable, except in the south west districts of the North West Provinces and in part of Oudh, where the insufficiency of the latter rain has shortened the kharif outturn and is in many places rendering the rabi sowings either impracticable or uncertain.

ACCORDING to the most recent telegrams the weather and crop reports from the North West Provinces show no improvement in the situation. Rain is still wanted in many districts, but as yet there is little or no distress anywhere, except at Cawnpore and Rae Bareilly. Even in the last-named district, which is the worst of all, it is not yet deemed necessary to open the public relief works which were sanctioned some time ago. Everything depends on the Christmas rains, and, unhappily, the experience of recent years seems to show that they cannot be depended upon.

THE telegrams from Kandahar and Calcutta contain the following items of interest:—

“From Herat it is reported that Ayub has appointed governors to all his districts, a step which he did not take before, and which indicates that he has more freedom of action than when he was practically a puppet in the hands of the Cabuli troops. His entourage is now mainly composed of Duranis, and if he will only keep quiet and not oppress the people too much there is a fair chance of his consolidating his power. One point in his favour is that the leaders of the party opposed to him, a son and a grandson of the old vizier, Yar Mahomed, and Faizu, the general who led the revolt of the Herati troops last year, are here, having come to proffer their assistance in the march to Herat which all felt certain would follow the victory of Sept. 1. Ahmed Khan, the hereditary semi-independent ruler of Lash Jumain, is dead, and his heritage is likely to cause a dispute, one of his younger sons having recently murdered the eldest son. Travellers continue to arrive at Kandahar from Cabul, and declare that Mahomed Jan has refused the offer of the late Ameer's widow. A confidential servant of the Ameer is here arranging for the journey to Bul of his mother and wives, who were imprisoned in Kandahar by the late Ameer after Abdul Rahman's flight to Turkestan, and were liberated by us two years ago. General Hume is at Quetta, and is expected at Kandahar by the end of the month, when General Phayre leaves, whether for India or the line of communications is unknown. The health of the Khyber garrison appears to be far from satisfactory. The native regiments there, already much shattered by the hard work of the campaign, are said to be quite unfit to stand the winter. If they are not speedily relieved it is probable that pneumonia will repeat its deadly work of last year. General Macgregor's expedition against the Marris was completely successful. As soon as the troops appeared the Marris asked for terms, which the general granted. They have paid Rs. 50,000 and given security for a further sum and for future good behaviour. The Herat memorial already described has been signed by all the leading sirdars beyond Zemindawar. All now depends upon Ayub's father in law, whose influence is paramount at Herat. Ayub is reported to be busy manufacturing arms; he has sent all his family jewels to Persia for conversion into cash. The report that Maimenah was occupied by Cabul troops has not been confirmed; the rumour probably arose out of the withdrawal of Ayub's garrison from that place to Herat. The Shah has ordered Ayub's emissaries to come on to Teheran. At and around Kandahar all is quiet. The Turcomans having made an excursion into Herat territory, Ayub has despatched a force to expel them. The Heratee regiments which were defeated at Kandahar refuse to serve any longer and have dispersed to their homes.”

SIR ROBERT SANDEMAN, the Governor General's agent for Beluchistan, goes home on furlough at once. He will be succeeded by Mr. Macnabb, commissioner of Peshawar.

It is reported from Kashmir that the feudatory tribes to the northward of that country are in revolt against the Maharaja and that Major Biddulph, British Resident at Gilgit, is employed in keeping them in check with 700 Sikhs of the Maharaja's army. It is added that, should he be obliged to retire, a general rising will probably take place, and that the tribes from Gilgit to Ladakh will try to throw off their allegiance to Kashmir-India.

THE command of the Mooltan Brigade, in succession to General G. R. Hughes, who is invalided home, has been conferred on Lieut. Col. Rideout, 21st Madras Infantry. This is said to be the first case of a Madras officer getting the Mooltan command.

BRIGADIER GENERAL C. M'GREGOR, C.B., C.S.I., who commanded a brigade in the march of General Roberts's force from Cabul to Kandahar, including the defeat of Ayub Khan's army, has, states the Evening Standard, been offered, and has accepted, the appointment of deputy quartermaster general of the Indian Army, which he will hold for five years. General M'Gregor is about to be knighted for his services.

MR. ADAM will leave England for Brindisi on Friday next. His aide de camp, Captain Wyllie, who has only just returned from Kandahar, will start again for India in about a month's time.

THE Bombay Gazette informs us that at Nahun his Excellency the Viceroy rode in a howdah of “superb gold Oriental work” on “the largest elephant ever measured,” 10ft. 8in. high.

ANOTHER of the Cabul heroes has received a good appointment. The command of the Hyderabad Contingent has been given to Col. Charles Gough as a reward for good field service. Sir Frederick Roberts, it is said, strongly supported this appointment.

A MOVEMENT is on foot among the natives of Madras to raise subscriptions for a memorial to the Duke of Buckingham.

A MEMBER of the Madras Civil Service, suspended some weeks ago pending the result of inquiries as to his correspondence with a native landowner relative to a concession of mining rights, has fully satisfied the Government that he had not violated the regulations of the service. The Madras Mail says that he now takes three months' leave to Bangalore, the order instructing him to report himself in London having been cancelled.

THE Citizen states that Sir Frederick Roberts has consented to receive the freedom of the Grocers' Company, which the Court of Assistants proposed to confer on him. Among the officers who accompanied Sir Frederick from India was General Hugh Gough.

GENERAL SIR FREDERICK ROBERTS has accepted the invitation of the Stewards of the 216th Anniversary Festival of the Scottish Corporation to attend the banquet on St. Andrew's Day, Nov. 30, when the Earl of Fife will preside. It is hoped that Major General Macpherson, C.B., V.C., Major R. Kennedy, Lieut. Col. Heathcote, and Col. E. F. Chapman, who served with him in Afghanistan, will also be present.

THE designs for the Afghan medal have been submitted to her Majesty for approval. The colour of the riband will be green and red.

COL. THE HON. G. WROTTESELEY's period of staff service as commanding the Royal Engineers at Woolwich will expire at the end of next December, when he will be succeeded by Col. Sir Andrew Clarke, C.B., K.C.M.G., C.I.E., Royal Engineers, who is at present on leave.

IT is announced that Mr. Griffith, the director of public instruction in the North West, and Dr. Thibaut, principal of the Benares College, are about to publish a new series of Sanscrit texts. These will take the place of the Pandit, the monthly publication of the Benares College, which is to be discontinued.

A MEMORIAL is about to be forwarded to the Marquis of Hartington from Madras complaining of the absence of the local Government at the hills for nine months in the year.

ALL transit dues throughout Bijawar have been abolished by the Maharaja of that State. He has been publicly thanked by the Viceroy.

THE Commander in Chief in India has directed commanding officers and heads of departments to send in rolls of officers and men who are entitled to the Cabul medal, which will be issued, it is to be hoped, with a little more promptness than is usual on such occasions. The operations for which the medal will be granted are the first phase of the war, between Sept. 22, 1878, and May 26, 1879, and the second phase between Sept. 3, 1879, to August 15, for the Khyber and Kuram lines, and to Sept. 20, 1880, for Southern Afghanistan.

BILLS for the management of native religious endowments will shortly be introduced in the Legislative Councils of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal.

At the meeting of the Legislative Council on Oct. 29 the consideration of the Raj Mahals Pension Bill was postponed. The Census Bill was passed, the Hon. C. Grant explaining that the point contended for by Sir R. E. Egerton, that the enumeration should be made by householders, was provided for. The Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act, 1876, Amendment Bill was also passed, the Hon. B. W. Colvin explaining that, as the bill now stood, it might be accepted as having fully received the approval of the Bombay Government.

A CALCUTTA paper hears that his Excellency the Viceroy is against Mr. Monteath's design of bringing out young men from England, on salaries of Rs.200 per mensem, to exercise some kind of control over the money-order system of remittance, and considers the project to be inconsistent with the spirit of the India-office despatch ordering the appointment of young men of the country to all offices of the kind.

THE Secretary of State, in acknowledging the despatch of the Indian Government forwarding the report of the Law Commission, refrains from expressing any opinion upon the abstract reasoning of the commission with respect to the principles upon which the codification should be conducted, but authorises the reference to a select committee of three of the bills reported upon—viz., those relating to negotiable instruments, the transfer of property, and collusion. He, however, directs that the reports of the committees are to be forwarded to him before any further action is taken.

THE revised rules for Government Savings Banks are published, the new rules having been found to stimulate deposits more than was anticipated and many new depositors not belonging to the class for whom such banks were designed. The amount of deposit to be received in one year on one account is restricted to Rs.500; the amount of monthly interest to be allowed on one account is limited to Rs.10½.

IT is stated that the Sultan of Turkey has ordered an Arabic newspaper to be started at each of the towns of Mecca, Bagdad, and Aleppo, with what particular object in view is as yet a secret. A newspaper thus published at Mecca may, it is suggested, perhaps expect a wide circulation in India.

THIS year has been marked among the Mahomedans by the holding of the Haji Akbar, which occurs more frequently than formerly. The last great pilgrimage took place three years ago. Between July 18 and Oct. 20 upwards of 10,000 pilgrims proceeded from Bombay to Mecca, and 2,000 more were, at date of mail, waiting for vessels to convey them. This is another indication of the activity of the league of Islam.

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND Co. have in the press, for immediate publication, a new work on Chili, by Mr. R. Nelson Boyd, F.R.G.S., which treats of the people, resources, &c., of the country, with notes on the wars 1879-80.

ESSAYS for the gold medal competition of the Royal United Service Institution will, it is announced, be received from India and China until the 1st of next month.

DR. ABDUL RAZAK recently drew up a report on the difficulties of pilgrims to Mecca, which was forwarded by the Government of India to the Secretary of State for India. The Secretary of State forwarded it to the Government of the Sultan for consideration, where it was amended by the Ulemas. This amended report has now been submitted, under orders from Government, to the Mahomedan Association at Calcutta for opinion. Among other things the report deals with the difficulty which the pilgrims have to encounter on board the vessels in procuring water and repeating their prayers, as also the want of purdahs for pilgrim women.

THE dewali in Bombay and other places has been held on a more extensive scale than for some years past. This is said to indicate that the trade of the country is generally in a prosperous condition.

THE Persian Government have recently introduced a "Game Birds and Wild Animals Law," making shikaring during the breeding season a penal offence.

DURING the week ending Oct. 23 there were 279 deaths in Calcutta, giving a death-rate of 38·8 per 1,000 per annum. In the same week in Madras there were 246 deaths, giving a death-rate of 32·1 per 1,000 per annum. In Bombay during the week ending Oct. 23 the deaths numbered 396, giving a death-rate of 29·29 per 1,000 per annum.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—Rev. Mr. Slater, Mr. R. C. Tucker, Mrs. Anderson, wife of Lieut. Col. C. J. Anderson, 1st Bombay Lancers, Mrs. Kettlewell, wife of Lieut. Col. Kettlewell, Bombay Staff Corps, Mr. F. Hawkes, C.E., Mr. W. T. Marshall, and Sirdhar Madat Khan.

A SHORT letter from General Roberts, published in the Gazette of India, says that he had inadvertently omitted from his former despatch the names of Lieut. Col. G. N. Money, commanding the 3rd Sikh Infantry, and Quartermaster J. Walsh, of the 72nd Highlanders, provost marshal of the Kabul-Kandahar Field Force, as having rendered specially good services during the march from Kabul to Kandahar and in the action of Sept. 1.

HIS EXCELLENCY GENERAL SIR F. P. HAINES has signified his intention of continuing his prizes for rifle competition by regiments of British and Native Cavalry, batteries of Royal Artillery, and regiments of British and Native Infantry of either Presidency, including the Punjab Frontier Force and regiments under the Government of India serving in Bengal, as also by all batteries and regiments, British and native, of the Madras and Bombay armies, which have been employed on service in Afghanistan, irrespective of the stations to which they may have proceeded. The intention of his Excellency is that the whole army may share and be interested in these matches. It is therefore suggested that the entrances should not be confined to a few regimentally selected men.

THE Government of India has extended the provisions of G.O.C.C. of Sept. 9, 1880, granting ninety days' privilege leave to officers belonging to regiments returning from Northern Afghanistan to India, to military officers of the Public Works Department returning from field service. All such officers are to be credited with three months' privilege leave on the date of rejoining the Public Works Department.

THE VICEROY'S TOUR.

THE Times correspondent telegraph that the Viceroy's tour through the Punjab and Sind and the speeches delivered by him at Lahore and elsewhere have almost entirely engrossed public attention for the past ten days. The proceedings at Lahore, as far as the ceremonial part of them is concerned, seem to have differed little, if at all, from other Indian durbars, and the only incident which marked them was the refusal of the Maharaja of Cashmir to take part in the procession. The official explanation of this refusal is that the Maharaja objected to the place assigned to him behind the cavalry escort and among the minor chieftains, and his attendance was accordingly excused; but the fact has recalled to people's minds several instances of an unconciliatory spirit recently displayed by the Cashmir chief as well as the hitherto uncontradicted rumour of the Government being in possession of proofs of intrigues carried on by him with the Ameer Shere Ali and the Russians. The explanation of his conduct at Lahore is therefore not generally accepted as satisfactory. A grand durbar and Chapter of the Bath were held on Monday. The object of the chapter was the investiture of Generals Stewart and Maude with the insignia of Grand Cross and Knight Commander respectively. A strange error seems to have crept into General Stewart's patent, as it recited that her Majesty was pleased to confer on him the decoration of the Victoria Cross, while the rest of the document referred, as was intended, to the Order of the Bath. At the durbar the Nawab of Bhawalpore was invested with the insignia of Grand Commander of the Star of India; while inferior degrees of that Order and of the Order of the Indian Empire were conferred on several native noblemen. After the durbar the Viceroy addressed the assembled princes and chiefs in a speech which was, perhaps, his most important utterance since his arrival in India. He had been commanded by the Queen Empress, he said, to convey to them her warm interest in their welfare and in the wellbeing of their people. The British Government entertained a desire for the honour of the chiefs and a deep solicitude for their subjects. He hoped the chiefs would remember this and be careful to retain the affection of their peoples, for, if disorder arose, the Government would judge that evils had crept in which required remedy. He then alluded to the fact that the last durbar at Lahore was that held by Lord Lawrence in 1864, and went on to say that, having enjoyed the friendship of that great man for many years, and being animated by sentiments of the heartiest admiration for him, it would be his constant endeavour to walk in his footsteps and apply his principles. During his stay at Lahore the Viceroy received addresses from various bodies and made several speeches in reply. He left Lahore on Tuesday for Mooltan, and a day was devoted to partridge shooting near that city. The next stage was to Jacobabad, where he was met by Sir Robert Sandeman and the Khan of Khelat. A durbar was held there to invest the Khan with the insignia of Grand Commander of the Star of India and to receive his sirdars from Jacobabad. Lord Ripon made a flying visit to Sibi and the entrance of the Bolan Pass. He arrived at Karachi on Nov. 22 and yesterday inspected the harbour works and breakwater and the site of the new Merewether pier, of which he was to lay the foundation-stone to-day. His Excellency has received a visit from the Jam of Lusbeyla. The Municipality and Chamber of Commerce have presented addresses to the Viceroy strongly urging the completion of railway communication with the Punjab by bridging the Indus, and representing the necessity of harbour improvements, the establishment of a daily post with Bombay and the reduction of the octroi duties. His Excellency, in reply, promised to give these matters his earnest attention. The Viceroy was to start for Bombay this evening.

The correspondent of the Times of India, telegraphing from Maggra, in the Dehra Dun, on Nov. 4, says:—"The Viceroy's party started from camp at ten o'clock. The elephants beat round the hill to the west, when a tiger showed, but it was not hit. The party went further west for a second beat. At 4.30 a tiger came up where the Viceroy was posted in a tree. His Excellency fired from twenty to thirty yards and killed the tiger. A deer passed but was not fired at. A few minutes after a second tiger showed, and the Viceroy wounded him badly. Captain Muir fired and grazed him. A third tiger was wounded."

THE MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.

THE directors announce that, after a long negotiation carried on during several months, the Government has agreed to take over the concern on terms, of which the following are the principal, affecting the stockholders and the mortgagees respectively:—"That on the transfer being completed the Secretary of State will, for each £100 of the capital stock of the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company, pay £106, continuing up to the date of payment of the £106, but no longer, to pay interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on each £100 of the company's stock." That, on the transfer being completed, "the Secretary of State will, in redemption of the mortgage debenture debt due by the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company, pay £75 for each £100 of principal of the mortgage debentures, with interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on each £75, from November 1, 1880, until such amount of principal is paid. The £75 thus paid is to be received by the holders of the mortgage debt (on their giving up their securities) as in full discharge of all claims whatsoever by them for principal and interest and otherwise against the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company, and in full discharge of all claims, if any, against the Secretary of State." The Government stipulate that an Act of Parliament be applied for, and notice of application for a private bill will accordingly be issued at once in terms of the standing orders. This bill will have to be submitted, in accordance with the standing orders, to the stockholders, but the board propose to call a meeting of the stockholders to submit the arrangement to them on the earliest day available—namely, Tuesday, December 7 next, at 2 p.m., at the offices of the company, 24, Coleman-street, E.C.

REAR ADMIRAL BYTHESEA.

REAR ADMIRAL BYTHESEA, R.N., V.C., C.B., C.I.E., the late consulting naval officer to the Government of India, leaves Bombay by the mail for England. The valuable services rendered by this distinguished and gallant naval officer will be better appreciated as the effects of the many reforms in the Marine becomes more generally known; the decrease in the expenditure and the increase in efficiency of the Marine establishments, both afloat and ashore, are entirely due to the advice of Admiral Bythesea, whose position as consulting naval officer was so ill understood by the unofficial world that many of the mistakes which became apparent in the administration of the Indian Marine were attributed to him. As consulting naval officer Admiral Bythesea could only advise on the different subjects submitted to him for opinion and suggest improvements, the sanctioning of which rested with the Military Department of the Government of India. Had it not been for the fearless manner in which the gallant admiral expressed his opinions many important changes would, perhaps, never have been effected in the working of the Indian Marine Service. On his appointment being abolished Admiral Bythesea's services were cordially acknowledged by the Secretary of State and the Viceroy in Council. Admiral Bythesea may feel that he carries with him the best wishes for his welfare of all those who had the pleasure of knowing him.—Bombay Gazette.

PROMOTIONS AND APPOINTMENTS.—There is no truth in the report which lately arrived from India that Brigadier General C. M. McGregor, C.B., C.S.I., is to succeed to the post of quartermaster general of the Indian Army, which has been open since Sir F. Roberts's departure for Afghanistan in 1878. The appointment has been offered to and accepted by Major General C. C. Johnson, C.B., Bengal Staff Corps. General McGregor, however, has been offered the appointment of deputy quartermaster general, the assistant quartermaster generalship being reserved for Lieut. Col. F. E. Chapman, R.A., lately employed on the staff of Sir F. Roberts in Afghanistan. Col. L. A. Annesley, half pay, late 11th Hussars, assistant adjutant general for cavalry and clothing at the War-office, has signified his intention of accepting the appointment of adjutant general of the Bombay Army, which has been vacant since the death of Brigadier General H. F. Brooke in action before Kandahar. Col. Annesley will hand over his duties at the Horse Guards and embark for India immediately. Lieut. General Sir F. F. Maude, V.C., K.C.B., who lately held a command in Afghanistan, will arrive in England at the end of the year from India, he being about to vacate his divisional command in Bengal, in which he is to be succeeded by Major General Sir M. A. S. Biddulph, K.C.B., R.A., lately at the head of the Kandahar column of the Afghan Field Force.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THE SURVEY OF PALESTINE.*

THE reports issued from time to time by the committee of the Palestine Exploration Fund have kept the subscribers acquainted with the details of the labours and discoveries of the indefatigable surveyors. The survey actually began in 1871. In 1872 Lieutenant Conder, R.E. succeeded to the command, and from that date to 1877 the work progressed in the face of difficulties and dangers of every sort. The results of the labours of Mr. C. F. Tyrwhitt Drake and Capt. Stewart, R.E. who directed the survey in the first year, and of the much more protracted service of Lieutenants Conder and Kitchener, are on record in the form of the great map, now extending over 6,000 square miles from Dan to Beersheba, and from Jordan to the Mediterranean Sea. Besides this a memoir contains all the information collected. Lieutenant Conder has approved himself not only an able surveyor, but a laborious and exact student, skilful with the pen of a ready writer. The memoir, he tells us, two sections excepted, "has been my work, under the editorship of Mr. G. Grove and Col. C. W. Wilson, R.E. The nomenclature of the survey, including about 9,000 Arabic names, has been edited by Professor E. H. Palmer. The memoir will contain information which I have at various times carefully abstracted from more than fifteen standard works, including Egyptian, Samaritan, and Talmudic writings, the early Christian Itineraries, and the mediæval chronicles, besides the Bible narrative, and the works of Josephus and other classical authorities." This magnum opus is certainly beyond the reach of the general public. Therefore, it occurred to Lieut. Conder that a popular introduction to the work of the survey party was needed. Hence the preparation and issue of the work under review. Very admirably has Lieut. Conder executed his task. The first object was necessarily to collect materials for the illustration of the Bible. To identify the places of greater or lesser importance in the annals of the Holy Land has been the object of successive writers from the Onomasticon of Eusebius and Jerome to the researches of men like De Sauley, Robinson, and Stanley, to take but three names of modern students and exponents of Biblical topography. We do not hesitate to say that the volume before us takes its place with those of the most accurate, the most picturesque, and the most devout of the topographers of Palestine. While following the work of survey in its order, the narrative has a charm of vivid and graphic description that will hold even the reader who may not be very curious to decide on the exact site of Masada or the correctness of Dean Stanley's theory as to Neby, Samwil, and Gibeon, intensely interested in the ever-changing scenery and life presented to him. The past, with its crowding associations, and the present with its reproduction of the unchanged customs of that past, are made to illustrate each other so pleasantly that one is apt to forget that the narrative is not that of a well-informed traveller wandering over the country, but is the summary of most of some scientific observation and concurrent study. Mr. Whympers illustrations are good, but the word-pictures are better; thus, at the close of a graphic description of Bethlehem and Mar Saba, the author, referring to the hopeless, purposeless, degraded life of the monks, says:—"Yet even for these poor outcasts in the stony wilderness, lifeless and treeless though it be, nature prepares every day a glorious picture, quickly fading, but matchless in brilliance of colour; the distant ranges seemed stained with purple and pink; in autumn the great bands of cloud sweep over the mountains with long bars of gleaming light between, and for a few minutes, as the sun sets, the deep crimson blush comes over the rocks and glorifies the whole landscape with an indescribable glow." There is a remark on the annual mummery of the Holy Fire, of which an excellent description is given, though modestly called a "plain account," that is full of material for reflection. "Every educated Greek knows it to be a shameful imposition, but the ignorant Syrians and the fanatical Russian peasants still believe the fire to descend from Heaven. The clergy dare not enlighten them, and that crafty diplomacy which encourages pilgrimages to Jerusalem by Government aid fosters the superstition which is the main inducement for the Russian pilgrims to visit the Holy City." The careful method adopted by the author in pursuing inquiries as to traditional names deserves record. Suspicion and fanatical ignorance might be expected, but it is new to learn that over-zealous enquirers, who lacked the prudence of Lieut. Conder, have set up another obstacle. The peasantry are convinced, he tells us, that the Franks know the old names better than they do, because travellers have told them that the right name of such and such a place was not the one which the local tradition preserved. Lieut. Conder's words on this subject are worth quoting:—

"I protest against the immorality of corrupting the native traditions, by relating to the peasantry the theories of modern writers as authentic facts, for it destroys the last undoubted source of information as to ancient topography. The confusion caused by crusading and early Christian traditions, which have been engrafted in a precisely similar manner, forms already a most serious difficulty; and if in addition we are to have modern foreign theories disseminated among the peasantry identification will be impossible. Throughout the course of the survey we never allowed the peasantry to suppose that we attached more value to one name which they gave than to another, and we never asked leading questions or gave them any information as to ancient sites."

The contribution made to the study of the people in the chapters devoted to the peasantry and other inhabitants of modern Palestine is a most valuable one. But we can only find room for a reference to the views which intimate acquaintance with the real condition of the people have led the author to form upon the future of Palestine. He does not regard with any hope or desire Palestine under the government of oriental Jews. But he sees that the country which his experience has taught him to regard as capable, under good government, of being restored to its old condition of agricultural prosperity, needs, and must, from some quarter or another, obtain a strong, wise, and benevolent government, and of this the native native population is well aware, and, though they look vaguely abroad for such a blessing, Lieut. Conder finds reason to think that the Arabs and Syrians will eagerly seize an opportunity to shake off the "hated yoke of their Turanian masters."

"We may perhaps see more than one Moslem State rising on the ruins of Turkish decadence, and from Persia to the Mediterranean, from Aden to the Taurus, the emancipation of Semitic nationalities must either accompany or immediately follow the self-liberation of Slavs and Greeks in Europe. To such a future for Syria England might well look forward with satisfaction. Among the sturdy peasantry and warlike nomads of Palestine and the Desert she might find allies of extreme value in the great task of defending the communications with her Indian empire. Military authorities are not wanting who believe in the further advance of Russia on the Euphrates and on the Syrian shores of the Mediterranean, an advance to which England could not remain indifferent. It is in the hatred of Greek Christianity and of Russian cruelty among the Moslems of Arab race that our hope of organising an effective resistance must lie. Turkish weakness and corruption lays the present rulers of Syria open to the designs of her worst enemy, but a strong and patriotic Moslem Government would no doubt reflect those feelings of friendship and admiration with regard to England which are so commonly expressed among the natives of Syria; and the value of such an ally in defence of our two highways to India, by the Red Sea and the Euphrates, would be beyond calculation."

OCTROI.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—The English nation have not yet learnt the facts regarding the collection of octroi in the open unwallied towns of India. The octroi has been condemned in England over and over again, but it is still ruthlessly collected in towns in India, so difficult is it to abolish a criminal tax which can be collected without trouble or tears of rebellion. In criminal as well as in civil courts of justice the collection of the octroi has been proved to be based upon extortion and often attended with robbery. How is it possible to collect a just octroi when there are no barriers? In France the greatest care is taken to prevent smuggling. In India smuggling is an easy and lucrative employment; the octroi collectors, hopeless of preventing smuggling, realise most of the tax from the corn factors. The prices of corn are terribly raised by the Choongee, and then the people of England are asked to borrow millions in order to stay famine. If Parliament would take the trouble to inquire into the secret history of octroi exactions the half-fed labourers in towns would have some hope of justice.—Your obedient servant,

THE GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.

THE Indian Government Securities Bill, recently introduced into the Legislative Council of India, provides for the transfer of loan certificates and coupons by delivery, and relieves from liability the endorser of government paper, whether of a Government security or a currency note. In neither of these cases did legislation appear to be absolutely necessary, as mercantile usage would cover the former case, and in the latter the Secretary of State had been advised that the endorsement of a Government note had the effect of simply recording ownership, and did not involve any responsibility of a commercial character. Still it is important that no doubt should exist on these points, as every uncertainty, whether well grounded or not, tells against the value of a security; in fact, it deprives it of its fundamental property, as it renders it, to a certain extent, insecure. Though of course, in this country, no one would anticipate the danger of any liability from the fact of having endorsed a Government promissory note, yet the question having been raised at home, it was necessary to legislate in order to remove all doubts. It is satisfactory to see that Government are doing all in their power to put their new loan on the best possible footing. What is wanted in addition is a little more promptitude in issuing it; the great delay in the appearance of the bonds tends against their ready transfer, and bampers operations in them. We understand that large amounts of Government paper are now being enfaced for transmission home, but this class of remittance would be increased immensely could coupon bonds be purchased which could be remitted without delay and expense of enfacing. Every inducement given by Government to send paper home tends to enhance the value of silver, which, directly or indirectly, must come out to take its place.—Bombay Gazette.

GIFTS TO MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.

EVERY one is aware how rigid are the rules prohibiting any servant of Government in India from accepting, not only presents, but even addresses from natives of the country. And no one, we venture to say, can for a moment doubt the wisdom of those rules and the excellent effect produced by them in maintaining among the people an implicit faith in the unassailable integrity of our higher officials. It is, we think, unfortunate that instances of departure from this policy should have been allowed to occur. No Englishman can throw any suspicion on Mr. Fawcett's spotless integrity, and no Englishman can doubt the purity of his motives in forcing on the attention of Parliament questions of importance to the welfare of India. But we fear that the natives of India will hardly place this unreserved reliance on the single-mindedness of him, and of men like him, if it becomes the practice to remit to them from India large sums of money for their election expenses. So far, however, as independent members of Parliament are concerned, this is a matter of little importance to anyone but themselves. If they knew more of Oriental ideas on such subjects they would probably unhesitatingly reject any such assistance. But when we find a gentleman holding a prominent position in the Government becoming the recipient of testimonials and purses and gifts of place it is time to point out how utterly such principles are at variance with the principles which the Indian Government has always strictly prescribed for the guidance of its officers in their relations with the people. To an English mind there may be no shadow of an idea that the acceptance of such things involves any sort of obligation or any sort of surrender of independence. But the donors are Orientals, and amongst most Orientals it is assumed, as a matter of course, that if any one in power accepts a gift he accepts a corresponding obligation to extend his favour to the giver. Now that the agitation of Indian subjects is becoming of more and more interest to the English Parliament it is important that rules which have proved so salutary in India should be observed by English politicians, certainly by English Ministers who make India the special object of their attention.—Englishman.

THE TELEGRAPH IN INDIA.

A RESOLUTION of the Government of India on a proposal made by the Government of Bombay, that the price for transmitting telegrams should be reduced, has been published. The Bombay Government pointed out that the "charges are extremely high." H.E. the Governor in Council instanced the case of South Australia, where, during Sir James Fergusson's stay, under a low tariff the telegrams were believed to have reached a number equal to fifty per cent. of the letters. The Bombay Government proposed that they should be allowed to charge half the present rate for messages in this Presidency, guaranteeing the Supreme Government against any loss in revenue. There was also a proposal from the Bombay Chamber of Commerce that there should be a minimum charge of eight annas for four words, with one anna more for each additional word. The Bengal Chamber made a similar proposal to that of Bombay, excepting that the initial charge should be twelve annas instead of eight. The India Government reject all these propositions, and declare their determination to adhere to the present tariff, on the grounds that a uniform rate is essential, that the cost of establishing and working telegraphs in this country is exceptionally high, and that under the peculiar circumstances of India, its extent of territory and limited business, a reduction of rate could not be expected to yield an increased revenue. The position taken by Government is this:—The original cost of establishing telegraphs in this country has been exceptionally heavy compared with the same work in other countries, owing to the comparatively high cost of materials and the large extent of country over which the wires have to be carried; that maintenance, too, is also comparatively expensive, owing to the necessity of keeping large stocks of materials, and to their rapid deterioration; that on the present tariff the receipts only pay a little over working expenses, while the interest on a considerable capital ought to be met; that the masses of the people are too poor and too ignorant to make use of the telegraph at any rates, and therefore that there is no ground for anticipating any increase of revenue from a reduced tariff; that the revenue ought to yield a fair interest on capital outlay after paying working expenses; and that when it does more, that will be the time to consider the question of reduction. The position taken by Government is based on the view that "the most essential feature of a telegraph tariff is that it shall be simple, intelligible to all, and easy in its application, so that the public shall themselves be able readily to calculate the payments due under all circumstances, and to verify the correctness of the charges made by the departmental employees." If this be admitted, we think that Government are probably right in their conclusions, for the conditions of India are very different from those of Australia, and it is very doubtful if a reduced rate throughout the country would much increase the number of messages. But is this feature an essential one? It is important, no doubt, and, when distances are counted by hundreds of miles, as in England and the Continental countries, it is easily recognised. The case is different, however, when distances are counted by thousands of miles, and it is a question whether the example of the United States should not be followed and rates be regulated by the distance. We are not prepared to urge this, but we feel that Government are hardly in a position to adopt the opposite course as entirely beyond question. There can be no doubt that the short-distance messages are very heavily weighted in this country, and there is, moreover, the fact that those sent between the business-centres have to pay the cost of a free delivery of other messages for a distance of five miles from the telegraph station. Admitting even the probability of the correctness of the position taken by the India Government, we fail to see why the offer of the Bombay Government should not be accepted. The Telegraph Department will lose nothing, as its receipts are guaranteed by this Government, and an opportunity is thus given of testing the question without risk to the revenue of the department. The Supreme Government say "a low uniform tariff is obviously inconsistent with a still lower local tariff," but this begs the whole question, as it assumes the present rate as low. This it certainly is for a message from Bombay to Burma, but it is not so for a message from Bombay to Broach or Oomrawutti. It seems to us, therefore, that, while the Indian Government have some reason for believing in the uniform rate for all India, they could safely have given the Bombay Government an opportunity of testing their view of the problem. No harm could have been done, and opportunity would have been given for deciding a most important question.—Bombay Gazette.

ECCLESIASTICAL.—The following alterations and additions have been made in the list of impending transfers and appointments among the chaplains:—The Rev. W. D. Cowley, D.D., from Agra to Muttra, in November; the Rev. B. Hammond, from Masuri to Chakrata, in November; the Rev. G. T. Carruthers, from Chakrata to Moradabad, in November; and the Rev. W. A. Hamilton, from Howrah to Jhansi, in December. The Indian Church Gazette informs us that the Rev. J. J. B. Coles will shortly resign his chaplaincy on the Bengal Establishment, having accepted the appointment of principal of the Doveton College.—Englishman.

THE CALCUTTA TRAMWAYS.—We find the two important lines (from Bagbazaar to Lall Bazaar, through the lengthy Chitpore-road, and from Sealdah to the General Post-office, through Bow Bazaar-street, Lall Bazaar-street, and Dalhousie-square, north and west), the construction of which was entrusted to Messrs. Burn and Co., have now been completed, and trial trips of the cars have been made in Bow Bazaar-street. The extension of the line from Dalhousie-square south-west through Hare-street to the Strand is being pushed on. The connection of the Sealdah line with the Eastern Bengal Railway Company's Sealdah station is approaching completion, and the extension of the line eastward through the Baliaghata-road, joining the Calcutta and South Eastern State Railway's Calcutta station, has been put in hand. It is not definitely known when the cars will begin running in the Calcutta streets, conveying passengers from place to place, but we hope it will not be long before we shall enjoy such sights.—Statesman.

DEATH FROM AN OVERDOSE OF CHLORODYNE.—The coroner, with a jury, on Oct. 22 viewed the body of Capt. J. H. Littlewood, late of the I.G.S.N. Company's flat Muttah, at the deadhouse of the Medical College Hospital. It is believed that he had overdosed himself with chlorodyne. Dr. Mackenzie, who held a post mortem, has retained the contents of the stomach for chemical analysis.—Ibid.

THE BENGAL RAILWAYS.—The supplement to the Calcutta Gazette of October 26 contains a short report on the earnings and expenses of the Bengal provincial railways for the half-year ended June 30 last; and, looking at the satisfactory results, it is, no wonder that the Lieutenant Governor said at the last trades dinner that Bengal could well afford to spend money on railways. The provincial railways dealt with are the Northern Bengal, the Tirhoot, the Patna and Gya, the Calcutta and South Eastern, and the Nalhati lines. From the report we see that "the total revenue receipts from these lines during the half-year under review amounted to Rs. 14,12,996, against Rs. 10,45,047 during the first half of 1879, or an increase of 35.20 per cent. It must, however, be remembered that during the period under review there was a greater length of railway open, viz., the Teesta extension of the Northern Bengal State Railway, eleven miles opened on 1st June, 1879, and the Patna and Gya State Railway, which was not properly opened till June, 1879. Still, however, on the whole, the increase in the receipts is satisfactory. The revenue expenses amounted to Rs.9,09,516, against Rs.8,18,272, during the corresponding period of the previous year. The chief increase in the working expenses occurred on the Patna and Gya State Railway, the comparison being Rs.21,228 in the first half of 1879, against Rs.1,36,498 in 1880, which is, of course, due to the extra length of line open. The Northern Bengal and Tirhoot State Railways, with an increase of eleven miles on the former, and the same mileage on the latter, have shown a decrease in their working expenses in comparison with the corresponding period of the previous year, which is satisfactory. The net earnings amounted to Rs.5,03,480, against Rs.2,26,360 during the first half of 1879, or an increase of 122.43 per cent. The total capital expenditure up to the end of June has amounted to Rs.2,85,23,813, or, including charges under suspense, Rs.3,01,06,808. The total profits realised pay a percentage for the half-year of 1.77 on the former outlay and 1.67 on the latter, and the net charge falling on provincial revenues to make good the guaranteed interest of 4½ per cent. to the Imperial Government will be only 58 per cent.

A NATIVE STATE.—Bustar is the most important of the fifteen native States attached to the Central Provinces. It was in turn visited last year by the officers in charge of the Sironcha subdivision who found that cultivation had greatly increased. This gentleman was much struck with the richness of many of the valleys. The administration of the chief is marked by masterly inactivity. His capital is a sleepy hollow "where languor reigns supreme from the gaol to the rajah's palace." But the people are contented and prosperous, and have no grievances. Two or three years ago, some unscrupulous subordinates gave trouble, but they have been removed, and no further complaints have been heard. It was a one time feared that the Rompa rebels would escape into Bustar territory, but the rumour that they had done so turned out to be incorrect. It remains to be seen how long the uneducated, unvaccinated, unregistered simplicity of Bustar will last. In another native State, Bamra, a case of suttee occurred last October.

THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.—The Central Provinces are nearly always before the rest of India with their yearly administration report. That for the year 1879-80, by Mr. J. H. Morris, C.S.I., has just been published. The year was a good one for the Central Provinces; a year of fairly suitable seasons and plentiful harvests, and this after two years of general depression. A marked feature in the report is the large falling off in offences against property. At the same time, as might be expected, there has been a considerable increase in civil litigation. The trade of the year shows a decrease under the head of exports of cotton due to a failure of the crop. The grain trade also fell off; owing, it is said, to the more plentiful harvests in other provinces and the cessation of famine prices. The working of the Warora Coal Mines showed a loss during the year of nearly half a lakh. The machinery broke down and the mines were flooded. It is believed, however, that when the improvements now in hand are finished they will secure the profitable working of the mines for many years to come. For the year reported on the yield was but 32,000 tons in the whole twelve months; but 1,000 tons a month is expected eventually. The Chattisgarh Railway is being pushed on with vigour, and one section of fifty-three miles, from Nagpur to Tumsar, was open during the year; the whole length of the sanctioned line being 125 miles. The Chief Commissioner marched along the length of the line during the cold weather, "and was satisfied with what he saw of the manner in which the work was being carried on and of the progress made." Mr. Morris has been pressing on the Government the necessity of extending, at once, the sanctioned line from Doongargarh to Nandgaon, a distance of nineteen miles. The cost of this extension would be about 8½ lakhs. A terminal station at Nandgaon would largely add to the traffic returns, for the railway would then carry nearly all the grain exported from the south east of the district; whereas, so long as Doongargarh is the terminus, much of this keeps to the road. Notwithstanding the advantages urged by Mr. Morris, the Government of India has decided to put off considering the question till it is able to settle about the general extension of the line to Bilaspur; a larger scheme, which must remain a project only for a considerable while. In concluding his general summary of the report the Chief Commissioner observes that the opening of the first section of the Chattisgarh line was the only marked event of the year, which on the whole was one of noiseless progress.

Deputy Qader Buksh in an opening speech referred to the loyalty of the Kasur population, and presented an address to the chairman, Mr. Stogdon. Fireworks were let off, &c. A sum of Rs.2,000 was collected as donation to the Patriotic Fund.

THE NAINI TAL STORM.—The official meteorological report for the month of September contains the tabulated figures of the rainfall of the heavy storm that produced the disastrous landslide at Naini Tal, together with the meteorological reporter's comments thereon. Mr. Hill states that a storm of cyclonic character struck the Orissa coast on Sept. 10 and then travelled along a curvilinear path, passing through Jubbulpur, Indore, Jeypur, and Delhi, to the Himalayas, where it gradually broke up. The centre of the storm passed up the valley of the Ganges, and upon entering the Doab and Western Rohilkund it was reinforced by the vapour brought up by south east winds from the Bay of Bengal. The result was a rainfall heavier than anything previously recorded in the interior of India. It is worth noting, says Mr. Hill, in connection with the theory of the origin of these storms, that the rainfall was heaviest at the time of the greatest depression of the barometer, and that at every station the rainfall commenced a day before the depression reached its lowest. The heaviest registered falls were in the Bijnor district, viz., at Nagina 32.4, at Dhampur 30.4, and at Najibabad 28.5 inches during twenty-four hours on Sept. 18. The rainfall of Naini Tal, the immediate cause of the disaster, was not nearly so heavy, for the quantity of vapour in the air at the level of Naini Tal is little more than half as great as on the plains.—Pioneer.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—At date of mail the disengaged tonnage in port stood at 24,940 tons. London via Canal: Rates closed firm at £2 15s. for rice or wheat; £2 17s. 6d. for jute, cotton, and linseed; £3 to £3 5s. for hides; £3 5s. to £3 10s. for tea, &c. For London via Cape: The market closed steady at £2 for saltpetre; £2 7s. 6d. for rice; £2 10s. for wheat; £2 12s. 6d. to £2 15s. for jute; £2 17s. 6d. for linseed; £2 18s. 9d. for rape; and £3 for poppy. THE 72ND HIGHLANDERS AND 5TH GOORKHAS.—Throughout the late operations there has always been a wonderful cordiality between the Goorkhas and the British soldiers. In the first campaign the men of the 4th Battalion of the Rifle Brigade and those of one of our Goorkha regiments "chummed" together, and on all possible occasions interchanged various little kind offices. This friendship between the British soldier and his native brother in arms has, however, never been so strongly shown as in the case of the 5th Goorkhas and the 72nd Highlanders. Throughout the late march, and before it, the most cordial relations have existed between the two regiments, and the Goorkhas have nicknamed themselves the 2nd Battalion of the 72nd Highlanders. When, the other day—so the story reaches us—the time came to say good-bye, and the Goorkhas realised that in all human probability they would not again see their old friends the Highlanders, with whom they had marched and alongside whom they had fought so long and nobly, they wished to mark their friendship and their adieu by some grand entertainment. This, however, was an impossibility in Kandahar, where single bottles of beer had sold for Rs.16 each; so the idea of a dinner had to be given up, and the Goorkhas, so we hear, have each given half a month's pay to purchase a silver challenge shield, and presented it to the 72nd Highlanders to be shot for yearly by the men of the latter regiment. It will bear an inscription setting forth that it was given by the men of the 5th Goorkhas to the men of the 72nd Highlanders as a token of the friendship that existed between the two regiments in the Afghan war. This spirit of camaraderie between the European and the Asiatic soldier should by all means be fostered, and it is pleasing to see two such fine and distinguished regiments setting the example.—Civil and Military Gazette.

MURDER OF A NATIVE OFFICER.—Between Quetta and Sibi the subadar major of the 24th Punjab Native Infantry was shot by one of the privates, a young Punjabi. The ball entered the officer's shoulder and shattered his arm, and after lingering three days the poor man died. The miscreant who shot him had been reported for persisting in riding in a sick cart and had a dozen lashes administered him for disobeying orders. This rankled in his mind and he avenged himself in this dastardly way.—Englishman.

KASHMIR TRADE IN BORAX.—A demand having sprung up in the Punjab for borax, considerable quantities are being taken down by the Punjabi carriers of the Kulu road. Borax is obtained in large quantities in Rukchu, and is a monopoly of the Kashmir Government. Hitherto there has been but little sale for it; but this year some 3,000 maunds (pukka) of cleaned, and 1,000 maunds uncleaned, are being sent to Amritsar by the Kulu road. The price received by the Maharaja's Government for cleaned borax is Rs.6-6-6 a maund, and for uncleaned 8 annas a maund. A demand has also arisen for Nubra coda, likewise a State monopoly, for which hitherto there has scarcely been any sale. Up to the present date Rs.2,400 worth of soda has been sold, and considerable quantities are being collected in Nubra in anticipation of a further demand.—Press Commissioner.

A PERSONAL DISTINCTION.—On the recommendation of the Lieutenant Governor the Government of India have permitted Maulvi Hossein Ali, late deputy magistrate and deputy collector, Bhagulpore, to retain as a personal distinction the title of "Khan Bahadur" officially accorded to Mahomdan deputy magistrates while in the service. The Maulvi rendered excellent service to Government during the mutiny in 1857, when he was employed in the opium department at Sewan in Saran, and his loyal exertions were rewarded by an appointment in the subordinate executive service in 1859.—Englishman.

THE RANGOON COMMISSARIAT FRAUDS.—The Rangoon Times comments on the trials that have just been concluded as follows:—"The most painful feature of these cases has been, and is, the manner in which the prosecution has been regarded by a certain section of that portion of the Rangoon public which is pleased to consider itself as 'society.' The sufferings and deaths of those poor people who, in 1878, perished between Rangoon and Tounghoo consequent on crowded boats; the sufferings, annoyances, and inconveniences soldiers have in hundreds of cases been compelled to undergo are entirely forgotten. It is nothing that men have often been kept without food for nearly, if not quite, twenty-four hours; that fever-stricken patients have been deprived of their punkahs; that food of the most wretched description has been served out to soldiers; all these things are lost sight of, the sympathies of the aforesaid section of 'society' being entirely with those to whose neglect, incompetence, or worse, these things have been due. Much animadversion has been heaped on the heads of the Government prosecutors, Messrs. Weldon and Tarrant; but, fortunately, both these gentlemen are in positions which enable them to ignore entirely the petty malice and envy of their would-be detractors in Rangoon. Both Colonel Weldon and Mr. Tarrant deserve well of the British public generally, and British soldiers in particular, throughout the empire. Both gentlemen will return to Madras with the good wishes of all honourable men."—Pioneer.

THE NEPAUL POSTAL SERVICE.—Mr. H. M. James, Postmaster General of Bengal, who proceeded to Nepaul some three weeks ago for the purpose of conferring with the Resident of that place on the subject of the transit of the value-payable parcels by the Nepaul postal line, returned to the Presidency on Wednesday last, but the result of the conference is not yet known. Mr. Girdlestone is said to be of opinion that he has the entire control of the Nepaul postal line, and he has objected to the transit of registered parcels over the line. He is also said to have declined to communicate with the Deputy Postmaster General of Behar.—Indian Daily News.

THE NAINI TAL RELIEF COMMITTEE.—The following resolution has been passed with reference to the case of soldiers' families:—"That the honorary secretary communicate with the officers commanding regiments to which the widows belong, and request them to keep the amounts now voted (which are irrespective of a sum of Rs.500 voted for immediate wants) until their arrival in England, when the amounts granted to each widow can, if advisable, be made over to her; but the amounts granted for the children shall be invested in their behalf (Rs.250 each) or distributed for their education, apprenticeship, and support as the commanding officer may consider advisable."—Pioneer.

MADRAS.

THE CURRENCY DEPARTMENT.—The administration report of the Currency Department for the year 1879-80, the Government remark in their order on that report, has been submitted three months earlier than in last year. It is fuller and affords more information on matters generally than the reports of preceding years. The falling off in the circulation during 1879-80 was greater than even in 1878-79, but it is stated to correspond very closely with the net average circulation of the four years immediately preceding the famine year of 1877-78. The year 1879-80 opened with notes in active circulation of the value of Rs.1,35,31,080 and closed with Rs.1,54,60,560. The highest circulation was in October, Rs.1,72,06,900, and the lowest, Rs.1,32,23,740, in June, and the average circulation during the twelve months, Rs.1,47,93,173. The aggregate number of notes in circulation of the various denominations was 252,349 against 224,484 in 1878-79, and the value Rs.1,57,50,910 against Rs.1,51,60,455. There was an increase in the number of notes of the value of Rs.5, 10, 20, 50, 100, and 500, and a decrease in notes of Rs.1,000 and 10,000. The value of foreign circle notes cashed by the three circles (Madras, Calicut, and Cocanada) in this Presidency during the year aggregated Rs.1,21,01,415, against Rs.1,17,84,105 in last year. The aggregate operations of the Exchange Department show a decline of nearly 84½ lakhs. The decline is largest in the Cocanada Circle. The receipts and issues of notes by the three circles exhibit a decline under the former head of about 25½ lakhs, and an advance under the latter head of about 35½ lakhs. The number of notes cancelled was less by 28,920 and value by Rs.71,20,540 than in 1878-79. The coin reserve at the beginning of the year was Rs.1,42,02,670 and at its close Rs.92,71,640. The Government securities remained at the same figure, viz., Rs.72,000, as in 1877-78 and 1878-79. No sovereigns were tendered. The falling off in the receipts and issue of small silver coin and copper noticed for the year 1878-79 continued during the year 1879-80. The depots established during the year for these coins show that the Madras and Calicut Circles received them to the value of Rs.2,91,358. There were no receipts in the Cocanada Circle from want of storage room. The nominal value of defaced coin received during the year was Rs.36,906, against Rs.8,308 in 1878-79. The number and value of currency notes lost was 1,044 and Rs.54,080, against 1,037 and Rs.46,620 in last year. One forged note of the value of Rs.10 was presented at the Bank of Madras. There are facts indicating an extensive forgery of a long series of notes of this value, and the remarks on this subject will be furnished to the inspector general of police. The profit to Government on the currency operations during the year 1879-80 was Rs.3,00,176.—Madras Times.

THE HOISTING OF THE UNION JACK IN FORT ST. GEORGE.—It may interest some of our readers to know that the Union Jack was first ordered to be hoisted in Fort St. George on June 12, 1688, during the Governorship of Mr. Elihu Yale. The following is the official account of the ceremony:—"According to appointment for the solemnity of hoisting his Majesty's flag in this garrison the Governor made this evening a handsome collation upon the Fort-house-terrace, where he was accompanied with the council and chief of the Right Honourable Company's servants, and most of the eminent freemen and inhabitants of the city of all nations and castes, the garrison's three companies being in arms, also the trained band, consisting of near 100 Englishmen, commanded by Capt. Robert Freeman and Lieut. John Affleck; when, after an orderly march round the fort, the garrison soldiers drew round within the fort and the trained band without, when, upon hoisting the union flag upon the standard of the English bastion, the Governor began a glass of toby to our Gracious King's health and Royal Family's, and his happy long reign; which was duly performed by all there, and honoured with the volleys of small shot and as many cheerful huzzas from all the soldiers; and by thirty-one pieces of ordnance, which was answered by all the ships in the roads; also one and twenty pieces of ordnance with hearty wishes of success and prosperity to our Right Honourable Masters the Right Honourable East India Company, and nineteen pieces to their Honourable Governor Sir Josiah Child; and the more to honour this occasion there were several persons freed and generous contributions to the poor; and the soldiers as merry as punch could make them, till night silenced all in repose."—Madras Times.

MADRAS ARMY REGULATIONS.—With the sanction of Government the following addition is to be made to the Madras Army Regulations:—"When a regiment is transferred from one Presidency to another, all men on the Unattached List will be required to elect a corps remaining in the Presidency in which they are employed."

THE PROPOSED COCHIN RAILWAY.—We are reliably informed by a mofussil correspondent that the Resident of the Travancore and Cochin States, Mr. M'Gregor, C.S., has intimated to the local Government that both these States respectively are willing to hypothecate Government securities which will yield Rs.50,000 respectively annually, as their portions towards the guarantee required to raise a capital of Rs.66,00,000 or £550,000 for the construction of a line of railway from the port of Cochin to Ernacollum.—Madras Times.

THE NEILGHERRY COMMISSION.—It will be remembered that the Madras Government, in the early part of this year, decided on abolishing the Neilgherry Commission and issued the necessary instructions. The abolition was afterwards ordered to be held in abeyance pending a reference to the Government of India. We learn from Ootacamund that the commission has been abolished.—Times of India.

MILITARY TRADERS.—It is notified that circumstances have recently come to the notice of the Commander in Chief which make it necessary for his Excellency to call the attention of all officers to paragraph 578 of the Madras Army Regulations, wherein it is laid down that officers are strictly prohibited from taking any part in the management of banks in India, or from being connected with banks or any other trading companies, except as simple shareholders, the only exception to this rule being in favour of ex officio directors or secretaries of Government banks. This prohibition is not, however, intended to apply to officers on the invalid establishment.—Madras Mail.

RANPA.—A correspondent writes:—"Affairs in Ranpa have nearly come to a settlement, as the troops serving there have been ordered to be withdrawn. One of the first rebels, Nedlur Ram Reedy by name, has contrived to escape into the Nizam's territory, being unable any longer to find shelter in the Gudem Hills. The Nizam's authorities, however, have been called upon to deliver him up if captured. Meanwhile certain other Mutadars have had a fine imposed till they deliver another important rebel, Veroyya; and others will be made prisoners for concealing Pathavithi, one of the rebels also. The police, we hear, will take over the several military posts now established, but a garrison of fifty men (military) will be kept at Nursapatam for the present.—Madras Times.

A MISSIONARY DROWNED.—The Rev. W. Slater, a young Wesleyan missionary, has been accidentally drowned at Negapatam.—Times of India.

THE DUKE OF BUCKINGHAM'S FAREWELL VISITS.—The Governor arrived at Coimbatore on Nov. 1. He was met at the station by a large crowd of the inhabitants, where he lunched and left for Shoranoor, and thence to Trichoor, where he slept. Next morning early his Grace proceeded by backwater to Bolghatty, the peninsula on the eastern side of Cochin harbour, whereon is the British residency. His Grace landed at the residency jetty under the usual salute, accompanied by Mr. Atholl McGregor, the resident, the Dewan of Cochin, and his staff. There was a large gathering near the landing place of European and native officials in the sirkar's service. After breakfast his Grace gave private audience to the gentlemen of the neighbourhood and received at noon the Raja of Cochin, and afterwards returned his Highness's visit at Ernacollum. His Grace visited British Cochin on Nov. 3, and was received by the municipal commissioners, &c. The Chamber of Commerce presented an address, asking chiefly for harbour improvements. The Duke then visited the Protestant churches, one of which, St. Francis, is believed to be the oldest in India. The date of its erection is uncertain, but it is known to be before 1546. It is believed that Vasco de Gama was temporarily interred in its chancel. The Duke then ascended the lighthouse and surveyed the harbour, afterwards driving through British to Native Cochin. Here his Grace visited the synagogue of the ancient settlement of white Jews. Prayer was offered by the Chief Rabbi, and a psalm chanted, in which the whole of the Jewish community joined. At mid-day the Duke, accompanied by the British resident, left for Quilon, en route to Trevandrum.—Times of India.

BOMBAY.

THE VOLUNTEERS.—The figure of merit of the Bombay Volunteer Corps in the annual musketry course for 1879-80 is 113.68, which by the musketry returns of March last gives the corps second position in the Presidency. The regiment standing first is the 6th Foot, at Aden, with a figure of merit of 116.26; and only 449 men of this regiment were exercised, as compared to 525 of the B.V.R.C. We find on reference to the musketry returns for 1879 that the volunteers then had but four regiments below them in the list instead of only one above them; so that their position now of second in the Presidency shows a marked improvement.—Bombay Gazette.

THE ASSIGNED DISTRICTS.—The mortuary register of the Hyderabad Assigned Districts during the month of July last shows 3,183 deaths, out of which 1,739 were caused by fever. This disease seems to baffle the skill of the doctors. There were forty-three deaths from snake-bites and wild beasts. There is no reward offered for killing snakes.—Ibid.

BARODA.—Mr. Manibhai Jushbai, late Dewan of Cutch, has been confirmed by the Bombay Government in the appointment conferred on him by Sir Madoowrao of Joint Sir Sooba and a member of the Baroda Ministry. The Baroda State has secured, and the Bombay Government have lost, the services of an unusually good officer.—Ibid.

GOA CURRENCY.—The new currency will be put into force in Portuguese India from Nov. 1 next. Orders have been issued that from next month accounts at Goa, Damaun, and Diu are to be kept in the new currency, which, under the names of rupees, tangas, and reis, will correspond in weight and value with the British rupees, annas, and pias respectively.—Ibid.

A NEW MILL INDUSTRY.—A new industry has been introduced in connection with one of the Bombay cotton mills. The National Spinning and Weaving Company of India have lately added a flour mill branch to their business. The first cost of purchase of machinery, &c., was about Rs.1,700. The first quality of flour is supplied to some of the local mills for sizing cloth, and other qualities are sold at shops opened by the company in different parts of the city. The very first start has resulted in a profit, and the new industry promises to be very successful in the future.—Ibid.

On relief by the above battery A-2 R.A. will march from those stations on Jan. 1, 1881, and arrive at Kirkee about Feb. 18.—Gazette.

WIDOW REMARRIAGE.—A Hindu widow remarriage took place on Oct. 15 at Ahmedabad. The marrying couple are Brahmins. Some of the prominent citizens of Ahmedabad and others approving of the object were present at the ceremony. The bridegroom is said to be a farmer. It is a hopeful sign of progress that people from the ranks should come forward to practise what their educated brethren the "reformers" are very often satisfied merely to preach.—Bombay Gazette.

THE TRADE OF BOMBAY.—The comparative statement of customs revenue (excluding salt), just issued by the Statistical Branch of the Department of Finance and Commerce, shows an encouraging growth of foreign trade in this Presidency. For the six months of the present financial year, 1880-81, Bengal shows a falling off of nearly twelve lakhs of rupees in customs revenue in ten years, falling from Rs.52,23,000 in 1871-72 to Rs.40,72,000 in 1880-81; while in the Bombay returns there is an increase of nearly 3½ lakhs, the growth being from Rs.24,48,000 to Rs.27,82,000 in the respective years. The returns of exports and imports were not given separately until 1875-76. For six months of that year the customs receipts on Bengal imports amounted to Rs.44,85,000, while for the past six months they have reached only Rs.35,57,000. Bombay, on the other hand, shows Rs.23,45,000 for 1875-76 and Rs.27,06,000 for the corresponding six months of the present year. The decrease in Bengal amounts to about 20 per cent., while the increase in Bombay amounts to about 16 per cent. The end of this year will see the railway line through Rajputana open to Agra and Delhi, and a considerable import trade for the North West will no doubt then be diverted from Calcutta to Bombay, and the comparative growth of the latter will be still further increased. It is very satisfactory to see that the loss of revenue anticipated in consequence of the remission and reduction of duties two years ago has not been experienced; the revenue for the six months of this year surpassing that of the same months of any of the previous nine years, excepting only two, 1872-73 and 1875-76. The average receipts of the nine years were Rs.1,05,40,000, while for 1880-81 they stand at Rs.1,07,92,000. It must be remembered that within the past ten years export duties have been removed from all produce, excepting indigo, rice, and lac. Ten years ago there were export duties charged on cotton goods, grain, hides and skins, oils, seeds, and spices, besides the three articles above mentioned. At that time, too, the general rate of import duty was 7½ per cent.; it is now 5 per cent., while the duties have been in that time remitted altogether in the case of one-third of the articles then liable to it. Most of these remissions were made only two years ago, so that the increase of customs duties over the average of the preceding nine years looks remarkably well for the increase of trade. With good harvests assured, new lines of railway to be opened, and prices moderate, there is every prospect of a capital business season for Bombay.—Bombay Gazette.

BARODA.—Just before the outbreak of the war in 1878 Sir Madava Row, with every expression of the most loyal devotion from the Maharaja and the Maharani Junnabai, intimated the readiness of the Baroda Administration to provide for the protection of the Residency, the British Treasury, and the cantonment at Baroda, by employing the troops of the State in order to set free the British troops at Baroda for employment elsewhere. The Governor General in Council has communicated to their Highnesses the satisfaction with which he received their loyal offer.—Times of India.

SIRDAR WALI MAHOMED KHAN.—Sirdar Wali Mahomed Khan, who, as our readers will remember, has lately been to Simla to see the Viceroy, and has since returned to Peshawur, where he awaits the answer of Government as to the seat to be allotted him in the coming durbar, had three applications to lay before his Excellency; first, that he might be appointed Governor of Kuram and if this were impossible—as events have proved—secondly, that he might be appointed Governor of Kandahar, in either a dependent or independent position; and thirdly, that Government would grant him a jagir or an allowance. If a refusal be given to all three of these requests the sirdar, who has a following of some 500 men with him at Peshawur, will settle, it is said, either in Turkey or Persia.—Civil and Military Gazette.

FOXHOUNDS FOR THE NAWAB OF BHAWULPORE.—The s.s. Corsica, which arrived from London (Oct. 25), has, we learn, brought out sixty foxhounds for his Highness the Nawab of Bhawulpore. They are splendid animals, having been selected through the Indian Co-operative Agency, Holborn Viaduct, from the best packs in England and Ireland, and we have no doubt will afford his Highness some excellent coursing during the approaching winter. A further supply is to arrive for H.H. by the next steamer from London, as also a steam launch, through the same agency.—Sind Civil and Military Gazette.

ARRIVAL OF THE TROOPSHIP "SERAPIS."—Her Majesty's troopship Serapis, 4,173 tons, Commander G. O. Twiss, arrived on Nov. 5 from Portsmouth. She left Portsmouth on Oct. 3, Plymouth on the 4th, Malta on the 14th, Port Said on the 19th, and Suez on Oct. 20. She was delayed in coming to Bombay on account of having to tow the Government tug steamer Hasty from Suez. In the Red Sea the Hasty shipped a quantity of water and the speed had to be reduced in consequence. During the voyage five children died and there was one birth. Good weather was experienced throughout the voyage. The Serapis brought seventy-four officers, seventeen ladies, twelve children, 1,074 men, ninety-six women, and 109 children. THE nomination of Rao Saheb V. N. Mandlik to be a member of the Bombay Legislative Council is gazetted.

GODRA.—Godra is in many respects an important place. Your contemporary seems uncertain whether he should call it a town or a village; but seeing that it has a population of over 10,000, it may

I think, fairly be called a town. The most important class of the community here appears to be Mussulman. The Shia Borahs, for instance, carry on a large trade, and are a very well-to-do set of persons. Weaving and work in pottery, brass, and wood are conducted on a rather large scale; and now that Godra is shortly to have the railway it may reasonably be expected that it will in a very short time rise into a market of the highest importance. The opening of the railway to Palee was the means of greatly increasing the commercial prosperity of the district, and a further extension is expected to be marked by a rapid development of the timber trade, which is already immense. Altogether a prosperous future appears to be opening out to the Panch Mahals. The timber is the produce of several great forests, and Godra is the centre of the trade. The merchants deal mostly in small teak rafters and poles and bamboos. The trade in grain is also very extensive, and great quantities of gram are sent to Bombay. The exports are likely to be large, and the crops are looking remarkably well. This particular branch of trade has been growing rapidly during the last few years and is capable of still further development. The dried flower and fruit of the Mahuda, which is largely grown in Godra and the neighbourhood, is exported in considerable quantities, whilst castor oil is a production for which Godra is especially noted. The traders here are of opinion that the importance of this branch of commerce is not sufficiently recognised. At one time the trade of oil making was extensively carried on in Godra, and in 1867 a steam mill was built, but the speculation did not prove successful. The mill was closed in 1877, but, as a number of improvements tending to benefit the commerce of the town have since then been carried out, it may reasonably be supposed that another venture of the kind would be attended with success.—Bombay Gazette.

THE RESULTS OF THE DURBAR.

ALTHOUGH as yet only telegraphic accounts of the Lahore durbar and of the viceregal progress have reached us, yet there has been conveyed enough to give room for conjecture, though not for any certain conclusion. Coincident with the accounts of the successful solemnities of the reception of the chiefs and the allocutions thereat delivered, come telegrams from Kandahar which decidedly leave the impression that Ayub, notwithstanding all the reports, is watching the moves of his opponent. We have noted one pregnant sentence in a telegram to a contemporary which speaks of the certainty with which, after the defeat of Ayub, new troops were expected to complete their work by an advance on Herat. There can be little doubt that such a march would have accomplished much in the way of clearing off the effects of the preceding disaster, which the victory of Kandahar could not entirely obliterate. But the general and the army which could have victoriously accomplished the task, and secured the "crowning mercy" that was needed to confirm—if our policy should have it so—the kingdom of Abdul Rahman, were withheld. The opportunity passed, and our politicals have since had to contend against the effects of the gathering strength and the active intrigues of which Herat is the headquarters and Ayub Khan the head centre. Every week we have the same story, that the uncertainty as to our future policy is maintaining a constant disquiet, and really preventing either an accurate estimate of the sentiments of the Kandahar people or a tranquil settlement of the country. There does not seem so much cause to apprehend an attack on our occupying force as a slow but certain preparation on the part of Ayub Khan, and, it may be, the partisans of the ex-Ameer and his family, to seize Southern Afghanistan as soon as we relinquish it, and in that event the duration of 'Abdul Rahman's reign is not far to seek. The declaration on the part of the Viceroy that he would follow the principles of Lord Lawrence might not bear the same meaning in the capital of the Punjab that is assigned to it in London. The assembled chiefs would associate that honoured name with strong but just and evenhanded rule which reduced the turbulent new possession to tranquillity and order, and converted a province not long before the prolific hive of valiant enemies, into the reserve of British auxiliaries. The policy in regard to Afghanistan which, as Viceroy Lord Lawrence upheld, and which, in the later years of his life, he consistently pressed upon the Parliament and the nation, was one of abstention. But it has been pointed out often enough that it rested upon the strongly expressed opinion that we should keep out of Afghanistan, because if we did not we should have to remain there; that we should not interfere in the internal dissensions, because we should be obliged to uphold our decision in whosoever favour it might be. How the circumstances have altered the case at present, and how the Lawrentian policy will be moulded so as to adapt it, is a point on which, at least, Ayub Khan is doubtless anxious to be better informed with a view to timely organisation. The progress of the Viceroy, and the rewards bestowed on the chiefs of Khelat and Bhawalpore for their loyalty, will doubtless have a reassuring effect on the supporters of British interests, and the actual presence of the Viceroy, with all the pomp and circumstance of the Viceregal camp, on the trans-Indus confines of British India will not be without its influence on both sides of the frontier. There has been one very marked occurrence, which is mentioned in our summary. The absence of the Maharaja of Kashmir from his place among the rulers and chiefs assembled to receive the Viceroy of India is hardly to be sufficiently accounted for by the assigned reason—viz., the offence taken by him at not obtaining the pas of other chiefs, and being, in effect, received as an allied and independent sovereign. It is said, although not as yet with absolute authority, that, as a consequence, not merely of misgovernment but of proven double dealing and treachery, the Maharaja will be deposed from his government. Some time ago we drew attention to the condition of his country; further back still, our readers will recollect the reports that proofs had been discovered of his negotiations with the Tashkent Government and of his disloyalty to the Empress of India. There can exist no doubt that it is within the right of the Government to depose the ruler of Kashmir, and it will be but a natural outcome of that original bargain, one of the blots on the history of the Company's rule, which, for a sum of money, handed over the people of Kashmir to an alien ruler, hostile by faith and descent, if the heir of that ruler were compelled to close the short, but calamitous, history of oppression and wrong by a forced cession of the country. The decay of the industries of the country has been supplemented by famine, and, although this cannot be even thought of in connection with the administrative merits of the Government, yet the tales, albeit exaggerated, of neglect and greed on the part of the officials which have been from time to time half credited, half denied, have left an abiding impression that the people of Kashmir are suffering under an intolerable yoke. Latterly we have had better accounts to report. Attempts at amelioration have been promised. The Maharaja has been said to have reluctantly acted on the strong remonstrance addressed to him by the Government of India. But if the facts be as rumoured, that he has been all along intriguing to obtain possession of the Ghilghit and Chitral districts in order to be able to rely upon the same fancied support that Shere Ali leant upon, we should think that the most violent opponent of annexation, or advocate of the right of native chiefs to govern wrong, will find ought to disapprove in the long-deserved sentence being fulminated. Nor will the spectacle of the right being done by the new Viceroy fail to impress the chiefs of Afghanistan, and, it may be, the King of Burma, with a profound conviction that there is no change in the spirit and vigour of the Supreme Government.

The Queen has approved of the following admissions to the Staff Corps made by the Governments in India:—

BENGAL STAFF CORPS.

To be lieutenants—Lieuts. J. de Courcy D. Meade, from the 89th Foot, to rank from August 9, 1873; W. C. Faithfull, from the 6th Foot, to rank from Sept. 21, 1874; R. B. Shawe, from the 70th Foot, to rank from Feb. 11, 1875; Sub Lieut. E. A. Travers, from the 25th Foot, to rank from Sept. 10, 1875; Lieut. R. B. Adams, from the 12th Foot, to rank from Sept. 11, 1876.

MADRAS STAFF CORPS.

To be lieutenant—Lieut. C. W. W. Burton, from the 66th Foot, to rank from Sept. 11, 1877.

ERRATA.—The Christian names of the undermentioned officers, admitted to the Bengal and Madras Staff Corps respectively, are as follows, and not as stated in the London Gazette of Oct. 18, 1880:—Lieut. Edward Steuart Masters, Lieut. John Blakeney de la Poer Beresford. The name of the officer, whose date of admission to the Madras Staff Corps was corrected in the above Gazette, should have been given as Lieut. J. H. H. Ansley.

TWO METHODS OF IMPROVING AGRICULTURE.—The Asian is sorry to see that a good many papers have gone in for ridiculing the attempts made by the Department of Agriculture in the North West Provinces in this direction, and the young lions of the Bengal Secretariat point with pride to Sir Ashley Eden's establishment of two scholarships for native gentlemen at the Agricultural College at Cirencester as a more practical step in the right direction than the efforts to teach the ryots in the North West by experiments carried out under their very eyes. The Asian is not of this opinion. Suppose these two scholarship holders, one of whom is said to be a Hindu and the other a Mahomedan, learn all that it is possible for them to learn during their two years' residence in England in practical and scientific agriculture, how long will it be before they are able to impart any of this knowledge to a small proportion of the sixty millions of their countrymen who live by tilling the soil. If the selected candidates had been landowners who, on their return from England, would take into their own hands some of their paternal acres, and then prove to their ryots what benefits might be derived from the improved systems which they had learnt, we could see that some good might ultimately be done, for the ryot might be more willing to learn from his own landlord than from a Government official. But the selections of the two candidates from Bengal seem to have been made without any object of this sort in view. The Asian is therefore disposed to regard with more favour the system adopted in the North West Provinces of showing the ryots by practical experiments what can be done.

THE GALLANTRY OF THE 66TH REGIMENT.

The Viceroy and Governor General in Council has much satisfaction in directing the publication of the subjoined correspondence regarding the gallant and devoted conduct of the 66th (The Berkshire) Regiment of Foot at the affair of Maiwand on July 27 last :—

From Major General G. R. Greaves, C.B., adjutant general in India to the secretary of the Government of India, Military Department.—(No. 5994-A,—“Cabul,”—dated Simla, Oct. 25.)

I am directed by the Commander in Chief to forward, for the information of Government, the accompanying letter from Lieut. General Primrose, C.S.I., reporting on the gallant and determined stand made by the 66th Regiment at Maiwand. The events mentioned have already been referred to in my letter No. 5351-A, dated Sept. 25; but the details now given show the gallantry and devotion to duty of the officers and men who fell on that occasion.

From Lieut. General J. M. Primrose, C.S.I., commanding the 1st Division, Southern Afghanistan Field Force, to the Adjutant General in India, Simla—(No. 1,050-K. dated Kandahar, Oct. 1, 1880.)

In forwarding the accompanying documents I would most respectfully wish to bring to his Excellency the Commander in Chief's notice the gallant and determined stand made by the officers and men of the 66th Regiment at Maiwand. The disposition of the regiment was as follows :—Fighting line—fifteen officers; 364 men—all ranks; baggage guard in rear—four officers; ninety-three men—all ranks; with smooth-bore battery—one officer; forty-two men—all ranks; sick—thirty-two men. Of this number ten officers and 275 non-commissioned officers and men were killed, and two officers and thirty non-commissioned officers and men wounded. These officers and men nearly all fell fighting desperately for the honour of their Queen and country. I have it on the authority of a colonel of artillery of Ayub Khan's army, who was present at the time, that a party of the 66th Regiment, which he estimated at one hundred officers and men, made a most determined stand. They were surrounded by the whole Afghan army, and fought on until only eleven men were left, inflicting enormous loss upon the enemy. These eleven charged out of their place and died with their faces to the foe, fighting to the death. Such was the nature of their charge and the grandeur of their bearing that, although the whole of the Ghazis were assembled around them, not one dared approach to cut them down. Thus standing in the open, back to back, firing steadily and truly, every shot telling, surrounded by thousands, these eleven officers and men died; and it was not until the last man had been shot down that the Ghazis dared advance upon them. He further adds that the conduct of these men was the admiration of all who witnessed it. This is the testimony of a man who witnessed the scene, and who gave the information before Brigadier General Daubeny proceeded to Maiwand. From an examination of the ground, from corroborative evidence, and from the position in which the bodies were found, I have not the least hesitation in stating that this account is true; and I think his Excellency will agree with me when I say that history does not afford any grander or finer instance of gallantry and devotion to Queen and country than that displayed by the 66th Regiment on July 27, 1880. A nominal roll of the officers and men who fought and died thus nobly has been already forwarded to you; and inquiries from survivors elicit the following facts :—Lieut. Col. James Galbraith was last seen on the nullah bank, kneeling on one knee, with a colour in his hand, officers and men rallying round him, and on this spot his body was found. Here too fell Capt. William Hamilton M'Math, a gallant soldier, and one who would, had his life been spared, have risen to distinction in her Majesty's service. Close by Second Lieut. Harry James Outram Barr was shot dead over one of the colours. Capt. Ernest Stephen Garratt and Francis James Cullen were both killed on the field in front of the nullah, up to the last moment commanding their companies and giving their orders with as much coolness as if on an ordinary regimental parade. Capt. Walter Roberts was mortally wounded in the garden where the last stand was made; and here also fell Lieut. Maurice Edward Rayner, Lieut. Richard Trevor Chute, Second Lieut. Walter Rice Olivey, and Second Lieut. Arthur Honeywood. The two latter officers were seen holding up the colours, the pole of one of which was shattered to pieces, as rallying points, and Lieut. Honeywood was shot down whilst holding a colour high above his head, shouting “Men, what shall we do to save this?” Sergeant Major Alexander Cuppage was shot dead outside the garden whilst carrying a colour; and many other non-commissioned officers and men laid down their lives in the attempt to save the colours of their regiment on that day. With the gallant band who made this last grand effort, fought and died Major George Frederick Blackwood, Royal Horse Artillery; Lieut. Thomas Rice Henn, Royal Engineers; and Lieut. Charles William Hinde, 1st Bombay Grenadiers, Native Infantry, with some of his men. The men of the 66th, on baggage guard, under the command of Capt. J. Quarry, did excellent service during the retreat. The party told off to man the smooth-bore battery under Lieut. G. De la M. Faunce, worked their guns steadily and well during the fight.

GENERAL ROBERTS'S OFFICERS.—The following notification appears in General Orders recently issued by his Excellency the Commander in Chief at Simla :—Major General J. Ross, C.B., her Majesty's service, who vacated his appointment on the Brigade Staff in this Presidency on June 25 last, on the expiration of his tenure of command, and who has since been employed on field service in Afghanistan, is now permitted to proceed to England; Major General J. Hills, C.B., V.C., Royal (late Bengal) Artillery, is, on promotion to that rank (G.O.C.C. Sept. 4, 1879), directed to proceed to England; Major General Hills has, with the sanction of Government, been employed with the army in Afghanistan since the date of his promotion; Captain (Brevet Major) G.T. Pretyman, R.A., (Seconded List) has been granted leave to England for nine months, on urgent private affairs.

HOME NEWS.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders were received on Wednesday last at the Bank of England for Rs.30,00,000 Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were :—To Calcutta, Rs.21,35,000; to Bombay, Rs.8,06,000; and to Madras, Rs.59,000. Tenders on all Presidencies at 18. 7½d. received about 3 per cent.; above that price in full. Compared with the previous week this price shows a decline of 1-16d.

AN IMITATION OF THE ALBERT MEMORIAL.—The late Siamese Ambassador, being greatly struck with the grandeur of the Albert Memorial, entrusted Mr. Benson, of Ludgate-hill, with an order for a large copy in silver, to be presented by his Excellency and suite to the King of Siam as a memento of their visit. Mr. Benson has just completed his task, and has produced the largest and most perfect architectural piece of plate ever made, standing with its pedestal 7ft. high. The lines followed are exactly those of the architect, the late Sir Gilbert Scott, with the detail of the decorations modified where necessary to the Buddhist religion. The figure of the Prince Consort is replaced by a spirited model of the King in a standing position. The Embassy, as the donors, are produced in bas-relief below, and make a picturesque group in the front panel, the other sides having his Majesty's Body Guard. The regal crown, in gold, forms the spire, and is also placed on the apex of each arch; the steps to the monument are produced in various fine marbles, and the white elephants stand at the four corners, instead of the groups of Europe, Asia, Africa, and America. Mr. Benson has it now on view at his establishment in Old Bond-street.

GENERAL BOILEAU.—The ceremony of unveiling a bust to Major General Boileau, a member of the Kensington Vestry, which has been placed in a niche behind the presiding chair in the new Town-hall at Kensington, was performed last week in the presence of a very large and influential company. The chairman was Mr. Robert Freeman, of the Metropolitan Board, who was supported by Sir Charles Dilke, M.P., Dr. Daniells, Mr. Boucher (chairman of the Works Committee of the Vestry), Mr. Dudfield (medical officer), and Mr. Harning, clerk. Mr. Freeman opened the proceedings with a long address, in which he traced the gallant general's career from the time he went into the profession of arms up to the time he “settled” in Kensington, describing the great amount of ability he had always displayed, the assistance he had been enabled to render to the Indian Governments at various times, and enlarging upon the scientific abilities developed by him both theoretically and practically. Mr. Freeman then uncovered the bust, which is of marble. Sir Charles Dilke then rose, and said there was no need to talk at any length about General Boileau's services, because they were all present to their minds. They all regarded him as a thoroughly representative Englishman. Major General Boileau replied in a few feeling words, expressing his sense of the honour done him and referring to his Indian experience.

THE PROPOSED INDIAN INSTITUTE AT OXFORD.—A Convocation was held on Thursday, which was largely attended, to take into consideration alternative forms of decree relating to the proposed Indian Institute. The first form of decree was to the effect that the decree of June 1, 1880, relating to the Indian Institute, be rescinded, and that a sum of £250 a year be paid from the university chest towards the endowment of the Indian Institute, such annual payment to begin from the time when the institute is opened, and to be subject to the following conditions :—1. That not more than £12,000 be expended on the building, including fittings and other expenses. 2. That not less than one-half of any sums contributed above £18,000 be assigned to the endowment fund. 3. That the proposed site and plans of the building be approved by the Hebdomadal Council. 4. That the site be conveyed to the university. 5. That the institute be managed by a board appointed by the university. This decree, which thus left the professor free to select a site for the institute, had called forth a paper from Professor Max Muller, recommending the suspension of action by the university for a while until a matured scheme should be placed before it. Professor Williams, however, urged that the present question was not whether the university should mature a comprehensive measure for promotion of Oriental studies (which he had already promised to initiate in connection with the institute), but whether the university, in place of a definite site already given, but of which it had repented, should give a definite endowment to a building ultimately to be handed over to it. And he earnestly pleaded the necessity of a distinct centralising building for the institute. Professor Max Muller was in favour of housing the institute temporarily in the new schools, after the fashion of the Asiatic society and other famous institutes. The institute itself should be developed before its building. Of the objects proposed the museum was either superfluous or impossible. The library would be at odds with Bodley, already pre-eminent in Sanskrit, and so on. He urged that Indian and Oriental research should be provided for in preference. Fresh texts and translations were called for. For twenty years no MS. had been added to the Bodleian treasure, no anecdotal published, no translation of a fresh work made. St. Petersburg meanwhile was active, and Berlin had outstripped Oxford. After some discussion a division was called, when there appeared—For this form of decree, ninety-four placets and fifty-six non-placets. The first alternative having been accepted, the second was not put. The matter having been thus far now definitely settled it only remains for a site to be selected and plans for the building prepared. There must be approved by the Hebdomadal Council.

INDIA.—The first of two addresses on "India" was delivered last Wednesday by Sir Arthur Hobhouse, K.C.S.I., before the London Dialectical Society, in the Langham-hall, Great Portland-street. Dr. Andrew Clark took the chair. After directing attention to the physical and moral features of India and its peoples he pointed out the difficulty of the subject with which he had to deal, reminding his hearers of the size of India and the diversity of its geographical character. On first reaching the country Europeans often supposed that there was a uniformity of facial feature, complexion, and civilisation, whereas a more extended acquaintance showed that there were as great, or even greater, differences of face, and colour and mental culture, as among the peoples of Europe. The cultivated gentlemen of London, Paris, or Berlin did not differ more from the Calabrian or Bulgarian peasantry than did the Hindu gentlemen of Calcutta excel the Hindu of the poorer class living in the same province. Briefly describing the civilised condition of some communities, he referred to the importance of remembering the vitality and power of Indian religious thought, and, sketching some amusing and some shocking pictures of the extreme barbarity of other communities, adverted to the growth among the most debased tribes of the feeling against the custom of making human sacrifices. With regard to caste, he said a close observer had told him the number of divisions ran into the thousands. At first he thought it was a gigantic system of trades' unionism for the purpose of securing employment to as many hands as possible, but he soon found that this was a shallow view. It was an institution of the most powerful kind, pervading the whole life of those who were subject to it, and, though mixed up with many trivial and many inconvenient observances, yet supplying all the sanctions of law, morality, and religion to the conduct of daily life. Caste, as it seemed to him, was the strongest possible preservative of society on the small scale, and it possibly accounted for the sameness of character preserved in the different classes of Indians through long ages and numerous dynastic changes. On the other hand, it was absolutely destructive of society on the large or national scale. For how could people combine together for a length of time or for any great purpose who must not vary their occupations, who must not travel across the sea, who must separate from one another for the most ordinary purposes of life, such as eating, under peril of defilement? Those who had followed him would see that the notion—a very common one—that there was such a thing as an Indian nation was a pure delusion. Calling attention to what occurred during the Sepoy Mutiny, Sir Arthur Hobhouse said, in conclusion, that nothing could show more conclusively the absence of any national spirit. If India were a nation in the same sense in which England was a nation, or in the same sense in which we supposed China to be a nation, we should have no business there, and it was impossible to suppose that we should have got there as rulers. But because it was only a congeries of tribes, religions, and castes, some bitterly hostile, others distant and contemptuous to one another, it had fallen under the rule of a paramount Power strong enough to reduce all rivals to subjection and to keep the peace. A discussion followed.

GOLD MINING IN INDIA.—The prospectus is issued of the Mysore Reefs Gold Mining Company, with a capital of £120,000, in £1 shares. It is intended to work a property of 320 acres in the district of Kolar, in the Mysore territory. The South Wynaad Gold Mining Company has a capital of £100,000, in £1 shares, and has contracted to purchase the estates known as Lakadie and Madutella, comprising about 677 acres in the Wynaad district. The directors of the South-East Wynaad Estate and Gold Mining Company (Limited) have received the following report from Captain Roberts, dated Oct. 16, 1880:—"A facing has been made in the side of the mountain with the view of commencing a tunnel, but the ground being very hard progress is slow." He also speaks of the samples of stone he tried during the week, which averaged from a quarter to half-an-ounce of gold per ton, and that in some of them large quantities of native silver, in the proportion of from fifty to one hundred ounces per ton, were also discovered.

THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE.—The regulations for the open competition of June, 1881, for the Indian Civil Service have been issued. The examination will be held on the 2nd of June and following days. The examination will include English composition, history, and literature; Greek, Latin, French, German, Italian, mathematics (pure and mixed), natural science, logic, elements of political economy, Sanskrit and Arabic. Persons desirous to be admitted as candidates must apply on forms, which may be obtained from "The Secretary, Civil Service Commission, London, S. W.," at any time after the 1st of December, 1880. The forms must be returned so as to be received at the office of the Civil Service Commissioners on or before the 1st of April, 1881.

COOLIE IMMIGRATION FROM MADRAS.—On Monday Sir Charles Wingfield, K.C.S.I., and Mr. Chesson, on behalf of the Aborigines Protection Society, had an interview with Mr. Adam, the Governor of Madras, with reference to immigration from that Presidency to various colonies in which indentured labour is employed. His Excellency promised to look carefully into the subject and to do all in his power to protect the immigrants.—Daily News.

The following information respecting the movements of her Majesty's ships is supplied by the Admiralty:—The Euphrates passed Gibraltar, homeward bound, on Saturday; the Wye arrived at St. Vincent (Cape Verdes) on Saturday last, and sails on the 23rd inst.; the Serapis arrived at Aden from Bombay on Saturday; and the Woodlark was in port at Muscat on the 17th inst.

OBITUARY.—Colonel Charles Darby, late of the 86th Regiment, who died at Leamington recently in his 50th year, entered the 2nd (the Queen's Royal) Regiment as ensign, September 6, 1839, and became lieutenant July 30, 1842. He served with 200 volunteers from the 13th Regiment attached to the Sind Camel Corps during Sir Charles Napier's campaign of 1845 against the mountain and desert tribes on the right bank of the Indus. Becoming captain December 19, 1854, he served with the 86th Regiment in India throughout the rebellion of 1857-58, in the campaign in Central India under Sir Hugh Rose, and was present at the siege and storm of Chundaree, where he led the storming column. Colonel Darby was also present at the battle of the Betwa and the siege and storm of Jhansi, where he led the breach storming party and was severely wounded, and for his services was mentioned in the despatches and received the medal with clasp, and the brevet of major, July 20, 1858. He became lieutenant colonel March 25, 1869, and colonel June 8, 1870.

SURG. GEN. FREDERICK F. ALLEN, C.B., late of the Bengal Medical Department, has been appointed to succeed the late Dr. Edward Goodeve as honorary physician to her Majesty.

THE ARMY MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—It is notified by Sir W. M. Muir, K.C.B., Director General of the Army Medical Department, that the next examination of candidates for commissions in the Medical Department of the Army will be held at the London University, Burlington-gardens, on the 14th of February next and two following days. Candidates having two qualifications—one to practise medicine and the other surgery—under the Medical Act, and who are not under twenty-one, nor above twenty-eight years of age, at the date of the London examination, are eligible to attend.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—The secretary notifies that at the annual meeting, to be held on the 7th proximo, the directors will recommend a dividend of 3 per cent. for the six months ending 30th September last, making, with the interim dividend of 2 per cent. paid in June, 5 per cent. for the year. The dividend last year was 4½ per cent., with a payment from the underwriting account of 1 per cent.; but no distribution will be made this year from the latter account in consequence of the loss of the Hindustan and Travancore. The directors have provisionally appointed Mr. Montagu Cleugh Wilkinson to the seat at the board vacant through the death of Mr. Thomas Stockbowie.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.—The report for the half-year ending June 30 states that the gross earnings for that period amounted to £174,931, against £168,896 in the corresponding period of 1879; and the net earnings were £71,982, against £76,840. The number of passengers carried was 1,029,726, against 1,028,032. The tons of goods carried were 183,401, against 146,923. The earnings per train mile were 9s. 10.3d., against 10s. 9.3d. and the expenses 5s. 4.8d., against 5s. 2.2d. The gross earnings per mile open were £996, against £971. The gross earnings exceed those of the corresponding half-year of 1879 by £6,035, or 3.57 per cent. The excess has been chiefly from grain and seed traffic, which are carried at low rates and yield comparatively small net earnings; while the jute traffic has been unusually light in consequence of the smallness of the crop of 1879 and of its having been disposed of early. There has, on the other hand, been an increase in the revenue expenditure. The carrying, loading, and unloading the heavier weight of goods necessarily increased it to some extent; but the main portion of the increase was exceptional, the principal items being the charges to revenue of the expenditure which the severe floods of 1879 made requisite for the safety of the line, and of the expenditure for compounding the engines of the steamer Princess Alice, heavy renewals in India of rolling stock, and extensive repairs to two of the flats. The requisite outlay having been met within the half-year has necessarily reduced the amount of the net earnings, the result of which is that the latter are less by £4,771 than the amount of the guaranteed interest. The total number of passengers carried has increased a little, while the total sum received has decreased. The decrease in the receipts has been chiefly in respect to the traffic on the upper portion of the line, partly owing to the impoverished condition of the population in consequence of the destruction of crops and property by the unusually severe floods of last year. The increase in the tons of goods carried is at the rate of 24.8 per cent., while that in the money earned is a little under 9 per cent.; the difference arises from the increase having been chiefly in the grain and seed traffic carried at low rates. The traffic in connection with the Northern Bengal State Railway continues to increase; the company's earnings from this source during the half-year amount to £29,852, as compared with £22,852 for the corresponding half of 1879—an increase of more than 30 per cent. The terms upon which this company work and maintain the short branch of the above railway on the south of the Ganges have, during the half-year, been the subject of negotiation with the Government, and it has been agreed that the company are to work and maintain it in consideration of receiving 60 per cent. of the gross receipts. The arrangement is retrospective, and the accounts are made up as if it had commenced on Jan. 1. During the current half-year the long-expected revival of trade seems, as regards this railway, to have commenced. The gross earnings during the first sixteen weeks amount to £185,408, as compared with £150,830 for the corresponding period of 1879, when the surplus dividend earned was £15s. per cent.

COL. A. FITZ-HUGH, of the 5th Goorkha, returned to Streat Rectory, Hurstpierpont, yesterday, and was received with honours by his old neighbours and friends.

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.—A lecture was delivered on Thursday evening at the Hall of Science, Old-street, City-road, on the "British Misgovernment of India," by Mr. Upendra Nath Das, late president of the Radical League at Calcutta.—Mr. Bradlaugh, M.P., presided.—The lecture consisted of the recital of and criticisms upon the social, political, and religious grievances under which, Mr. Das contended, the natives of Indian labour. Mr. Das urged that the great body of the people of the United Kingdom knew little or nothing of these grievances. His object in lecturing upon the subject was to make the case of his fellow-countrymen known throughout the whole of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and to appeal to them for redress. He remarked that the case of Ireland had come recently very much to the fore, and he hoped that when the Imperial Parliament came to consider that case, some parliamentary attention would also be paid to the grievances and the disabilities of the natives of India.—The Chairman, in thanking Mr. Das for his lecture, hoped the day was not far distant when the Imperial Parliament would be a real Parliament, and that India would be properly represented there.

BOTH HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.

SESSION 1880.

"Messrs. Allen have commenced the publication of a most useful work, the need of which has been felt for a long time, though until now no one has had the courage to attempt it. . . . The précis is very well done."—Journal of the Statistical Society, June, 1880.

"There is no doubt as to the value of most parliamentary publications, but few persons have the time or inclination to wade through them, and thus much valuable matter is missed, but in this précis Messrs. Allen and Co. give an outline of just what is required."—Iron Trade Review.

"Messrs. Allen and Co.'s book is composed of abstracts of all returns directed to be printed by either or both of the Houses of Parliament, and the work has evidently been done by practised précis writers who understand how to reach the important features of Government papers."—Liverpool Daily Courier.

"This is a publication which supplies a great want. We gladly welcome this work, both for reading and for reference."—United Service Gazette.

"The papers are carefully condensed."—British Mail.

"In the case of statistical returns it is especially good."—Cambridge Chronicle.

"This is not a Blue-book, but none of them can exceed it in value. Every business man will have it up on the desk corner for reference, and it should be found on the table of every public reading room and private library."—Western Times.

"A most useful work of reference."—The Railway News.

"This is a very important work, and its perusal will place readers on a far higher intellectual level and acquaintance with the parliamentary papers than most embryo members of Parliament possess."—Finance Chronicle and Insurance Circular.

"This serial is calculated to be of much service."—Iron.

"The above contains a vast amount of valuable information and statistics."—Sunday Times.

"We scarcely need add that it is a valuable work."—Herapath's Railway Journal.

"As a book of reference, promises to be of inestimable value to public men, journalists, economists, historical students, and, indeed, all who are interested in national progress and contemporary politics."—The Statist.

"The difficult work of summarising is extremely well executed. Both paper and type are good."—Broad Arrow.

"An excellent publication."—The Farmer.

"Messrs. Allen and Co. earn the gratitude of all who require to keep themselves acquainted with the contents of parliamentary papers by the publication of this précis. The compilation has been made with discretion, and will be found extremely valuable and useful for reference."—Dundee Advertiser.

"As a handy work of reference, and a means of saving time and labour, it will be highly appreciated."—Allen's Indian Mail.

"The utility of the précis is very considerably heightened by an admirable table of contents numerically and alphabetically arranged."—The Railway News and Joint-Stock Journal.

"The précis of official papers will give new value to the parliamentary returns."—Liverpool Courier.

"Nons croyons rendre service au public et à ceux de nos confrères qui ne la connaîtraient pas, en leur signalant cette publication nouvelle."—Monteur des Intérêts Matériels, Brussels.

The ordinary common joys and troubles of common-place people form his subject, and they are told with a direct straightforward adherence to probability, lighted up occasionally with gleams of fun and humour that makes his books exceedingly readable."—Daily News.

LAMPLOUGH'S EFFERVESCENT

PYRETIC SALINE.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators, also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates.

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needed.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Nov. 13; Madras and Allahabad, Nov. 11; Calcutta, Nov. 10.

REPORTS on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending Nov. 2 state that good rain has again fallen in Madras, and the general prospects are fair. In Bombay there was a favourable rain in the Ahmednagar, Dharwar, and Kanara districts, and slight rain also in Guzerat. The kharif crops are being harvested, and the sowing of rabi is progressing. In Bengal many districts had rain during the week; the standing crops are very promising, and the sowing of the cold weather crops continues satisfactorily. Prospects in this province are, on the whole, very favourable, except in Chumparun, where drought still prevails. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh there has been no very good rain, except in Jhansi; but there have been slight showers in Allahabad, Partabgarh, and Rae Bareilly. The rain has revived the kharif crops in Jhansi, and a larger area than was anticipated can now be sown for the spring crops in this district. Rain is much wanted in the Cawnpore, Lucknow, Sitapur, Fyzabad, and part of the Rae Bareilly districts; and some distress continues to be felt among the labourers in Cawnpore and Rae Bareilly. Prices, however, are steady. There was no rain again in the Punjab, but prospects are reported to be fairly favourable, though the outturn of the autumn harvest will, it is expected, be below the average yield. In the Central Provinces slight rain fell in a few districts; sowings are in progress; prospects are favourable. In Burma the rainfall was again slight; the want of rain is now said to be general, but the condition of the crops is fair. In Assam prospects continue good. In Mysor and Coorg there has again been heavy and general rain, and crops are thriving. In Berar and Hyderabad, too, crops are flourishing, but some slight damage seems to have been done by locusts in Akola. In the Central India and Rajputana States prospects are good on the whole. Prospects throughout the Empire are now generally favourable, except in the south western districts of the North Western Provinces and the southern portion of Oudh. Here there has been some improvement during the past fortnight, but there are grounds for fearing that a short rabi may in some places follow on a poor kharif.

THE health report for the same week is as follows:—Bombay, Hyderabad (Sind): Mild fever throughout district; fever increasing in Baroda, decreasing in Ahmedabad. Bengal: Fever very bad in Purneah, and reported in some other places, otherwise public health good. North West Provinces and Oudh: Cholera still in Bareilly and part of Sitapur, otherwise health generally good. Punjab: Delhi, slight fever. Central Provinces: Fever still prevalent. British Burma: Cholera somewhat prevalent in Pegu, small-pox in Bassein, otherwise health good. Assam healthy; same report from Mysor and Coorg, Berar and Hyderabad, and Central India States. Rajputana: Fever less in Serohi, prevalent in Meywar.

DURING the past week there has been a marked improvement in the harvest prospects in most of the threatened districts of the North West Provinces. The light but most welcome rainfall on the 19th and 20th has not only done much good to the crops already sown, but has also enabled the ryots to sow some lands which must otherwise have been left fallow. The rain appears to have come just at the right time, before it was too late to sow the winter crop. According to the latest accounts, more rain is wanted, and two or three districts, such as Cawnpore, have not yet had any; but things look much better in the Rai Bareilly district, as to which the most anxiety was felt, and the scarcity and distress, if not wholly avoided, will be much less intense than seemed probable a fortnight ago.

DURING the week ending Oct. 30 there were 245 deaths in Calcutta, giving a death-rate of 29·7 per 1,000 per annum. In Madras during the same week there were 299 deaths, a death-rate of 39·1 per 1,000 per annum. In Bombay during the week ending November 2 there were 386 deaths, and the death-rate was 28·56 per 1,000 per annum.

YESTERDAY the Wali of Kandahar received at a durbar a letter from the Viceroy acquiescing in his request for permission to retire to India with his family.

THE recent telegrams include the following items of interest concerning affairs in Afghanistan:—

"The latest Cabul news received by the Government is said to be of a generally satisfactory nature. The road from Gandamak to Cabul is considered safe, although the Shinwarris and Khugianis are giving some trouble near Thaka. The Ameer is still enlisting men at Cabul, and is reported to have now six infantry and two cavalry regiments. The only disturbance in the city arose from a quarrel between residents in the Hindu quarter and some followers of Mahomed Jan, but it never became serious and was soon put down.

"Orders have been issued for the removal of the telegraph wire between Peshawur and Lundi Kotal. This would seem to point to a speedy evacuation of the Khyber and the abandonment of the only fruit of the campaign now left to us in Northern Afghanistan. This policy of giving up the passes is in India considered most unwise. According to accounts that arrived on Friday in Kandahar, Herat appears to be lapsing into a state of anarchy. The Turcomans continue to ravage the country unchecked and are sweeping off the inhabitants of numerous villages into slavery.

"Owing to Ayub's efforts to organise a fresh expedition against us, the people in all the provinces are ground down with the recent onerous taxation, and a deep and widespread discontent prevails. The principal tribes are openly throwing off their allegiance to Ayub, and rumours are current that he has already sent a letter to Tashkend to ask for help. The Ambassador who has gone to Teheran to ask for help is said to have telegraphed that the Shah is unable to co-operate with Ayub against the Turcomans.

"Macgregor's expedition against the Marris has turned out a failure.

"It is reported that Abdul Rahman is making overtures to Ayub, in order to induce him to acknowledge his authority, and has even, it is said, sent him a present of money.

"It is generally believed that, should all Ayub's plans for raising money and organising another expedition against us fail, and the negotiations set on foot by Abdul Rahman fall through, he contemplates seeking a refuge in Russian territory, and there awaiting events, as Abdul Rahman did for so many years.

"Of the seven hundred and twenty men of the 11th Regiment who crossed the frontier in July only three hundred and five are now fit for duty. This is the result of the hardships of their march to the Bolan.

"In Kandahar the supply question is the main subject of interest, prices being higher than they have ever been since our arrival. The commissariat, moreover, find it impossible to get in any considerable reserve stock of torage and grain for the cattle; but this is nothing new, the fact being that the carriage of the country is insufficient to bring in much beyond the daily requirements of the city and the force, while the rising prices may be accounted for by the large exports to Peshin and Quetta. General Hume arrived on Monday."

THE telegram from the Kandahar correspondent of the Standard—"Daubey has died from small-pox"—must, we fear, refer to Lieut. Col. A. G. Daubeny, 7th Fusiliers.

THE latest news of the outbreak in Gilgit is reassuring. The Yassin people, who attacked Gilgit Fort, are said to be in retreat. Major Biddulph is safe and no further anxiety is felt about him. The Maharaja of Cashmere is, however, still pushing forward reinforcements, which will be accompanied by Col. Tanner, the officer who, some months ago, made an exploring expedition in Kafiristan, and by Surgeon Duke, 3rd Punjab Cavalry.

H.E. THE MARQUIS OF RIPON has subscribed a thousand rupees to the Mahomedan Anglo-Oriental College Building Fund and promised an annual subscription of Rs.500.

ON Thursday the Right Hon. W. P. Adam arrived at Windsor Castle, where he dined with the Queen, Princess Beatrice, General Sir F. Roberts, and others. The right hon. gentleman left Charing-cross station on Friday evening by the mail train, accompanied by one of his sons, Captain Wyllie, his Excellency's military secretary, and Lord Dalrymple, his aide de camp.

THE RIGHT HON. W. P. ADAM has appointed as his private secretary Major G. Bertie B. Hobart, R.A., at present military secretary to the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos, Governor of Madras.

THE Madras correspondents have already heard rumours of the above appointment, and do not speak approvingly of it. "Benighted" says "he wants change of air, and we all earnestly hope that nothing will prevent his running home."

THE DUKE OF BUCKINGHAM leaves Madras for England about Dec. 21.

THE Queen has been graciously pleased to appoint Lieut. Col. Beresford Lovett, C.S.I., to be her Majesty's Consul for the Provinces on the South of the Caspian Sea and the North East of Persia, to reside at Asterabad.

MAJOR GENERAL C. O. JOHNSON has resigned the office of quartermaster general in India, and Col. M'Gregor has been appointed to succeed him. The last named officer, after taking formal charge of the office, has started for England on a three months' leave.

WE learn from the Hague that a royal decree has been published in the Official Journal by which the resignation by Mynheer J. W. Van Lansberge of the governor-generalship of the East Indies is accepted, with thanks to him for the numerous and important services he has rendered to the State. Mynheer F. S. Jacob, former director general of the company for the administration of the State railways, has been appointed governor general in his stead.

It is practically settled that Sir Richard Meade will go home on furlough in March, preparatory to his final resignation of the service.

IN reply to an address from the Dehra Municipal Committee, H.E. the Viceroy said he was glad to have an opportunity so soon of informing a municipal committee that he held them to be of the highest importance in the government of the country; indeed, he had it in charge from her gracious Majesty the Queen Empress to look closely into municipal government, as it is there that political education is acquired.

THE marriage of Mr. George Baird, 16th Lancers, of Adamston and Muirkirk, Ayrshire, with the eldest daughter of Sir James Fergusson, Bart., Governor of Bombay, was solemnised at the station church, Mahableshwur, on Nov. 10.

A RESOLUTION reorganising the Department of Finance and Accounts is published in the Gazette of India just received. The result of the new arrangement, which will be published in full, is that the whole department will consist in future of forty-four officers:—One comptroller general; five accountants general. Thirty enrolled officers—Two deputy comptrollers general; one assistant secretary; five comptrollers; five deputy accountants general; seventeen assistants comptroller general, assistants accountant general, and assistants comptroller; and eight chief clerks.

THE following additional noblemen and gentlemen have joined the committee of the Afghan War Relief Fund:—Viscount Cranbrook, General Sir Frederick Roberts, General R. C. Lawrence, Sir Alexander Taylor, Sir Peter Lumsden, and Sir R. H. Davies. All communications for the committee should be addressed to Capt. Gildea, 20, Stafford-terrace, Kensington, W.

EVERY effort is being made to abolish the Press Commissionership altogether while Lord Ripon is away on tour. The Simla correspondent of the Times of India says that Lord Ripon has been schooled into the idea that the Press Commissionership is an excrescence of the Vernacular Press Act and that its abolition will be popular. He is nevertheless unwilling to move personally in the matter, and has left it entirely in the hands of the temporary President of Council. This journal enters a strong protest against the abolition of the office so usefully administered by Mr. Lethbridge.

OFFICIAL notification is made of the issue of an Indian Three-and-a-Half per Cent. Sterling Loan for £3,500,000, tenders for which are invited at the Bank of England on the 7th inst., at the minimum price of £98 per £100 stock. The interest is payable quarterly, and the stock will not be redeemable until January, 1931, at which date, or subsequently, it may be paid off at par upon one year's previous notice. This will give the investor a guarantee of fifty years undisturbed. The same facilities will be given in respect of this stock for the transmission of dividend warrants by post, and for the exchange of stock into stock certificates with coupons annexed, payable to bearer, as given in the case of Consols and India Four per Cent. Stock. The object of the loan is not specified, but is presumably in connection with the large deficiency in the India Council drafts since the commencement of the present year.

THE Times of India quotes rumours that are apparently well authenticated that Mr. Birdwood's decision in the Chota-Oodeypore case is absolutely hostile to the accused. A formal trial should, consequently, be necessary. On the other hand, the Government of India are said to have taken the Bombay Government to task for the first inquiry as attracting an unnecessary amount of public attention to a very delicate question of jurisdiction. If Mr. Birdwood's decision is as severely adverse as is supposed the Bombay Government will be able to point to it in proof of the necessity of interference. In any case the course to be adopted by Government will be followed with the keenest interest by all the native courts on account of the principle involved.

THE Governor of Ceylon has published for general information a despatch received from Lord Kimberley directing that for the future no civil servant whose pay is fixed on the assumption that the whole of his time be devoted to the public service shall be permitted to become a director of any company or association. Permission to this effect had been given by the circular of Dec. 17, 1864; and the Secretary of State now directs that that circular shall be considered as cancelled.

THE shipments of this season's coffee crop from Ceylon amounted in the first three weeks of October to 11,080 cwt. of plantation, and 1,696 cwt. of native coffee, as compared with 10,878 cwt. and 218 cwt. respectively in the same period last year.

A ROYAL proclamation, which was published on Saturday in a supplement to the Gazette, orders Parliament to meet on Thursday, Jan. 6, "for the despatch of divers urgent and important affairs."

It is announced that the following officers will be recommended to the notice of her Majesty, to receive the Second-Class, or Knight Commandership, of the Order of the Bath, in recognition of their services recently in Afghanistan—viz., Major Generals J. Ross and J. Hills, V.C.; and Brigadier Generals H. T. Macpherson, V.C., C. M. M'Gregor, T. D. Baker, and H. H. Gough, V.C.

AN interesting table has been compiled by the Mining World, which shows that the nominal capital of seventeen Indian gold mining companies now amounts to £2,970,000, of which £1,116,000 in cash shares, which are not distinguished, represents the purchase money of the estates and rights. This does not include companies formed in India, such as the Ripon.

LIEUT. COL. JAMES BROWNE, R.E., C.S.I., late political officer in Southern Afghanistan, will shortly give a lecture on "The Retention of Kandahar and the Defence of the North West Frontier," at a meeting to be convened by the East India Association.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—Mr. M. C. Hayes and Mr. J. O. Knop.

THE value of the coffee exported from India in 1854-55 was £82,804. The value of that exported last year was £1,626,746, or nearly twenty times as much as was exported just a quarter of a century ago. The trade in jute has shown even greater expansion, the exports in 1854-55 being valued at £229,241, while in 1879-80 the value of raw jute exported was £4,370,032, and of jute manufactured into gunny bags £1,091,366.

PERAK MEDALS.

NOTICE is given that the medals awarded to the officers and crews of her Majesty's ships Egeria, Fly, Modeste, Philomel, Ringdove, and Thistle, for service in the Malay Straits (Perak Expedition) between Nov. 2, 1875, and March 20, 1876, are now in course of distribution. Application should be made personally or by letter addressed to the Accountant General of the Navy and Comptroller of Navy Pay, Admiralty, London, S.W. Petty officers and seamen, whether applying in person or by letter, are required to produce their certificates of service.

THE VICEROY'S TOUR.

THE Viceroy left Jacobabad on Sunday week and arrived at Karachi the following morning. During his stay there he inspected the harbour and other works and received addresses from the municipality and the chamber of commerce, in which his attention was called to some of the principal wants of Karachi, such as the construction of a bridge across the Indus at Sukkur, the extension of the railway system towards Afghanistan, the establishment of a daily post with Bombay, and a direct mail service with Aden. Lord Ripon, in reply, assured the memorialists that these and other matters mentioned by them would have careful consideration. On Tuesday the Viceroy received the Jam of Lus Beyla in private darbar. On Saturday he arrived at Bombay, where he will spend a week. On Monday his Excellency held a review of all the troops in garrison. His arrival at Calcutta is fixed for Dec. 6.

At Umritsar, replying to an address read on behalf of the native Christians of the Punjab, the Viceroy referred, amid hearty cheering, to the great interest expressed to him personally before leaving England regarding this school by the Prince and Princess of Wales, from whom the institution takes its name, and expressed his own great interest in the progress of education in India and his conviction that no education is complete and thorough if it does not combine religious with secular instruction, adding that it was the imperative duty of the Government to preserve the strictest neutrality in everything relating to religious matters in this country. Loud cheers interrupted the Viceroy's remarks throughout.

At Lahore the Viceroy received numerous influential deputations, including that of the Anjuman-i-Punjab, headed by Dr. Leitner, in a large darbar tent. His Excellency made an important speech, replying to the address, various points of which he took up in detail, chiefly relating to education, the Kazis and Vaccination Bills recently passed by the Legislative Council, Native Industrial Fine Art, and the Punjab University College.

RELIEF OF BRITISH AND NATIVE TROOPS.

WITH the sanction of the Government of India the following movements, in alteration and addition to the programme of relief of British and native troops for 1880-81, are ordered:—B Battery C Brigade R.H.A., Meerut, to stand fast; C Battery 4th Brigade R.A., Afghanistan to Meeran Meer instead of Sitapur; 1-8th, Kuram to Murree Hills; 6-8th, Afghanistan, to stand fast; 11-9th, Afghanistan to Jutogh; 13th Hussars, Lucknow to Kandahar; 100th Foot, Sialkot to Umballa; 7th Bengal Cavalry, Morar to Kandahar; 8th, Mooltan to Kandahar; 18th, Kuram to Nowshera; 5th N.I., Kuram to Jhansi; 9th, Afghanistan to Gorakhpur; 10th, Barrackpore to Benares; 14th, Umballa to Kandahar early in 1881; 25th, Afghanistan to Ferozepore; 26th, Jhelum to Kandahar early in 1881; 33rd Delhi to Barrackpore and (A wing) Dacca; 40th, Gorakhpur and Benares to Barrackpore; 42nd, Shillong to Naga Hills; 27th Madras Inf., Morar, to stand fast till further orders.

GENERAL SIR F. ROBERTS.

GENERAL SIR FREDERICK SLEIGH ROBERTS, accompanied by General Hills, left Paddington on Thursday afternoon, by Great Western train, on a visit to the Queen at Windsor Castle, where her Majesty purposed holding an investiture of the Order of the Bath. It was not till an advanced hour in the day that it was announced that Sir Frederick would arrive at the Great Western terminus shortly after five o'clock, thus enabling the Mayor (Mr. G. Tuck) and Town Clerk (Mr. H. Darvill) to complete their arrangements for the presentation of an address to the general by the corporation. Shortly after four o'clock a number of ladies and gentlemen assembled near the Queen's waiting-room, which had been prepared for the reception of Sir Frederick, and about half an hour later on the Mayor and members of the Town Council, wearing their state robes and preceded by the macebearer, reached the station. General Roberts arrived with General Hills. The gallant officers were heartily cheered by the throng of people near the train. Opposite the royal waiting-room General Roberts and his brother in arms were received by the Mayor and the Town Clerk and several aldermen. After the Mayor and senior members of the corporation had been severally introduced to Sir Frederick and General Hills they were escorted, amid cheers, into the waiting-room, where the Town Clerk read an address, congratulating Sir F. Roberts on his return from Afghanistan crowned with victory, speaking of him as "an honour to our army, a credit to our country, and one of whom we may look with confidence to lead our brave fellow-countrymen in case of need to victory." General Sir Frederick Roberts, who was much cheered while replying to the address, thanked the Mayor and Corporation for their kind reception, which he observed was an instance of the encouragement readily given to soldiers and others to do their duty to their country and Queen. As an old Etonian he highly valued the honour which had been done him at Windsor, which was near to the place where so many Englishmen had learned to fight their first battles in life. At the close of the interview Generals Roberts and Hills entered one of the Queen's carriages, and, amid continued bursts of applause, drove from the station to the castle, which was reached at five o'clock, the distinguished visitors alighting in the Grand Quadrangle. Shortly afterwards Sir Frederick was introduced to the presence of her Majesty by Lord Sandhurst, attended by Sir Albert Woods, registrar and secretary of the Order of the Bath, bearing the insignia of a Military Grand Cross of the Order, and received the honour of Knighthood and was invested by the Queen with the Riband and Badge of the Order. Her Royal Highness Princess Beatrice was present with her Majesty during the ceremony. The Lord, the Groom, the Equerries in Waiting, and the Master of the Household were in attendance. Lieut. Gen. the Right Hon. Sir Henry Ponsonby, K.C.B., was also in attendance. The ceremony took place in the audience room.—On Friday evening the gallant general was entertained at a banquet by the members of the United Service Club, Pall-mall, when there was a large and brilliant assembly, including the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Christian, the Duke of Cambridge, and many of the most distinguished naval and military veterans whose names figure prominently in the annals of modern warfare. The chair was occupied by the Duke of Cambridge, who was supported on his right by the Prince of Wales, Lord Northbrook, Lord Airlie, Admiral Sir H. Stewart, Sir Frederick Chapman, Admiral Hoskins, Sir Garnet Wolseley, and Admiral Erskine. On the left of the royal chairman were Major General Sir Frederick Roberts, the Right Hon. H. Childers, General Sir A. Stransham, General Sir C. Ellice, General Sir Charles Staveley, General Sir Archibald Horsford, General Sir C. Hodge, and Lieut. Gen. Whitmore. At the head of the table in front of the chairman was seated the Duke of Connaught, supported on his right by Prince Christian, Sir Hastings Doyle, Admiral Sir Harry Keppel, General Sir Patrick Grant, &c. There was a short toast list, numbering only three toasts. These were "The Queen," "The Prince and Princess of Wales and the other members of the Royal Family," and "The guest of the evening, Major General Sir Frederick Roberts," each of which was proposed by the royal chairman.—The Prince of Wales, in responding to the toast of the Royal Family, alluded to the great interest that her Majesty and himself had taken in the events in Afghanistan, of their sorrow at the great sacrifice of life, and in conclusion paid a eulogistic tribute to the bravery that had characterised the career of General Roberts in Afghanistan. General Roberts, in acknowledging the toast of his health, referred to the bravery of the Afghans and to their remarkable powers of endurance. He expressed an opinion that by the introduction of railways and the development of the resources of the country the Afghans, instead of being the implacable enemies of the British, might become faithful allies of the English Crown and devoted to the arts of peace like many Indian tribes whose chief characteristics formerly were enmity against this country and a disinclination to peaceful pursuits.

At the next meeting of the Court of Common Council it will be proposed to confer, in the name of the Corporation, the freedom of the city of London and a sword of honour upon Sir Frederick in recognition of his distinguished military services. The Citizen states that he is to be admitted to the freedom of the Fishmongers' Company on the 9th inst. and to the freedom of the Merchant Taylors' Company on the 14th.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

A NEW WORK ON TURKEY.*

MR. MENZIES strikes the key-note of his work in the first lines of his preface. "The momentous events recently occurring in the east of Europe were," he says, "the sequel and consequence of revolutions which have agitated that part of the world for several centuries. To thoroughly understand the facts now being accomplished from day to day it is necessary to follow in its principal features, general results, and most important revolutions the history of the formation, grandeur, and decadence of the Ottoman Empire." It is the story of the long conflict of races, of which the latest phase was witnessed in 1877-78, that Mr. Menzies undertakes to tell in these two handsome volumes. The introduction epitomises very briefly the chief incidents in the struggle between Russian and Turk, "a feud of races that can only terminate with the utter overthrow of one or other of them," and in the first thirty-nine pages we have the story of the rise of Mahomedanism, the early propagation of the faith, the account of the first Khalifs and the early schisms, and the story of the Mongol invasion down to the destruction of the Khalifate of Bagdad. Of Mahomedanism itself Mr. Menzies speaks without prejudice, and he ably defines its influence upon, and its suitability to, the temperament of the Arab. Its three cardinal errors are—the confusion of civil and religious law, fatal predestination, the abasement and plurality of women. These principles, when brought into contact with European civilisation, must necessarily produce fatal results, and it is to the want of coherence, and absence of the true basis of the state, the family, that Mr. Menzies would ascribe the decadence of all Mussulman States. More space might well have been devoted to the first six centuries of the history, for such a simile as that of "the scuffling of kites and crows" is quite inadequate to describe the horrible picture of anarchy at which our author but glances. Some elaboration here would have been of service in adding clearness to the story, but our author is evidently anxious to reach as soon as possible the date of the foundation of the Ottoman Empire. From this time there is no lack of detail. With the appearance of the Oghur Turks, and the inspiration Osman is said to have drawn from his wonderful dream, the interest centres around the struggle between the growing power and enthusiasm of the Turks, and the waning strength of the Byzantine Empire, existing now mainly on its reputation and keeping its enemies aloof by the recollections, "ploughed rather than written," into the East, of the ancient Roman prowess. But reminiscences could not suffice to save the empire with corruption at work within and an active enemy without. Constantinople fell, and we give, in Mr. Menzies's own words, the effect of that event:—"It swept away the last obstacle in the path of Islam inimical to that faith establishing itself in Christendom. It gave definitively the triumph to the East in its struggle against the West; it seemed to menace Europe with the fate from which it had escaped eighteen hundred years back by the victories of Salamis and Marathon; it gave up the Mediterranean, that sea of civilisation, to Oriental barbarism. Europe was struck with consternation at it; she felt herself sullied by a great disgrace, and at the same time menaced with a great danger. She dreaded the intrusion of a people foreign to her religion, to her manners, to her mind; who, until that dark day, had been only encamped upon her soil, but who now appeared to be definitively settled upon it. What would have been her alarm if she could have seen the interminable embarrassments which that barbaric domination should one day raise up in her bosom, and the infinite dangers with which, even now (1880) it threatens the future?" From the capture of Constantinople the Turkish successes followed briskly. The subjugation of the Morea, the exploits of Bajazet II. and of Selim, the Egyptian troubles, and the revolts of the Janissaries all receive adequate treatment in these pages. One by one the States of modern Europe are drawn into connection, sometimes friendly, usually hostile, with the invading barbarians, and to all the intricacies of the history of Central Europe Mr. Menzies is a safe guide. Early in the second volume he arrives at the peace of Jassy, and little more than half way through the volume he brings the story down to the signature of the Berlin Treaty. In the course of this narration we see the gradual decline of the Turkish power and the rise of a great Slavonic nation in the North, against the encroachments of which European States were often glad to ally themselves with their old Ottoman enemy. Through the whole course of the later developments of the Eastern Question Mr. Menzies maintains a tone of studied and historic impartiality. As regards the whole work it must be pronounced trustworthy and painstaking in the highest degree. The literary style is very lucid, though never eloquent, and many would complain of the exclusive attention paid to wars and conquest to the entire omission of the arts, sciences, and social life. The work travels ground already occupied by such eminent authorities as Gibbon, Latham, and Freeman, and to the researches of these writers Mr. Menzies adds nothing, as indeed he nowhere pretends to do. He has produced a tolerably compact and very accurate account of the past and present of the Ottoman Empire, and as such it will be a most useful magazine of facts to many. The appendices and statistics on the present state of Turkey are particularly excellent, and the volumes contain a useful map and many woodcuts.

RECENT FAIRY TALES.*

MR. JULIAN HAWTHORNE'S fairy tales are in their way unique. They have the simplicity, the accuracy of detail, and, we may add, the beauty of language which captivate the hearts of children, and at the same time they have a great deal more. Older persons than boys and girls could read his tales with pleasure and profit, although we fancy that many will read them through without fathoming their hidden meaning. Therein lies the secret of their admirable suitability for young readers, who are so quick to gather impressions from what they read rather than exact information. And from Mr. Hawthorne's stories, though they are as perfect satires in their way as have been produced in these later days on the customs and practices of civilised life, no young person can derive other than healthy impressions. It would be invidious to place one of these stories before the other. "Yellow Cap" is the longest and the first, but "Rumpty Dudget," "Calladon," and "Theeda" are each as excellent and as interesting. The style is far above the average of this class of publication, and, while there is no pretence at "fine writing," or "grandiloquent sentences," the language has a grace and simplicity which are captivating. No giftbook published this season can be allowed precedence of "Yellow Cap" for permanent value.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE DEWALLI AND TRADE.

THE Dewalli, as every native tradesman is aware, has a practical value as an outward and visible sign of prosperity or depression, and we will here confine ourselves to a consideration of the commercial aspect of the present festival. In this respect the Dewalli is an admirable record of the way in which the native merchants, bankers, and tradesmen have fared during the past year, and the best gauge of their expectations for the next one. During the last twelve months there have been no complaints of important failures in commercial circles. The year has witnessed the return of prosperity after the famine mortality and trade depression of the previous period. It has, in a word, been a year of commercial recovery. The abundant rain of the previous year had secured ample harvests of the staple produce of the country. Food grains were cheap over all the districts of the Presidency. For the first time after a succession of unfavourable seasons the ryot was able to meet the Government assessment without borrowing from the sowkar, and to liquidate a portion at least of his past debts while still retaining a stock of food as provision for the current year. The receipts of raw cotton into Bombay from Jan. 1 to Oct. 27 last were 1,076,488 bales, while the exports of the same article from Bombay to foreign countries up to the date were 857,278 bales, as against 591,736 bales in 1879. In seeds, too, more business has been done. The receipts of linseed from Jan. 1 to Oct. 27 last amount to 1,605,826 cwt., of gingelly-seed to 398,380 cwt., and of wheat from April 1 to Oct. 27 to 1,733,738 cwt. But by far the most notable recovery has been in respect of the cotton mill industry of Bombay, the prospects of which have greatly improved in the short space of a twelvemonth. Such of the mills as were drawn into the whirlpool of liquidation by the financial crisis of 1878 found capitalist buyers. These capitalists did a capital stroke of business in the purchases of heavily mortgaged mill properties at about half their original cost valuation, the principal sufferers being the unfortunate shareholders and creditors of the mills. Such was the panic prevailing at the time, that even sensible creditors refused to be convinced that bad times would not last for ever. A deposit receipt in a mill company was considered in 1879 as scarcely worth half the amount of money it represented, and in some cases not worth the paper on which it was written. If the proposals made to the creditors by the managers of certain mill concerns to pay half the amount of their deposits in cash and the other half by instalments had been listened to, the Bombay investors might not improbably have escaped the widespread misery which followed the sudden deadlock to which many of the mills were brought by being thrown into liquidation. The recovery was, however, more rapid than the most sanguine expected. Once more an honest demand arose for yarns and cloths from districts which previously were the scenes of famine, mortality, and devastation. This raised the prices of yarns to a point that left a fair margin of profit to the spinners over and above the cost of raw produce. From Madras and the Malabar coast, two of the best consumers of Bombay mill goods, the demand revived with such force that the productions of the mill were taken off the spinners' hands the moment they were ready. Last year the shipments of goods to China were mostly of a forced character, resulting from the necessity of clearing off heavy accumulations of stock. This year they have been entirely due to a steady consumptive demand on the part of China houses, and this demand is rapidly spreading to Japan on the one side and to Zanzibar and the Persian Gulf on the other. The increased value of the mill production has, of course, raised the value of mill property, and speculators have not been slow to profit by the opportunity. The rise that has taken place in the price of all mill shares within the space of one year is something like 50 per cent. of value. This extraordinary rise shows better than anything else can do the reason for the unusual character of the present Dewalli. The next year promises to be even more favourable than the last. In spite of a short period of great anxiety there has been abundant rain over the whole of the Presidency. Food grains are cheap, and will be cheaper, while the crops of produce for export promise to be unusually plentiful. Everything points, we think, to another brilliant Dewalli in twelve months' time.—Times of India.

* "Turkey, Old and New: Historical, Geographical, and Statistical." By SUTHERLAND MENZIES. Wm. H. Allen and Co.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE PUNJAB N.S. RAILWAY.—It is a pity the Government does not provide more transport carriages at Rawul Pindi. From Nov. 1 two passenger trains run daily to and from the station. Great efforts are being made to push on the railway. Trains with materials now run on the Pindi and Peshawur line as far as Hasnan Abdul and Lawrencepoore, and on the Pindi and Kohat line close up to Futtchjung.—Indian Daily News.

RAIDS ON THE FRONTIER.—The Lahore paper says that orders have been issued on the frontier forbidding the following up of raiders one step beyond an old imaginary border line. The result is that robberies in Kohat, Peshawur, Thull, and between these stations, are more frequent than at any time during the last twenty years.—Indian Daily News.

THE EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.—The name of Mr. E. F. Mandy appears among recent arrivals. He is the newly appointed officer selected for the Bengal Educational Department by the Secretary of State. Mr. Mandy has been appointed to the fourth class of the educational service, and will, on his arrival in Calcutta, be posted to the Engineering College, Seebpore. His name is already well known in the world of letters. He was first Royal Exhibitor to the Royal School of Mines, London, in 1869, of which school he is an associate, and first Whitworth's scholar in 1871. In 1867 he was selected by the Society of Arts to visit and report upon the Paris Exhibition. Mr. Mandy recently held the appointment of professor of drawing and lecturer on metallurgy at the Imperial College of Engineering at Tokio in Japan.—Indian Daily News.

CHINCHONA.—Although the Government manufactory at Mungpoo turns out 200lb. of chinchona febrifuge a week the supply is not quite equal to the demand.—Darjiling News.

MARINE STORES.—The Government of India, while sanctioning permanently a provincial assignment for marine stores for the Bengal Presidency of Rs.80,300 a year, with effect from the beginning of 1879-80, is said to have proposed to reduce the said assignment shortly by a net sum of Rs.26,870 per annum, as most part of the work of the Marine Department has been taken up by the Indian Government.—Indian Daily News.

THE TELEPHONE AT LAHORE.—The telephone has been already established in Lahore between two of the principal Government offices, distant nearly two miles apart. The wire is carried on posts from the office of the secretary to Government to the office of the assistant secretary, and the communication is very perfect. A message may be sent and the reply will be received at once, by which the time formerly lost in writing chits and sending chaprassies is saved, and public business is consequently despatched without loss of time.—Bombay Gazette.

THE LUCKNOW JOURNAL.—The Lucknow Times, a bi-weekly paper, announces an intention to change its name, and shortly, also, its condition. It is to be called in future The Express, and, "on completion of arrangements now being effected, will take its place in the noble army of 'dailies'."—Ibid.

THE PRINCE OF BOKHARA.—In a recent issue we noticed the death by cholera, at Peshawur, of a son of Syud Abdul Malik Tora, himself a son of the King of Bokhara. Before the cholera finally left the camp of this prince he lost two of his sons, one daughter, and six of his followers. The Punjab Government has sent the prince a letter of condolence and the offerings which usually accompany such letters.—Ibid.

THE AFGHAN CHIEFS.—All the Afghan detenus who were at Lahore have been sent to Umritsar, with the exception of Wazir Shah Mahomed, who is kept in close custody in the fort on account of his alleged participation in the riots at Cabul which ended in the massacre of the members of the British Embassy.—Ibid.

THE KAZI ACT.—The Mahomedan population of Lahore have drawn up a memorial for submission to the local Government, praying that the "Act for the appointment of persons to the office of kazi" be extended to that locality. A similar memorial is being drawn up at Umritsar.—Ibid.

BENGAL RIFLE CLUB.—The first competition this season for the challenge cup came off on Nov. 3 at the Ballygunge Range. Twenty-five members competed, and Mr. T. Linehan took first place with forty-two points, out of a possible fifty, firing ten shots at 200 yards, Wimbledon marking and scoring; Messrs. W. A. Brown, C. J. Aratoon, and H. J. Hyde coming next with forty-one.

MURDER BY POLICEMEN.—Particulars of a most brutal murder committed by a jemadar and some constables of police reaches us from Baranagore in the suburbs. The principal murderer appears to be one Peary Mohun Banerjee, the jemadar of the Koteeghatta ferry at Baranagore. Peary, it would seem, had a woman under his protection who used to encourage the clandestine visits of a fisherman named Bonamally Dass. Whilst Bonamally was at the house of the woman information was conveyed to Peary jemadar of the fact. Calling some of the ferry constables to his aid the enraged paramour repaired to the woman's house and Bonamally was beaten to death. The post mortem examination showed that the bones of both his arms and legs had been broken in several places. The medical officer in charge of the hospital was, we hear, offered a bribe of five hundred rupees to hush up the affair. The case will shortly be placed before one of the magistrates at Alipore.—Statesman.

THE BURMESE PRINCE.—H.H. Nong-Yan, the elder Prince of Burma, about whom so much has recently appeared in print, is, it is said, suffering from fever, and has, under medical instructions, removed to Barrackpore for the benefit of his health.—Times of India.

SUICIDE.—Mr. W. H. Humphrey, the mate of the Bombay steam tug, attempted to commit suicide on Nov. 7 by cutting his throat with a razor. He was removed to the general hospital in a precarious state, where he expired two days after.—Ibid.

THE LATE CAPTAIN BROWNE.—A very graceful tribute, in the form of a memorial tablet, is in course of erection to the memory of the late lamented Capt. J. Irvine Browne, R.N.R., late marine surveyor of Calcutta. It is to be placed in St. John's Church, Calcutta. The tablet, which is of white marble, is very pretty in its design and workmanship.—Indian Daily News.

THE REGATTA.—Calcutta annual regatta promises to be a more lively event this year than usual. We understand that a crew from Western India is going to put in an appearance, and that some local rowing men have started a new club called the "Alipore Boat Club," and intend to compete with all comers for the supremacy of the Hooghly.—Statesman.

EPISCOPAL VISITATION.—The Bishop of Calcutta will hold his primary visitation in January next before proceeding to Ceylon. The Church Gazette says:—"On Wednesday, January 12, at 10 a.m., there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion in St. Paul's Cathedral, after which the bishop will deliver his primary charge. The clergy of Bengal and Assam, both European and native, will receive summons to attend the visitation, and invitations will also be issued to the Church committees and councils and other representatives of the faithful laity. A conference will be held in the north transept of the Cathedral on the same and on the following day. The hours of session, and the subjects proposed for discussion, will be announced shortly."—Times of India.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—At date of mail the disengaged tonnage in port stood at 24,807 tons. London via Canal: The market closed steady at £3 for rice or wheat, £2 17s. 6d. to £3 for linseed, £2 15s. for jute, £3 for cotton, £3 5s. for hides, £3 5s. to £3 10s. for tea, and £4 15s. for indigo. For London via Cape: The market closed quiet but steady at £2 10s. for wheat, £2 for saltpetre, £2 13s. 9d. to £2 15s. for jute, £2 17s. 6d. for linseed, and £2 18s. 9d. to £3 for rape and poppy. For Liverpool via Canal: Quotations for the mail; Rice or wheat £3, measurement £3 5s. nominal, and oil in cases £3 10s. For Liverpool via Canal: The market closed steady at £2 10s. for wheat, £2 15s. for linseed, and £2 10s. for jute.—Englishman.

CAWNPORE.—An interesting ceremony took place at Cawnpore on the evening of the 4th November, when the new market, known as Coupergunge, the foundation-stone of which was laid by Sir George Couper, Lieutenant-Governor of the N.W.P., on the 1st December, 1879, was opened for public use. The principal feature in the ceremony was the raising a tall flag-pole, such as stands in every native bazaar, from the top of which floated a banner bearing the inscription "Coupergunge, 1880." Pooja having been first offered on the masonry pedestal on which the flag-pole was to stand, the flag was raised into the air shown amidst the cheers (jai) of the crowd by scores of willing hands.—Pioneer.

INCREASE OF CRIME AT DARJILING.—The Darjiling News complains of the moral deterioration of the Nepaulese labourers as shown by the number of crimes committed under influence of drink. The cause, it says, is not far to seek. "It is entirely owing to the number of grog shops recently opened in this district under the auspices of Government. A few years ago the number of grog shops within a radius of five miles from Darjiling did not, probably, amount to half a dozen. Now there are ten grog shops in the district for one that existed seven years ago. The result has been a most marked increase of crime and disease amongst the native population. The tea planters, who have really made the Darjiling district what it is, are almost unanimous in condemning the policy of Government. The holders of the Government licenses appear to be entirely beyond police supervision and naturally encourage trade as much as they can."

UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS IN CALCUTTA AND LONDON.—

There are 2,795 candidates for the entrance examination of the Calcutta University this year. The number for the littlego is not yet known to us, but is stated to be smaller than last year. This perhaps shows that, though the surface of education is widening, its depth is not perceptibly increasing. A native of Bengal has applied to the London University for permission to compete for its B.A. examination from this country, and the governing body have shown a disposition to comply with his request provided his application is sent through the proper channel. This decision of the London University, if more clearly expressed, may have a prejudicial effect upon the existence of the Indian universities; for if Indian youths are allowed to compete for London degrees they will never think it worth their while to think of the Calcutta University. No English university, it will be remembered, recognises our educational corporations. An Indian will, therefore, think a London degree to be more valuable than his Calcutta one. This is a delicate question, and ought to be carefully discussed by all who have the welfare of India at heart.—Indian Mirror.

EXPEDITION AGAINST THE WAZIRIS.—A telegram from Thull to the Civil and Military Gazette announces the following:—1,000 cavalry and infantry, consisting of 18th B.C., 85th Foot, 13th and 20th N.I., and two guns 1-8 R.A., under command of General Gordon, C.B., accompanied by Major Plowden, D.C., as political officer, made, under the sanction of the Punjab Government, a raid by a night march through Cabul Kheyl in the Waziri Valley, some seventeen miles, on the 27th, to the most distant Malikshahee settlements, which were simultaneously surprised and surrounded at three different points at dawn of the 28th; 126 prisoners, over 1,500 head of cattle, and 700 loads of fodder were brought into camp at Thull. One Waziri was killed and two slightly wounded by individuals in self-defence. No further resistance was offered, the surprise being complete.—Pioneer.

BENARES.—We hear from Benares that the life-sized portrait of the late Maharaja of Vizianagram, which the Benares Branch of the Vizianagram Memorial Committee have ordered out from England to decorate the splendid Town-hall which the late Prince built and presented to that city, has arrived there and will be put up immediately in a conspicuous position in the hall. The picture is said to be a masterpiece of painting, and those who knew the late Maharaja say that his Highness's features have been faithfully delineated.—Indian Herald.

S.I.R.A.—The results of the shooting for the Southern Indian Rifle Association Volunteer contest have just been published. There were 295 entries all over India, and out of twenty-three prizes no less than eleven came to the Punjab. The First Punjab Volunteer Corps secure eight of these, including the first prize of Rs.100, which has been won by Vol. Bailey. Vol. Middleton gets Rs.30, Major Higgins and Quartermaster Sergeant Davies get each Rs.20, and Capt. Scott, Sergeant Hopkins, and Vols. Lemmon and Rabbitt get Rs.10 each. The Simla corps secure the second prize of Rs.50, by Colour Sergeant Auscomb's score of sixty-three; Corporal Pollett, of Saharunpore, of the 3rd Punjab Corps, gets also Rs.50, by a similar score, and Vol. Green, of the same corps, gets Rs.20.—Times of India.

YAKUB KHAN.—The ex-Ameer Yakub Khan has returned from a hunting excursion in the Doon; and we hear that Government has sanctioned the purchase of some fine elephants for his use, and that several horses have been added to his stable. We also learn that no fixed salary has, as yet, been settled for him, as announced by the Englishman some little time ago, but that all he wishes for is provided for him; that since his wives and children have reached him he has grown more contented and feels no great desire to return to Cabul. He will probably, we hear, be sent to Delhi, although Lahore is also mentioned as a possible place of residence.—Civil and Military Gazette.

THE SON OF THE AMEER OF BOKHARA.—Sayad Abdul Malik, son of the Ameer of Bokhara, who was reported recently by a contemporary to have died at Peshawur of cholera, was the guest of Barkat Ali Khan, extra assistant commissioner, at Lahore, last week. He goes to pay a visit to the shrine at Sirhind, and will return to Peshawur shortly. This prince quarrelled with his father at Bokhara on account of his having submitted to the Russians, and, having deserted his territories, sought refuge with the Ameer Shere Ali Khan. He drew a pension of Rs.2,000 a month at Cabul until the deportation of his oldest friend, Yakub Khan, when he emigrated to Peshawur, where he is allowed Rs.40 a day. He has secret correspondence with the Ministers of his father, and says he will go to Bokhara when the throne there is vacant.—Ibid.

THE NAINI TAL LANDSLIP.—The loss of property occasioned by the recent landslip at Naini Tal is estimated at Rs.4,05,000 and is set down thus:—The Victoria Hotel and furniture, &c., Rs.75,000; the assembly rooms, library, &c., Rs.30,000; Bell's shop and stock, &c., Rs.1,50,000; Old Government House, Spring Hall, and Dudley-grove, Rs.50,000; houses utterly or temporarily condemned and houses injured, including the Mayo Hotel, Rs.1,00,000. This estimate does not, of course, include private property lost.—Indian Herald.

THE DISTRESS IN THE NORTH WEST.—Rai Barelli, as already indicated, is, says a local paper, causing the local Government more anxiety than any other division of the provinces. It is estimated that only one-third to two-fifths of the ordinary area will be sown; in the bad tracts the people distinctly declare that the situation is worse than in 1877. The cattle are being foddered on babul and sirsa leaves and withered rice, though this will not hold out much longer. The water in ponds is scarce and foul, and the cattle have to be watered from the wells. The condition of the people is gradually getting worse. Severe distress is probably imminent, and the people will not be able to manage much longer without the relief works, which the local Government has sanctioned in advance.—Times of India.

MADRAS.

LABOUR AND WAGES.—In some districts of this Presidency labour has increased in value very considerably of late years. On the Shevaroy hills, for instance, men coolies working on coffee estates near Yarcand twenty years ago were paid two and a-half annas the day, and women coolies one anna. Lately the wages paid are, if our information be reliable—and we have every reason for believing it to be so—four annas a day for men and ten annas for women. This increase has been brought about by some of the planters importing coolies from Mysor and Canara. These men demand and receive the same rate of hire as is current in Wynaad. They are worth the money paid them, for they do double the amount of work of an ordinary Tamil coolie. But the planters have discovered, to their grief, that the Tamil coolie demands more by 50 per cent. nearly than he ever received before, although he does not get through any more work than formerly. Probably it superintendents were owners of the estates prices would not be forced up as they are at present.—Madras Times.

CHEMBARAMBAKUM TANK.—This reservoir, which is the main feeder to the waterworks of Madras, had a sum of Rs.50,000 budgeted for, for the year 1881-82, for repairs, &c., but the Government of India have struck the amount out.—Ibid.

VITAL STATISTICS.—The sanitary commissioner's report for 1879 shows that the annual registered birth-rate to the population was 16.4 against 11.9 of the year previous, and Dr. Furnell rightly regards this rate, which is doubtless much below the truth, as a satisfactory indication of recovery in the fecundity of the people. Only in the Ceded Districts and Nellore have the births been noticed to keep much below the normal average, and there is no doubt that this is attributable to the severity of the late famine in those parts and to its effects having lasted the longest there. The remarks on the seasonal curve in the birth-rate are interesting. The Government regret to observe that in certain districts (not specified) attention had to be called to the persistent low returns of births, and that from special inquiry instituted in selected villages it was found that registration was perfunctorily performed, and that many births and deaths had been omitted from the village lists. This matter should receive the board's early attention, and collectors be again reminded of the importance of securing greater accuracy in the village returns. The portion of male to female birth was as 106.5 to 100, while the death ratio was 106.7 males to 100 females. The Government also observe with the greatest satisfaction that the general death-rate 18.9 per mille, was not only considerably lower than in the two preceding years, but that it had fallen to very nearly the average rate of 18.1, and that the total number of deaths registered in 1879 was lower than that of any year since 1874. These facts are a clear indication that the late abnormal influences affecting vitality had nearly passed away. The death-rate in towns still stands higher than that among the rural population and is no doubt due to greater accuracy in registration in towns.—Ibid.

ENGLISH PLOUGHS.—In forwarding for the information of the Board of Revenue the reports of the acting sub-collector and the assistant collector on the experiments recently made with the object of demonstrating the superiority of the English plough over the native plough, the collector of Bellary observes as follows:—"I was myself present at several of these experiments and found the superiority of the European plough to be generally admitted, although, looking to its comparative cost and the conservatism of the ryots, I do not anticipate that any but perhaps a few of the educated class will adopt it. The experiments were generally made under unfavourable circumstances, from want of rain. Mr. Sim's suggestion, that the plough belonging to the Cutcherry be lent to ryots wishing to give it a further trial will be adopted under suitable precautions."—Ibid.

SILK CULTIVATION.—It is much to be regretted that the silk industry has not been placed on a really sound footing in this Presidency. Bengal has managed to make it profitable. Some years ago the late Mr. Cammiade laid out several lakhs of rupees in gardens for the cultivation of silkworms and in putting up expensive machinery for reeling silk. The experiment, however, did not pay; for what reason we do not know. Probably it was owing to his want of a thorough knowledge of what was required. Worms are bred in Mysor, but the production of silk is not large.—Ibid.

DECEASED GOVERNORS.—The Governors of Madras who died in this country were, to go backwards, Lord Hobart, Sir Henry Ward, Sir Thomas Munro, Lord Pigot, and Mr. Gulston Addison, that is five out of a list of seventy-nine, twenty of whom, however, were only acting governors, and who, therefore, held office for a few months only as a rule.—Ibid.

IDLE LAND.—Of 107,719 square miles in this Presidency 37,785 are classed as uncultivable, 25,433 are returned as cultivable, but are not cultivated, while 44,501 square miles are reported to be cultivated. From these figures it is evident that more than half as much land as is at present under cultivation might be brought under cultivation. Cannot the Government or some one devise a workable plan for getting more land taken up for cultivation? Food would then be more plentiful and the general revenues increased. With so much land lying idle there is no wonder we have occasional famines. Of the uncultivable land 31,841 square miles belong to Government, 1,179 square miles are Imam lands, and 4,765 lands belong to zemindars.—Ibid.

BOMBAY.

THE KANDAHAR RAILWAY.—As regards this railway common sense has just gained a victory over the narrow-gauge crotch. Orders have been passed directing the active prosecution of the works on that line up to Gulistan Karez; and up to that point at all events the broad gauge is to be carried. The obvious common sense of the matter requires the broad gauge the whole way on a line like the railway under construction, which is mainly required by strategical considerations. The break of gauge originally contemplated has been described by competent critics as a proposal of "infamous folly." Every important line, indeed, now put down on the narrow gauge may be looked upon as certainly destined to be re-made some few years hence; the great Rajputana line itself standing foremost among those so situated. At Gulistan Karez the Kandahar Railway will have reached the foot of the Amran range, and beyond this point the line has as yet but been imperfectly laid out. Decision as to its further progress will, moreover, depend upon the political arrangements which the Government may finally adopt in respect to the future status of Kandahar. Meanwhile, there is plenty to be done on the section now definitely sanctioned. The necessary material has been ordered from home, and Sir Robert Sandeman is at present engaged in making arrangements for the re-establishment of the military posts along the route to be followed, which were withdrawn in presence of the recent emergency at Kandahar. Still it will take three years before trains can run right on to the provisional terminus at the place above mentioned. There will be very heavy engineering on that part of the line where it passes through the Chappar rift, and the new railway will not be an example of the "milk-a-day" class. Meanwhile, some progress has lately been scored. Within the last few days a branch has been opened from Sibi to a place, about twenty miles distant, called Pir Chowkee, at the foot of the Bolan Pass. This branch will be very serviceable to the trade of the Bolan, which will thus be enabled to avoid the desert region between the mouth of the pass and the Indus. The main line will be speedily open for traffic as far as Khelat-i-Kila, some twenty or twenty-five miles beyond Sibi.—Pioneer.

MATERNAL AFFECTION.—A notable case of maternal affection has just occurred at Ahmedabad. A house, in which a woman was residing with her twin babes, fell, and the three were buried in the debris on removing which, however, it was found that the woman had so protected the babes with her hands that though she herself was killed the twins were found unharmed.—Bombay Gazette.

ROBBERY WITH VIOLENCE AT GOA.—On the 20th October last a gang of more than 200 persons armed with sticks, clubs, and swords made an attack on the British salt depot in Cancim (Goa), and carried away some 350 maunds of salt, beating and wounding three Portuguese and three British sepoys who were in charge of the depot. Two detachments were sent to pursue the robbers, but they got away before the military arrived. Lucio Mariano de Menezes, who is supposed to be the ringleader of the movement, has been arrested and the police are put on the track of the runaways. A similar robbery is also reported from Curca.—Bombay Gazette.

ESCAPED PRISONERS.—Out of thirty-six prisoners who escaped from the Damaun Gaol seven have been captured by the force that was sent in pursuit of them, and three more have been caught by the British authorities and handed over to the Damaun Government.—Ibid.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.—We regret to see that the branch agency at Karachi of the Bombay Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals has been abolished for want of funds.—Ibid.

THE VOLUNTEERS.—It is notified that the Berar Volunteer Rifle Corps will in future be attached to the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Volunteer Corps for administrative purposes.—Gazette of India.

NATIVE JUDICIAL APPOINTMENTS.—The appointment of Mr.

Nanabhai Haridas to act as judge of the High Court at Bombay during the absence on leave of Mr. Justice Kimball, or until further orders, is notified in the Government Gazette. Some of our readers will recollect that Mr. Nanabhai, before being made Government pleader three years ago, acted for a long time as a High Court judge; he therefore brings considerable experience, as well as high legal attainments, to the performance of his judicial duties. His appointment following so closely on the selection of a popular representative of the natives for a seat in the Legislature, and another native for the shrievalty, shows very clearly that some taunts which have been recently levelled at Sir James Fergusson are wholly undeserved.—Times of India.

THE KATTYWAR CONTRIBUTIONS.—In a notification in the Kattywar Political Agency Gazette the Political Agent says he has much pleasure in publishing a list showing the amounts contributed by the chiefs and people of that State to the Bombay Military Relief Fund. His best thanks are given to all who have come forward so liberally in aid of the fund, and to the assistants in charge of Prants, who have exerted themselves so successfully to collect and forward subscriptions. In the Gohelvand Prant, Rs.12,311 were subscribed; in the Sorath Prant, Rs.18,495; in the Halar Prant, Rs.11,899; and in the Jhalavad Prant, Rs.7,768. At the headquarters, Rajkote, Rs.1,343 were subscribed; the total amount of the province, up to the 30th ult., being Rs.51,807-8-9.—Ibid.

BRIGADIER GENERAL F. A. E. LOCK, C.B., has resumed charge of the office of political resident at Aden.

The formal resignation by Mr. Latham of his seat in the Bombay Legislative Council, on being relieved by the Hon. J. Marriott, is gazetted. Mr. Marriott is reappointed a M.L.C.

THE MUNICIPAL BUDGET.—At a special general meeting of the Bombay Municipal Corporation on Nov. 16 the municipal budget for 1881 came on for consideration. Dr. Blaney, in the course of a long speech, adverted to the satisfactory condition in which the municipal finances stood at the present time, and proceeded to explain in detail the salient features of the budget. He dwelt with satisfaction upon the circumstances that the opening cash balance stood at so large a figure as eight lakhs of rupees, and that the finances were so flourishing that the consolidated rate could be reduced from 9 to 8 per cent., the minimum allowed by law. If the finances continued to show the same prosperous condition the consolidated rate could probably be reduced to 7 per cent.—Times of India.

BOMBAY ROYAL YACHT CLUB.—The annual general meeting of the members of the Royal Bombay Yacht Club was held on Nov. 9. The meeting authorised the committee to accept the offer of the port trustees of a lease of a site on the Wellington Reclamation, for the erection of a club house, in the terms of their letter of Oct. 9 last, and to accept the designs submitted to the meeting, and, without further reference to the members, to proceed with the erection of a house. Capt. Morland was re-elected commodore, Capt. Carew was elected vice-commodore, and Mr. L. Rivett-Carnac rear commodore. Instead of the usual opening cruise of the season it was decided that an entertainment should be given on the occasion of opening the club house, and that the regatta should take place on two days in March, to be fixed by the committee. The number of members of the club is now about 150.—Times of India.

THE MATRICULATION EXAMINATION.—Upwards of 12,000 candidates have applied for permission to attend the Bombay Matriculation Examination. Six hundred and forty-seven of the candidates belong to the Bombay centre, the rest to the Puna, Ahmedabad, Belgaum, and Karachi centres.—Ibid.

PUNA RIFLE CLUB.—The result of the shooting for the championship of the club, on Nov. 5, was as follows:—Mr. A. J. Murray eighty-six, the badge; Mr. S. G. Brebner eighty-five, Rs.15; and Mr. G. Peaker eighty-two, Rs.10. Messrs. Phillips and Smith were on the sick list, Colonel Gillespie had proceeded on tour, and Mr. Kinsman was in the district.—Deccan Herald.

OFFICIAL PAPERS.

THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

THE following resolution has been passed by the Government of India:—

"It being desirable that the relative authority of the Surgeon General with the Government of India and the Surgeon General, her Majesty's Forces, over the officers of the Indian medical service shall be defined, the Government of India direct—

"I. That surgeons of the Indian medical service appointed to Bengal, on arrival at Bombay, shall in accordance with the 'instructions' (copy of which will then be furnished to them) send their letters of appointment to the office of the Surgeon-General with the Government of India, by whom they will be at once forwarded to the Military Department. Thereon the officers will be gazetted as having come on a given date on Bengal establishment, and will be formally placed at the disposal of the Commander in Chief in India for military duty. Meanwhile, and in anticipation of this formal notification, the officers, in the absence of any order to the contrary, will proceed at once to Allahabad, and on arrival there will report themselves to the deputy surgeon general of that circle for military duty. Thenceforward and until the officer may be withdrawn for other employment he will be under the authority of the surgeon-general of her Majesty's forces, from whom he will receive all orders of his Excellency the Commander in Chief in India for his employment, postings, transfers, &c. The withdrawal of an officer for civil employment will not be permitted until he has completed two years' actual military duty, and then only provided his services can be spared. Should the interests of the public service, however, very urgently demand his withdrawal before the completion of his two years' course of military duty an exception may, under the orders of the Governor General in Council, be made, as a very rare and special case, in the above general rule.

"II. All officers of the Indian medical service are, subject to the above restriction, eligible for civil duties; yet, however employed, they remain liable at any time to be recalled for military duty. Such recall can only be made by the Government of India in the Military Department. During the whole period of an officer's employment on any other than military duty under the Commander in Chief, and until he is formally replaced at his Excellency's disposal, he will be under the authority of the Surgeon General with the Government of India or of the Local Government under which he may be serving.

"III. A minimum establishment for the requirements of the army and for all other sanctioned appointments will always be maintained. This will include the prescribed margin for absentees on furlough or sick leave. Lists of the appointments controlled by the two surgeons general are annexed; but it will be understood that the army has the first claim on the medical service, and that any officer whose services are required with the army may be placed at the disposal of the Commander in Chief.

"IV. All applications for medical officers required for civil employment should be addressed by local Governments to the Government of India in the Home Department.

"V. As the Surgeon General with the Government of India is the actual administrative head of the Indian medical service, and should, therefore, have the means of keeping an accurate record of the services of all officers belonging to it, such returns and reports, including confidential reports, furlough statements, &c., as are considered necessary for this purpose by the Military Department will, as regards officers under the orders of the Commander in Chief, be furnished to the head of the department by the Surgeon General her Majesty's forces. Applications for furlough of officers under the Commander in Chief will be forwarded by the Surgeon General her Majesty's forces, through the Surgeon General with the Government of India, so that all such applications may be dealt with for the service as a whole; and all such officers while on furlough or leave will remain on the list of the Surgeon General her Majesty's forces.

"APPENDIX.—Lists of appointments referred to in Paragraph III.—Under Surgeon General with the Government of India: All medical officers in civil employ, surgeon to his Excellency the Viceroy, principal medical storekeeper, medical storekeepers, medical officer, Lawrence Military Asylum, Sanawur.—Under surgeon general, her Majesty's forces: Deputy surgeons general in military employ, 5; secretary to Surgeon General, 1; surgeon to his Excellency the Commander in Chief, 1; garrison surgeons, 3; Sappers and Miners, 1; 19 Bengal cavalry regiments, 19; 45 native infantry regiments, 45; 4 Goorkha regiments, 4; Punjab Frontier Force, 17 (viz., 5 cavalry, Guides 1, 4 Sikh Infantry, 6 Punjab Infantry, 5 Goorkhas, 1); Doaba outposts, 1; Central India Horse,* 2; Malwa Bheel Corps,* 1; Bhopal Battalion,* 1; Deolalee Irregular Force,† 1; Erinpura Irregular Force,† 1; Meywar Bheel Corps,† 1; Mhairwarra Battalion,†† 1; total, 104."

* Civil Corps—Administered by deputy surgeon general, Kamptee circle of Madras Presidency.

† Civil Corps—Will be administered by the superintendent general of dispensaries, Rajputana.

‡ Under medical charge of the civil surgeon, Ajmere.

INTRODUCTION OF A UNIFORM SYSTEM OF BUOYAGE.

RESOLUTION by Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce, dated Simla, Sept. 30.—The adoption of a uniform system of buoyage in Indian ports has been under the consideration of the Government of India for some time past. The Governor General in Council, having now obtained the advice of the Board of Trade and the Trinity House Corporation, considers that the system proposed by the superintendent of marine surveys, and described in the appendix to this resolution, is suitable generally for Indian waters. In this system differences of form constitute the primary basis of distinction, but differences of colour are also utilised. The Governor General in Council requests that the system may be gradually introduced as it becomes necessary to replace existing buoys in all ports and their approaches, Bombay harbour alone excepted.

APPENDIX.—SYSTEM OF BUOYAGE.—The side of the channel is to be considered starboard or port, with reference to the entrance to any port from seaward. The entrances of channels or turning points shall be marked off by conical buoys with a staff, carrying globe, or triangle, or basket; black buoys on starboard side of the channel and red on port hand. The sides of channels shall be marked as follows:—Conical buoys painted black shall mark the starboard side, and can buoys painted red shall mark the port side. Where a middle ground exists in a channel each end of it shall be marked by a conical buoy showing red on one side, black on the other, and with a double beacon, either of basket or globe, or basket and triangle, as may be desirable. In case of this middle ground being of such extent as to require intermediate buoys they shall be of shapes and colours as if on the sides of a channel. Wrecks shall still continue to be marked by green nun buoys. Fairway buoys shall be conical, and chequered black and white. Where channels are named in large rivers, like the Hoogly, the initial letter of the channel's name preceded by the letter L. for lower, C. for central, or U. for upper, may be painted on the buoys; e.g., L.E. for lower Eden; C.E. for central Eden, &c. —Gazette of India.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1880.

THE
MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.

ON Tuesday next, the 7th instant, the shareholders of this company will meet together to consider the ratification of the terms which, as we announced in our issue of the 24th ultimo, have been arranged between the Secretary of State for India and the directors of the company. That the terms will be, on the one hand, denounced as too liberal by volunteer economists, and will be, on the other hand, perhaps objected to by the investors, who will find themselves with their capital on hand at a time when it is not so easy to obtain investments with a guarantee of 5 per cent., is not to be doubted. But that the arrangement is one which is at once equitable to the stockholders and prospectively advantageous to the Government of India, and the Presidency of Madras in particular, will scarcely be seriously disputed. It will be the termination of a long-standing dispute, a riddance of an annual incubus on the Indian Treasury, and the transference of an unfinished and almost useless project from the hands which are too weak to complete it to the Government, which can gradually develop it to a more profitable completeness. We are indebted to the accurate and comprehensive work of Mr. Buckley on the Irrigation Works of India for a summary of the past history of the company. An Act of Parliament, dated May 11, 1858, incorporated the company with a capital of one million, which carried a guarantee of 5 per cent., to be expended on a work selected by the Government of Madras. The project chosen was the so-called Toombudra or Tongabudra scheme, including a canal for irrigation and navigation from Sunkesala, seventeen miles above Kurnool, to the Kistnapatam estuary on the seacoast in Nellore. The whole scheme of the company included an outlay of £2,000,000 on a system of works approved and warmly advocated by Sir Arthur Cotton, who, in his vigorous evidence before the Committee on Public Works, admitted that his expectations had been disappointed, but by no means withdrew his original opinions. The works selected were projected by Colonel Calverly Cotton, and approved by the consulting officer of the Madras Government, Colonel Rendall. The company undertook the section from Sunkesala to Soomaisweram, on the Pennair River; but in 1866 it was found that the million expended was far from being sufficient to complete the project and a new contract was then entered into. This contract separated the section of the scheme extending from Sunkesala to Cuddapah from the remainder of the project, and provided for a loan of £600,000 from the Secretary of State to the company on the security of debentures issued by them. The loan was to be expended in the completion of the canal to the Pennair and thence to the town of Cuddapah, which was virtually completed in 1871. In that year Captain Scott, R.E., reported that 189 miles of main canal and 216 miles of distributaries had been practically completed, the area commanded being 91,567 acres. But the completion of the works was hardly deemed satisfactory. Works estimated to cost £493,348 were said to have cost £1,015,552; and, while the area requisite to be irrigated in order to pay interest on the capital was 130,000 acres, the largest extent actually irrigated was only 1,887 acres. The Government in 1872 accordingly declined to find any further pecuniary aid for further operations, but did not exact their right to acquire the works of the company and to manage them themselves. In 1876 the company agreed to abandon all parts of their scheme outside the Sunkesala and Cuddapah Canal on condition of refund of preliminary expenditure. Up to the end of 1877-78 the total amount expended on the works was £1,708,211, but the amount estimated in the Madras administration report for that year was half-a-million less. But the plainest way of putting it is to quote the rough estimate of Mr. Childers, who reminded Sir A. Cotton that two years ago the canal, adding compound interest, had cost the Government between three and four million pounds. Although Sir Arthur disputed the accuracy of this estimate still he of course admitted the loss to be very large. He could indeed assert that the canal affords 190 miles of splendid navigation, that it carried water for 800,000 acres, 600,000 acres of dry cultivation and 200,000 acres of wet, and he estimated that, during the famine, the canal had saved the Government £500,000. But the revenue accounts of the Government of India contain year by year heavy deficits under the head of the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company. In only one year since its formation had it, according to the report of the committee, succeeded in meeting its working expenses, and, allowing for the repayment of £228,000, it has swallowed up £1,872,000 without any return to the State. Before the select committee on Public Works Major General Dickens, speaking in March, 1878, thus outlined the then condition of the company. After briefly describing the formation and guarantee, he stated that at that time there were very sanguine expectations of the profitability of irrigation in the Madras Presidency, but the selection appeared to have been unfortunate, and the execution of the work apparently not altogether satisfactory. The works never even paid the working expenses until in the previous year they did so in the famine time. In his opinion the cause of failure was, as in Orissa, that the people had not been accustomed to be assessed for wet revenue directly means of irrigation were placed within their reach, and were not willing to take the water. At that time the amount paid under the guarantee by the Government of India was £811,751; the amount paid for excess of working expenses, which was and is deemed a debt from the company to the Government, was £49,200, and the interest of £600,000 advanced by the Indian Treasury, because the company were unable to raise the sum in the open market, even with the Government guarantee, amounted to £208,854. Year by year the sum total of loss has been increasing, while, as Mr. Fawcett elicited, the shares of the company were above par. This must be remembered in estimating the price to be paid by the Government for the acquisition of so costly a failure. There are strong reasons to be advanced on behalf of the company. The eighty miles which separate their navigable waters from the North Coast Canal renders the carrying powers almost useless, even if they had possessed capital to develop the use of their waterway. The unexpected aversion of the cultivators to take the water may or may not have been due to the "blundering and mismanagement" so bluntly charged by Sir A. Cotton, and the Government of Madras have admitted that "the company had real cause of complaint; that their officers had practically been doing work which should have devolved on the revenue establishments." The conflict of officials, and the jealousy which ever prevails between two coexisting but independent authorities, while it can be pleaded as an apology for want of results, is a strong argument for extinguishing the source of such evils. The schemes of irrigation in India must be in the hands of the Government, and every reason that has been advanced in vindication of the company is a powerful argument for the wisdom of adopting the course which should have been long ago adopted, and undoing the blunder which was committed when schemes of irrigation, either with or without guarantee, were permitted to become private speculations neither beneficial to the country nor, as might have been foreseen, likely to be in themselves remunerative to the shareholders, who may be described as having, for the last twenty years, been simply annuitants on the Indian Treasury. That they fully deserve, and, by the scheme proposed, will obtain, liberal terms, cannot, as we have already said, be disputed. That the heavy outlay required to make it possible to obtain the full results from the completed scheme, or from the canal already existing, will be a prudent investment, no one who has read the conflicting opinions on the causes of the barrenness of results, which has hitherto been the unvarying record of the company, will have any doubt.

HOME NEWS.

H.M. TROOPSHIP "EUPHRATES."—In consequence of the state of the hull of the Euphrates and some few defects which require to be attended to at Portsmouth, the date fixed for the departure of the troopship to Bombay has been deferred until the 8th.

DRAFTS FOR INDIA.—Instructions have been received at Aldershot from the Horse Guards directing that a draft, consisting of Lieut. A. H. W. Brett and thirty-eight non-commissioned officers and men of C Brigade, Royal Horse Artillery, is to be held in readiness to embark at Portsmouth Dockyard on the 7th inst., in the troopship Euphrates, for conveyance to Bombay to join the headquarters of the brigade.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.—The following information is supplied by the Admiralty:—From the East Indies: Letters have been received from the Commander in Chief, in the Euryalus, at Trincomalee, up to the 4th inst. Had arrived same day from Rangoon, and would leave for Colombo and Bombay on the 9th inst. Was at Bombay on the 23rd inst. The Dragon was at Zanzibar on Oct. 25, and after repair will sail for cruise on East Coast of Africa. The Dryad was at Rangoon on Oct. 30, and will probably visit Calcutta in December and proceed thence to Trincomalee. The Eclipse was at Rangoon on Oct. 30 and would remain there. The Ruby would return to Mozambique from Madagascar by Oct. 21. The Wild Swan was at Zanzibar on Nov. 3 and would proceed to sea for a six weeks' cruise, and on return would probably be ordered to Bombay to be docked. The Beacon, the Ready, and the Woodlark were in the Persian Gulf. The Philomel and the Seagull were at Aden and in the Red Sea.

A WELCOME HOME.—On Nov. 23, at Streat, Sussex, there were great rejoicings to celebrate the return home of Lieut-Col. Alfred Fitzhugh, 5th Goorkas, from the Afghan war. The gallant officer is the youngest son of the Rev. W. A. Fitzhugh, rector of Streat. The Lewes Artillery and Rifle Volunteers marched from that town, a distance of seven miles, and formed a guard of honour. Two companies, being formed in open order, presented arms as Col. Fitzhugh drove between, the band performing "See, the conquering hero comes." The Earl of Lewes then rode forward and said he had a pleasing duty to perform in presenting an illuminated address to Col. Fitzhugh, to which that gentleman gave the following reply:—He said it was a great pleasure to him to see those around him among whom he had been brought up, and he took the attendance of the volunteers as the highest compliment that could be paid him. They had been so kind as to refer to what he had had the opportunity of doing in Afghanistan. He had done what he believed every Englishman would do—his duty. It was not reward he or others looked for, but the knowledge that they had gained the goodwill of their fellow countrymen was great a satisfaction to them. In alluding to the volunteers, he said it was the proudest of a soldier's duties to fight for hearth and home; and he was sure if ever they were called out, whether it was here or abroad, they would uphold the name and honour of England. He should be glad to see more strong and bearded men in the regular army, and would have liked to have had some he now saw before him by his side in Afghanistan. The troops they had had were first class, but he was afraid the boys going out were not fitted for many hardships. He had had some hardships in Afghanistan, but that only made the pleasures and comforts of England still more appreciated. These remarks were loudly cheered, and the carriage having been unhorsed, ropes were attached, and it was drawn to the rectory by the tenants. On arriving at the house, Col. Fitzhugh was received by his father, who is eighty-eight years of age, amid deafening cheers. All the principal families in the district were represented. The rector entertained all the volunteers and others at dinner, in Streat Place Hall, where the healths of Col. Fitzhugh and the Earl of Lewes were enthusiastically drunk. Bonfires, fireworks, and bunting were displayed in all directions, and there were signs of rejoicing throughout the district, the colonel being very popular in the neighbourhood.

ARRIVAL OF THE "ORONTES."—The Orontes, Indian troopship, Capt. Kinahan, which reached Spithead on Thursday morning from Bombay, went into Portsmouth harbour in the afternoon. She brought home over 900 troops, comprised of the 59th Regiment, 700 strong, and details from a number of infantry and cavalry regiments, with Lieut. Col. Lacy in command. She left Bombay on Oct. 31, and consequently has gained several days upon the Imperial troopship Euphrates, which preceded her by five days. Her passage was in favourable weather up to Malta, but afterwards she encountered head winds. On Wednesday afternoon, in a heavy fog, she ran within 100 yards of the Saints' Lighthouse, on the French coast, but the catastrophe which appeared imminent was prevented by the stopping of the ship's engines and the starboard of the helm, favoured by the fact that she was under plain sail and the wind was in an assisting quarter. The heavy weather she had met with a day or so previously necessitated her course being in part steered by what is termed "dead reckoning," and powerful cross currents had led to the accidental deviation from her course. The 59th Regiment, which left Kingstown in 1867, have served in Ceylon, Bombay, Bengal Presidency, and in Afghanistan, where several of the officers were wounded in minor engagements with the enemy, and sixty or seventy men succumbed to sickness or injury. The regiment consists of Lieut. Col. Lacy, Major Frampton, Capt. Griffiths, Elias, Gordon, Lawler, Stoyte, Buchanan; Lieuts. Watson, M'Adam, Small, Pile, Lucas, Irwin, Aphthorpe, Morgan, Battye, Lake, Leonard, White, Twyman, Goff, and Quartermasters Rowland; forty-one serjeants, fifteen trumpeters and drummers, 665 rank and file, forty women, and 101 children. It will be quartered at Gosport Barracks, where it will relieve the 24th Foot, which will move to Colchester. The Orontes also brought home eighteen invalids, 179 time-expired men, and the following officers:—Major Beauchamp, 7th Foot; Capt. Kinder, 11th Foot; Major Bally, 48th Foot; Major Mosse, 67th Foot; Lieut. Birch, 24th Foot; Lieut. H. W. E. Georges, Madras Staff; Lieut. J. M'Donnell, Royal Horse Artillery; Veterinary Surgeon R. Rowe, R.A.; Lieut. Orred, 5th Foot; Capt. Jervis, 8th Foot; Capt. Richmond, 34th Foot; Lieut. Palmes, 81st Foot; Lieut. Clery, 100th Foot; Lieut. Mansell, 4th Rifle Brigade; Surgeon-Majors G. J. Evatt, and W. Sij, and Surgeon N. M'Greery, of the Army Medical Department; Lieut. Col. J. B. Saunders, and Lieut. D. Chesney, Bengal Staff.

ARRIVAL OF THE "EUPHRATES."—The Indian troopship Euphrates, Capt. Hand, arrived at Portsmouth on Saturday evening from Bombay, after having disembarked the 48th Regiment, consisting of nineteen officers, 687 men, forty-five women, and ninety-five children, at Queenstown, and steamed into harbour on Sunday morning. The following officers, though accepting passages to Portsmouth, were landed at Queenstown:—Capt. Collis, 2nd Foot; Lieut. Gerrard, Bengal Staff; Capt. Groube, 7th Foot; Lieut. Robinson, 89th Foot; Major Houghton, R.A.; Capt. Eustace, R.A.; and Surgeon Beamish, A.M.D. The Euphrates brought to Portsmouth Surgeon Major Kirkwood, A.M.D.; Lieut. Elverson, 2nd Foot; Capt. Bruce and Lieuts. Pully and Lucas, of the Bengal Staff; Major Trotman and Second Lieut. Fortescue, 60th Rifles; Capt. Hayne, 62nd Foot; Capt. Dutton, 85th Foot; Lieut. Hamilton, R.A.; Lieut. Plant, R.A.; Veterinary Surgeon Spooner, R.A.; Capt. Manning and Lieut. Thunder, 2nd Battalion 7th Foot; Quartermaster Evans, 11th Foot; Major Rimmington and Lieut. Richardson, Bombay Staff; Capt. Riddell, 16th Foot; Capt. Cummins, Madras Staff; Lieut. Oakes, R.A.; Lieut. Col. Parry, Capt. Pipon, and Lieuts. Kirwan, Gould-Adams, and Mackenzie, Royal Horse Artillery; Surgeon M'Quaid, Army Medical Department; Lieut. Gardner, 22nd Foot; Lieut. Hutchinson, 25th Foot; Capt. Turnbull and Nugent, 40th Foot; Capt. Forbes, 3rd Rifle Brigade; Capt. Pole Carew, Coldstream Guards; Lieut. Kitson, 60th Rifles; and Capt. Dennis, 62nd Foot; 192 time-expired men and fourteen invalids for Netley; twelve time-expired men, Royal Artillery, for Woolwich; four time-expired men, Royal Engineers, for Chatham; thirty-four women and fifty-seven children. Three deaths occurred on board during the passage home—viz., Gunners Dorling and Calls, R.A., and Private Wooley, 48th Regiment.

OBITUARY.—We regret to record the death of Sir John Milton, C.B., the late accountant general of the army, which took place Monday morning. The son of the late Mr. Henry Milton, of Heikfield-lodge, Middlesex, he was born in 1820. He was appointed a junior clerk in the now abolished office of the secretary at war in 1840, and was made a first-class clerk in the consolidated War-office in 1856. He became assistant accountant general in 1860. During his service in the War-office he was frequently detached on important special employments, and in the Russian campaign he was on Government service both at Scutari and in the Crimea, and for his work in the East received the Crimean and Turkish war medals. He served as secretary to the royal commissions on recruiting of 1859 and 1866. He was also appointed secretary to Lord Hotham's committee on Indian army amalgamation in 1860, to the Royal Commission under Lord Cranworth on the complaints of Indian officers in 1863, and served in the same capacity with Sir W. James's committee on the supersession of British by Indian officers in 1870, and with the Royal Commission on the same subject, under Lord Cairns, in the early part of 1871. From that year till 1875 Sir John Milton was a commissioner of income duty. In 1874 he received the honour of the Companionship of the Bath. He retired from the War-office on its reorganisation, in 1878, on a pension of £1,200 a year, and was knighted in January, 1879. Sir John Milton was well known, not only in military society, but also in literary circles. He married, in 1850, Blanche, daughter of Mr. Thomas Meyrick Field.—Lieut. Gen. Thomas Beckett Fielding Marriott, colonel commandant Royal Artillery, died suddenly at the end of last week, at his seat, Avonbank, near Pershore, Worcestershire, aged 61. The eldest son of the late Lieutenant General Thomas Marriott, of Avonbank, by his marriage with Anne, third daughter of the late Sir John Beckett, he was born in 1813. He served as colonel on the staff in Ireland from 1866 to 1869. General Marriott was a magistrate and deputy lieutenant for the county of Worcester. General Marriott's commissions bear date as follows:—Second lieutenant, December 20, 1832; first lieutenant, November 21, 1834; captain, March 30, 1844; lieutenant colonel, January 6, 1855; brevet colonel, January 6, 1858; colonel, June 27, 1863; colonel commanding, August 7, 1879; major general, March 6, 1868; and lieutenant general, October 1, 1877.

INDIAN APPEAL CASES.—There have been since our last issue several appeals before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. That of Rani Anand Koer and another v. the Superintendent of the Court of Wards was an appeal from the decision of the Commissioner of Lucknow of June 15, 1877, affirming a decree of the local tribunal at Bari-Banki, in the province of Oudh. The object of the suit, which was instituted in 1875 by the Superintendent of the Court of Wards on behalf of Chundra Shekhar, the Talookdar of Sessendi, who is a minor, was to declare invalid the adoption by the appellant, Rani Anand Koer, the widow of Shunker Sahai, of one Radha Kishen. The right of the widow to enjoy for her life the estate which, if the adoption were maintained would devolve on her adopted son at her death, had been established by a decision of their lordships in 1873. The main question now was as to the right of the respondent to maintain the suit by reason of any interest of his in its subject-matter. As to this, he contended that, as Talookdar of Sessendi, within which the widow was a sub-proprietor, he was entitled to inquire into the adoptions and titles of all such proprietors when obnoxious to him, as in the present instance; and, secondly, that he was additionally entitled to take this course by having an alleged reversionary right by Hindu law to succeed to the estate at the widow's death. The Indian courts held that the evidence did not prove the alleged adoption, and that the respondent had a right of suit, though on this latter point they decided on different grounds. The arguments were heard before the long vacation. Their lordships now intimated that they would humbly advise her Majesty to reverse the decisions of both the lower courts, and to dismiss the suits, with costs, in those tribunals. The appellant's costs of that appeal must be paid out of the estate of the minor, Chundra Shekhar.—The case of Kameswar Pershad v. Run Bahadoor Singh was an appeal from a decision of a Divisional Bench of the High Court of Calcutta of July 2, 1878, varying a decree of the local tribunal of Gya, in the Bengal Presidency. The appellant, a banker at Gya, sued the Rani Asmedh Konwar (now deceased) to recover the sum of Rs.72,612 as principal and interest due on a bond executed by the Rani on March 1, 1872, and for an order directing the sale by auction of the properties mortgaged to secure the repayment of the loan. The respondent was made a defendant because the Rani had, after the execution of the bond, put him in possession of the whole of the properties to which she had become entitled on the death of her husband, the Raja of Tickaree. The Rani and the respondent contended that the bond was obtained under undue pressure, fraud, and misapprehension; was executed without legal necessity, and was altogether void. The subordinate judge at Gya held that the bond had been executed for legal necessities and without undue influence or fraud, and he gave the appellant a decree for the amount claimed and directed it to be realised by the sale of the mortgaged property. The High Court, on appeal, decided that the Rani's signature to the bond had been obtained without giving her the least intimation of the nature of the instrument and without any legal necessity being proved, and that, therefore, the appellant was only entitled to a decree for the bare amount of the principal and interest, and that, as the debt was a personal one, the property was not liable. Their lordships now confirmed the High Court's decree and dismissed the appeal.—Lukhi Narain Roy v. Shoshi Mookhi Debya and others was an appeal from a decree of a Divisional Bench (consisting of Justice Markby and Prinsep) of the Calcutta High Court, of August 14, 1877, affirming a decision of the subordinate judge of Cuttack, in the Bengal Presidency. The appellant sought to recover an estate in the Presidency on the ground that it had been the separate property of the daughter of his deceased brother, and that on her death, in 1863, without issue, he was, by Hindu law, entitled to succeed her as heir. The husband of the deceased lady was, however, living at that time, and the respondents were his two sons by another wife. They contended that the property first of all went to their father, and then, at his death in 1870, devolved on them. Both the courts in India held that the appellant had failed to show any title to the lands in suit. Their lordships affirmed these decisions, and, with costs, dismissed the appeal.

AN APPEAL FROM CEYLON.—In the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on Friday judgment was given in the case of Clark v. Elphinstone and another. This was an appeal from a decision of the Supreme Court of the island of Ceylon of Jan. 25, 1878, reversing a former decree of that tribunal and of the District Court of Kandy. Mr. Meadows White, Q.C., and Mr. Jeune were counsel for the appellant; Mr. Charles, Q.C., Mr. Lumley Smith, Q.C., and Mr. F. G. Templer for the respondents. The subject of the suit was a dispute as to the ownership of a wedge-shaped piece of forest land, fifty-four acres in extent, lying between the Wattagoda estate at Ceylon, of which the appellant, Mr. John Clark, was the owner, on the one side, and the Holyrood estate, belonging to Messrs. Elphinstone and Anderson, the respondents, on the other side. These conterminous estates were originally waste and forest lands, and were granted simultaneously by the Government in 1842 to the predecessors in title of the parties, and converted by them into valuable coffee plantations. The district judge at Kandy, before whom the case first came, decided that the land in dispute was included in the grant to the appellant, and the Supreme Court, on appeal, affirmed that decree. Later on, however, the Supreme Court reviewed their former judgment, and held that, although the land was granted to the appellant, the evidence was sufficient to establish that a prescriptive title had been acquired in the property by the respondents. At the conclusion of the arguments their lordships intimated that they would humbly advise her Majesty to reverse the judgment under appeal and to confirm the original decisions of the Supreme and District Courts in favour of the appellant, who was entitled to the costs of that appeal.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders for Rs.30,00,000 in bills on India were received on Wednesday, Nov. 24, at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, Rs.28,28,000, at an average of 1s. 7½d.; to Bombay, Rs.55,000, at an average rate of 1s. 7½d.; and to Madras, Rs.1,17,000, at an average rate of 1s. 7½d. Tenders on all Presidencies at 1s. 7¾d. received about 5½ per cent. As the average on each Presidency was exactly 1s. 7¾d. it follows that the thirty lakhs offered were tendered for practically the same as was shown the previous week.

BOMBAY GAS COMPANY.—The half-yearly general meeting was held on Thursday, Nov. 25, at the offices, Drapers'-gardens, E.C.; Mr. Daniel Thomas Evans presiding. The report stated that the amount at credit of profit and loss for the half-year was £8,758, increased to £8,863 by the balance brought forward. Out of this they had declared an interim dividend of 3½ per cent. for the half-year, tax free, leaving £463 to be carried forward. The receipts for the half-year were £25,135. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said there was an increase in the gas and meter rental of £189, which was very small, and he knew that some disappointment had been felt by those who in recent years had joined the company. In the June half of 1873 the private consumption was 10,047,200 cubic feet, while in the past half-year it was 12,668,300 cubic feet. In the same period the public lights had about doubled. Various reasons operated against a large increase in the private lights. The white population, for instance, was a mere handful as compared with the black; but they were making considerable way even among the black population. They had also, without doubt, been affected by the bad times through which India had passed. At one time they received Rs. 14 for the private consumption, whereas now the price was reduced to Rs. 6. The coke, tar, and fittings showed a satisfactory increase. They had now Rs. 300,000 on deposit in Bombay, because they could not bring it home advantageously. That was £30,000. They had been most carefully watching the exchanges, and they had brought over £5,000 at 18. 8½d. The money, however, was on deposit at 5 per cent., and they could borrow money here at ½ per cent. above the Bank rate—3 per cent.—so they had the benefit of 2 per cent. by this operation. They were, however, most anxious to bring the money home, and would do so as soon as possible. They had placed £3,500 out of the revenue to the credit of exchange equalisation account to provide for losses on remittances in the current half-year. Their coals during the half-year had cost them 18. 6d. per ton more. They had now 4,200 tons of coal at the works, and 3,000 tons in transit, so, in point of fact, they had provided for a year's supply. They could perfectly well pay a dividend of 10 or 10½ per cent. instead of only 7½ per cent. if only the exchanges were reasonably favourable; but he did not despair of seeing the rupee at par again, and he thought their prospects were reasonably fair for the future. Major Gordon seconded the motion, and, in reply to a suggestion to reduce the price of the gas, it was stated that the last reduction produced a very small increase in the consumption. The report was unanimously adopted.

ORIENTAL GAS COMPANY.—The annual general meeting was held on Friday, Nov. 26, at the offices, St. Mary-axe; Mr. James Sydney Stepford, the chairman, presiding. The general revenue account showed a balance, after crediting £2,500 to the reserve fund, of £19,330, out of which they recommended a dividend of 5 per cent., making, with the interim dividend, 9 per cent. for the year. The total receipts for the year were £74,164; gas rental yielding £56,696, and coke, tar, fittings, &c., £17,436. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, stated that since he last addressed them everything in connection with the new contract had been satisfactorily completed, and the new arrangements were started without a drawback on May 1 last. During the year they derived exceptional advantages from the working of the contracts, for up to May 1 they received full rates on the old lamps in addition to the revenue from the new lamps, which were ready and ordered to be lighted before the stipulated date. He mentioned this because the accounts for the current financial year would bear evidence of the liberal concessions mentioned in the report, and the full strain of reduced rates was now being experienced. They, however, felt great gratification that their position was established on a favourable basis for twenty-one years to come, and there was every reasonable ground to hope that their present prosperity would be maintained. Under the provisions of the new contract the corporation had the power to order 500 additional lamps as required, and he had no doubt that the intended order included in the last budget of 100 new lamps would soon be given. The experience of six months' working had proved their ability to meet all the requirements of the new contract without difficulty. The extension of their mains into fresh districts of the town had led to the influx of a large number of new customers. The progress of private lighting during the year was very encouraging. The addition of 19 miles of mains brought up the total length at Calcutta to 152 miles, and so well had the new pipes been laid that the quantity of unaccounted-for gas was 4 per cent. less than that for 1878-79, the loss per mile of mains being reduced 16½ per cent. They would be glad to hear that they were in a safe position as regarded coal. The analyst to the corporation reported their gas was "good in every respect." Their hopes of improvement in the exchanges had not been realised. The loss last year was less than in the previous year, the average rate of the remittances being 18. 8½d. as compared with 18. 7¾d., but the rates had now again relapsed. They left nothing undone to minimise this item by timing their remittances judiciously. The report was unanimously adopted.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY.—The half-yearly general meeting was held on Monday, at the offices, Gresham-street. Mr. J. Farley Leith, Q.C., the chairman, presided, and in moving the adoption of the report, an abstract of which has appeared in our columns, said it was never so satisfactory for him to address them on the results of the half-year to June, as the receipts were always more favourable in the December half, but no doubt, as investors, they looked at the results of the whole year. The gross earnings for the half-year showed an increase of £6,035, or 3.57 per cent.; the working expenses an increase of £10,893, or 11.83 per cent.; and the net earnings a decrease of £4,508, or 6.32 per cent. The working expenses, however, had been increased by £9,946 by exceptional items, and the ordinary expenditure also showed an increase of £947, which was partly attributable to the carrying of heavy goods of a class which paid less in proportion than other goods. Taking off the exceptional expenditure, the working expenses came out at 50.29 per cent., as against 54.5 per cent. in the corresponding half of 1879, and the net earnings were in this manner increased from £71,982 to £82,045, or £5,174 more than was required to pay the guaranteed interest. With regard to the traffic, the increase in numbers in the first-class was 429, or 3.65 per cent., with a decrease of £42, or 1.85 per cent.; in the second-class there was an increase of 1,849, or 7.86 per cent., and an increase of £112, or 5.81 per cent.; in the third-class the decrease was 14,435, or 6.88 per cent., and in money a decrease of £897, or 5.47 per cent.; and in the fourth-class there was an increase of 13,851, or 1.76 per cent., with a decrease of £143, or .36 per cent., the numerical increase on the whole being 1,694, or .16 per cent., with a monetary decrease of £970, or 1.32 per cent. The goods traffic showed an increase of 36,478 tons, or 24.8 per cent., and £7,695, or about 9 per cent. They had carried 1,643 tons of tea, as against only 856 tons, receiving £2,155, against £960. This tea came principally from Cachar, but measures were now being taken to tap more effectively the Assam and Darjiling districts, and he believed they might fairly look for an increase in this source of their revenue. Referring to the Northern Bengal State Railway, with which they were connected by a short branch, which they worked, the company's earnings from this source had been £29,852, or an increase of 30 per cent. over what they received in the corresponding period in the previous year. They had now agreed with the Government to work the branch for 60 per cent. of the gross receipts, which their agent anticipated would result favourably for them. With regard to the current half-year to December next their agent informed them that the receipts for the first seventeen weeks up to October 30 were £195,942, or an increase of £34,278 (or 21 per cent.) over the same period of last year; and for the month of September the expenses were only 25 per cent. The agent estimated the surplus profit for the half-year at £108,000, which would be larger than ever before, the highest surplus having been £99,600 in the December half of 1877, that for last December being £66,990. Should his expectation be realised, after deducting £2,600 for their provident fund, their moiety of the surplus would be £52,700, and, taking the exchange at 18. 7¾d., there would remain £47,310, which would be increased by the amount carried forward to £47,813. This would enable them to declare a surplus dividend of £2 2s. on the share capital. After drawing attention to certain satisfactory statements in the agent's report, appended to that of the directors, he referred with regret to the loss of two of their colleagues—Sir Cecil Beadon by death and Mr. Berens through infirm health—and with satisfaction to the appointment of Mr. Sanderson and Mr. Baxendale to succeed them. Colonel George Sim, R.E., seconded the motion, which was at once unanimously adopted, and the retiring auditor was afterwards re-elected.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—The annual report states that the net profits for the year, including £4,308 brought forward from last year, amount to £149,862, which, after deducting the interim dividend of 2 per cent., admit of a further dividend of 3 per cent., which the directors now recommend to be paid, a balance of £4,862 being carried over to next year. During the past twelve months the new mail services have been fully organised and carried out with great efficiency. It has been found advantageous, more particularly during the last six or seven months, to run a number of extra voyages, which have brought up the gross mileage performed by the fleet to a higher point than it has reached for many years. Owing to the losses of the Hindustan and Travancore, which have been announced in previous reports, a charge has to be made against the annual insurance premiums, amounting to £89,396, and the directors regret that, under these circumstances, they are unable to recommend any distribution to the proprietors on account of underwriting profit for the past year. The usual charge to meet current depreciation, namely, 5 per cent. on the original cost of the fleet, has been provided, and the amount, £207,848, has been written off the value of the ships. The directors have thought it advisable further to reduce the book value of the fleet by appropriating for the purpose an additional sum of £33,000 from the general profits of the year. This step is rendered advisable in their opinion to meet the necessity of selling by degrees a certain number of the older vessels, rather than that the company should enter upon the expense of repairing them. The amounts which the company receive as payment for the new mail services are at the rate of £75,000 less per annum than under the previous contracts. The full extent of this diminution does not appear in the present accounts, which commenced in October, 1879, while the new contracts did not commence until February, 1880, but there is still a reduction in the present accounts of £55,000 as compared with the amount formerly received for the conveyance of the mails. The company's general expenditure has augmented during the past year, but this has practically arisen from two unavoidable causes, which are—first, that the greater speed required under the new mail contracts has necessitated a larger consumption of coal; and secondly, that the extra voyages made in the course of the present year have, while increasing the revenue, also added to the general disbursements.

"EDWARD GOODEVE MEMORIAL FUND."

A MEETING of the friends of the late Dr. Edward Goodeve was held in London on Nov. 18 for the purpose of considering a proposal to perpetuate his name, as one of the brightest ornaments of the Indian Medical Service, by some memorial in connection with the Medical College of Calcutta. It was unanimously decided that a fund should be raised with this object, and the following gentlemen were nominated as an executive committee to carry the resolution into effect:—Inspector General J. Forsyth, C.B., president; Surgeon General Sir J. Fayrer, M.D., F.R.S., K.C.S.I., Surgeon Major A. Grant, F.R.C.S., J. H. Matthews, Esq., and Deputy Surgeon General S. B. Partridge, F.R.C.S., members. Most of Dr. Goodeve's former colleagues in the medical college and many other of his numerous friends have already expressed their willingness to have their names enrolled upon the general committee of the fund and a complete list will shortly be published. It was further resolved at the meeting that a maximum limit of subscription of two guineas should be fixed, as the object of the committee is to obtain numerous subscriptions rather than large individual contributions. Subscriptions to the fund may be paid to Messrs. Grindlay and Co., 55, Parliament-street, London; Messrs. Grindlay and Co., Calcutta; or to Deputy Surgeon General S. B. Partridge, Thicket Lodge, Thicket-road, Anerley, London, S.E., honorary treasurer.

MR. J. W. SHERER'S CABINET NOVELS.
THE CONJURER'S DAUGHTER.
 With 12 Illustrations, 5s.

W H O I S M A R Y ?
 Price ros. 6d.

"It is from life, which, as Goethe says, 'teaches better than preacher and book,' that Mr. Sherer has taken his sketches. It is not life in its heroic or beautiful side that he has studied. The ordinary common joys and troubles of common-place people form his subject, and they are told with a direct straightforward adherence to probability, lighted up occasionally with gleams of fun and humour that makes his books exceedingly readable."—Daily News.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.
 CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.
 CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.
 CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.
 CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.
 CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.
 Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manilla, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1864.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.
 CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAOR WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, 13th July, 1864.
 Sold in bottles at 1s. 1d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J.
 COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanied each bottle.

THE "PISTON" FREEZING MACHINE (ASH'S PATENT).

The "Piston" Freezing Machine Freezing and Moulding Dessert Ices, Icing Wines, and making Block Ice.

Ash's "PISTON" FREEZING MACHINE is the most effective and economical method of freezing known. It is rapidly becoming a part of the "cuisine" in the establishments of the aristocracy of this country; it has received the highest patronage, and is used in all parts of the world. By this process Ice Creams are frozen in shapes ready for table—an operation never before accomplished—entirely superseding the use of ice pots and moulds; it also forms a Wide Cooler and produces Blocks of Ice. When not used with the usual ice and salt mixture, as on board ships, in the Tropics, &c., Ash's Freezing Powders are most effective, and guaranteed to succeed.

Price of the Machines, from 50s. each.

PATENT STEEL FRAME
SHORT GRAND PIANOS,
SIX FEET LONG, IN ELEGANT ROSEWOOD OR WALNUT CASES,

Are considered by all who have heard them to combine a greater amount and resonance of tone, consistent with adaptability of size, shape, and elegance of appearance than those of any other manufacturer.

KIRKMAN AND SON'S

OVERSTRUNG
GRAND AND COTTAGE PIANOS.

It being considered by some competent judges that the German method of over or cross-stringing Pianos is attended with great advantage, Messrs. Kirkman and Son are now manufacturing both Grand and Cottage Pianos on this principle, the latter having the plain Sticker Action, which is not the case with Pianos of this class manufactured by other makers; in fact, the extreme simplicity of the action used by Messrs. Kirkman and Son in all their Pianos render them eminently suitable for exportation to the Colonies, where skilled workmen are few and far between.
All useless checks and complications are carefully avoided, thus enabling any tuner, with however superficial a knowledge of the business, to regulate them or repair any damage they may sustain.

KIRKMAN AND SON

Have a reputation extending over nearly a Century and a Half.

There are now in the possession of the house Harpsichords and Virginals dated 1758 and 1778, manufactured by Jacobus and Abraham Kirkman.

The present members of the firm beg to call the attention of shippers and exporters to the fact that in ordering of this house they are dealing with a firm who manufacture on principles derived from experience of this almost unprecedented length.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Nov. 20; Madras and Allahabad, Nov. 18; Calcutta, Nov. 17.

REPORTS on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending Nov. 9 state that in Madras there was general rain; the harvest is in progress, with an average yield; prospects are satisfactory. In Bombay there was slight rain in Hyderabad, Karwar, and Kaladgi, but none elsewhere. The kharif crops are being out and spring crops are doing well. Very little rain fell in Bengal during the week; prospects throughout the Lower Provinces remain very favourable, except in Sarun and Chumparun where rice on high lands is suffering from want of rain. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh the weather has been clear, and rain, as before, is wanted in the Rae Bareilly, Cawnpore, Lucknow, Sitapur, and part of the Jhansi districts. In the two first of these districts there is still some distress; but it has not yet been necessary to open public relief works in Rae Bareilly. The kharif outturn in that district and in Partabgarh, Jhansi, and Aligarh is below average. In Cawnpore and Sitapur it has been poor. Elsewhere the spring crops which were sown have germinated well and prospects are fair. In the Punjab there was no rain, and it is now required in several districts to enable the spring crops to be sown. In the Central Provinces there was slight rain only in Raipur and Sambalpur; prospects continue good. In Burma also little rain has fallen; the condition of the crops remains satisfactory, but more rain would do much good. In Assam and the other provinces and States agricultural prospects are generally satisfactory. Prospects throughout the Empire are on the whole good, except in parts of the North Western Provinces and Oudh. In Northern India much depends on the usual winter rain.

THE health reports for the same week are as follow :—
Bombay: Fever generally prevalent in Karaohi and part of Hyderabad (Sind), also in Baroda and Rajkot; decreasing in Ahmedabad. Bengal: Fever prevalent in Purneah, 24-Pergunnahs, and Burdwan; disappearing in Rungpore. North West Provinces and Oudh: Excepting slight cholera at Fyzabad, general health good. Punjab: Slight fever prevalent in Rawul Pindi and Dera Ismail Khan; health of province generally good. Central Provinces: Fever prevalent in Raipur, abated in Jubbulpur. British Burma: Cholera somewhat prevalent in Pegu, small-pox in Bassein town, public health otherwise good. Assam: Healthy. Mysor and Coorg: Health good. Central India States: Fever prevalent in Manipur. Rajputana: Health good.

THE official weather and crop reports for the week ending Nov. 30 describe the prospects throughout the Empire as, on the whole, good. The grounds for anxiety at one time felt in regard to certain parts of the North West Provinces and Oudh are for the present removed. No rain fell during the week in those provinces, but the winter sowing is being pushed on and the prospects are fairly favourable. Food is plentiful and cheap. The markets are well supplied. In Rae Bareilly, the worst district, the sowings will go on for another fortnight. The timely rain of Nov. 20, the large advances for wells and seeds, and the co-operation of the landlords have had a marked effect in securing sowing and checking the distress. Labour is still in demand, but the prices are rising slightly. No relief works, however, will be necessary, at all events before the end of the month. Throughout Lower Bengal the harvest will probably be considerably above the average.

KANDAHAR telegrams state that, although Ayub's position at Herat is becoming desperate, he has been invited to march on Cabul, and make the Ameer captive. The authority of the latter does not extend south of Ghuzni. The Times telegram says :—

"All the news from Herat points to a strong and growing combination against Ayub Khan and the Barakzais generally on the part of the powerful tribes north and east of the city, supported by two, at least, of the Durani clans, the Alikozais and Ishakzais. It will be remembered that when he left Herat for Kandahar he placed the city in charge of the Jamshidi chief, Zalantush Khan, whose sister he has married, and whose father, Khan Agha, had been in confinement at Cabul for some years. This duty Zalantush faithfully performed, and repulsed an attack by the Alikozais in August; but Ayub Khan's disastrous defeat, added to the oppression exercised in his name since his return, has alienated the tribes from him, and Zalantush Khan and the other chiefs have now left Herat and retired to their mountains. Khan Agha came down from Cabul with General Roberts and went on to Herat about six weeks ago, but, instead of joining his son-in-law, Ayub stopped short at Taiwara, ordered his son to leave Herat, and sent into Kandahar to say that he found Ayub's tyranny had made him so unpopular that it was impossible to avoid joining the party against him. It now seems likely that Ayub may at any moment be forced to seek an asylum in Persia for a second time. Who may replace him it is difficult to say, but it is not likely to be a Barakzai, by whose misrule Herat has been reduced so low. All is quiet here. General Hume arrived on the 29th ult., and the next day General Phayre left for Quetta, where he remains for the present in charge of the line of communications. The health of the troops is very good, with the exception of the 11th Foot, which has furnished nearly half the hospital patients. The Sirdar Shere Ali Khan leaves about the 15th inst., taking with him his four wives and numerous offspring."

THE Daily News publishes a telegram from Allahabad stating that the Viceroy arrived there yesterday on his way to Calcutta, suffering from fever, due to over exertion in Bombay. He is in a weak state and is likely to be detained for several days.

THE special of the Times of India writes that :—

"Everyone who comes in contact with the Viceroy is full of praise as to his unaffected manners, his geniality and kindness of heart. There is no rigidity at his Court, or pompous assertion of superiority, but a sterling happy look, as much as to say, with Mark Tapley, there is no credit in being jolly here. Every member of his staff is quite at ease, and he has a joke for the most subordinate member of his staff, and, I believe, is beloved by all of them."

A good deal has been said about the Maharaja of Kashmir having fallen out of the procession on the Governor General's entry to Lahore, although set down in the programme as a part of it. The simple explanation as given by the Pioneer is that his Highness demurred to being placed in the rear of the cavalry escort, which was to follow immediately behind the Viceroy, the Lieutenant Governor, and the Commander in Chief, and to herd with the smaller chiefs; and as there was no precedent to guide a decision, and no time to discuss it, Kashmir was allowed to take to his carriage.

THE Indian journals mention that reports have been received that the tribes about Gilgit are in revolt. Major Biddulph, with some 700 troops belonging to the Kashmir Maharaja, is checking their advance. Should he have to retire it is feared the rising will become general. The object of the rebels is to throw off allegiance to Kashmir. The Times of India had not received confirmation of these reports up to the time of going to press.

MR. T. C. HOPE, who is now in England on leave, has been appointed a provisional member of the Council of the Governor of Bombay.

It is probable that Col. Bradford, C.S.I., will succeed Sir R. Meade as Resident at Hyderabad, and Mr. J. B. Lyall, financial commissioner in the Punjab, be appointed Resident at Baroda when Mr. Melvill retires in March next.

LIEUT. H. O. WEARE, 2nd Battalion 9th Regiment, who was severely injured by a fall from his horse at Lahore Races, died on Nov. 16.

A GENERAL court-martial has been ordered to assemble at Aden for the trial of an officer on charges in connection with the accounts of his battery.

ON Dec. 1 the Queen was pleased to confer the honour of Knighthood on Louis Stewart Jackson, Esq., C.I.E., late a judge of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William, Bengal.

It has been notified that the defeat of Ayub Khan by Sir F. Roberts on Sept. 1 will henceforth be officially described as the Battle of Kandahar. The Gazette containing the Afghan war honours is expected about Christmas.

SIR JOHN STRACHEY was to leave Simla yesterday and travel by easy stages to Bombay, whence he sails for England on Christmas day.

COL. CHESNEY, the newly appointed military secretary, arrived at Bombay on Wednesday, and at once assumed his office. His predecessor, Col. Allan Johnson, leaves India on Dec. 18.

THE Government of India have requested the Indian chambers of commerce to furnish their opinions as to the inauguration of the telephone system in India. This request is based on the application of the Bell Telephone Company, London, for permission to work the Edison and Bell system in India.

A DESPATCH from the Secretary of State for India has been published acknowledging the report of the Law Commission. After praising their zeal and ability the despatch proceeds to express the decision of the Secretary of State with regard to the practical measures recommended. These are the laws relating, respectively, to negotiable instruments, to the subject dealt with by the Transfer of Property Bill, to trusts, to alluvion, to easements, and to master and servant:—

"I am of opinion that in the case of the bills relating to negotiable instruments, transfer of property, and alluvion which have already been introduced into the Legislative Council and referred to select committees, the report of the Law Commissioners should be communicated to the several committees, which might then proceed to report upon the measures in the usual course. As to the remainder of the drafts, which have not yet been introduced into the Legislature, I shall not object, if you so decide, to their introduction, in order that the select committees, to which they will in ordinary course be referred, may, with the commissioners' report before them, proceed to report upon the bills. I also request that all the bills referred to in this despatch, as settled by the committees, may be retranslated and recirculated in India, and be submitted to me with the reports of the committees before any further steps are taken regarding them.—I have the honour to be, my Lord Marquis, your lordship's most obedient humble servant."

THE deaths are announced of two well-known natives of Western India—Mr. Nundram Sunderjee Naik, contractor, of Puna, and Mr. Dwarkadas Vussonjee, a wealthy millowner of Bombay.

THE Kandahar correspondent of the Bombay Gazette states that, with reference to the relief of the three Bombay regiments there by three from Bengal, it may be as well to state that the reason lies, not in the supposed inefficiency of the former, but because the Bombay commander in chief, anxious at the number of regiments absent from the Presidency, had requested that as many of them as might be possible should be relieved.

THE Rampa Field Force will soon be a thing of the past, for the edict has gone forth that as soon as the force dwindles down to one regiment of Native Infantry Brigadier General Buck is to revert to his regiment, the 20th N.I. As active steps are being taken to relieve all military by police, it will not be long ere the protection of the Rampa district is solely left to the charge of Mr. Sweet's "belted knights."

THE tenders for £3,500,000 India £3 10s. per Cent. Stock were opened yesterday at the Bank of England. The applications amounted to about £14,500,000 at prices varying from £98, the minimum, to £104 5s. per cent. Tenders at £103 12s. per cent. will receive about 71 per cent. of the amount applied for; those above that price in full. This is an instructive comment on the "Bankrupt India" school of pamphleteers.

THE returns of the trade and navigation of British India for the first six months of the financial year show the value of merchandise imported at Rs.24,43,23,254, of merchandise exported at Rs.34,56,75,733. These figures, for the corresponding period last year, were respectively Rs.17,93,28,398, and Rs.30,53,10,662. The gross amount of import duty was Rs.2,11,74,802, as against Rs.2,01,25,418, and of export duty Rs.28,86,613, as against Rs.25,17,804.

DURING September the value of coin and bullion received in the Indian mints was as follows:—Calcutta, Rs.25,39,640; Bombay, Rs.36,59,891, making a total of Rs.61,99,531. During the half-year the mints received:—Calcutta, Rs.78,63,513; Bombay, Rs.2,17,70,547. The total for both mints was Rs.2,96,34,060. During September the Calcutta mint coined Rs.23,14,441; and the Bombay mint Rs.38,99,370; or a total for the month of Rs.62,13,811. This was below the demand, as the introduction of the Indian rupee into Goa has been postponed in consequence of the Bombay mint not having met the demands upon it. During the six months the total coinage at Calcutta was Rs.75,97,793; and of Bombay Rs.2,35,96,000. The total for both mints was, therefore, Rs.3,11,93,793; the monthly average being Rs.51,98,998.

THE value of gold imported into India since the year 1846-47 is upwards of one hundred millions sterling, while the exports have not been more than nine millions. What has become of the difference? It cannot all have been made up into ornaments.

CALCUTTA absorbs 44.04 per cent. of the whole trade of India; Bombay, 37.22; Rangoon, 5.76; Madras, 4.55; Karachi, 1.42. The trade at any one of the other Indian ports does not reach 1 per cent. of the total trade of the country.

FURTHER proofs of the present healthy state of the trade and navigation of India are afforded by the accounts for September, compiled by the Statistical Branch of the Financial Department and published by order of the Governor General in Council. Improvement is shown under most heads, but the greatest increase has been in the foreign import trade, the value of the merchandise, exclusive of Government stores, having risen from Rs.2,54,67,158 in the corresponding month of 1878 to Rs.4,48,46,033. Including Government stores and private treasure the total imports for the month amount to upwards of five crores sixty-six lakhs, against four crores fifty-eight lakhs in September, 1879, and three crores one lakh in September, 1878. The figures relating to the export trade are somewhat lower than those for September, 1879, but in the six months—April to September—there is a marked increase. Among the imports of the month were 691 horses from Australia; 2,500lb. of common gunpowder (excluding Government supplies); 7,045lb. of sporting powder; fourteen thousand and some odd pounds of real corals from Italy and five pounds from other countries; 1,182lb. of beads and false pearls; 20,040lb. of unmanufactured ivory; and five lakhs Rs.42,000 worth of jewellery, principally consisting of precious stones and pearls unset. Turning to the exports we find that only 9,465 living animals—what they are is not specified—were shipped from India, as against 14,002 in September of the previous year. Under the heading of unmanufactured tobacco there is also a satisfactory increase. The quantity of that article exported to the United Kingdom, Austria, Italy, and other countries during the month was 1,780,419lb., against 351,268lb. in September, 1878.

THE amount collected on account of inland salt customs from April 1 to Oct. 15, 1880, was Rs.77,62,350, being 8 per cent. more than in the corresponding period of 1879-80.

A COMMISSION is to assemble at Calcutta during the cold-weather season to devise a scheme for simplifying the work of the Commissariat Department.

THE total number of visitors to the Indian Museum for the month of November was 7,318; the highest weekly number being 1,908, and the lowest 1,337. Since the opening on May 15, 120,982 persons have visited the collections.

IN an able pamphlet on the opium question Deputy Surgeon General Moore asserts that opium is injurious when taken in excess, but not more injurious than alcohol similarly used, and not injurious at all when taken in moderation. Revenue from opium is exactly as wrong as revenue from alcohol.

DURING the week ending Nov. 6 there were 260 deaths in Calcutta, giving a death-rate of 31.15 per 1,000 per annum. In Madras during the same week there were 271 deaths, a death-rate of 36.5 per 1,000 per annum. In Bombay during the week ending Nov. 9 there were 392 deaths, the death-rate being 27.05 per 1,000 per annum.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—Lieut. H. O. Weare, 9th Regiment; Mr. J. C. Winscom; Lieut. F. Mardak, 3rd Punjab Cavalry; Mr. Nundram Sunderjee Naik; Mr. Dwarkadas Vussonjee; Mr. E. F. D. Dalrymple-Clerk; Mr. W. H. Jones, of the firm of R. Campbell and Co.

PROPOSED NEW ENACTMENTS.

THE Indian Trusts Bill and the Indian Easements Bill, which, it is proposed shall come into force on March 1, 1882, are published in the Gazette of India, together with the customary statements of objects and reasons. The latter bill is intended to form part of the Indian Civil Code, and, as Mr. Whitley Stokes explains, attempts to state, clearly and compactly, the rules relating to easements—that is to say, the rights which a man sometimes has over one piece of immovable property by reason of the ownership of another. The present statutory law is said to be defective, and three of the most experienced judges—Sir Michael Westropp, Mr. Justice (now Sir Louis) Jackson, and Mr. Justice Innes—have expressed their opinion that it is desirable to codify the law on the subject, which is now declared by the Chief Justice of Bombay “for the most part to be found only in treatises and reports practically inaccessible to a large proportion of the legal profession in the mofussil and to the subordinate judges.”

THE Presidency Banks a few years ago were ordered not to cut and break any counterfeit or worn coin under the Indian Coinage Act, except that received by them on behalf of Government. On reconsideration, the President in Council, i.e., Sir John Strachey, authorises the secretary and treasurer of each of the Presidency banks and the agent in charge of any of their branches, “to cut and break all counterfeit and light weight rupees and half rupees received by them in the course of business, and not only those received on behalf of Government.” His Honour in Council also authorises the secretary, manager, or other principal officer of the Agra Bank, (Limited), the Chartered Mercantile Bank, the Chartered Bank of India, the Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris, the Delhi and London Bank (Limited), the National Bank of India (Limited), the Oriental Bank Corporation, the Alliance Bank of Simla (Limited), the Simla Bank Corporation (Limited), the chairman, vice-chairman, or secretary of the Calcutta Port Improvement Commissioners, the Bombay Port Trustees, and the Rangoon Port Commissioners, and the chairman, vice-chairman president, vice-president, or secretary of the Presidency Municipalities to act under sec. 16 of the Indian Coinage Act 1870. Local Governments and Administrations may authorise any officer of any other municipality to whom it may be desirable to extend the power so to act.

GALLANTRY OF NATIVE OFFICERS.

A Calcutta telegram states that the Gazette of India contains a list of the native officers and men admitted to the Order of Merit for conspicuous gallantry in General Roberts's action near Kandahar. Amongst them are Duffadar Burkut Ally, 3rd Punjab Cavalry, for charging, during the pursuit of the enemy, three Ghazis, armed with rifles and bayonets, who were attacking Lance Duffadar Maibooob Ally Kan, of the same regiment, killing one of them and saving the lance duffadar's life; Sepoy Chatar Sing, 23rd Pioneers, for leaping across a wet ditch in face of some forty of the enemy and bayoneting one of them; Naick Thurm Sing and Naick Soobah Sing, 24th Bengal Infantry, during the advance on the enemy's position, two mules carrying reserve ammunition having been shot down, these non-commissioned officers with great coolness, under a heavy artillery and musketry fire, unloaded the mules that were carrying the entrenching tools, transferred the ammunition to them, and distributed the entrenching tools on other mules; Sepoy Maroof Sing, of the same regiment, for descending from the dandi in which, being wounded, he was being conveyed from the field and killing two out of four Ghazis who had rushed upon him and upon the kakars who were carrying him; Rifleman Mungal Joysee, 2nd Goorkhas, for attacking, with two other men of his regiment, a number of Ghazis who had taken up a position in a courtyard in the village of Sahibdad, killing some and driving the rest out, himself receiving two wounds in the encounter; Rifleman Bisram Thappa, 2nd Goorkhas, for singly attacking a number of Ghazis posted in a courtyard in a village, on which occasion he received a very severe wound; Jemadar Ala Sing 2nd Sikhs, for leading a charge on a band of Ghazis who had made a stand, cutting down one of them and showing a splendid example to the men.

A GALLANT PICQUET.

ON the night of Dec. 11 the picquet on the Sherderwaza ridge was attacked with such desperate fierceness that for a time we trembled for its fate. The hillside was lighted up as if fireflies were flitting across it, and the rude sungar our men had built as a defence against great odds was, in the darkness, a circle of fire, with little jets of flame spitting out perpetually, or a broader sheet as a volley was fired. I watched the hill from Sherpur till midnight, and still the sounds of rapid firing reached me. The little band of men had to bear the brunt of an attack which was made with unusual determination, the Afghans taunting the “Kafirs” that they would be served as Cavagnari had been. The only reply was a steadier aim and a quicker fire; by a lucky mistake there had been sufficient reserve Martini ammunition taken up to give each man 500 or 600 rounds. No help could possibly be sent; a small force would have been cut to pieces before the hill had been half climbed; a large force could not be spared, for General Baker's brigade was still twenty or thirty miles away up the Chardeh Valley, Sherpur was weakly guarded, and Macpherson was guarding the Cabul gorge with a small brigade. So all through the night and till daylight the picquet held its own, but the trial had been a trying one even to men accustomed to danger, and that night will be remembered by all who lived through it as one of keen anxiety. If the enemy had captured the Sherderwaza hill they could have cut Macpherson off from all communication with Sherpur, for with their numbers the other hills on the north of the Cabul gorge could have been held in strength. But it was not to be; the ridge remained in our hands when morning broke, and we owed its retention to the quiet self-possession and gallantry of the picquet which had held it so nobly.—Pioneer.

THE MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.—A special general meeting of the above company was held yesterday at the offices, Coleman-street, E.C., under the presidency of the Right Hon. E. P. Bouverie, to consider the terms offered by the Secretary of State for India in Council for purchasing the company's undertaking. The Chairman explained the cause which had led up to the offer being made. On his appointment as chairman of the company, about a year ago, his opinion that the position of the company was unsatisfactory was confirmed by facts. He then referred to the origin of the undertaking and to the great anticipations which were at first held as to the prosperity which the company would enjoy. Those anticipations, however, had never been realised, and, so far as one could judge, they never would be by the company, placed as it was. They had very great obligations, which he particularised, and the guarantee under which the stockholders received 5 per cent. per annum was not permanent—in fact the Government could buy them up in eight years. Under all the circumstances of their position he urged them, on the part of his colleagues and himself, to accept the offer made, and, in conclusion, moved a resolution accepting the terms, which provided, inter alia, that, on the transfer being completed, the Secretary of State would for each £100 of the capital stock of the company pay £106, continuing up to the date of payment of the £106, but no longer; to pay interest at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum on each £100 of the company's stock; and in the redemption of the mortgage debenture debt due by the company would pay £75 for each £100 of principal of the mortgage debentures, with interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on each £75 from the 1st ult. until such amount of principal was paid. The £75 thus paid or to be received by the holders of the mortgage debt (on their giving up their securities) as in full discharge of all claims whatsoever by them against the company, and in full discharge of all claims (if any) against the Secretary of State. Mr. Hall seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THE IRRIGATION WORKS OF INDIA.*

THE want of such a work as Mr. Buckley has completed must have been often felt by those who were desirous of forming or correcting opinions on the much-debated question of the results attained by the irrigation works on which so much capital has been expended in India. To search through the long succession of reports and intricate tables of returns, or to collate the various and often contradictory statements made before parliamentary committees, has been the only resource of those who wanted to know the plain facts of the history of the various projects and works which have been undertaken as safeguards against the drought to which some parts of India particularly, and others periodically, are subject. Mr. Buckley has succeeded in producing a handy volume, neither bristling with a huge array of statistics nor wasting space on the never-ending controversies as to the relative merits of railways and canals, in which the respective opponents stand little chance of effecting any mutual result either of persuasion or conciliation. He has divided the irrigation works of India according to their provincial status and summarised the history and progress of each. Thus we can turn for information to the respective headings and learn all that is generally required to be known, whether in Madras, Bombay, Sind, Bengal, the North West Provinces, or the Punjab. Minor tank works, such as are found in Mysor, Rajputana, and British Burma, he omits. His main object is to assist his readers in arriving at a fair and unbiassed estimate of the financial results. Of the accuracy and concise completeness of his information we were able to give a proof in our article on the Madras Irrigation Company. All the details of construction which are of interest to the engineer are given in their due course and place. The origin and vicissitudes of the East Indian Irrigation, better known as the Orissa, Company, is given as fully as that of the sister company, which now, after so many more years of failure, is about to be transferred, after the example of the former, to the possession of the Indian Government. The Orissa canals are described as being restricted as to their distributaries until the Government see signs of increased demands for water on the part of the cultivators. The chapter on the eight reproductive works of the Presidency of Madras, which return $17\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on their outlay to the Government, and are a lasting memorial of the skill and energy of the engineers who designed them, affords a bright contrast to the narratives of disappointment and unproductive enterprises. Mr. Buckley, after passing under comprehensive review the irrigation works in Bengal, sums up the results at present to be that the Orissa canals, the Midnapore canals, the Sone canals, and the Sarun and Hooghly schemes, which are nearly complete, with the exception of minor channels, command 1,503,000 acres, an area which would be rather more than doubled by the extensions proposed by Colonel Haig with the object of giving Bengal immunity from any repetition of the scarcity of 1873-74. Very interesting and precise details are given in succession of the irrigation works of the North West Provinces, which, Mr. Buckley says, protect from fear of famine one half the area, or 25,500 square miles, although they are not entirely and completely irrigated; and of the Punjab canals, which only protect 17,500 square miles out of 56,000. We could have wished that Mr. Buckley had found it consistent with his plan of treatment to include some information on the "reh," and the deleterious influences that the canal water is asserted to exert upon tea plantations, as we read not long ago in the correspondence of an Indian journal. But we presume that this would have trenchanted upon the agricultural interest too much, and have lain outside the engineering purview. The financial returns are dealt with in the same plain and simple method as that adopted with regard to the details. Mr. Buckley has industriously studied the statements and arguments, and no small amount of labour must have been undergone to enable him to present the reader with the brief and lucid statements contained in the last chapter, and he will carry with him those who have carefully followed him through his facts and figures, when he concludes thus—"That the time when the irrigation works will be no longer a charge on the revenues of India has been already reached is shown by the statement on page 186, for, taken together, the Indian irrigation works are actually bringing to the pocket of the Indian Government about 5 per cent. on their cost, that is about $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. more than the Government pay for the capital they have borrowed to construct them. That great value may be attached to these works, viewed as insurances against famine, as means of bringing contentment, steady prosperity, and happiness to the people, is hardly a matter in which there can be any doubt." We have only to add that not the least useful portion of the work is a hydrographic map, with side lists of the rivers, their catchment basins and courses, and the irrigation canals, with their respective cost attached.

DOROTHY COMPTON.*

THE preface to this novelette admits that the epoch of the '15 is well worn, and it might be added that now-a-days it were the work of a rival to the Wizard of the North to really awaken sympathetic interest in the mad efforts at rebellion which the adherents of the Stuarts from time to time repeated. In "Dorothy Compton" we have a great deal of history of a sort, and rather too many historical personages are introduced, although they have little or nothing to do with the plot. That is in itself simple. The heroine is a Yorkshire "White Rose," and has a lover, whom, of course, she converts to the Jacobite faith and sends forth to fight "pro rege." She has also a cousin lover who proves a traitor both to his cause and to his family, for whom his revenge works out a most tragical calamity. We are introduced to the last Earl of Derwentwater and his countess, and have a fairly graphic and spirited account of the defeat at Preston. The volume will do very well for a Christmas present.

FAIRY TALES.*

MAJOR SECCOMBE narrates, in verse, that more than faintly recalls the Ingoldsby Legends, the adventures of Prince Hildebrand of Bangalore, and of the Princess Ida, the daughter of King Crusty Gruff. As a book telling in verse what others attempt to describe in prose, this volume should attain a popularity among young readers, who will not fail to find the numerous illustrations from the author's pencil of the greatest assistance in following Prince Hildebrand's fortunes in Fairy Land and in the service of Princess Ida's father. Major Seccombe has produced a book which answers all the requirements of juvenile readers, at the same time that it represents a handsome and attractive gift for this season of the year.

In her tasty volume Miss de Morgan goes far towards repeating the success of her previous composition "On a Pincushion," and Mr. Crane's graceful sketches contribute to the making this one of the most elegant Christmas giftbooks we have seen. The story of the marvellous necklace, which certainly is original, and to be original in the making of a fairy tale is fully as difficult as in more ambitious undertakings, will create great excitement among a youthful audience, although we cannot say that the other tales reach the same standard of excellence. The interest centres in the beautiful and wicked Princess Fiorimonde, and it is fortunate that its merit is sufficiently great to alone sustain the reputation of the whole volume. Walter Crane's drawings are, as usual, most excellent.

CORRESPONDENCE.

OFFICIAL ASSURANCES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Indian officials have frequently, of late years, proclaimed the expediency and justice of preparing the people of India to take a larger share in the administration of their country; and the Indian Legislative Councils and municipalities have been represented as steps successfully taken towards the introduction of self-government. Lord Northbrook, when addressing the students of Cooper's Hill College last summer, is reported to have said—"I am one of those who believe that the mission of England in India is to educate the people of India to enable them to govern themselves." Such assurances are treasured by our India fellow-subjects as tokens of our good will towards them; but what must be their feelings when they eventually find that these professions are not followed by any attempt on the part of those who make them to carry out the good intentions they proclaim; and that, on the contrary, measures are persistently taken, from time to time, to vitiate the character and nullify the apparent intention of the few institutions which have thus far been conceded to the people of India in the direction of self-government. Twenty years ago Parliament, when it passed the India Councils Act, admitting non-official members in the Legislative Councils, obviously intended to afford to the people the means of expressing through such members their feelings and opinions regarding the measures considered in those councils. The intention, however, was frustrated in the selection of the non-official members, some of whom were rulers of neighbouring States, and others, although British subjects and men possessed of wealth, were, in the majority of cases, by no means entitled to be considered as representatives of the people. The removal of the Legislative Council to Simla during the summer has also been availed of for the enactment of laws in the deliberation of which non-official members were not allowed to participate. Not content with these damaging restrictions, the Governor of Bombay has recently made an appointment which has called forth the following pertinent remarks from a native paper :—"With very few honourable exceptions, nominations to the Legislative Council have hitherto been governed by the nominee's opulence alone. That was bad enough. But the present appointment shows that a worse principle of nomination is coming into vogue, viz., a mode of recognition by Government of the services of their officers."—(Native Opinion, Aug. 22.) The person appointed is a native official named Gopalrao Hari Deshmukh, and the Governor, alluding to this nomination, said, in his opening address to the council—"I regard this council as affording a valuable opportunity for the unofficial members to represent the feelings of the people out of doors, and they have been selected, as far as possible, with a view to their representative character." These public utterances may mislead the people of England and create in this country a comforting belief that our Indian administration is based upon the highest principles; but can scarcely satisfy the people of India, whose hopes are thus periodically raised by generous expressions, only to be dashed to the ground soon afterwards by official action entirely inconsistent with official assurances. I will leave it to your readers to judge how far such a course is consistent with prudence and with national dignity.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

INDIAN ARMY PENSION RULES.

WE wish to-day to consider the subject of the pension rules for the native officers, non-commissioned officers, and sepoy who make up what we commonly call our Native Army. Avoiding all technicalities, we shall briefly and plainly lay before our readers the facts of the case—and the facts are such that comment is well-nigh superfluous. A sepoy is enlisted for a period of thirty-two years, and unless he is broken down by sickness, or disabled by wounds, he cannot leave the army before this period has expired, unless he petitions Government for his discharge, in which event he forfeits all claim to pension. Now let us see the result of such rules. A sepoy has served for twenty-two or twenty-three years, let us suppose. He is still a strong, hearty man, with ten years' more work in him. But he wants to leave the service for one of the many reasons that influence men of his class. He may be the only survivor of his family, on whom the care of the few acres of land and the old homestead has thus devolved. Some one else has laid claims to this land, and a law suit is threatened. All who are conversant with the routine of life in a native regiment know how common such cases are, and what a deep and painful impression is produced on the mind of a sepoy as he contemplates the chance of the fields that have belonged to his family for generations passing into the possession of a stranger. Before this business cropped up he may have been a smart, intelligent man, clean and neat in appearance, and proud of his profession. Now everything is changed for him. The thought of his land absorbs all other ideas. He applies for furlough, but—as he knew before—none is due to him, and his request is refused. He perhaps asks for his discharge, but his commanding officer refuses to hear of such a thing, pointing out that this entails forfeiture of pension. But very likely the value of the few acres or bigas of land the sepoy is so anxious about is merely nominal, and he clings to them solely from that feeling of love of the land so strongly implanted in the peasantry of every nation in the world. If he returns to his village without a pension, of what avail has it been that he has served the Sirkar faithfully for more than twenty years! No, he can't go without his pension; but how is he to obtain it? He knows that if he were ill he would receive the coveted boon, and so he determines to feign sickness. He accordingly goes to the hospital, to the astonishment of the doctor, who very likely hardly knows him by sight. Being asked what ails him, he probably says rheumatism; and after he has been kept under observation for a day or two he is discharged as having nothing the matter with him. He is not to be thus easily put off, however. He goes to hospital again and again; and the doctor knowing him to be a man of good character, and respected in the regiment, begins to think he must have some mysterious disease. He loses flesh rapidly, partly because his mind is ill at ease about his land, but principally because he deliberately half-starves himself. When out of hospital he is slovenly in dress and careless on parade; when in hospital he is a perfect nuisance to the doctor. Everyone gets tired of him; and the end of it is that he is invalided out of the service, and gains by trickery and malingering the pension that should have been his by the right of long and faithful service. Let us be just in the matter, and say plainly that Government forces sepoy to lie and cheat in this way, and the latter must not be blamed for the sins of the former. Nor let us rush hastily to the conclusion that malingering is confined to the Indian Army, and that it may be safely attributed to some trickery supposed innate in the native character. Sir William Napier, the illustrious historian of the Peninsular War, shows that under certain conditions British soldiers are more determined malingerers than their dusky comrades. Everyone knows how brief is the period that the British soldier of to-day has to serve with the colours, and that, at the end of that period, he passes, under certain conditions, into the reserve. But it is far different with his native comrade. His contract with Government is, practically speaking, for life. He can only get out of it, as we have seen, in a manner that not only degrades himself, but throws discredit on the Government he serves. And that Government is a great loser by its folly. Under the existing rules a sepoy pensioned is a sepoy lost to the State. Instead of forming able-bodied pensioners into a reserve they are allowed to draw their pensions in idleness and uselessness (so far as the State is concerned) for ten, twenty, and even thirty years. When there is a drain upon the Bombay Army we have to call upon Madras to lend us a few regiments for garrison duty, instead of calling out our own reserves. If forming reserves were a measure involving great practical difficulties, and necessitating the immediate expenditure of a vast sum of money, one can imagine the authorities shrinking from its introduction. But it is no such thing. The pension rates for sepoy at present are Rs. 4 a month if they are invalided before attaining thirty-two years' service; on the completion of thirty-two years with the colours they can claim seven rupees a month. What we would propose in the place of these rules, which are mere inducements to men to malingering, is that every able-bodied sepoy should on the completion of twenty years be drafted into a reserve for ten years on a pension of five rupees per mensem; sickly men and men unfit for the army should receive, as heretofore, a pension of four rupees a month, and their services dispensed with for good. When men had been ten years with the reserve they might be finally pensioned on six rupees a month, and no longer liable to be called upon to serve. We put forth this scheme in the merest outline, without the slightest pretension to completeness. We must have a reserve, and competent authorities can work out the details. If those authorities choose to persevere in a system of pensions which is unsatisfactory to the State, unsatisfactory to the pensioner, and burdensome to the taxpayer, they grievously fail in their duty to the interests committed to their charge.—Bombay Gazette.

THE SILENCE BEYOND THE PASSES.

WE note that, even as far as the Press Commissioner's communications are concerned, communication would appear to have altogether ceased between Cabul and India. On the surface, this may not mean much, and the optimists may even go so far as to say that for Cabul to cease from troubling is a gain rather than otherwise. But if the question is regarded somewhat more thoughtfully it will at once occur to the mind that this singular cessation of intelligence must be due to one of two things. If Abdur Rahman has realised, as Mr. Griffin declared he had realised, the necessity of being friendly with the Power that placed him on the throne, he would, beyond question, keep himself in steady and regular communication with the Viceroy. It would not be, for instance, that popular opinion at Cabul was so strongly set against India as to compel him, out of deference to the popular wishes, to abstain from acts of friendliness, for his Government must be held responsible for the conduct of the population at Cabul, and to make such a confession as that would be only another way of declaring that he himself was forced into a semi-hostile position, because of the undisguised hostility of those over whom he is supposed to rule. It must be admitted that the Government of India could by no means pass over such an admission by the Ameer. It could not accept the professions of the prince as compensating for the open and admitted enmity of the people, and it would have to stand prepared to act at any moment as the enmity of the Cabulis might compel it. We see, therefore, that whilst prudence and policy dictated to the Ameer an open and regular communication with India, he has, for some reason, avoided pursuing the very course which, it is evident, Mr. Griffin expected him to follow. We may, therefore, accept it as a fact that the personal feelings of Ameer Abdur Rahman towards the Government of India are not of that friendly description which the Government has been led to anticipate. We also see that he could not place his own shortcomings upon the pressure placed upon him by his subjects. We have, therefore, to go further to find out a reason for the really remarkable silence he has exhibited. It has been reported that the followers of Mahomed Jan flocked into Cabul. These men are pledged to Ayub Khan, or Musa Jan, and it is just possible that the position of the Ameer is similar to the position of Shere Ali just after the death of Dost Mahomed, and that the party of Abdur Rahman himself, and the party, we will say, of Ayub Khan, are gathering up their strength for a conflict; and, after the Afghan manner, taking stock of the strength to be brought into the field on either side. No great political event can take place in Afghanistan without a very large amount of what we may call introductory intrigue and preliminary treachery. Men will shift backward and forward many times before making their choice as to which side they will fight for. Soldiers will do the same, and this will go on until the shifting of men and chiefs has practically sifted out the antagonists, and also sifted out the districts which may support each side. When it is plain that Ghuzni represents one faction, and Cabul another; when Kohistan is on one side, and Logar on the other; when the men of Zurmat are arrayed against the men of Arghandeh—then the conflict will commence openly, and the parties come to blows. It may be, therefore, that at Cabul just now there is a sort of quiet underhand struggle, and a sifting out of parties, which may, at any moment, ripen into a repetition of that fatal civil war, which Sir John Lawrence had so often the opportunity of preventing, and which he just as often managed to perpetuate. But, then, if this be so, how is it that Abdur Rahman does not seek to strengthen his position by keeping the Government of India informed of his difficulties? He is quite able to comprehend that he has a claim of honour upon it, and if he has fallen into difficulties, and if he be threatened by the party which shut up General Roberts at Cabul, and General Primrose at Kandahar, it would seem that interest, policy, honour, friendship, and necessity all pointed in one direction, and that the direction by following which the Ameer would renew with the Government of India the alliance which Dost Mahomed found so profitable, and Shere Ali, at the end of the civil war, so useful. Against so many powerful reasons for keeping up a living connection with India, there can be only one reason of any active force to hold the Ameer back. But, then, that one reason is sufficient in itself to account for his conduct, and to even more than account for it. Our readers will remember, and it is important that they should remember these things, that Abdur Rahman deliberately twisted the meaning of Mr. Lepel Griffin's first letter to him in such a way as to convert it into an appeal to the pride and vanity of Afghans of all parties. They will also remember that he followed this up by an ostentatious coolness towards the English, that he would not attend Sir D. Stewart's durbar, would not enter the English camp, and would not allow the English officers to enter his own camp. He deferred to what may be called the more hostile feeling of the Afghans; in other words, he, from the outset, put himself forward as the exponent of the widest Afghan claims, and as the most effective head for Afghan purposes the Afghan State could secure. It is possible, and we think, indeed, very probable, that he has continued this policy, and that his coolness towards the Government of India is used as a proof to the Afghans of his thorough determination to win back the whole of the Afghan principality as it was under Dost Mahomed. This being so, his silence becomes a grave political matter, for, as he cannot stand without support, he can only withdraw himself from the countenance of the Government of India by seeking aid and counsel from the only other Power capable of rendering either one or the other.—Indian Daily News.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE BENGAL RENT BILL.—The Behar Landholders' Association held an influential meeting on Nov. at 5 Bannipore. Delegates from all districts were present, and the Maharaja of Durbhunga presided. The following resolutions were carried:—First, that the provisions of the draft rent law prepared by the members of the rent commission vitally affect the proprietary interests of zemindars as guaranteed to them by the permanent settlement. Second, that the provisions of the bill do not fall within the original scope of the amendment which had been proposed to be made in the law of landlord and tenant, nor do they fall well within the power reserved to the Governor General, at the time of the permanent settlement, to enact laws for the protection and welfare of dependent talukdars and ryots; that while the advantages offered by the bill to the ryots are substantial and new, the advantages offered to the landlords are nil; that by no means can one be said to be equivalent to the other; that the bill, in fact, proposes a redistribution of property between landlord and tenant without compensating landlords for what is taken away from the sum of their rights. Third, under the present circumstances of the country, when tenants are daily awakening to a consciousness of their rights, and zemindars do not look with disfavour on the assertion of such rights as are vested in them by the present law, when there are manifest signs all round that the condition of the peasantry is daily improving in Behar as in Bengal, the zemindars of Behar justly look with apprehension to an unsettlement of present laws, and with it the destruction of customary tenures which have prevailed for generations in Behar. They are also apprehensive that special provisions for Behar are calculated to affect seriously the interests of agriculture. Fourth, that holding these views, the meeting unanimously resolves on the adoption of a memorial by the association to the Lieutenant Governor, as they think the draft bill open to criticisms made in a note prepared by the committee of the association, showing how the provisions of the bill are detrimental alike to the interests of landlord and tenant. They unanimously resolve to adopt the said note as part of the memorial. Fifth, that a committee, with power to add to their number, be appointed for each district in Behar, for obtaining signatures to the memorial, which, when signed, should be sent to Government through the Behar Landholders' Association. Sixth, that the zemindars of Behar beg most respectfully to offer their hearty thanks to the president of the association, the Maharaja of Durbhunga.—Pioneer.

BREWERIES.—There are five breweries now working in the North Western Provinces, which during 1879 brewed something approaching in round numbers to half a million of gallons of beer and porter. This beer and porter has yielded no revenue to the Government, in fact the brewers themselves pay no fee for brewing the beer. Practically the whole of this liquor is consumed by Europeans, and as they are as a class able to pay a tax on luxury the local Government has before it a proposal to tax the beer and porter brewed in these provinces. The matter did on a previous occasion come up before Government, but that was when the industry was in its infancy, and when, therefore, some little protection was defensible. But these breweries have now passed out of that stage, and, as English beer pays a customs duty of one anna a gallon, prima facie there would seem no reason why beer brewed in the North West Provinces should not pay at least the same as an excise duty. It is not unlikely that we shall shortly hear of special legislation being applied for to carry out the orders of Government. Had this small gallon duty been collected last year some Rs.27,900 would have been added to our provincial excise funds, exclusive of license fees.—Indian Herald.

DESCRIPTIONS OF DESERTERS.—Deserters from the army, whether European or native, will in future find their chances of escape considerably curtailed. The Commander in Chief has just directed that telegraphic information of the desertion of any soldier or sepoy should at once be made by the commanding officers of the regiments to which the deserters belong to the police authorities on the various lines of railway. These reports should give full particulars necessary for identification of the deserter, and should be sent to the police officers at Lahore, Bombay, Howrah, Allahabad, Jubbulpore, Ghazeeabad, Toondla, and Jeypore.—Ibid.

NEW COMMANDERS OF BRIGADES.—Col. R. Blair, at present commanding the 3rd Native Infantry at Khilat, and Col. C. H. Palliser, C.B., commanding the 10th Bengal Lancers at Kohat, are to be appointed to the command of brigades in Bengal. Col. Blair entered the service in 1855 and was posted to the late 32nd M.N.I. May 7. His war services are as follow:—Sontha campaign, 1856; Mutiny, 1857-9, including Bundelkhand campaign, under Brigadier Wheeler (medal). Col. C. H. Palliser entered the army in June, 1847, and the record of his war services is still longer. It says:—“Was wounded in an engagement with Sheoranees on Derajat Frontier (Punjab) March 14, 1853; mentioned in despatch (medal); served Mutiny campaign of 1857-58; with advance column under Major Renaud from Allahabad towards Cawnpore (wounded July 2); commanded Irregular Cavalry in action of Futtehpore, July 12; with Barrow's Volunteer Cavalry (in command of right troop) in actions of Munglewar, Alumbagh, and first relief of Lucknow, Sept. 25 (wounded—horses shot); defence of Lucknow till second relief by Sir Colin Campbell; with Sir James Outram's Division at Alumbagh from November, 1857, to March, 1858, including actions of Gahalee, &c.; capture of Lucknow; with Hodson's Horse at reoccupation of Fyzabad; crossing of Goomtee at Sultanpore under Sir James Hope Grant; commanded 1st Regt. H.H. at Danodpore, and in repulse and pursuit of rebels at Khandoo Nuddee (dangerously wounded), Oct. 26, 1858; mentioned in despatches (medal and two clasps); brevet of major; a year's service for defence of Lucknow; commanded 10th Bengal Cavalry Lancers (2nd Hodson's Horse) in Abyssinian expedition; mentioned in despatches (medal); brevet of lieutenant colonel.—Englishman.

THE DERA DUN RAILWAY.—We hear from Masuri that, at a meeting of the provisional committee of the Dera Dun Railway, held there Nov. 1, and presided over, in the absence of Mr. Ross, the chairman, by Mr. H. Dear, it was announced that the total of the subscription list had reached Rs.2,66,000. As the total of subscriptions towards the Bareilly and Kumaon Railway, as announced at the last meeting of its promoters, is only Rs.2,09,000, it is difficult to see why the launching of the Dun Railway scheme should not also soon come off. In the prospectus of the former scheme we find the total net profit on the twenty-four lakhs required estimated at Rs.1,73,000, or 7 1/2 per cent. In the prospectus of the Dun scheme Rs.2,52,133 are given as the net profit on thirty-five lakhs, which also is 7 1/2 per cent., but the two estimates are made up very differently. The Kumaon promoters include in their income an annual subsidy of Rs.40,000 from Government. Were a similar sum added to the Dun Railway net receipts this would amount to Rs.2,92,133, and the rate of profit would be 8 3/4 per cent. Again, the working expenses of the Kumaon line are put at not exceeding Rs.1,00,000, which is 32 2/3 per cent. on the net income, less the Rs.40,000 subsidy. This is as low a rate as the East Indian Railway has yet attained to, and that is, we believe, the lowest in the world. The explanation is simple, being that “the cost of working the line bears a low percentage to the income owing to the necessarily high fares and rates sanctioned, the subsidies, and the low cost of fuel.” The working expenses of the Dun Railway, on the other hand, are taken at 60 per cent. of the gross receipts, excluding the Rs.40,000 subsidy, which has been as yet asked for only conditionally on there being a deficiency below 5 per cent. of net returns, but if they were taken at only 32·2 per cent. the remaining profit would be 12·18 per cent. on thirty-five lakhs.—Ibid.

THE INLAND TRADE OF BRITISH BURMA.—The total value of the inland trade of Burma for the year 1879-80 shows a falling off from that of the previous year of £198,334, the totals for the two years being, for 1878-79, £4,061,740, and for 1879-80, £3,863,406. The falling off in the trade is thus officially explained:—"The decrease in the imports and exports by the Irrawaddy was caused in the one case, mainly, by the diminished yield of grain and pulse in Upper Burma, where unusually high rises of the river destroyed the crops, and, in the other, by the bountiful rice harvests there, owing to which there was less demand than in previous seasons for supplies of grain from our territory. The unsatisfactory state of our relations with the Mandalay Government had also an injurious effect on trade. For a time, so great was the sense of insecurity and distrust that shipments to Mandalay all but entirely ceased. This feeling gradually subsided, and towards the close of the year an active trade sprang up. On the Sittang the imports fell off by one-third of the value of those in the previous year. The decrease occurs chiefly under the heads of 'cattle' and 'timber.' Prices for both in our territory were unremunerative. The value of timber was affected by the large importations of the previous year. At the same time there is little doubt that supplies are diminishing, owing to excessive exploitation of the forests in past years. The value of the export trade has gone steadily down for the past three years. No special remark is needed in regard to the Arakan land trade, which is carried on in the Kyoub-phyoo district. It is not very large, but seems to be increasing, and is probably little subject to disturbing influences. Various reasons are put forward for the decline in the Pegu land trade, such as the disturbed state of the county, the prevalence of smallpox, and the increased obstructiveness and dishonesty of the King's officials, who appear to have interfered actively with travellers. On the Tenasserim land routes there is a general increase in the value of goods imported, while, except in the case of Tavoy, exports have fallen away everywhere—notably in Salween. Attempts are made to account for the falling off, but no satisfactory explanation has been furnished. Cattle were brought in via Kaw-ka-rake from Siam to twice the value of the stock imported in 1878-79. The discovery of sapphire mines in Siam led to large importations of precious stones into the Tavoy district, in the general import trade of which, on the other hand, there was a decrease." The article of import which is, perhaps, of most interest to us in Calcutta is the well-known Burma pony. The number of these imported largely increased during the year, the shan dealers having brought down 1,954 ponies, valued at £11,003, as compared with 638 valued at £6,656 in the previous year. The average price paid for these at Rangoon is from ten to fifteen pounds, but they command a much higher price in Calcutta.—Ibid.

THE TEA CULTIVATION.—The Bengal Government has appointed a committee to consider the vexed question of the importation of labour for the tea cultivation in Assam. The committee consists of Mr. Mackenzie, Civil Service, president; Messrs Macaulay, Civil Service, Browne, Inglis, and Wilson, merchants, and Mr. Aitchison, tea planter, members; with Mr. Hare, secretary to the Assam Government, as secretary. The syndicate established in Calcutta some months ago for the purpose of introducing Indian teas to the Australian markets have received a highly favourable report from their agent at Melbourne. The first consignment of Assam and Darjiling teas fetched good prices, and hopes are entertained that a new and profitable outlet for the tea industry may be opened in the Australian colonies.—Times Telegram.

THE MIGRATION FROM SIMLA.—The Government offices, which were closed at Simla three weeks ago, were reopened at Calcutta on Monday last, and all the officials are now there except the President of the Council and the Foreign and Military Secretaries.—Ibid.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—At date of mail the disengaged tonnage in port stood at 25,000 tons. London via Canal: The market closes steady at £2 17s. 6d. to £3 for rice or wheat, £2 15s. for jute, £3 2s. 6d. for hides, £3 5s. to £3 10s. for tea, &c. For London via Cape: Rice or wheat at £2 3s. 9d. and £2 6s. 3d., linseed at £2 15s., jute at £2 12s. 6d., poppy at £3. For Liverpool via Suez Canal: Rice or wheat, £3 nominal; oils and measurement, £3 5s. to £3 10s. nominal. For Liverpool via Cape: Wheat, £2 10s.; oil, £3; linseed, £2 15s.; and jute, £2 10s. For Dundee via Suez Canal: There is no demand.—Englishman.

LARGE CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE PATRIOTIC FUND.—At the meeting on behalf of the Patriotic Fund held at Lahore, under the presidency of Sir R. Egerton, a letter was read from Sir Donald Stewart stating that donations to the amount of over Rs.3,22,000 have already been placed at the disposal of the Central Committee, and it was believed that subscriptions amounting to nearly a third of this sum had been raised independently in the Bombay Presidency. Sir R. Egerton said since that letter was sent he had received intimation from the rulers of the following native States of their desire to contribute the following sums:—H.H. the Maharaja of Puttiala, Rs.1,00,000; H.H. the Raja of Jhind, Rs.50,000; H.H. the Raja of Nubha, Rs.50,000. A further sum of ten thousand rupees was collected before the meeting separated.—Times of India.

A NEW C.S.I.—The dignity of a Companion of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India was conferred upon Maharaja Partab Sing, one of the numerous brothers and at the same time the nominal Prime Minister of the Maharaja of Jodhpur, or Marwar, by the political agent for the Western States of Rajputana on the evening of the 10th ult., in big durbar, convened in honour of the occasion, on the lawn of the Jodhpur Residency. He attended Sir Neville Chamberlain's mission from the late Viceroy, the rebuff administered to which, under orders issued by Shere Ali Khan at Ali Musjid, precipitated the first of our two recent Afghan wars.—Times of India.

THE LATE MAHARAJA OF VIZIANAGRAM.—On Nov. 3 there was a large gathering of European and native gentlemen in the Town-hall, Benares, to witness the unveiling of the portrait of the late Maharaja of Vizianagram, K.C.S.I.; H.H. the Maharaja of Benares was in the chair. Dr. Lazarus, the hon. secretary to the Vizianagram Memorial Fund, mentioned that the operations of that evening were the result of a public meeting held in the Town-hall on July 11, 1879, when it was resolved "that, with a view to perpetuate the memory of the deceased Maharaja, subscriptions be raised to cover the expense of a life-size portrait of his Highness to be placed in the Town-hall, Benares, which Town-hall was the gift of his Highness to the city." He further added that, in accordance with the above resolutions, subscriptions were invited, and resulted in the collection of $3,140-2-3, which sum was spent on the portrait. Other speeches followed, in which the excellent qualities of the late Maharaja were extolled; and, as a finale to the proceedings, the Maharaja of Benares pulled a string, the muslin covering the portrait fell away, and the portrait of his Highness the late Maharaja of Vizianagram, K.C.S.I., was disclosed. The portrait is life-size, and a very good representation of the defunct Prince. It is the work of Mr. William White of Calcutta. Among the subscribers were several native chiefs, Lord Napier of Magdala, the Duke of Buckingham, the Marquis of Ormonde, Sir Frederick Haines, and Sir Neville Chamberlain.—Times of India.

THE RANGOON COMMISSARIAT PROSECUTIONS.—The special court gave its decision in the Vya Poory Moodliar case on the 12th. This is the last of the commissariat prosecutions, and the judges differing in opinion the case has been referred to the High Court of Calcutta. Mr. Allen, additional recorder, resumes his post as Government Advocate.—Times of India.

COURTS-MARTIAL.—At a general court-martial held at Cawnpore, Oct. 17, Driver James Donnelly, O Battery 5th Brigade R.A., and Private W. Shaw, 2-6th, were convicted of insubordination with violence, and sentenced to 730 days imprisonment with hard labour. At Morar Driver W. Cheetham, C-C R.H.A., was convicted, on Oct. 23, of insubordination and violence, and sentenced to 672 days' imprisonment. At Lucknow, on Oct. 13, Private Leary, 33rd Regiment, was convicted of drunkenness and an assault on a colour sergeant, and was sentenced to five years' penal servitude.—Pioneer.

NAINI TAL.—The full report of the committee recommends numerous measures of precaution. Garden and cultivated terraces are to be absolutely prohibited, as also all building and excavations on the southern slope of the Sher-ka-dunda hill. No buildings, drains, or walls are to be constructed without official permission. The construction of walls, channels, and the other precautionary measures will, it is believed, be sufficient to save the station from further damage; but to ensure success they must be carried out promptly, carefully, and completely: and the committee would lay special stress on the necessity for commencing work at once, so that the more urgently needed portion may be completed by next rains. The cost of these works will be heavy, but they must either be carried out or the value of property in the settlement will be seriously depreciated. At present it is difficult to estimate the cost with accuracy, but it will be at least two lakhs of rupees. The municipality are quite unable to find this amount, and it will be necessary for them to apply to Government for assistance. The capital sunk in the station in buildings alone, exclusive of bazaars, is upwards of twenty-five lakhs, of which four lakhs are in Government property. The whole of this large sum will be depreciated, and much of it entirely lost, unless Government steps in to aid in saving the station from destruction. The committee do not feel called upon to discuss the form which the assistance from Government should take; but would suggest that the amount be lent by Government to the municipality at 4½ per cent.—Pioneer.

RANGOON NEWS.—The King of Burma has sent the second of his steamers down the river and no further tidings of disturbance have reached us. The thirty Burmese refugees in Rangoon itself, supported by the British Government, are subjects for local grievance, as they receive pensions ranging from 150 rupees to ten rupees a month each, charged of course to the province. The Limbia Prince receives 150 rupees per mensem, and some of the Burmese ladies Rs.50 to Rs.80 a month. Nyoun Yan, as you doubtless know, receives Rs.1,200 a month, and Nyoun Oke previous to his last exploit, was in receipt of the same sum.—Englishman.

MADRAS.

MYSOR.—Mr. Gordon, the Chief Commissioner of Mysor, has arrived in Calcutta with the object of discussing with the Viceroy various questions connected with the handing over the Government of that State to the Maharaja on his attaining his majority next March.—Times Telegram.

THE GOVERNOR.—The Duke of Buckingham and the Ladies Grenville were entertained at a farewell dinner on Monday week by the leading members of the Mahomedan community of Madras. Muzool Dowlah Bahadoor, son-in-law of the Prince of Arcot, was in the chair. The Duke, replying to the toast of his health, said he hoped soon to hear that the Mahomedans had qualified themselves for taking a large share in the administration of the country.—Times Telegram.

THE MADRAS FAIR.—The Madras fair is not to be dropped this year. Capt. J. H. Taylor, the master attendant, invites all gentlemen who are interested in making arrangements for a fair during the coming Christmas season to attend a meeting to be held at seven a.m. on Monday, the 15th inst., at the house of Mr. A. M. Saunders. We have no doubt that Capt. Taylor's invite will be largely responded to, as the feeling is very widely prevalent that it would be well to make the fair a regular institution; and the names of Capt. Taylor and Mr. Saunders are a sufficient guarantee that the next fair, if taken in hand by them, will be a great success.—Madras Mail.

CAMP OF EXERCISE.—It is rumoured that a camp of exercise will be held next month at Arconum, in which the Madras volunteers will take part.—Times of India.

THE LATE MR. J. C. WINSOM.—We regret to learn of the sudden death at Calicut, on the morning of the 8th inst., of Mr. J. C. Winsom, the deputy collector of Malabar. He was for some years in the Bank of Madras, and represented that institution in the capacity of agent at Cochín until he was offered a more remunerative appointment as agent at Mauritius of the Royal Bank of India. He proceeded to Port Louis and returned to India on the collapse of the Royal. Shortly afterwards he was admitted in 1869 into the Uncovenanted Civil Service, as deputy collector, and was posted to Coimbatore, whence he was transferred to Calicut in 1877.—Madras Mail.

ANOTHER SHARE MANIA.—Speculation in gold shares is raging in Madras, and prices are up fully 50 per cent. in some cases, and even more than that in others. Of course, sales are brisk, and the brokers are having a good time of it. But there is as yet no proof, so far as we are aware, that there is any real ground for believing that the "mines" must all prove extremely remunerative. However, those who have a little superfluous cash to spare, and are inclined for a little mild excitement, are probably wise to invest in the lottery. They may draw a blank, or if they retain their shares they may gain nothing, but they may obtain good returns if they be wise enough to sell while the "fever" is at its height. It is a good many years ago since Madras was bitten with a speculative mania, and now that one has broken out we do not see why it should not be in connection with gold shares just as well as with bank shares.—Ibid.

THE DEFENCE OF FORT SAINT GEORGE.—The vexed question of the armament of Fort Saint George is about to be solved. For a long time past it has attracted the attention of the highest military authorities, and many adverse opinions as to the capabilities of the fort standing a bombardment from the bay have been offered and accepted as just. A glance at the walls and bastions will clearly prove how little suited the fort is to undergo a siege from a fleet carrying guns of a calibre which the Great Powers are now employing for all purposes of naval warfare. The importance of a speedy decision of the question has been felt by the Government of India, and, in consequence, a committee was nominated to arrange for the better armament of the fort. The committee, after a long and careful consideration, have arrived at the conclusion that the fort, owing to the age of its walls and the many buildings situated therein, is incapable of carrying heavy guns on its sea face for the purposes of defence in case of an attack from the sea. It would appear from the report of the defence committee that a succession of batteries along the seaboard of Madras would be of great utility. A few batteries carrying guns of a calibre such as the two batteries now placed opposite the light house and the south of the promenade are calculated to effectively answer the guns of any fleet that may threaten the shores of Madras. Sir Neville Chamberlain quite concurs with the opinion of the committee, and the Government of Madras have been asked to state what guns are requisite. It will not therefore be long ere our fort is put into a thorough state of defence.—Madras Times.

LAND STATISTICS.—The percentage of agriculturists on the total population in this Presidency is 23.3. The average number of persons dependent on each male agriculturist above twelve years of age is 4.2. The average number of acres cultivated by each male agriculturist above twelve years of age is 4.5. The average payment to Government (including all charges for water) per acre of the revenue-paying area is Rs.1.4; the average incidence of local rates and cess is .2. The total amount of local rates and cesses paid in land throughout the Presidency is Rs.48,86,953. The assessment, including additional second crop assessment and water-tax on 2,999,312 acres of wet cultivation in this Presidency amounts to Rs.1,67,40,369, or an average of Rs.5-9-3 per acre. The assessment on 13,552,733 acres of land under dry cultivation is Rs.1,44,39,480, or an average of Rs.1-1 per acre. These figures exclude Malabar.—Ibid.

CINCHONA CULTIVATION.—Mr. J. Ferguson, deputy conservator in charge of the Nellumbore teak plantations, has, for the second time, been awarded the gold medal of the Scottish Arboricultural Society for the best essay of the year. In 1879 he received the gold medal for his essay on the teak forests of Southern India. This year his subject was cinchona cultivation, and his object is to show that, in the long run, it would be better to treat cinchona as a forest tree. The plantation to be thinned over by degrees, and the best trees allowed to grow to maturity rather than on the principle of orcharding at present pursued.—Times of India.

POLICE ADMINISTRATION IN COORG.—The Chief Commissioner's review of the annual report on the administration of police in Coorg for last year is as follows:—On comparing the crime reported during the year under review with that of the previous one, a decrease of seven cases will be seen, and the number of cases struck off is forty-six less than in the past year. In all eighty-five cases resulted in conviction, or 29 per cent. of cases reported, as against forty in the previous year. The decrease is nearly one-half; this result is not satisfactory at all, when it is considered that there were only a few cases for investigation. The superintendent reports that most of the prosecutions failed under the offence of housebreaking and theft, but this explanation is not satisfactory. These meagre results cannot but be attributed to the inefficiency of the police, who are for the most part ignorant jamma ryots. The total number of persons arrested was 443, or twelve more than last year. The number convicted was 177 as against 199, showing a decrease of 8 per cent. The results are very unfavourable, and are accounted for as usual by the police making hasty arrests in cases reported to them which were more of a civil than criminal nature. No action has been taken by the police in regard to bad characters. In a fluctuating population like that of Coorg it is difficult rigidly to carry out the provisions of chapter 38 of Criminal Procedure Code. Both the value of property stolen and recovered is less. The percentage of property recovered is 20.52 as against 72.28, or a decrease of 52 per cent. in the year under report. Five inspectors on Rs.30 per mensem were temporarily employed, and they were utilised in patrolling the roads in order to enforce the provisions of the new Coffee Stealing Prevention Act and check the growing offence of coffee stealing. The other details in the police remain much the same. The near approach of the rendition of Mysor to native rule has raised the question of the future administration of Coorg, and until that be settled it is inexpedient to make any radical changes in the constitution of its police or to take steps towards the organisation of a regular rural force. The contemplated changes in that direction have, therefore, not been set on foot during the past year.—Madras Times.

THE HARBOUR.—The Madras boatmen have memorialised the Madras Government for compensation for loss they are likely to sustain by the construction of the harbour. The harbour is already being frequently utilised by steam vessels.—Englishman.

THE CURRENCY DEPARTMENT.—From the administration report of the Currency Department of the Madras Government for the past year it appears that the note circulation of that Presidency was lower than in any one of the previous four years. The fact is accounted for evidently on just grounds by the great expansion of circulation which arose in past years from the distribution of the famine fund to the distressed districts, and we accordingly find that although a decrease for the year under review is noted, yet the circulation was higher than in any year previous to 1876. There need therefore, apparently, be no fear that the fact of a temporary and exceptional falling off is a warning that the limit of circulation of Government currency notes is being reached. Their normal circulation in the Madras Presidency is estimated at one and a-half crores, a circulation three and a-half times as large as in their first year of introduction. The profit realised by the department exceeded three lakhs, mainly derived, of course, from the interest on Government securities held by it. The expenses of the department came to Rs.44,836, of which sum Rs.11,292 represents the cost of note forms. Such are the main facts and figures disclosed by the report. Several interesting and instructive details are perhaps not less valuable. It appears that the department has suffered much from forgeries. It is feared that the whole of the notes of the series J—9, representing 40,000 notes, of a value of four lakhs of rupees, have been forged. It may be of value to many to learn that the whole of the forged notes are signed by Mr. Probyn, of the Department, whereas of the genuine notes only those from 25,001 to 43,000 of the series bear that gentleman's signature. As a further precaution, we are told that there is the absence of the figures in "water-mark" below the place where the signature is impressed on the note, also "that the water-mark and green medallions have been well imitated, but are not quite so distinct as those of the genuine note, and the printing in the body of the note is in a different style from that in the genuine note." It is remarked that more hundred rupee notes are used by the Madras public than notes of any other denomination. The encashment of "foreign" notes, it is pointed out, is steadily increasing. By "foreign" notes are meant those of Bengal and Bombay. The value of such notes cashed in Madras in the year under review amounted to over 121 lakhs, as against 117 lakhs in the previous year. Of these 83 lakhs were Bombay notes. There will naturally arise the reflection whether the continuance of "circles" in these days of the opening out of communications all over India is not becoming an obstructive precaution.—Ibid.

THE RAMPA REBELS.—Chedala Ramareddi, of Nedalur, has been captured in the Nizam's territory. For the capture of this rebel Government offered a reward of Rs.500, and the prize, we believe, falls to the lot of the Nizam's detectives, who have been on the qui vive ever since it became known that the rebels were making for His Highness's country. The above-named rebel leader was not captured alone, as one of his principal followers was also taken prisoner. As the 3rd Infantry, Hyderabad Contingent, has left Rajahmundry for Bolarun, a party of the 36th Regiment M.N.I had to replace them. This detachment had to be sent to Wudigudiem as a support to the police at Mulenagerri, as it was believed that Yezuri Juggiah is in the Rekapelle Taluk, where he could hardly effect his escape; the place was being well guarded by the police, and the reason why the detachment was sent was to prevent a rupture in case the inhabitants were disposed to befriend him. Veereya Dora appears to be one of the few who are still at large, but as he has been deserted by almost all his followers there is every prospect of his being speedily captured, as the muttadars round and about the hill tracks of Golconda are bent on following him up, tempted partly by the reward of Rs.1,000 that was sanctioned by Government six months ago for his capture. The sessions court in the Godavari District appears to have had its hands full of business in disposing of the cases connected with the insurrection in Mulcongiri, for we learn that ten prisoners who waged war against the Queen have been sentenced by the court to suffer the extreme penalty of the law, while thirty other prisoners whose crimes were not so grave were sentenced to transportation and different other terms of imprisonment according to the nature of their offences.—Madras Times.

THE MADRAS ARMY.—According to the last distribution of the Madras army issued by the Quartermaster General, Brigadier General H. H. O'Connell, there are sixty-seven officers on the Staff, of which number there are fifteen on the Army Headquarters Staff; seven officers are doing general duty. The British officers in the Artillery number 111. The Sappers and Miners are officered to the extent of twenty-four, while the two regiments of British cavalry, the 12th Lancers, and 14th Hussars, have forty officers between them. The officers of the British infantry, nine regiments of the line, number 215, all told. In the four regiments of native cavalry there are altogether thirty-five officers to 299 in foot regiments. The strength of the several branches of the service stood as follow on Sept. 30 last:—Royal Artillery, 2,555 non-commissioned officers and men, 1,311 horses; British Cavalry, 874 non-commissioned officers and men, 837 horses; British Infantry, 7,145 non-commissioned officers and men; Native Cavalry, 1,498 non-commissioned officers and men, 1,237 horses; Native Infantry, 27,665 non-commissioned officers and men; Sappers and Miners, 1,273 non-commissioned officers and men; total, 41,010 non-commissioned officers and men, and 3,379 horses.—Ibid.

MARINE ADMINISTRATION.—The report of the master attendant on the administration of the department for the year 1879-80 shows that the net port fund balance, which stood on March 31, 1879, at Rs.5,14,657, increased to Rs.6,03,565 on the corresponding date in 1880, while the charges, as compared with the preceding year, fell by Rs.15,189. Proposals are now before the Government of India for making port funds bear all but exceptional demands, and the balance of Rs.6,03,565 will be greatly reduced. Thirty-eight thousand six hundred and fifty six vessels entered the ports during the year, with a tonnage of 4,717,553, against 38,836 vessels and 4,410,083 tonnage in 1878-79. Although the number of vessels was less by 180 the tonnage increased by 3,07,470, chiefly under the head of "native vessels." The port dues amounted to Rs.1,94,708, and exceeded the amount realised in 1878-79 by Rs.2,535. British vessels paid Rs.1,59,439, foreign vessels Rs.10,988, and native vessels Rs.24,281 against Rs.1,51,323, Rs.10,866, and Rs.29,984 respectively in the preceding year. The number of vessels (2,143) which passed through the Pauben Channel during the year was larger by 525 than in 1878-79 (1,618). The Government dues from the pilotage were likewise larger by Rs.5,224. Bad weather was experienced in the months of May and November, 1879. In May the great damage was done to the shipping on the Western Coast. Fifty-six casualties occurred to vessels during 1879-80 against twenty-four in 1878-79. Forty-two vessels were stranded, six collided, four foundered, and four miscellaneous. Two courts of inquiry were held—one in the case of the British barque Pathay Allam, and the other in the case of the Peninsular and Oriental steamer Hindustan. The passenger traffic from Negapatam to Ceylon the Straits, Burma, &c., shows an increase both in arrivals and departures, compared with 1878-79, of 2,002 and 1,575 respectively. From Tuticorin 22,465 passengers proceeded to Ceylon and 36,140 returned. The number of officers (twenty-three) and subordinates (379) employed in the Marine Department was the same as in last year, and the charge was Rs.1,41,289 as against Rs.1,43,657.—Ibid.

BOMBAY.

DR. JACOBI.—Oriental scholars will be interested to learn that Dr. Hermann Jacobi, the well-known Sanscritist, is to succeed Dr. Buhler. He is, we believe, a native of Cologne. He studied Sanscrit and Comparative Philology at the Universities of Berlin and Bonn, taking his degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the latter. He then went for a year in London, to which he was attracted by the splendid collection of Sanscrit manuscripts in the India-office library; and, finally, to complete his education in the most practical manner, he started for India, and spent some time in travelling through Rajputana in the company of Dr. Buhler. On returning to Europe he settled down as private docent for Sanscrit at Bonn; and in 1876 he was appointed Professor Extraordinarius of Sanscrit and Comparative Philology in the Academy of Munster. Dr. Jacobi has, we hear, made the study of Jainism the chief object of his literary life, and he is coming to Western India with the express intention of devoting himself to investigations into the literature and history of the Jains. He is chiefly known in Jainism by his edition of the Kalpasutra of Bhadraban; his editions and translations of two celebrated Jainashttras in the "Indische Studien," Vol. xiv.; and he is now engaged in translating some Jain Sutras for Max Muller's Sacred Books of the East. Altogether the authorities are to be congratulated on the happy choice they have made, for Dr. Buhler's work of examining and collecting rare manuscripts will scarcely be entrusted to more experienced or more enthusiastic hands. But in addition to his speciality Dr. Jacobi is a good mathematical scholar and a naturalist.—Times of India.

DUTIES ON INDIAN SILVERWORK.—A correspondent writes on this topic as follows:—"I have often wondered why the Chambers of Commerce and other influential bodies do not press resolutely for one measure which could not but tend, in some degree, to counteract the depreciation of silver. I mean the removal of all duties and other restrictions on the manufacture and coinage of the metal. Of course this would not be a remedy, but it would be a slight palliative, one benefit of it being special to Englishmen in India and the other being more generally felt. There are many of us in this country who would like to throw a portion of our small savings into the form of beautiful native silver ware, and take it to England, either to give to friends or to adorn the homes for our old age. I can imagine no better investment of a few hundred rupees. But all men of small means are deterred by the cruel import duty which is exacted from them in England, as if the loss by exchange was not already a sufficiently heavy burden on a man's little hoard of hardly-saved money. I know of one old Indian who landed at Southampton with a few articles of Kutch work for his family, and, finding the duty charged was more than he could well afford, had the things broken up and passed as mere bullion. The duty has become glaringly indefensible since the exemption of English cotton wares from a corresponding impost in this country. What is sauce for the Manchester spinner is sauce for the Indian soni. But it is very likely that absolute free trade in silver would have far wider results. Owing to the spread of truer ideas of art there are now many people who would prefer a few bits of genuine silver in their houses to the staring shams of electro-plate if they could only get the former at prices at all within their reach. Then, again, any decrease in the price of electro-plate is sure to meet with a response in increased consumption by the comfortable classes generally. On Indian manufactures the effect would probably be far more marked. Their undeniable beauty, the efforts that are now being made to improve them and to call public attention to them, and the accessibility to home markets which modern communications secure, would, I am persuaded, create a large trade in these works if Government would only take away its repressive hand. I do not see why it should not reach such a bulk as appreciably to affect the price of the metal."—Bombay Gazette.

FACTORY REFORM.—The Bombay mill hands have forwarded to us a copy of a second petition to the Viceroy regarding their working hours. They have noticed that their former representations have received attention, but only in part, and that the proposed bill in its revised form does not discuss sufficiently matters of detail. Accordingly they submit the following four clauses for reconsideration by the Government:—Definition of children and adults; the former to comprise boys and girls from eight to fourteen years, and the latter upwards. Distinction between these two classes as regards hours of employment, by which children are to work for seven hours and adults for nine hours, including one hour's rest for meals and recreation. Necessity for sanitary precautions, as pointed out by Dr. Lumsdaine. Granting also to adults and children one day of rest during the week and holidays in the year, according to their respective religious beliefs.—Englishman.

The "Rohri Canal Division" is by an order in Council in future to be designated "Hyderabad Canal Division."

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR has accepted the office of a patron of the Bombay Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The Rev. Samuel Stead has assumed charge of his office as archdeacon and commissary from the Rev. F. L. Sharpin.

A REMARKABLE CAREER.—The death, at the advanced age of eighty-four, is announced of Mr. Nundram Sunderjee Naik, whose career appears to have been somewhat remarkable. He was born, a Puna paper tells us, "of humble parents, he was a bricklayer by profession, and, shortly after Puna was taken by the British, he took large contracts in making new roads and gutters, and carried out the works very satisfactorily. In this way he made an immense fortune, and was brought to public notice by Mr. Bell, the then collector and district magistrate. The late Mr. Nundram Naik was not a genius, but he was a most thoughtful man and most successful in all his works. He was remarkable for his kind and generous disposition, and his charity to the poor and needy was very great. His great work in the city of Puna was the restoration of the Toolsee Bagh Temple, at an enormous outlay, and since his death a considerable sum of money has been distributed in charity."

CUSTOMS ARRANGEMENTS.—The Gazette of India notifies that Mr. Arthur Travers Crawford, of the Bombay Civil Service, is deputed on special duty in connection with the customs arrangements which it is proposed to negotiate with certain native States in the Bombay Presidency. The Ultramar states that Mr. Crawford arrived at Goa on Nov. 6 to inquire into the robbery of a large quantity of salt from the English salt depot at Maina. Thirty-five persons, who are supposed to be implicated in the robbery, have been handed over to the judicial authorities. On Nov. 7 Mr. Crawford dined with the Governor General and a select company.

FREEMASONRY.—The Masonic Record of Western India publishes a list of subscriptions received on behalf of the Bombay Masonic Association for educating, clothing, and maintaining the children of indigent or deceased freemasons. Only Rs. 3,210 are said to be required to make up a sufficient sum with which to start work.—Ibid.

MOVEMENT OF TROOPS.—The 3rd Bengal N.I., under Colonel R. Blair, arrived in Kandahar on the 10th inst. and were quartered in the citadel. Details of H 1 R.A. and 5th, 8th, 9th, and 10th Bombay N.I. also marched in. The 2-15th Foot were to leave for India on Monday, November 8, and the 5th N.L.I. for Shorawak in relief of the 4th Bengal N.I. on the 10th.—Ibid.

THE BOMBAY SAPPERS.—It is pleasant to notice that the good service done by No. 2 Company of Bombay Sappers and Miners has been handsomely acknowledged in a divisional order by General Phayre. The company has been in Afghanistan for two years, and after doing hard work on the Jacobabad and Dadur road, in the Bolan Pass, and on the new railway, they fought with great gallantry at Maiwand and in the unlucky sortie of August 16. Lieut. Henn died nobly, defending the guns at Maiwand and the Sappers on both occasions fought with rare coolness and courage under command of Lieut. Jones, R.E. They are now returning to their Presidency, sadly reduced in number, but covered with honour.—Pioneer.

BARODA.—Mr. J. B. Lyall, financial commissioner in the Punjab, is talked of as likely to succeed Mr. P. S. Melvill, C.S.I., as resident at Baroda, when that officer leaves in March next. Mr. Lyall is a very popular man with natives, and in all respects would be likely to do well at Baroda.—Pioneer.

THE "SERAPIS."—The following is the list of officers whose names were not published in our last issue:—For England: Capt. and Mrs. J. F. Hornby and three children, 12th Lancers; Capt. J. Dawson, 2-8th Foot; Capt. and Mrs. W. M. Prendergast and child, 29th Foot; Lieut. H. Gillon, 2-13th Foot; Lieut. M. Walker, 2-6th Foot; 2nd Lieut. H. M. Owen; Capt. H. J. Jackson, 67th Foot; 2nd Lieut. W. L. Forbes, 2-7th Foot. For Aden: Major H. Latham, R.A.; Lieut. C. De Jersey, R.A.; Capt. the Hon. C. Rowley, R.A.; Lieut. F. H. Crompton, R.A.

THE PROSPECTS OF THE NORTH WEST PROVINCES

THE future prospects of the rabi crop in the North West Provinces now depend entirely upon the Christmas rains. If these are good and general, the cultivators, except in certain districts, may yet pull through; but if these fail, there must, undoubtedly, be widespread distress. With the view of preparing to meet this, if it should come upon us, the local Government is already expanding, in every possible way, the operations of the Provincial Public Works Department, and is pushing forward the construction of as many useful and desirable works as can be provided for on the basis of present sanctioned expenditure. For instance, instructions have been given, with the approval of the Lieutenant Governor, to push on as vigorously as possible all sanctioned masonry and earthwork on the various main and distributory channels of the Lower Ganges Canal. By this means the Government will hasten the completion of irrigation works protecting a large additional area of the North West Provinces, and afford employment to labourers seeking work, thus keeping the labouring classes in good heart. In Rae Bareilly, at the commissioner's request, Government has sanctioned the commencement of a relief work as soon as it may be found necessary; but this period has not been considered by the commissioner to have come yet. In the meantime the most anxious and careful thought is being given to the selection of the best and most useful works for relief should a failure of the cold weather rains render necessary their establishment elsewhere also.—Pioneer.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1880.

THE SITUATION AT KANDAHAR.

THE announcement that Shere Ali Khan, the late Wali of Kandahar, has determined to leave his city and to take up his future residence in India, shows that not much faith is reposed on the spot in the rumoured intention of the Indian Government to retain possession of the old Durani capital. The importance of this decision on the part of the man who must be considered the nominal ruler of Kandahar is made the clearer when the plain fact is recognised that his remaining on the spot constituted an impediment in the way of the early solution of the question. By his own act he is about to remove that obstacle, thus absolving the Indian authorities from the arrangements concluded in the spring of the present year. The problem has therefore been simplified by the elimination of one doubtful factor, but it would require a very sanguine nature to suppose that those who are sanctioning the complete abandonment of the Khyber will do anything but strenuously oppose a continual occupation of Kandahar. Unless the course of events should prove irresistibly strong they will not rest satisfied with anything short of the full repudiation of the policy recently pursued beyond the passes. We have this declaration in forcible language from the lips of the Viceroy, and an anonymous writer, under the initials "D. B.," places what is little more than a feeble echo of Lord Ripon's speech at the Lahore durbar in the form of a pamphlet before the English public. In both instances an appeal is made to the judgment of the late Lord Lawrence, who was certainly the most consistent opponent of every proposal to actively interfere in the affairs of Afghanistan, but who, if living now, would probably recommend great caution before the belief was encouraged among the Afghans and Pathans of the frontier that our retreat was produced by our necessities. And that such a belief must be encouraged and spread abroad by a precipitate abandonment of Kandahar we cannot imagine that anyone ventures to dispute. The writer of the pamphlet already mentioned reviews the whole question of Afghan policy, and, by the help of sundry assumptions, makes out a case which to his own mind at least is convincing that it would be folly to retain Kandahar, and that the only hope for the preservation of India is to revert to the lines of the policy of the late Lord Lawrence. One of these assumptions, which lie at the root of much of "D. B.'s" argument, is that Russia's possessions in Turkestan are an element of weakness to her. In this statement there is a strange perversion of fact. True it is that the Khanates are a burden to Russian finance, and that they bring no addition to her military strength, but on the other hand they represent a base for active operations in the direction of Afghanistan and of India that is of the very highest value. Indeed, it is because they can only be valuable for this reason that it is legitimate to most strongly suspect the intentions of the Russian Government. Had Russia thought only of what was likely to prove remunerative to her in the immediate future she would never have crossed such clearly marked frontier lines as the Kirghiz steppes and the Caspian Sea. Russia also shows no disposition to remain stationary. She has in hand an enterprise against the Turcomans, which, if successfully carried out, will add a large tract of barren and ostensibly useless territory to her domain, and already her word is practically the law on the banks of the Oxus. Russia has, apparently, resolved to continue her advance, and it must be in the direction of our frontier. She will do it at times by the slow process of the last few years, but when the occasion offers she will revert to the rapid strides of that period, when a few short campaigns saw the three great Khanates humbled and at her feet. It only remains for us to say for our part where the Empires are to meet. The question is one that cannot be shirked. Are we really content that it shall be on the Suleiman, and are the devotees of "masterly inactivity" so convinced of the virtues of that policy that they are content to subject it to the rude test of the sepoy meeting the Cossack and his Afghan allies at Jamrud or in the Sind desert, or on some of the lofty highways of Kashmir? We do not believe it. There are many differences of opinion among us, but there can be no question among military men that, when the Russians march on India, if they ever do, we shall have to assume the offensive, whether we go out to the encounter in good time years before they approach, or whether we do so precipitately and with little preparation the day before their arrival. On the subject of the retention of Kandahar this writer is particularly emphatic, and he devotes much of his space to the denunciation of the arguments put forward in favour of its permanent occupation. But when we consider the inaccuracies of his premises we are encouraged to believe that his conclusions may be equally false. It is a fact which cannot be disputed that the force at present in garrison at Kandahar does not exceed 10,000 men, of whom about one-third are Europeans, but "D. B." closes his eyes to this circumstance, and calmly assumes that Kandahar will require "the services of not less than 20,000 men, of whom we may assume 10,000 to be European troops." This assumption is made the still more extraordinary by the view taken on the following page, that, in face of a great danger from Russia and her Afghan allies, the native troops "would probably all be disarmed, as, on the whole, the best and simplest method of dealing with them." It is difficult to argue with a writer who makes such statements as these, but, of course, if these assumptions were correct, if one-sixth of the whole European force in India has to be set apart for duty at Kandahar, and if our native regiments have to be disarmed in face of a great danger, these would be valid reasons for objecting to the retention of this city. Those who argue in this way must surely have forgotten Nott's "beautiful regiments," and they can hardly have taken to heart the lesson of the feat of arms performed by Roberts's well-led army. When they assert that "ten thousand European soldiers" are required at Kandahar they appeal to some unknown authority, for were such a force concentrated at any one spot, as there now has been in Afghanistan, at any time, or in India for the matter of that, with the one exception of Lucknow, we imagine that the consequences would be of a kind to astonish those who are so loud in talking about the difficulties of campaigning in Afghanistan. It is hardly by such misrepresentations as these—and "D. B.'s" pamphlet bristles with them—that a good case is to be made out for the abandonment of Kandahar. The question may be left in the hands of the military authorities, and if an impartial decision is arrived at, without appealing to the prejudices created by political views and party warfare, and simply on the merits of the case, there can be little doubt as to which way it will be decided. When the evidence in our hands is considered sufficient there should also be no unnecessary delay in passing judgment and in carrying the decision, whatever it may be, into execution.

THE VICEROY'S TOUR.

THE Viceroy arrived at Bombay on the 27th ult. and spent the greater part of last week in that city. On Monday he held a review of about 1,300 troops, and the same evening attended a dinner given by the Governor and the Commander in Chief to the survivors of the 66th Regiment. His Excellency, addressing the men, told them that the great feat of arms performed by their comrades, who had died to the last man in the defence of the colours, would long live in the memory of Englishmen and of the world; but they must remember that to have been the comrades of those who died so gallantly threw a great responsibility of the regiment because they would have to maintain the fame thus won for them. He heartily wished them Godspeed, and was confident that if called upon they would know how to defend the colours which the Queen would soon entrust to them. Colonel Hogge having replied, the men gave three cheers for the Viceroy and the Commander in Chief, and a soldier called for a cheer for General Burrows, which was heartily given. During his stay in Bombay the Viceroy visited the various institutions and places of interest, and received and answered addresses of the several public bodies. The most important of the addresses was that of the Chamber of Commerce, which was devoted in a great part to a representation of the disadvantages arising from the break of the gauge on the Western Rajputana State Railway. Lord Ripon gave a guarded reply, promising a careful reconsideration of that and other points brought to his attention. Another important deputation, which, however, was received, not by the Viceroy, but by Mr. Gibbs, a member of the Council, had for its object to protest against the recent refusal of the Government to permit the establishment by a private company of a system of telephonic exchanges in the great cities of India. Mr. Gibbs, in answering this deputation, pointed out the necessity of maintaining the existing Government monopoly of telegraphs; but, in view of the fresh arguments adduced on the subject of the telephone exchange, he promised a reconsideration of the question. On Wednesday Lady Ripon and Lord de Grey arrived from England, and on Thursday the entire Viceregal party visited Puna, returning to Bombay the following day. Unfortunately, his Excellency got an attack of fever at Puna, which prevented his starting for Calcutta as arranged. But he was able to leave on the 5th. His Excellency met with an enthusiastic and cordial reception at Puna, and, in reply to an address presented to him upon the occasion of his recent visit to Puna, declared it to be the intention of the Government to base their educational policy upon the despatch of 1854, which he characterised as the charter of Indian education, adding that in dealing with this question due regard would be shown for the changed conditions due to the progress of the age. He further expressed the hope that more would be done for the education of the masses. Referring to the native States, his Excellency announced the intention of the Government to adhere to the proclamation issued on Nov. 1, 1858, by Lord Canning, proclaiming the Queen's supremacy throughout India, and the powers defined and granted under it would continue to be recognised. The Viceroy proceeded to point out that it was to the advantage, not only of the native princes, but also of Great Britain, that native States should continue to exist. His Excellency, in conclusion, affirmed that India wants peace and rest in order to devote herself to the improvement of her agriculture and commerce. The Indian papers contain columns of the full reports of the speeches delivered by H.E. Lord Ripon in reply to various loyal addresses presented by the municipalities, the native Christians of the Punjab, the Anjuman-i-Punjab, and the senate of the Punjab University College. Besides these H.E. addressed H.E. the Commander in Chief after the review and the assembled rajahs and chiefs at the durbar. Replying to the university college address, which was read by the registrar, Dr. Leitner, H.E. expressed his appreciation of the great liberality with which the princes and chiefs of the Punjab had come forward to promote the establishment of the university college, as he understood, with the firm expectation that it would grow into a perfect university. He expressed his conviction that it was desirable to promote the cultivation of Oriental languages and literature, and he did not see why Oriental languages and studies should not have a pre-eminence in Lahore just as a special English education had elsewhere. The Viceroy concluded his address to the Commander in Chief as follows:—"There is one other circumstance to which I should desire to advert on this occasion, and one which I at all events am deeply proud of. I have heard on all hands, especially from General Stewart, of the admirable discipline which has been maintained by the British army when occupying a foreign country. They have given during the term of occupation the greatest proof they can give of the true character of Englishmen, and I believe by that discipline, moderation, and justice towards the people of those countries in which they were stationed they have done as much for the fame, reputation, and honour of England, in a political point of view, as they have in a military by the victories they gained. It would be too long on this occasion to recount the acts of individual regiments, but I venture to say this, that a finer force of her Majesty's troops has seldom if ever been brought together upon the plains of India. That artillery whose name is known in all lands, whose motto shows they are ready to do their duty in every part of the world; those magnificent cavalry regiments which I have seen on this occasion; that splendid line of unbroken infantry—I venture to think, sir, you would not fear to lead against any army in the world. Sir Frederick Haines, I have on this occasion a duty of a singularly pleasing nature to perform. It is known to her Majesty that this review was about to take place to-day, and last night I received a telegram from the Secretary of State desiring me to inform the troops assembled here that her Majesty had great pleasure, in addition to the medal which has already been granted for the Afghan campaign, to attach to that decoration clasps for six different actions, Ali Musjid, the Peiwar Kotal, Charasiab, Cabul, Ahmed Kheyl, and Kandahar; and yet more, Sir, in accordance with your recommendation the grant of a special decoration to those who took part in the march of General Roberts's force to Kandahar in the form of a bronze star. I am confident you and the troops under your command will recognise this concession on the part of the Queen-Empress as another proof of her Majesty's regard and affection for the army which forms the foundations of her country's greatness and power; and as an incentive to deeds such as you and your troops have performed so loyally and well, and for which, in the name of her Majesty, I now thank you from the bottom of my heart."

The Durbar at Lahore followed the investiture of Generals Maude and Stewart with the insignia of G.C.B. and K.C.B. respectively. There was a very great assembly, among the brilliant crowd of chiefs and officers being the Rajas of Kashmir and Puttiala, the Nawab of Bhawalpore, the Rajas of Jheend, Nabha, Kapurthulla, and Mundia, the Nawab of Malaer Kotla, the Rajas of Fureedcote, Chumba, Suket, and Kulsia, the Nawabs. Laharoo and Dozana, besides about 600 chiefs and nobles, including the Afghan Sirdar. In the course of his address to the chiefs the Viceroy said:—"All that I have seen appears to me to indicate the steady growth of reciprocal relations of friendship and confidence between the chiefs and the Supreme Government, and to show forth the attachment and devotion of the chiefs to our Queen-Empress, and the complete trust which the Government can place in them for all the services which they are so well qualified to render. No better proof of this can be found than their readiness to aid in the late war and the excellent spirit shown by their sirdars and officers as well as by their troops. The local co-operation of the chiefs and the conduct of their contingents have, by the gracious permission of her Majesty, been recognised in various ways by decorations and titular distinctions. The Government of India are also fully prepared to mark by substantial and public tokens of approval the services of other sirdars and native gentlemen who have accompanied our troops and our officers, or have in other ways given signal marks of their ability and their devotion in the performance of the several duties assigned to them. Her Majesty the Queen-Empress has commanded me to convey to the chiefs of India her warm interest in their welfare, and not in their personal welfare alone, but in the success of their administration and in the well-being of the people of their States, for it is well known, and should be everywhere understood, that the British Government always entertains not only a desire for the honour and advantage of the chiefs, but also a deep solicitude for their subjects, and that we measure the greatness of a State and the degree of its prosperity not so much by the brilliancy of its Court or even by the power and perfection of its army, as by the happiness and contentment of the people of every class. It is my earnest hope that the chiefs now assembled around me will remember this, and that they will continue to administer their hereditary dominions, the possession of which is secured to them under her Majesty's Empire, with justice and moderation, be careful to retain the affection of their people, and even to introduce necessary reforms with moderation, for when disorders arise the British Government will judge that evils have crept in which require remedy. Maharajas, rajahs, chiefs, and gentlemen,—It has given me great pleasure to have this opportunity of addressing you in public durbar. I believe that no such durbar has been held in Lahore by the Viceroy since 1864, when Lord Lawrence spoke to the chiefs assembled around him in their own language. Unhappily, I am unable to follow his example in that respect. Neither can I present myself to you, as he did, as an old friend and trusted guide; but having enjoyed the friendship of that great man for many years, and being animated by sentiments of the heartiest admiration for him, it will be my constant endeavour, during my administration of Indian affairs, to walk in his footsteps and to apply his principles; and I know well that I could not give you here in the Punjab a better assurance than by this my declaration of my earnest desire to promote your prosperity and advance your welfare to the utmost."

HOME NEWS.

PROMOTIONS AND APPOINTMENTS.—Colonel C. H. Palliser, C.B., 10th Bengal Cavalry, and R. Blair, 3rd Bengal N.I., are, on the recommendation of General Sir F. Roberts, about to be appointed to the command of brigades of the Bengal army, in recognition of their recent service in Afghanistan. Lieut. and Adjutant S. Watson and Second Lieut. H. M. Twynham, 59th Regiment, have been brought specially to notice to receive the Victoria Cross in recognition of their distinguished gallantry lately in Afghanistan. Major General J. Ross, C.B., who has returned to England from service in Afghanistan, will not resume his brigade command in India; but it is intended to consider his claims in connection with an early vacancy among the divisional commanders in India. General Ross is to have conferred upon him the Second Class of the Order of the Bath in recognition of his recent services. Brigadier General H. T. Macpherson, V.C., C.B., has arranged to leave England in January and return to India to take up the command of the Allahabad Division of the Bengal Army, to which he has been appointed for five years, in recognition of his services in Afghanistan.

OBITUARY.—We have to announce the death of Mr. James Cosmo Melvill, formerly Assistant Under Secretary of State at the India-office, which took place on the 1st inst., at his residence at Folkestone, suddenly, although he had been in failing health for two years. Mr. Melvill was a son of the late Sir James Cosmo Melvill, K.C.B. He was born in 1821, entered the home service of the East India Company in 1837, and upon the transfer of the government from the Company in 1858 became the Assistant Under Secretary of State, which office he held until his retirement in 1872. Mr. Melvill married in 1844 the eldest daughter of the late Mr. Alfred Harcastle, of Hatcham House, Surrey.—The remains of Colonel John Henry Peile, Royal Artillery, who died suddenly in London on the 27th ult., were interred with full military honours at Woolwich on Friday afternoon. Lieutenant Colonel and Brevet Colonel John Henry Peile had recently returned home from India and was posted to the 3rd Brigade for duty at Woolwich. His commissions bear date as follows:—Second lieutenant, Jan. 19, 1849; first lieutenant, Nov. 11, 1851; captain, Feb. 23, 1856; major, July 5, 1872; lieutenant colonel, Jan. 16, 1875; and was promoted to brevet colonel in January last. The deceased officer served in the New Zealand war of 1864-6 in command of a field battery of artillery, and received the war medal.

MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS.—The Himalaya, Capt. Brent, left Portsmouth on Tuesday, with the wives and families of the 1st Dragoon Guards and the 1st Battalion of the Rifle Brigade, numbering 64 women and 85 children; 60 men of the 70th Foot; Capt. Westropp, Brigade Surgeon Muschamp, and few details, for transhipment to the Crocodile at Gibraltar for conveyance to India. She also took out about 150 naval supernumeraries, and will call in at Plymouth to embark a few Marines. Lord Edward Clinton, formerly in command of the 1st Battalion Rifle Brigade, who was recently compelled to retire in consequence of ill-health, visited the ship and personally attended to the comfort of the women and children belonging to his late battalion. The Himalaya will return to Portsmouth with the 2nd Battalion of the Rifle Brigade from the Rock. The Yumna is expected to arrive at Portsmouth on the 10th with the 1st Battalion of the 5th Foot, from Afghanistan, together with sundry invalids and time-expired men for Netley and Woolwich. The Serapis is due at Portsmouth on the 12th with the 1st Battalion 6th Foot, from Aden, for Warley; the 9th Battery, 8th Brigade, and the 2nd Battery, 9th Brigade, Royal Artillery, destinations unknown; and a few invalids and time-expired men. A Reuter's telegram from Gibraltar, dated Dec. 6, says:—"Her Majesty's troopship Serapis, from India, having called here to report the loss of two blades of her screw on the 3rd inst., proceeded homeward immediately."

Banks, 7th Dragoon Guards; the orphan son of General Devisme, 8th Hussars; Edith Maud, daughter of Capt. Kennedy, paymaster of the 1st Royals; and a soldier's child.

INDIAN APPEAL CASES.—On Saturday, before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the case of Dinendronath Sannyal and another v. Ram Coomar Ghose and others, was decided. This was an appeal from a decision of a divisional bench of the High Court at Calcutta (consisting of Justices Kemp and Ainslie) of March 16, 1877, reversing a judgment of the local tribunal at Rajshahye, in the Bengal Presidency. Mr. Leith, Q.C., and Mr. C. W. Arathoon were counsel for the appellants; Mr. Doyne and Mr. J. D. Mayne for the respondents. The litigation, of which this suit was a part, had continued for the last fifty-two years. The decree now under appeal was made in an execution suit in which the respondents obtained as against the appellants an order for mesne profits of certain of the property in dispute. The appellants resisted the execution of the decree on the grounds that it was barred by limitation, and, if not, that they were entitled to set off a cross decree which would have the effect of extinguishing the order sought to be enforced. The Indian courts concurred in holding that there was no bar of limitation, and the High Court decided against the appellants on the other point. Their lordships, at the conclusion of the arguments, which had lasted three sittings, intimated that they would humbly advise her Majesty to allow the appeal, with costs.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders were received on Wednesday, Dec. 1, at the Bank of England for Rs. 35,00,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, Rs. 32,19,000 to Bombay, Rs. 2,18,000; and to Madras, Rs. 63,000. Tenders on all Presidencies at Rs. 7 13-16d. received about 11 per cent.; above that price in full. Compared with the previous week this price showed an advance of 1-16d.

MADRAS RAILWAY COMPANY.—According to the half-yearly report to be presented at the meeting on the 13th inst. the receipts from all sources have fallen off to the extent of £19,271, and although the expenses were reduced by the sum of £10,538, the net profit falls short of that of the corresponding period of last year. This is owing to a diminution of the traffic both in coaching and goods, the former mainly caused by the considerable reduction in the movement of troops, and the latter principally by a falling off of the traffic in food grains.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

The 40th annual meeting of the shareholders of this company was held yesterday at the office, Leadenhall-street; Mr. W. Fane de Salis in the chair. The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said that it was gratifying to be able to report that the fleet continued in a high state of efficiency. As compared with the fleet of last year it showed an increase of 3,049 tons. When they met last year three ships were reported as building. One of those was nearly completed, and would soon be added to the fleet. Owing to the growing requirements of the Indian and Australian trade it had been deemed necessary to order four more ships, which would be large and constructed with all the most modern arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the passengers. The new ships would all be built of steel. The question of lighting the ships by electricity had been before the public and had engaged the attention of the directors. The matter had been carefully considered by members of their engineering staff, who had come to the conclusion that the interest of the company would be best consulted by deferring the matter for the present. Passing to the accounts, he said that the company had £816,000 invested in bills receivable, as well as in Government and high-class securities, showing that they had made ample provision for the payment of the ships as well as to meet other requirements. At the same time the debenture debt was disappearing. Six years ago the debentures amounted to £800,000, but on the 30th June they stood at £15,500; they now stood at only £6,500 and in March next they would disappear altogether. The receipts in behalf of passage money showed a considerable increase as compared with those of the past year. The mileage run had been greater, and as more coal had been consumed the expenses had increased, and at the same time the subsidy received from the Imperial and Australian Governments had diminished. Thus it arose that the surplus did not amount to a large sum. Out of that surplus the directors had deemed it necessary to take £33,000 to provide for the depreciation of the fleet. For some time past it had been the study of the board to write the fleet down to its proper value. Five years ago it stood at £25 per ton in the books, but now it would only stand at £17 8s. 2d. It was with regret that they had to take anything out of the profits to reduce the value of the ships, but when they recollected that owing to the requirements of the Suez Canal some of their ships had been rendered unfit for the service, and that they had also suffered from severe competition, it became incumbent upon them to see that their property stood at its right value in their books. This course had already had the approval of several large shareholders, and he had no doubt it would be approved by the meeting. The dividend for the year compared favourably with that of the previous year, standing at 5 per cent. against 4½ per cent. for the former period. Next year, under the influence of improved trade, he hoped to be able to present a better balance-sheet and a better dividend. Hitherto Galle had been amongst the unfortunate places at which the company's vessels called, but it was found to be difficult of access and unsheltered from the south west monsoons, and they intended to move their establishment to Colombo as soon as the harbour at that place was finished—a work which would soon be accomplished. The breakwater harbour at Madras was progressing towards completion, although not very rapidly. In conclusion, he paid a tribute of respect to the memory of the late Mr. T. S. Cowie, one of the directors.—The motion having been seconded by Mr. Thornton, was, after some discussion, adopted.—The usual routine business was then transacted, and the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

SIR A. HOBHOUSE ON INDIA.—On Dec. 1, at the meeting of the Dialectical Society, in the Langham-hall, Sir A. Hobhouse delivered the second of two addresses on India. There were several natives of India present. Sir A. Hobhouse said the important questions, What are we doing in India? and what ought we to be doing there? were questions which we ought to answer to ourselves. It was now admitted that it would be a most ignoble course for us to use India for the aggrandisement of England, and that we ought to aim at the welfare of India. There were two schools of opinion as to the way in which that welfare should be promoted. One would press changes from without, and the other would prefer the slower process of growth within. He was of opinion that difficulties and dangers would come rather from haste than delay in the pressing of English ideas. In suppressing suttee and infanticide, though we had saved many lives, we had not made them happy lives. Lord Cornwallis, one of the greatest of our governors, brought about unexpected and not desirable results by making the land-tax a fixed one, and changing the zemindar into a landlord in our sense of the term. We had given the country the benefits of peace and internal communication, and the supremacy of law over force, and of impersonal law over personal will. Christianity as a profession was making no substantial progress, but the missionaries were still doing useful work. There was no evidence to show that the bonds of caste were losing strength, and, if they were, we should have a formidable danger to contend with. The evil attending it was not to be compared with the good effected by it, and, under present circumstances, it appeared to solve problems which perplexed us in Europe. The poor were provided for; and there was extraordinary confidence between members of the banking community. It constantly happened that no securities were given, and no written accounts were kept, and yet there was no litigation. The most remarkable European influence in India was the spread of education, and we had nothing to fear from it if we governed India with wisdom. Having laid down the principles of government for India, we must leave their application to those on the spot. He deprecated interference with local government even in important departments, provided the main objects of our government were not being infringed. We ought to insist on having Indian taxation adjusted by those who could view the whole field of it, and not adjusted to benefit an interest in this country. India was and must be a burden, and it could not enrich us except at the expense of our demoralisation. The lust of dominion reacted fatally on those who indulged in it, and they who diminished the liberties of others were in danger of losing their own. A discussion followed, and in his reply Sir A. Hobhouse said the employment of natives would be an important means of reducing the cost of government in India, and he never knew a charge of corruption brought home to a native in a responsible position.

GENERAL SIR F. ROBERTS.

ROYAL ARTILLERY, WOOLWICH.—On Wednesday, Dec. 1, the gallant general met with a hearty reception from his comrades of the Royal Artillery. He was recognised and heartily cheered at a concert in the garrison theatre in the afternoon, and at night was the guest of the Royal Regiment. The commandant of the Woolwich district, General John Turner, Royal Artillery, presided, and amongst the many distinguished officers present were General Sir John Adye, surveyor general; General Ratcliffe, inspector general; General Sir F. Campbell, director of artillery; Generals Sir E. Warde, Sir D. Wood, Sir J. Brind, Gosling, Gardiner, Alexander, Thuillier, Sladen, Gordon, and Browne. General Roberts was accompanied by the following officers, recently in Afghanistan:—General Hills, Col. Chapman, Major Pretymann, Captain Pipon, Captain Eustace, and Captain Downing.—The Chairman, in proposing the toast of the evening, said he had been authorised to express the regret of the Duke of Cambridge that his engagements at Sandringham prevented his taking the chair and joining in the welcome offered to their gallant and distinguished comrade, General Sir Frederick Roberts, who, in coming among them, had, like a brave soldier, not forgotten those who served with him so well on the field, some of whom were with him now. The welcome of that night was attended by the hope that he might long continue to render services so valuable, and that if he returned to the country in which he had gained so much honour he would add yet more glory to the regiment whose motto is "Ubique."—General Roberts said it was with great pride that he found himself the honoured guest at the headquarters of the regiment in which he began his soldier career twenty-nine years ago. In that old mess house, so long associated with the history of the regiment, surrounded by so many of his brother officers, he felt at home, and he might say a few words without reserve respecting their especial branch of the service. The campaign in Afghanistan was remarkable for the fact that he, an artilleryman, held a high and responsible army command; but he was glad to say that he was not the only artillery officer in that position. He congratulated the regiment on so many of its representatives being employed on duties beyond the regiment, and on the verdict of the army and the country being in favour of their conduct. He hoped opportunities would be found in future for their successors to aspire to qualify themselves for high and responsible commands. In enumerating the officers of the corps who had distinguished themselves, he referred to Sir Michael Biddulph as one of the first to reach Kandahar and the Helmund; Major General Hills, who, after performing delicate and troublesome duties as Governor of Cabul, was selected to command a division in Afghanistan; Colonel Arbuthnot, whose appointment as deputy adjutant general of Royal Artillery had afforded much satisfaction, held an onerous and difficult position on the line of communication, and proved an able and efficient commander; Lieut. Colonel Chapman was senior officer of the Army Staff, under Sir Donald Stewart, during the march from Kandahar to Cabul, and accompanied him (General Roberts) in the same capacity from Cabul to Kandahar; and in Major Pretymann, as aide de camp, he had a valued friend, upon whose tact and judgment he could always rely. Amongst those who had achieved honour, more especially in connection with the regiment, he enumerated Major General Alexander Lindsay, Colonel Johnson, Colonel William Stirling, Captain Pipon, Lieut. Colonel Sydney Parry, Major Sir John Campbell, Captain Slade, and others, with a special tribute to the merits of each. In speaking of those whom they mourned as dead, he said that Major Blackwood and the whole of the officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of his battery, in the hour of defeat and under the most trying circumstances, bravely upheld the credit of the regiment. He testified not only to the bravery, but to the irreproachable behaviour, of all ranks throughout the campaign. Amongst those they mourned were Captain Kelso, and Lieut. MacLaine, so cruelly cut off in his promising career, Captain Shafto, and Quartermaster Sergeant Mansfield, of the Horse Artillery, who performed the duty of provost at Cabul, and was one of the steady, reliable non-commissioned officers who were the pride of the army. Altogether the regiment had well maintained the character which the gunners had earned in years past while fighting for their Sovereign and their country. He had spoken too long, for a soldier's speech should be short, and he would conclude by expressing his regard for the regiment, and in thanking General Turner and his brother officers for the gratifying welcome they had given him to Woolwich.

THE CITY CORPORATION.—At the meeting of the Court of Common Council on Thursday—the Lord Mayor presiding—Mr. Edward Hart, pursuant to notice, moved "That the freedom of this city, together with a sword of the value of 100 guineas, be presented to Major General Sir Frederick Sleight Roberts, V.C., G.C.B., in recognition of his gallant services in Afghanistan, where, supported by brave soldiers, he so well and nobly upheld the prestige and reputation of the British Army." He stated that Sir Frederick Roberts, on leaving Eton, entered the army in 1851, and served throughout the Indian mutiny, during which he was thrice wounded, and had his horse shot or sabred under him. He served with great distinction in the operations connected and concluding with the capture of Lucknow; and in recognition he received the thanks of the Governor General, a brevet majority, the war medal with three clasps, and the crowning distinction of the Victoria Cross. Sir Frederick also served with distinction in Abyssinia in 1867 and 1868, and was made a Companion of the Bath for his gallantry at Khodagmage. When following the retreating enemy, on Jan. 2, 1858, he saw in the distance two sepoys going away with the standard. General Roberts put spurs to his horse, overtook the sepoys, and after a determined fight brought back the standard. In 1878 Shere Ali received a Russian envoy and refused to receive an English mission, which led to an outbreak of hostilities after the ultimatum had been despatched to Shere Ali. On Nov. 28 General Roberts attacked the Peiwar Kotal; and the speaker then gave an outline of what that general had since done down to the march from Cabul, on which occasion the general marched 10,000 troops and camp followers a distance of 232 miles, with guns, baggage, &c., in fifteen days, under a burning Afghan sun, over parched and stony tracks, allowing one day after his arrival outside Kandahar to arrange his plans. The general, on Sept. 1, attacked Ayub Khan's army and completely defeated it, and this victory left the ground clear for a final settlement of England's relations with the whole of Afghanistan. General Roberts possessed the affection, esteem, and full confidence of all the officers and men serving with him. He was amongst the citizens now, and they had an opportunity of conferring the freedom of that city upon him and enrolling his name in the list of heroes and others whom it was their pride and pleasure to receive within its walls. (Cheers.) Alderman Sir W. A. Rose, in seconding the resolution, said that the march from Cabul to Kandahar would ever be a memorable and wonderful feat in the history of modern warfare, and the corporation, by availing themselves of that opportunity of expressing their recognition of the gallant general's services, wished by that mark also to testify their warm appreciation of the splendid manner in which he had been supported by the brave officers and soldiers under him. After a few words from Mr. Deputy M'George in support of the motion, it was put and carried amid cheers.

LAMPLOUGH'S EFFERVESCENT

PYRETIC SALINE.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators, also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates.

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For FLEETING CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,

H. LAMPLOUGH, Consulting Chemist, 113, HOLBORN, E.C.,

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Nov. 27; Madras and Allahabad, Nov. 25; Calcutta, Nov. 24.

THE reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending Nov. 16 state that general rain again fell in Madras; standing crops are doing well; prospects remain satisfactory. In Bombay there was slight rain, the autumn harvest is still being gathered, and the spring crops are in good condition. The want of rain is, however, felt in parts of the Deccan. There was no rain in Bengal during the week; the prospects of crops are on the whole very good; the sowing of the cold-weather crops is progressing favourably; the usual autumn fever is prevalent in many places, and is very severe in the Nuddea District. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh also there was no rain; notwithstanding strong efforts on the part of the cultivators to bring as large an area as possible under cultivation, the full rabi area will not be sown in the districts which have suffered from drought; where sown the crops have germinated well, except in Rae Bareilly, in which district the early sowings have been lost. The spring outturn will depend much on seasonable winter rain. A slight fall in prices has taken place, and in Rae Bareilly it is still possible to defer the opening of public relief works. In the Punjab the weather has again been clear; rain is now generally wanted for the spring crops; prospects are reported to be fairly favourable. In the Central Provinces, as in the previous week, Raipur and Sambalpur had slight rain; the outturn of the kharif crops is generally good, and the rabi sowings are progressing; here, too, the autumnal fever is prevalent in some districts. In Burma slight rain fell; crops have suffered somewhat in Arakan and Pegu from want of the latter rain, but are doing well generally. In Assam and the other provinces and States prospects remain satisfactory. Prospects throughout the empire are now generally good, except in some districts of the North Western Provinces and Oudh.

RAIN is still wanted in parts of the Punjab, North West Provinces, and Oudh, but the agricultural prospects generally are improved. It seems likely that distress may show itself, and Government aid will be required in Rae Bareilly as soon as the winter crops are sown, that is, about the end of the current month. At present labour is still in demand in that district, and much good has been done by the recent rain. The alarm is considerably allayed in the Cawnpore district. No relief works have yet been needed in Lucknow, but some help may be necessary later on.

THE health reports for the same week are as follow:—Bombay: Karachi, fever generally prevalent, and in parts of Hyderabad and Sind; fever decreasing in Ahmedabad. Bengal: Fever prevalent in many places, and considerable mortality in Nuddea reported; fever in Purueah abated. North West Provinces and Oudh: The general health is good; cholera has almost disappeared. Punjab: Fever prevalent in Rawul Pindi and Dera Ismail Khan; other reports good. Central Provinces: Fever prevalent in the Satpura districts, Chanda, and Balaghat. British Burma: Cholera continues prevalent in parts of Pegu, especially Prome; public health otherwise good. Assam: Healthy. Mysor and Coorg: Health good. Berar and Hyderabad: Agree in latter. Central India States: Health fair. Rajputana: Health good; fever less than usual in Sirohi.

THE several Kandahar telegrams are as follow:—

“Nothing has changed in the situation here since last week. All accounts from Herat agree in describing the confederation against Ayub Khan as being very formidable, but no open revolt had broken out at the date of the last advices. The late Wali leaves for India on the 16th, travelling as rapidly as possible, in order to reach Karachi in time to make preparations for his numerous family, which has already started, but goes down by regular stages. All is tranquil, as usual, in Kandahar. The influential men of the country, sirdars and others, have, without exception, placed their services at the disposal of the Resident, who is making arrangements for an administration of a more settled character than has hitherto been possible. The weather is fine and warm, and the health of the troops good, excepting the 11th Foot, which is still suffering. The 13th Hussars, under Sir Baker Russell, and the 14th Bengal Native Infantry, have arrived.”

“Heavy rains have fallen in Southern Afghanistan. With the termination of the long drought will probably disappear much of the hostility to the British occupation, as this was in no slight degree the result of enforced idleness and the prospect of distress and famine.”

THE following telegraphic items of news and opinions are worthy of quotation:—

“For the last two months there has been an almost entire cessation of news from Cabul. The Government, if, indeed, it gets any trustworthy information from that quarter, keeps it carefully to itself, and the public is left to depend upon occasional rumours coming round by way of Kandahar and upon bazaar gossip furnished to up country journals by native correspondents. One of these, writing to a Lahore paper, gives the following items:—‘Abdur Rahman married the daughter of Meer Atikullah Khan on Nov. 22, on which occasion the city was illuminated for three days and the sirdars were entertained at a feast. General Mahomed Khan is living in Cabul and has 2,500 men under his orders, but does not hold any office. The Ameer's favourite adviser is Asmullah Khan, Chief of Lughman.’ The Cabul road is said to be safe, except between Jellalabad and Lundikhana, where it is disturbed by Shinwarris. The final evacuation of the Khyber by the British troops only awaits the completion of the arrangements with the local tribes. It is believed that a subsidy will be paid to them, in return for which they will be required to hold the pass in our interests, to guard the road, to give warning of any hostile movements, and to undertake not to build any forts. Whether this arrangement will work well time will show. At present the great majority of the Anglo-Indian public is inclined to look upon the action of the Government in thus again trusting to the faithless Khyberis as one more instance of the triumph of hope over experience. It is believed that the majority of the Supreme Council have advised against the abandonment of Kandahar. Whether this be so or not, it seems to be beyond doubt that the Home Government have determined to withdraw from that place; but, in view of the uncertain attitude of Ayub and the disturbed state of affairs in Central Asia, it is not likely that the evacuation will take place for some time. We do not now hear so many protests against leaving Southern Afghanistan to its fate as we did some months ago, but the general feeling of people in India on that subject has undergone no change, and the conviction is still as deep and widespread as ever that Kandahar should be held at all hazards.”

THE most recent telegrams from Allahabad report a decided improvement in the health of Lord Ripon, although since our last issue his Excellency has been seriously ill from fever, which, the Times correspondent states, is believed to have originated from a chill caught while picnicking at the Elephants' Caves.

H.E. THE VICEROY has contributed Rs.500 to the Mayo Hospital as a mark of his grateful appreciation of the reception he met with in Lahore, and which he considers will be best shown in supporting an institution which does so much to alleviate suffering amongst the inhabitants of the city.

THE Marquis of Hartington, Secretary of State for India, has appointed Mr. Bertram Wodehouse Currie to be a member of the Council of India in the room of the late Sir William L. Merewether, K.C.S.I., C.B.

It is announced that the Star to be given to General Roberts's march will be made from the guns captured at the battle of Kandahar, and will be attached to the Kandahar Clasp. Some of the guns have been ordered to be sent to Calcutta for the purpose. The Kandahar Clasp will be confined to the troops actually engaged in the action of Sept. 1. The claim to the Star made on behalf of his division by General Phayre has been rejected. It will be given only to the troops who marched with General Roberts from Cabul. The Cabul Clasp will be confined to the troops actually engaged in operations at and near that place between the 10th and the 23rd of December last, including Gough's column, which joined General Roberts on the 24th.

AN India-office Gazette, dated Dec. 9, announces that the Queen has been graciously pleased to nominate and appoint Sirdar Dewa Singh, Prime Minister of his Highness the Maharaja of Patiala, to be a Knight Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India. Bakshi Ganda Singh, of the same State, has been made a C.S.I. Diwan Ramjas, of Kapurthalla, gets the C.S.I. also; and Sirdar Nabi Baksh, of Kapurthalla, the Diwan Bishen Singh, of Nabha, each a C.I.E.

GENERAL MACGREGOR having brought the expedition against the Murrees to a close, proceeds on leave to England immediately.

MR. DONALD MACNABB has been offered, and has accepted, Sir Robert Sandeman's appointment as Governor General's agent in Beluchistan when the latter goes on furlough.

GENERAL SIR DONALD STEWART inspected the Government Leather Factory at Cawnpore on the 19th, perhaps the most successful example of State effort in an industrial enterprise in existence. On the same day a committee of transport officers, consisting of General Sir Michael Kennedy, Major Hayter, and Captain Collen, of the Military Department, assembled there, chiefly to discuss the subject of the pack-saddle of the future with Colonel Stewart, we believe.

THERE is news from Gilgit to the effect that the insurgents have given up the idea of attacking Major Bidulph. The reinforcements sent by the Maharaja of Cashmere, under Col. Tanner, will, however, push on. The revolt is said to have been instigated by the Khan of Badakshan.

THE Maharanee of Cashmere is dead. She seems to have been greatly beloved by the people, and her death is said to have created a profound sensation in Cashmere.

THE Indian Press, with two or three exceptions, continues to agitate for the retention of the Press Commissionership. At a meeting recently held in Lahore by the editors of five native journals a unanimous protest against the threatened abolition of the office was adopted, and some improvements in its working were suggested.

IN view doubtless of the coming distress in Upper India, the Lieutenant Governor of the North Western Provinces and Oudh has issued a notification that the execution of all decrees for the recovery of money, in cases in which a civil court has ordered any ancestral land or interest in such land to be sold, shall be transferred to the collector.

IT has been ruled by the Government of India that the Government are not bound to give a British officer a passage anywhere except to England, and such officers proceeding home on medical certificate during the trooping season must go by troopship. If they wish to take leave to the colonies they must make their own arrangements.

IT is suggested that some independent representation should be made to the Government on the subject of the twelve or thirteen lakhs of prize money awaiting decision before it is absorbed in the war accounts now in course of preparation.

AT the instance of the Secretary of State for India the several local Governments have been requested to give their attention to the existing system of lading and ventilating grain vessels.

THE subscriptions to the Bombay Military Relief Fund now amount to upwards of Rs.1,67,000.

THE only article of Indian production which now pays export duty is rice, and the duty thereon realised for the year ending March 31 last was fifty-nine lakhs.

TAKING the population of British India at 190,862,587, we are told that 98,055,351 are males and 92,580,886 females. Of boys under twelve there are 35,787,564, and of girls under twelve years 31,182,200. The number of females to 100 males is 94.42, the number of children to 100 adults is 54.36, and the number of girls to 100 boys is 87.13. Throughout the whole of India 2,410,630 males are engaged in Government service or professions, 4,136,430 in domestic occupations, 393,055 in agriculture, 3,425,538 in commerce, 8,749,270 in industrial occupations, and 8,137,082 on labour.

THE following articles are exempted from the duties to which they are liable under the Indian Tariff Act, on the ground that they are for the most part re-exported:—Gum arabic, gum benjamin, gum olibanum, or frankincense, mother-o'-pearl, and tortoise-shell.

THE Indian salt revenue for the first six months of the current financial year has amounted to Rs.3,36,17,100, as compared with Rs.3,18,35,000 during the corresponding period last year.

THE Ceylon Observer reports that the burst of the north east monsoon is over at Colombo, nearly ten inches of rain having fallen in the fortnight ending Nov. 16, accompanied by thunder and lightning.

THE civil and criminal work of the Ceylon Supreme Court having greatly increased during recent years the Secretary of State for the Colonies has sanctioned a proposal that a fourth judge should be appointed.

FROM the returns of receipts and expenses of Indian railways for the week ending October 16 it appears that a total increase of Rs.26,31,332 in net receipts is reported on the current year's work. This no doubt is mainly due to the enormous traffic upon the northern and western lines consequent upon the war in Afghanistan. Thus the Sind, Punjab, and Delhi receipts have, as compared with last year, increased by more than 16½ lakhs, the Punjab Northern by 10 lakhs, and the Indus Valley and Kandahar by 31 lakhs—the last a very great stride indeed. The East Indian and Great Indian Peninsula show a serious falling off in the net receipts; the decrease in the former case is 15½ lakhs, in the latter nearly twelve. Among the minor lines it is satisfactory to notice that the Rangoon and Irrawaddy Railway has increased its receipts by more than 3 lakhs; and the Dhond and Manmad line by Rs.1,76,809.

THE Rohilla, the first coolie ship of the season, arrived at Demerara on Nov. 6 with a full complement of Indian immigrants.

IT is now officially announced that an officer appointed to any office, whether on joining the public service or on substantive promotion, shall for journeys by rail draw the following allowances:—"In lieu of a mileage of three annas, double first-class fare; of one-half anna, double second-class fare."

WE regret that we have not space in our columns for a report of the interesting lecture delivered yesterday before the East India Association by Lieut. Colonel Browne, R.E., C.S.I., on the "Retention of Kandahar and the Defence of the North West Frontier." His experience in Southern Afghanistan gave great interest to the occasion.

DURING the week ended 13th ult. there were 336 deaths in Calcutta, the death-rate being 40.8 per 1,000 per annum. During the same week in Madras there were 267 deaths, the death-rate being 34.9 per 1,000 per annum. In the week ending the 16th the deaths in Bombay numbered 381; the death-rate was 28.00 per 1,000 per annum.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—Colonel A. G. Daubeny; Lieut. W. De Vine; Mr. J. Hainsworth, late of the Bombay Marine.

THE LATE MR. COSMO MELVILL.

ONE of a family the members of which have for generations occupied conspicuous positions in the various branches of the Indian service, whether Civil, Military, Judicial, or Scholastic, and who himself held high office in the Home Department, has just passed away. The late Assistant Under Secretary of State for India, Mr. James Cosmo Melvill, died on the 1st of the present month. He was the second son of Sir James C. Melvill, K.C.B., who for many years was secretary to the Court of Directors of the East India Company and exercised an influence over Indian affairs which, while unobtrusive and loyal, was as large as the interest was great and the judgment sound which directed it. More than a century ago the grandfather of Mr. Melvill was fighting in the war against Hyder Ali. On his return from India in shattered health, the effects of wounds and imprisonment, after the defeat of Col. Baillie's force in which he served, Capt. Melvill, as he then was, was appointed Governor of Pendennis Castle, in Cornwall. Mr. Melvill, whose death we now have to record, entered the home service of the East India Company in 1837, and, after holding positions of confidence and trust, became deputy secretary to the Court of Directors. On the transfer to the Crown of the direct administration of the Government of India he was appointed Assistant Under Secretary of State, which office he held till 1872, when he retired after a service of thirty-five years spent in the successful and conscientious discharge of official duties. Mr. Melvill married the daughter of the late Mr. Alfred Hardcastle, of Hatcham House, Surrey, and sister of Mr. Edward Hardcastle, late member for S.E. Lancashire. She survives him with two sons and four daughters.

A RECOGNITION OF VALOUR.

LORD RIPON has been paying a visit to the Khan of Khelat at Jacobabad, and, as he was returning, he had his attention attracted to E-B R.H.A., the battery which so greatly distinguished itself at Maiwand. His Excellency immediately ordered his carriage to be stopped, and, when the salute was over, addressed them in the following words:—"Major Tillard: As I pass this battery I cannot resist the impulse which prompts me to address a few words to you and your officers and men in order to express my deep sense of the gallant services of the battery at the battle of Maiwand, when, in the hour of difficulty and danger, they firmly upheld the reputation of the distinguished corps to which they belong, and when, as I may say without exaggeration, they even wreathed fresh laurels round the guns of the Royal Artillery. It is not alone in the hour of success and in the triumph of victory that the qualities of true soldiers are displayed. They are called forth no less when the tide of battle turns against them in the stubborn resistance and the perilous retreat. Such occasions afford special opportunities for the display, not only of that valour and discipline which are common to all British troops, but also of the noble qualities of pity and self sacrifice, and you, officers and men, may be proud to recollect in after days how many of the survivors of the 27th July owe their lives to your exertions. Sir, I rejoice to feel that the honour of her Majesty's arms will ever be safe, in weal and woe, in the hands of this battery, and I esteem myself very fortunate to have had this opportunity of seeing them."—Times of India.

REWARDS FOR THE BATTLE OF KANDAHAR.

A NOTIFICATION in the Gazette of India announces that the Governor General in Council is pleased to promote Subadar Dewar Sing, 23rd Bengal N.I. (Pioneers), from the 3rd to the 2nd class of the Order of Merit for conspicuous gallantry in action near Kandahar on September 1, 1880, on which occasion he led the way in a charge on one of the enemy's sangas, which he was the first to enter and in which two guns were captured. Another notification states that the undermentioned native officers and men have been admitted to the 3rd class of the same Order for conspicuous gallantry in action near Kandahar on September 1:—3rd Punjab Cavalry.—Duffadar Burkut Ally.—In charging during the pursuit of the enemy three Ghazis, armed with rifles and fixed bayonets, who were attacking Lance Duffadar Maiboob Ally Khan of the same regiment, killing one of them and saving the lance duffadar's life. 23rd Bengal Native Infantry (Pioneers).—Sepoy Chatar Sing.—In leaping across a wet ditch in the face of some forty of the enemy and bayoneting one of them. Sepoy Gunda Sing.—In bayoneting two of the enemy in a charge on one of their sangas, in which he was particularly forward, and saving the life of Subadar Dewa Sing, whom these men had attacked. 24th Bengal Native Infantry.—Naik Dhurm Sing and Naik Soobah Sing.—During the advance on the enemy's position, two of the mules carrying the reserve ammunition having been shot down, these non-commissioned officers, with great coolness, under a heavy fire of artillery and musketry, unloaded the mules carrying the entrenching tools, transferred the ammunition to them, and distributed the entrenching tools on other mules. Sepoy Maroof Shah.—In descending from a dandi in which, being wounded, he was being conveyed from the field, and killing two out of four Ghazis who had rushed on him and the kahars who were carrying him. 2nd Goorkha Regiment.—Naik Gopal Borah.—In leading the way during the advance against the gardens and orchards held by the enemy, and setting a most praiseworthy example to the men. Rifleman Mungal Joysee.—In attacking, with two other men of the regiment, a number of Ghazis, who had posted themselves in a courtyard in the village of Sahibdad, killing some and driving the others out, himself receiving a severe wound in the conflict. Rifleman Wuzer Sing Nagarkoti.—In attacking, with the aid of two other men of the regiment, a number of Ghazis, who had taken up a position in a courtyard in the village of Sahibdad, killing some and driving the rest out, and himself receiving two wounds in the encounter. Rifleman Inderbeer Lama.—In leading the way in a charge on the Afghan position, on which occasion he was the first to reach one of the enemy's guns, which was captured; also in singly attacking and bayoneting two Ghazis, who had posted themselves behind a rock. Rifleman Moneyram Lohar.—In springing forward and bayoneting a Ghazi who had suddenly assailed and was on the point of cutting down Subadar Moteeram Thappa, of the same regiment, thereby saving the subadar's life. Rifleman Ticcaram Kwas.—In leading the way during the advance against the gardens and orchard held by the enemy, and setting an excellent example to his comrades. Rifleman Bisram Thappa.—In singly attacking a number of Ghazis posted in a courtyard in the village of Sahibdad, on which occasion he received a very severe wound. Rifleman Mukkeraah Rana.—In attacking, with two other men of the regiment, a number of Ghazis posted in a courtyard in the village of Sahibdad, some of whom were killed and the rest driven out—he himself receiving a wound in the encounter. 2nd Sikh Infantry.—Subadar Major Gurbaj Sing.—In gallantly leading and encouraging the men during the advance on the enemy's position, and charging a band of Ghazis under a hot fire. Jemadar Ala Sing.—In leading a charge on a band of Ghazis who had made a stand, cutting down one of them and showing a splendid example to the men. Naik Davie Sing.—In leading the way in a charge on a strong band of Ghazis. Sepoy Jai Sing.—In singly attacking several Ghazis and killing two of them, himself receiving a severe wound in the encounter. Sepoy Pertab Sing and Sepoy Hira Sing.—These men exhibited great coolness and intrepidity under a very hot fire from the enemy. They were both severely wounded while prominently in front during the advance on the Afghan position. Sepoy Hakim.—In joining Naik Davie Sing in a charge on a strong band of Ghazis, one of whom he killed.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

NORSE MYTHOLOGY.*

NOTWITHSTANDING the works which have been published on the subject, the editor of "Asgard and the Gods" has a fair right to allege that a complete and popular English account of the religious beliefs and superstitious customs of the old Norsemen suited to our younger readers has hitherto been left unwritten. To bring within the juvenile comprehension the myth and its meaning, without making the "divinities of the old religion" too like the personages of fairy tales, is a very difficult matter. And, in truth, it is easy to overload the explanations and references to kindred myths and mythical beings, whether divine or heroic. We think that the latter fault has rather pervaded the pages of the handsome and elaborate work before us. At the same time, we are bound to thank the editor and the adapter of this popularised form of Dr. Wagner's original for producing a Christmas book which, with all the charm of fairy tales and all the attraction of adventures, will instruct the young readers in these early religions of our forefathers of "earth's first blood." The introduction gives an excellent and concise account of the "great drama as told in the Eddas, which describes to us the creation, prime, fall, destruction, and restoration of the world and the gods." The myths are subsequently treated and traced to their origin in the early home of the Aryan races. The introduction of some poetry, such as a very poor version of the "Lorelei," makes us wonder that the juvenile readers have not been given the benefit of Gray's spirited "Descent of Odin," or Kingsley's runic poem on the origin of the "Long Beards." There are numerous illustrations, which, as might have been expected, fail to add much to the ideal of the gods and heroes described in the text, but they are quite as passable as most of the woodcuts that assist the young students to comprehend the meaning of hand-books on any subject. The connection between the Norse legends and our later fairy tales will become strikingly evident to the boy who regards attentively Skrymir attacked by Thor (p. 132), and thinks involuntarily of Jack the Giant Killer, and Gulliver in Brobdingnag. Praise is due to the editor for the addition of an index, and the whole work, if not defying competition, at present, at all events, has no rival in its own sphere as the youngest prose Edda.

HENRY MARTYN.*

THAT the earnest and devoted missionary whose brief career is succinctly sketched in this little work deserves a place among men worth remembering, no one will deny. That singular intensity of religious enthusiasm which has in so many ways manifested itself in the Cornish, as well as the kindred Welsh natures, found a perfect expression in the young native of Truro. In his case, as in that of Kirke White, the "sword outwore the sheath," and it is with mingled feelings of admiration for invincible bravery which fought against all opposing forces, social, intellectual, and physical, and of regret that there was no sufficiently strong influence to guide and husband the force which accomplished so little, that we read the sketch of the life and labours of Henry Martyn. This sketch contains much of his own self interpretation, and that is supplemented by narrative in the esoteric style affected by the ultra-evangelistic school. But that cannot veil the catholic heroism of one who "died daily" in his work till the sad lonely end came.

THE "STATESMAN".*

WE have called down the wrath of the editor of this pretentious periodical by objecting to the unnecessary acrimony with which he prefers to treat questions of vital economy. He thinks he does well to be angry, and to fling broadcast accusations against high officials. We have no objection, remembering Lord Derby's anecdote of the Knowsley collier. We are heartily able to agree with him in some views, e.g., as to the land question in Bengal, at least on the general issues, and the letter to Sir Louis Mallet deserves to be read and carefully perpended. But the theory boldly argued that India must be governed by England, not by Anglo-Indians, is suggested as rather utopian by the phrase, "the silly optimism and blind credulity of public home opinion in all matters relating to our Indian Empire." However, the Statesman is ready to instruct the public not only about India, but Ireland and Zululand also. It is rather out of our record, but we cannot help noting that the notions advanced about Ireland are as devoid of knowledge and experience as the views about India, exacerbated though they be, are full of both.

OFFICIAL PAPERS.*

THE fifth part of this useful publication contains the cream of more than fifty blue books. Among them is a précis of three pages condensing the correspondence relating to the estimates for the Afghan War; besides this, Indian readers will find the statement of the trade of British India with British possessions and foreign countries between 1874-75 and 1878-79. Ninety-four pages are made to yield their digested knowledge in less than five.

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—The question of the day appears to be, How should India be governed? Should increased powers be conferred on the Secretary of State in Westminster? Should he be made permanently dictator for India independent of all changes in the Cabinet? Have any of the Secretaries of India been qualified to exercise such powers? Again, should India be governed by a secret coterie of secretaries and heads of departments sitting at Simla far away from the influence of public opinion? Has any good government been obtained from Simla? Once more, should the governors of provinces be invested with full powers? Consult our 190 millions of subjects on this point. They will answer that they cannot obtain the means of speaking to governors, and if they could the governors would not understand them, and they could not understand the governors. Lastly, is it not a fact that all good government proceeds from the district officers, who, although they have been degraded to the position of clerks, are still looked up to by the people as children look to a parent. The natives of India have at the present moment no hope of justice but through the district officer, who is always, or ought to be, accessible in camp and in the station, riding or driving. The monster which is the terror of our Indian subjects is a huge mass of ill-digested laws, which are sometimes entirely disconnected from justice and equity. As the Mutiny was facilitated by degrading the position of officers commanding native regiments, so will a rebellion be caused by degrading the position of district officers and by demoralising them by the system of demi-official letters from headquarters dictating to them what kind of statements should be inserted in their official reports. District officers and the Viceroy must be brought into personal contact. Once in every four years every district officer in India should reside for some months near the Viceroy, to be at hand whenever the Governor General may wish to consult him in person, and not by means of letters and reports which are seldom read and never digested.—Your obedient servant, T.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—In your issue of the 8th inst. you say, with reference to the successful negotiation of the last Indian loan,—"This is an instructive comment on the 'Bankrupt India' school of pamphleteers." Will you allow me to warn your readers against the pleasing inference that the facility with which the Indian Secretary has borrowed three and a-half millions indicates the soundness of Indian finances? Turkey, like India, found capitalists ready to subscribe to her loans, and, like India, she wasted money easily obtained. The Turkish Exchequer suddenly became bankrupt, and the Indian Exchequer cannot escape a similar fate if waste and extravagance continue to be prominent features in the administration of India, and if her burdens be annually increased by interest on new loans, as has been the case of late years. It is not against those who expose the unsoundness of Indian finance that the public need be guarded. The danger to be apprehended comes from those officials who, as pamphleteers, or in public papers and documents, mislead their readers as to the real condition of things, and, by weakening investigation and comment, prevent those reforms which alone can avert bankruptcy.

The danger to India lies in her administration being controlled by a Secretary of State imperfectly acquainted with her condition, and whose attention must necessarily be engrossed by those questions on which the fate of his Cabinet depends, and of which the administration of India has never formed any material part. This danger was foreseen and denounced in 1858, and the India Council was constituted in order to guard against it; but the history of the last ten years has shown how the spirit of the Indian Councils Act may be disregarded, and how successive Indian Secretaries have been guided, in the decision of the most momentous questions, not by the responsible advisers provided by the State, but by certain Indian officials who, at best, are but irresponsible advisers, and whose advice, moreover, has been acted upon without its soundness having previously been tested by independent discussion.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

Dec. 11.

[Surely the Indian accounts will not justify the comparison with the finances of Turkey. Our esteemed correspondent cannot point to a Sultan at Simla.—ED.]

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE VICEROY AND THE LAWRENTIAN POLICY.

THE presence of H.E. the Viceroy at Lahore has been marked by a series of successful speeches to which the parliamentary training of Lord Ripon has given a certain air of political importance, while any distinct declaration of policy which might hereafter prove embarrassing has been carefully avoided. It is possible, however, to see in the last paragraph of the speech which his Excellency addressed to "maharajas, rajas, chiefs, and gentlemen" at the durbar on Monday last a departure from this politic reticence. In a graceful reference to the last durbar of a similar character held at the capital of the Punjab, Lord Ripon spoke in terms of the warmest friendship, and indeed of admiration, of his distinguished predecessor, and then significantly added that it would be his constant endeavour to follow in the footsteps and apply the principles of Lord Lawrence "and," said his Excellency, "I know well that I could not give you here in the Punjab a better assurance than by that declaration of my earnest desire to promote your prosperity and to advance your welfare to the utmost." Now, if the policy of Lord Lawrence is to be the acknowledged guide of the present Government of India we need no longer be in any doubt as to the course which will be taken in regard to such questions as the retention or abandonment of Kandahar, or as to the whole drift and tendency of our future action with respect to all trans-frontier problems. Lord Lawrence has given his name to a line of policy which was for years carried out with more or less fidelity by the Viceroys who succeeded him, and was only flung to the winds when Lord Beaconsfield came into office and revolutionised the whole system hitherto prevailing beyond the frontier. Lord Lawrence's policy is best summed up in the epithet by which it was most frequently described—that of "masterly inactivity." It did not consist merely in the avoidance of any attempt to interfere in the affairs of the trans-frontier peoples against their will, but in the determination not to have any dealings whatever with them, even at their own invitation. It is the custom at present with many writers to contrast the simplicity and, above all, the happy results of that system with the difficulties and cost which have followed from the application by Lord Beaconsfield's Government of the imperial policy of interference. But it seems to us very questionable whether the circumstances which rendered masterly inactivity sufficient for Lord Lawrence have nor become materially changed, and in great part through the operation of that very policy. It must not be forgotten that the Amir Shere Ali was for years very well affected towards his English neighbours, and that the subjection of the Central Asian khanates by Russia filled him with apprehension as to the aggressive designs of that Power. He therefore proposed, in effect, that he should come into the British Indian system, and be guaranteed against external and internal enemies. This was the very arrangement which, in a more clumsy form, the treaty of Gandamak was afterwards designed to effect. But the proposal so pressing urged by Shere Ali was persistently refused as long as the Lawrentian ideas coloured the policy of our rulers, and the result was that the Amir ceased to look to the British Government for support, and began to cast about for the means of establishing a modus vivendi with the Russians. The result we all know. Of course it may easily be said that all we had to do was still to persevere on the lines laid down for us, no matter what coquetting went on between the Russians and the Afghan durbar, and that all would have been well had we continued to maintain our attitude of inactivity. But, after all, it was not any part of Lord Lawrence's policy to leave the Russians free to do what they pleased in Afghanistan, while we did nothing. When we laid down the lines of this system the Russians were not even aiming at the conquest of the countries adjacent to Afghanistan. For all practical purposes they were still at Orenberg, and there was no immediate chance of their being able to put any direct political pressure on the Amir. The near approach of the Russians altered the whole aspect of the question, and, as we have seen, Shere Ali himself became anxious, and even alarmed. The Russians are now trying to compass the reduction of Merv, and there is no reasonable doubt that they will succeed in establishing themselves in that city, where they will be within speaking distance of the centres of Afghan political life. It is scarcely to be supposed that Lord Lawrence himself would have considered that a mere policy of inertia would be sufficient to ward off all danger in presence of such a state of things; yet, if we are to take the words of Lord Ripon in the widest sense, it would appear that the new Government are determined to take that course. "It will be," said his Excellency, "my constant endeavour during my administration of Indian affairs to follow in his footsteps and to apply his principles." This declaration merits very serious attention.—Bombay Gazette.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

SNOW fell at Simla on the 18th November.
The EX-AMEER YAKUB KHAN is to be removed to Dehra for the cold weather.

MR. PHILLIPS has accepted the offer of the appointment of standing counsel to Government.

ARCHDEACON MATTHEW goes on leave to England in January, returning to the chaplaincy of Simla in April next.

THE Nepaulese Minister and the Rana of Oodeypore will be the guests of the Government during their visit to Calcutta.

CALCUTTA ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS.—The receipts of the Calcutta Zoological Gardens amounted to Rs.62,360 in the past year, and there remains a balance of Rs.2,941 after the payment of expenses. The total number of visitors, exclusive of children under eight years of age, amounted to 121,718, as against 104,582 in 1878-79, inclusive of children.—Englishman.

SALE OF DRUGS.—The Government of Bengal is about to appoint a committee with the view of devising restrictions on the present unlicensed sale of deleterious drugs in the bazaars and native shops.—Ibid.

INDIAN TEA.—Messrs. Thomas and Co.'s price current tells us that the quantity of tea exported in October last was 5,800,262lb., as compared with 4,155,204lb. exported in October last year, and the total shipments from May 1 to Oct. 31 this year have been 25,527,480lb., as against 19,308,609 in the corresponding period of last year.—Ibid.

THE RETURN OF COL. SLADEN TO ARAKAN.—Col. Sladen with his bride arrived at Akyab by the steamer Mahratta on Oct. 26. He was met at the wharf by all the leading inhabitants—European and native—who accorded him a hearty welcome. Col. Sladen, we are glad to see, has come back looking vigorous and in good health. He appeared as glad to be back among old friends as they were to welcome his return. The wharf was decorated for the occasion. When we express the general feeling of gladness with which Col. Sladen's return has been hailed, and our congratulations on his restored strength and health, it would be ungracious to ignore the fact that the station is sorry also to lose Mr. Hodgkinson. Col. Sladen could not have had a more suitable and sympathising officiating officer. A locum tenens sometimes puts on airs and takes action, not only unpleasant to his predecessor, but injurious to the public service; we have already said that Col. Sladen will find that the administration of Arakan "could not, during his absence, have been left in better hands, and that the good of the province has been industriously and intelligently forwarded the while."—Arakan News.

THE NEW RICE PEST.—The last Calcutta Gazette contains some official correspondence regarding the insect lately discovered in Monghyr, which threatens to become very destructive to the rice crops. The specimens forwarded to Mr. Wood Mason, deputy superintendent of the India Museum, have been identified by him as belonging to the genus Cecidomyia and as related to the hessian fly which ravaged the wheatfields in the United States. This genus, Mr. Mason says, has never before been found in India, and he proposes to call the species Cecidomyia oryzae, or the rice fly. He goes on to say that it is likely to prove a most formidable pest, and recommends that the district officers should be instructed to make further inquiries and carefully watch its progress.—Times Telegram.

THE COTTON DUTIES.—The result of the recent remission of the cotton duties is stated by the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal to have been a loss in Bengal alone of 13½ lakhs in revenue last year, while the loss throughout India was 21 lakhs. He anticipated a still greater loss in the future. Meanwhile the importers have undergone much inconvenience, and the consumer does not get the article he requires. The sacrifice made by the Government, Sir. A. Eden says, in surrendering the duties on certain classes of piece goods has not been attended by any corresponding advantages while, on the other hand, it has had a distinctly mischievous effect upon trade, and has caused precisely the confusion which was anticipated by those who were opposed to the surrender of this valuable source of revenue. He goes on to assert that the present system cannot be worked with fairness, and he thinks that the only satisfactory solution of the difficulty is to bring all classes of cotton goods on to the customs tariff again at an equal, but a reduced, scale of duty.—Ibid.

BENGAL BONDED WAREHOUSE ASSOCIATION.—The report passed at the meeting, held Oct. 31, was as follows:—"On April 30 last the uncollected rent bills amounted to Rs.1,724-2-6; during the half-year bills were issued for Rs.35,179-5-6; of these two amounts Rs.35,141-3-3 have been realised, leaving Rs.1,762-4-9 outstanding. In June last the directors submitted to the chairman of the corporation an appeal for reduction of the excessive assessment of the warehouse; they represented that the continued considerable falling off in the business of the association, and the consequent heavy decline in the market value of its stock, constituted the material depreciation of property which, under the 107th section of the Municipal Act, they believe would be admitted as a sufficient reason for amending the assessment and reducing it to a more equitable amount for taxation. The chairman, however, did not concur in this view, and rejected the appeal; but the directors still have the matter under consideration. Business was exceedingly slack during the greater part of the half-year; latterly there has been more doing, but the application of a reduced scale of rents has not been compensated by an adequate increase of business. The result of the operations for the six months is a divisible surplus of Rs.17,006-14-5, which, after the usual transfer of Rs.2,000 to the repair and building fund, will admit of a dividend of Rs.7-8 per share."—Englishman.

BRITISH BURMA.—The Customs collections in British Burma for the second quarter of the current financial year amounted to Rs.9,23,400, as compared with Rs.8,00,281 during the corresponding period of last year. This hardly agrees with the complaints of the falling off in trade which are so frequently repeated by the Rangoon papers.—Ibid.

THE MOVE TO SIMLA.—A report is said to be current that the Government will proceed to Simla much earlier than is usual, as Lord Ripon has notified his intention of being at that place within the first week of March next.—Times of India.

INDIAN TEA IN AUSTRALIA.—A telegram has been received from Melbourne stating that one thousand packages of Indian tea were sold there on the 13th Nov. at threepence three farthings to two shillings and fivepence per pound.—Ibid.

FAVOUR TO PATIALA.—Lord Ripon has been pleased to remit the nuzzur hitherto usually presented by the Maharaja of Patiala. The Council of Regency have for some time past been fighting hard for this mark of favour.—Ibid.

RANGOON NEWS.—The Chief Commissioner, replying to the mercantile protest regarding the recent municipal action respecting the loan, says he is unwilling to overrule the decision of the Municipal Committee. He acknowledges the public spirit which prompted the representation, and hopes the Rangoon mercantile community, by serving as members of the committee, and offering remarks on special subjects, will continue affording valuable aid and advice to municipality and Government. Representation from such a quarter the Chief Commissioner will always carefully consider. About thirty Burmese have lost their lives near Yandooon owing to the upsetting of a passenger steam launch by the people crowding on the upper deck. An official inquiry is being held, and it is thought the steamer was overcrowded when starting for Rangoon.—Ibid.

THE LAHORE MEDICAL COLLEGE.—In his speech at the distribution of prizes to the students of the Punjab Medical College last week Sir Robert Egerton stated that it was his intention to commence the construction of a new medical college at Lahore at an early date.—Pioneer.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND.—A Patriotic Fund meeting was held in Calcutta on Nov. 19, under the presidency of the Chief Justice, Sir Richard Garth, for the purpose of organising local committees in Bengal to assist the central committee in furthering the objects of the fund. A meeting is shortly to be held for a similar purpose in the North Western Provinces, at which the Lieutenant Governor will take the chair.—Ibid.

REWARD TO POLICE.—Last year no less than Rs.35,499 were distributed among certain officers and men of the N.W.P. and Oudh Police as rewards for special duty. No less than 6,630 members of the force participated in this distribution, the largest amount falling to Inspector Abdul Wahab, of Meerut, for arresting a notorious forger who had escaped to Bagdad.—Times of India.

A NATIVE EDITOR FINED FOR DEFAMATION.—The editor of the Dabir-Hind has been found guilty by the judge of Allahabad on charges of defamation of the Sudder Tehsildar of Chail. The accused has been sentenced to pay a fine of seven hundred rupees, or to suffer simple imprisonment for six months. Half of the fine will go to the complainant to meet his expenses in the action.—Ibid.

PROPOSED TAX ON INDIAN BEER.—A few weeks ago we stated that the local Government had a recommendation from the N.W.P. Revenue Board before it to exact an excise duty upon all beer brewed by the five breweries in those provinces at a rate equal to the customs duty paid by the English beer imported into the country, and that Sir George Couper had called for a special report upon the subject. We now learn that his honour has decided that the proprietors of the breweries should have an opportunity of stating their views upon the matter before any definite action is recommended. The Lieutenant Governor has also specially drawn the attention of the board to the fact, which has evidently escaped notice, that country manufactured beer cannot be taxed in these provinces unless other Governments adopt the same course.—Indian Herald.

NEPAUL.—Sir Runodeep Singh, Prime Minister of Nepaul, accompanied by a large number of followers, elephants, horses, &c., is expected to arrive at Calcutta on or about the 17th Nov. After an interview with the Viceroy he will proceed to Pooree.—Times of India.

THE DEFENCES OF CACHAR.—The Assam Government is occupied with the defences of Cachar. A new fort will be erected on the range of hills forming the boundary between Sylhet and Cachar, at a height of thirteen hundred feet, and will be connected by roads with the nearest outpost in each district. It is also proposed to form a colony of Kakis east of Balladhut and to plant them in two stockaded villages directly in the paths lately used by the Nagas. A Kuki militia, consisting of a hundred rank and file, is being raised in North Cachar as an experiment.—Ibid.

GRANT FOR PUBLIC WORKS.—The Government of Bengal have asked the Government of India for an additional grant of Rs.8,00,000 to the Bengal Public Works Budget for the current official year, on account, it is believed, of the large outlay in connection with canal lock works.—Ibid.

ALLEGED MURDER BY POLICEMEN.—The five policemen who are implicated in the murder of a fisherman at Baranagore have been finally committed by the joint-magistrate of Alipore. Mr. J. F. Bradbury, to stand their trial at the next criminal sessions on a charge of murder.—Ibid.

THE STUDY OF SANSKRIT.—The Maharaja of Durbhungah has expressed his willingness to invest Rs.5,000 in Four per Cent. Government securities, yielding Rs.200 annually, for the endowment of a scholarship and a prize for the most successful candidate at the Sanskrit College. Out of the amount of interest of Rs.200, Rs.180 is to be spent for a scholarship of the value of Rs.15 per mensem, to be awarded to the best successful student who passes in Swerti, and Rs.20 for a prize to be awarded to any successful student, at the discretion and choice of the college authorities. The Director of Public Instruction has recommended the Government to accept the offer.—Ibid.

GILGIT FORT.—Major Biddulph's own personal escort consists of twenty-five sepoy, well armed; the Maharaja's Dogra troops with him number some six or seven hundred. The whole force may be depended on to make a good fight against their assailants from Yassein, and the Gilgit Fort is strong enough to resist any attack by undisciplined mountaineers unprovided with artillery. But it is impossible not to feel anxiety as to supplies. Unless the attack was expected and the fort had been well stocked the garrison will have a hard time of it. Some time must pass before Col. Tanner with the Maharaja's reinforcement can reach Gilgit. From Srinuggur to Gilgit by the Kamri Pass (13,160 feet), the road always taken by the Maharaja's troops, it is twenty-two marches, but this route is closed by snow from the middle of November to the middle of May. The alternative route over the Dorikun Pass (13,500 feet) remains open a few weeks later and reopens in the spring a few weeks before the other; and, during the winter even, is occasionally forced by men without loads. By this route it is twenty-three marches, or 238½ miles, from Srinuggur to Gilgit.—Pioneer.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.—The Government of India has under consideration a project for the construction of a new line of railway in the Punjab between Delhi and Ferozepore. The line of direction, it is proposed, should pass through Rohtak, Hansi, Hissar, and Sirsa, though an alternative route vid Rewari and Hansi will also be examined. A reconnaissance of the country between Delhi and Ferozepore is about to be at once commenced, and this duty has been entrusted by the Government of India to Mr. H. Lambert, superintending engineer. It is understood also that the construction of a line between Amritsar and Pathankot is expected to be shortly sanctioned.—Pioneer.

CANAL WORKS.—The Government of Bengal have asked the Government of India for an additional grant of Rs.8,00,000 to the Bengal Public Works Budget for the current official year, presumably on account of the large outlay in connection with canal local works.—Indian Daily News.

THE SONARPORE-MUGRA RAILWAY.—We hear on good authority that the operations for the construction of the Sonarpore and Mugra State Railway extension from the Sonarpore station of the Calcutta and South Eastern State Railway will have to be delayed till the beginning of 1881, consequent on the deputy collector, Mr. W. Heysham, not having as yet finished his work of taking up the land required for this line. Mr. Heysham expects he will be able to give over possession of the land, at any rate of the first two miles from Sonarpore, by the end of December.—Englishman.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—At date of mail the disengaged tonnage in port stood at 27,572 tons. London via Canal: The market closed firm at £3 for rice or wheat, £3 to £3 2s. 6d. for cotton, £3 5s. for hices, £3 10s. for tea, and £2 15s. to £3 nominal for jute. For London via Cape: £2 6s. 3d. for rice, £2 8s. 9d. for wheat, £2 13s. 9d. for linseed, £2 16s. 3d. for rape, £2 18s. 9d. for poppy, and £2 12s. 6d. for jute. For Liverpool via Canal: Rice, £3 2s. 6d.; wheat, £3 5s.; oils and measurement, £3 5s. to £3 10s. For Liverpool via Cape: Rice or wheat, £2 7s. 6d. nominal; jute, £2 8s. 9d.; linseed, £2 11s. 3d.; oils, £2 15s.; cotton, nominal.—Englishman.

MADRAS.

GOLD MINING LEASES FOR GOVERNMENT WASTE LAND IN THE WYNAAD AND ON THE NILGIRIS.—The Government have directed the collector and commissioner in future to summarily reject all applications for gold mining leases for Government waste land in the Wynaad and on the Nilgiris which do not conform to the rules and conditions therein laid down; and they have authorised the collector or commissioner, as the case may be, to permit approved applicants to enter on possession on their undertaking to execute the requisite document in the form finally approved.—Madras Times.

FOREIGN TRADE.—The proportion which the Madras foreign trade bears to that of the whole of India has increased nearly 1 per cent. in the last three years. In 1877-78 it was 4.08 per cent., in 1878-79 4.54, and in 1879-80 4.98 per cent.—Ibid.

PUNKAH.—The Governor General in Council has sanctioned the provision of the sum of Rs.52,000 in the budget estimate for 1881-82 for the punkah pulling establishment for the European troops in the Madras Presidency.—Ibid.

LAND REVENUE.—Madras pays more land revenue than any other province in India, and more than Bengal and Assam together. The North West Provinces pay the most in the shape of local cesses and rates—viz., £596,733; then comes Madras, paying £576,160. The average incidence of payments for ordinary land revenue and for local rates and cesses per head of total population is in Bengal and Assam, rs. 2.7d.; in North Western Provinces, 3s. 1.2d.; Oudh, 2s. 6.1d.; in Ajmere, 2s. 0.1d.; in Punjab, 2s. 4.7d.; in Central Provinces, 1s. 6.8d.; in Berar, 4s. 9.6d.; in Mysor, 2s. 11.5d.; Coorg, 3s. 4.4d.; British Burma, 3s. 3.2d.; Madras, 3s. 1.3d.; Bombay, 3s. 10.44d. The average is thus about 2s. 4.6d.—Ibid.

MADRAS CATHOLIC ORPHANAGE.—On the 1st November, 1879, there were 211 (85 military and 126 East Indians) orphans on the rolls. During the year there were 32 removals and 26 admissions, so that on the 31st October, 1880, there were 205 (87 military and 118 East Indians) on the rolls. Of the 32 removals 10 were boys and 22 girls; 3 girls were suitably married, one of them to a wealthy coffee planter, 18 were removed by parents or guardians, and there was only one death, that of a very delicate girl in hospital from fever. Of the boys, one succeeded in getting employment on a coffee plantation, one joined the Government Telegraph Department as a signaller, and the remaining eight were removed by parents or guardians. Of the 205 children in the orphanages on the 31st October, 1880, 12 receive Government subsistence allowance, 15 are boarders, and 2 receive an allowance from the Apothecaries' Fund, thus leaving 176 destitute orphans to depend on the charity of a generous public. The average number of children supported during every day of the year was 211. If we deduct from this number 14 soldiers' orphans who received Government subsistence allowance, 15 who were paid for by parents or guardians, and 2 borne on the Apothecaries' Fund, we find that 180 destitute orphans were supported every day during the year, thus entitling the institutions to the maximum Government charity grant sanctioned in Proceedings of Madras Government, Educational Department, No. 96, dated 1st April, 1869.—Annual Report.

COFFEE PROSPECTS IN THE WYNAAD.—The estates are looking perfectly splendid; everybody, even the most despondent, speaks cheerfully of the bumper we are bound to have next year, and even those generally sceptical on the subject of "next crop" admit that, with such a show of healthy wood, it must indeed be something exceptionally untoward to happen that should destroy our present hopes of the good times coming in 1881. Even Mother Shipton would have altered her prophecy, I believe, could she have had a peep at our trees in their glory, as they now appear to our appreciative eyes. Tea and cinchona also are making the best of the showers and growing splendidly. I hear of little or no sickness either amongst Europeans or natives, and the climate here, except where the rain falls at inconsiderate times, may be described as perfect.—Correspondent of Madras Times.

VISIT OF THE GOVERNOR TO TRAVANCORE.—At the State dinner given to his Grace the Governor H.H. the Maharaja of Travancore make the following speech:—"Your Grace, I am at a loss for words to acknowledge adequately the high honour your Grace has done me in proposing my health in such handsome terms, and you, ladies and gentlemen, in accepting it so cordially. Ladies and Gentlemen,—According to the programme for the occasion it devolves on me to propose the toast of the evening—that of his Grace the Duke. I could heartily wish that it had fallen to the lot of one infinitely worthier than myself—his Highness the late Maharaja, my lamented brother. But one and all of us are often in our lives painfully constrained to accept things as they are and not as they might have been. We have amidst us this evening not simply so high a dignitary as the Governor of Madras, but one who belongs to the highest rank of the English nobility—one whose pedigree may be traced back to the Plantagenet Kings of England. No nation on earth values high birth, rank, and "blue blood" more than the Hindu, and no section of the Hindu nationality, except perhaps the Rajputs, prizes them higher than the dwellers in this land of Parasurama. But in the case of his Grace, lustre borrowed from ancestry would be simply superfluous. The sterling manly character and high abilities of which his Grace has given ample proof from the very outset of his career are too well known to need any reference from me, rare as they are even among Englishmen. How incessantly and indefatigably his Grace toiled for the amelioration of the famished and dying millions, what unflagging zeal, admirable judgment, and inexhaustible resources he manifested in the dark days of the great famine of 1877, are within the vivid recollections of all. The eastern coast canal and the Madras harbour works will be, for ages to come, living monuments of his Grace's beneficent rule. For more than twenty years past the want of a branch railway line to this coast has been felt and acknowledged by all; but the project remained in the land of dreams until his Grace moved in the matter with his unwonted vigour and earnestness, and we may expect to see Travancore in a few years within easy communication with Lahore. Ladies and Gentlemen,—This is a day which myself and my country will long contemplate with pride and pleasure. Hardly have five months expired since I attained my present position, and I cannot pretend to any claim to the high honour of his Grace's visit; but, in spite of pressing engagements and of personal inconveniences, his Grace has given this practical proof of his great personal kindness, and likewise of the cordiality of friendship long subsisting between the paramount power and this ancient and loyal native State. His Grace has thereby laid us all under the deepest obligation. With these words I propose the health of his Grace the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos."—Gazette.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT IN THE HARBOUR.—We regret to record a very sad accident in connection with the harbour works, which resulted in the death of Mr. J. T. Duffey, foreman of the south pier, Mr. H. E. Patching, driver, and five native coolies. Mr. Duffey and Mr. Patching were proceeding on a trolley, shoved by nine men, towards the end of the southern arm of the harbour, when just before reaching the curve a huge breaker beat over the trolley and nearly upset the occupants. Mr. Duffey, however, wished to proceed further, and, just as the trolley moved, another breaker of greater force swept the trolley off the rails into the sea, Mr. Duffey, Mr. Patching, and the coolies being carried away with it, and all being drowned except four of the coolies. Several coolies were at once posted between the northern and southern arms to search for the bodies, but without success, and up to the time of going to press none of the bodies has been recovered. Report of the accident having got abroad, thousands of people went to the beach during the day to see what could be seen.—Madras Times.

THE RAMPA REBELLION.—From the latest accounts the rebels seemingly wish to make for their homes, or, in other words, to give it up as a bad job, finding, as they do, their numbers fast decreasing. As a precautionary measure, however, a party of fifty sepoy has been ordered by Brigadier General Buck to Nurzipatam to act in case of an emergency. This course has been found necessary, as not a few of the inhabitants have on more than one occasion exhibited signs of treachery. The party of military at Chodavaram has not been withdrawn, as the agent of the Godavari District considers it impolitic to withdraw it at present; and the party at Wudigudiem is likewise still kept on, notwithstanding the fact that a strong constabulary force is stationed there. A few of the dispersed gangs have been picked up by the police with the assistance of the mootahdars in the Golconda Taluk. The other insurgents who are still at large, on hearing of this, at once betook themselves to Rampa, where they have every chance of playing the game of "hide and seek," it being an admitted fact that, once they get there, they are pretty well cared for by the inhabitants. The greatest difficulty on our side appears to be the want of mootahdars who could be held individually responsible in case any of the rebels were found secreted in their mootahs, for as matters now stand it is hard to fix the responsibility of any particular mootahdar. We hope Major Porteous will be successful in his attempt to follow up the gang that murdered Abhas Ally at Kathapilly.—Ibid.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.—A correspondent writes from South Arcot, under date Nov. 17:—"I have just heard from one who returned from Trinamalai that the feast of the Karthigay Deepum yesterday evening, the 16th inst., resulted in the loss of seventeen lives and several persons wounded. It would appear that a very large concourse of pilgrims entered the pagoda premises to witness the deepum or lamp being lighted. The pilgrims were literally hemmed in, there being no room for anyone to move. At the appointed hour, sunset, there was a rush made to gain admittance to the third courtyard, where the lamp was to be lighted; the passage to this was through a gopuram entrance about eight feet wide and over a flight of steps about four feet high and down again a corresponding flight. At this rush one woman lost her balance and fell, there was then a general rush, a good number falling down and being trodden upon by a vast concourse of people. The crowd was so great that it took some little time before the police were able to make room for people to avoid passing over those who were down. When the crowd had sufficiently cleared fifteen bodies (fourteen women and one man) were picked up lifeless. One woman had just a little life in her; she was at once carried off to the civil dispensary, while several others who were hurt were taken away by their relatives and friends. Of these one, a lad, has since died. The woman taken to the hospital breathed her last within an hour or two of admission. How the wounded are faring is not known. Strange to say that out of the fifteen women killed, thirteen were Brahmin widows.—Madras Standard.

THE GOVERNOR.—The Hindu community of Madras have determined to raise subscriptions for a memorial building in commemoration of the Duke of Buckingham's services to the native population under his rule.—Pioneer.

BOMBAY.

THE CHOTA OODEYPORE MURDER.—The son of the Raja of Chota Oodeypore, who was lately accused of murdering his wife, and whose case was investigated by Mr. Birdwood, has been released from police surveillance and allowed to return home. It is believed that Mr. Birdwood's report is unfavourable, and it is difficult to account for the action of the Government. The father of the accused lately went to Bombay to interview the Governor. He would appear to have induced him to stay proceedings.—Times Telegram.

THE MUSKETRY COURSE.—The shooting of the Bombay Army in the last annual musketry course shows an average figure of merit for the European regiments of 98'80, for the native regiments 71'69, and for the three volunteer corps—Bombay Volunteers, G.I.P. Railway Volunteers, and B.B. and C.I. Railway Volunteers—106'90. The best shooting regiment amongst the European troops was the 1-6th Foot, with a figure of merit of 115'61; amongst the native troops, the 21st N.I., 82'79; and amongst the Volunteers, the Bombay V.R., 113'69. The best shot in the Presidency was Corporal Hall, Bombay Volunteers, with 201 out of the possible 240. The highest score made amongst the European soldiers was by Private W. Bond, 2-15th Regiment, 189, and amongst the native regiments, 164 by a naik of the 21st N.I.—Bombay Gazette.

THE VINGORLA.—The final statement of the Vingorla Disaster Relief Fund shows a total subscription list of Rs.20,000. The widows of the captain, the chief engineer, and the second engineer have each received Rs.5,550, and Rs.2,832 have been divided among native sufferers by the disaster. The committee deserve credit for the way in which they have managed the fund.—Ibid.

BOMBAY MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.—At a special general meeting held in November the Bombay Municipal Corporation proceeded with the consideration of the budget estimates for 1881. Commencing with the detailed statement of income it resolved that the consolidated rate for the year 1881 be fixed at 8 per cent.—viz, house rate at 4 per cent., lighting rate at 2 per cent., and police rate at 2 per cent., including Rs.50,000 contributed by Government and Rs.60,000 contributed by the port trust, and that the budget estimate thereof, amounting to Rs.9,15,100, be passed by the corporation. The following estimates of income were also agreed to:—Wheel tax at Rs.2,22,500; liquor licenses at Rs.1,43,750; public land conveyance badges at Rs.1,600; tobacco duty and licenses at Rs.1,60,000; town duties at Rs.5,80,200; insurance companies at Rs.22,000; and contribution from municipal servants towards pension fund at Rs.9,000.—Ibid.

THE LATE COL. DAUBENY.—We regret to state that news has been received in Bombay of the death, from smallpox, of Lieut.

Col. Alfred Goodlad Daubeny, commanding 2nd Battalion 7th Fusiliers, at Kandahar. He was appointed to the command of the 2nd Infantry Brigade on the death of Brigadier General Brooke, and, it will be remembered, commanded the force subsequently sent out to bury the dead in the battlefield of Kushk-i-Nakhud. It may be noticed, as a coincidence, that the deceased entered the army as ensign on Nov. 23, 1852. He served with the 90th Light Infantry in the Crimea, being present at the capture of the Quarries, siege and fall of Sebastopol, attack on the Redan, and formed one of the storming party on Sept. 8. He wore the Crimean medal with clasp and the Turkish medal.—Times of India.

DEATH OF A NATIVE EDITOR.—It is with very deep regret that we have to record the death of our friend Mr. Narayan Mahadev Paranjpey, editor of Native Opinion. The deceased gentleman was connected with the paper named during the last decade and devoted his life and soul to its advancement. He was a steady writer and never swerved from his duty. His simplicity and unassuming nature endeared him to all who came in contact with him, and his views of public questions, as expressed through Native Opinion, were marked by a great deal of good sense and vigour. His loss will therefore be very keenly felt by the readers of that journal as by those who knew him.—Indu Prakash.

WRECK OF A STEAMER.—From Galle the wreck of the Trinity House steamer, Lord Sandon, is reported. No lives were lost.—Times of India.

THE NEW CHURCH.—On 25th Nov. Lady Fergusson laid the foundation stone of a new church to be erected for the convenience of the residents of Malabar Hill, Bombay.—Ibid.

H.M.S. Euryalus arrived in Bombay on 20th Nov. with H.E. Admiral Gore-Jones, the naval Commander in Chief.—Ibid.

DURBAR AT JACOBABAD.—The Viceroy received the Khan of Khelat, his two sons, and the sirdars in private durbar on Nov. 19, and formally invested the Khan with the G.C.S.I. A public durbar for the reception of the Khan, his sons, and the principal chiefs and maliks of Beluchistan, Pishin, Sibi, Thull-Chotiala, &c., took place in the old brigade mess at one o'clock. About fifty chiefs, with their attendants, were seated according to rank in rows in a body in the durbar room, forming a wild and picturesque assembly. The Khan took his seat on a chair immediately to the Viceroy's right, beyond him were his sons, the members of the staff and military officers occupying the remaining chairs to the right. On the left was Sir R. Sandeman, who introduced the Khan's sons and some of the principal chiefs who had either rendered good service during the recent operations or were of distinguished family. Presents were given to them, the principal one being a handsome diamond ring to the Khan, which the Viceroy himself placed on the Khan's finger. At the conclusion of the formal ceremonies the Viceroy, addressing the Khan, expressed his gratification at receiving him and the sirdars in durbar and the high sense the Government entertain of the consistent loyalty and friendship displayed by his Highness in the assistance he had rendered during the recent operations in Afghanistan, and recognising in him a valuable and trustworthy ally of her Majesty. His Excellency further expressed the satisfaction it afforded him to invest his Highness that morning with the insignia of the Star of India, and offered his sincere congratulations on the honour. He concluded by acknowledging the services of the sirdars in preserving tranquillity in the country and protecting convoys and merchandise and assisting in the uninterrupted maintenance of the military communications during the past two years.—Times of India.

THE EARL OF LYTTON ON INDIA.

THE speeches delivered by the Earl of Lytton on Tuesday were not more important for what they disclosed than for what they promised should be hereafter made known in the proper place. We can only find space for the telling words which concluded his eulogium, which was also an exposition of General Roberts's Afghan victories, the natural result of the efficiency with which his gallant troops were commanded. "I think," said the late Viceroy, "that the great work done by my gallant friend leaves absolutely nothing to be wished for, except that it may not all be recklessly thrown away. It is, however, commonly reported that, at this very moment, the Kuram headlands, including the Peiwah Khotal, which commands both Cabul and Ghazni, and secures one of the main passes into India, are being unconditionally handed back to the Cabul Power from which they were so recently wrested by the strenuous efforts of her Majesty's brave troops under the victorious command of my gallant friend. And this in total disregard of the pledges publicly given by him to all the tribes of the Kuram on behalf of the British Government, and with the approval of the British Government, that in no circumstances would it ever permit any Cabul Power again to rule over them. It is also commonly reported that, no less regardless of similar pledges given to the people of Kandahar, her Majesty's Ministers are meditating the unconditional abandonment of that invaluable position, twice conquered by her Majesty's troops, without any sort of guarantee, moral or material, for the future conduct of a Prince who, even with the best will in the world to deserve so unmerited a gift, is notoriously unable, from the very nature of his position, either to maintain permanent order in his own dominions or to conform satisfactorily to the most indispensable of his internal obligations without an external support and control which, if not exercised by the British Government, will infallibly, and in that case I think justifiably, because unavoidably, be exercised to the detriment of British India by the Government of Russia. I can but hope that these unprecedented, these fatal decisions, will not be surreptitiously carried into irrevocable effect without full and fair reference to the Parliament and public opinion of this country. And in the belief that the public opinion of the country, when further matured, upon fuller information, will rescue its Indian Empire from the danger of such ruinous decisions I am encouraged by the unanimity and enthusiasm with which the countrymen of my gallant friend, in England as well as in India, have everywhere spontaneously come forward to testify their sense of the national value of the work he has done for them."

SIR R. TEMPLE ON INDIA.

SIR RICHARD TEMPLE delivered an address on Tuesday, in the Grosvenor Gallery Library, to the members of the Royal Colonial Institute, "On the Statistics of India." The chair was occupied by Viscount Bury. There was a considerable attendance of ladies and gentlemen. Sir Richard Temple, on being introduced by the chairman, was loudly cheered. He began by remarking that his audience would not judge from the title of his address that he was about to make a very bare or dry or figured statement. They oftentimes heard that our splendid dependency was verging on insolvency. He was far from complaining that accomplished and learned gentlemen should make observations of that character, because such observations constituted warnings of the dangers which lay before a distant, foreign, and alien Empire like that of India, and also warnings against the pitfalls into which the Government of the country were likely to fall. But still the effect of such warnings was to make us consider whether the finances of India were sound or not. Now, he wished to assure his audience that they were sound. We heard a great deal about the miscalculation which had been made regarding the estimate of the expenses of the Afghan war, but the estimate, be it right or wrong, did not concern the substantial finances of the Empire. He held that the finances of the Empire were sound, and for these reasons. They heard of annual deficits. Now these were technical, nominal deficits. They were not deficits in the proper sense of the word. They merely arose because the sums spent in canals and railways were included in the ordinary finances. In no country in the world were such sums included in the ordinary finances. If they were excluded there was no deficit whatever; on the contrary, there was an equilibrium between income and expenditure. On the finances of the last twelve years there was positively a slight surplus—a little deficit in one year and a little surplus in another year; but on the whole period mentioned there was a surplus. The revenues were stated to be inelastic, and they were inelastic as compared with the elastic revenues of England, but nevertheless they were slowly increasing. The incidence of taxation was excessively low, and, judging by the rate per head of the population, it was as low as it could be if there was to be any taxation at all. The army expenditure was not excessive. It did not amount to one-fourth of the annual receipts, or to one-third, as one chose to take the revenues proper, or the total receipts of all kinds; and, in either case, it did not exceed the proportion which the army expenses of the various countries of Europe bore to their general revenues. So also the civil expenses were not outrunning the constable. (A laugh.) They were kept well in hand, and were rather diminishing in all those respects which affected the Europeans. They were slightly increased merely for the sake of giving the natives better pay and better preferments. Public works had been carried out to a great extent. Government had invested one hundred and twenty five millions sterling on railways, of which about ninety three millions had been expended by guaranteed companies, and the rest had been expended by the State. Some railways paid more and some less, but on the whole they were paying about 5 per cent., and notwithstanding many of the new railways which had been opened had not yet developed their capital. A great deal was also heard about the canals, but India had the finest canal system in the world. Upon that system twenty millions had been spent, and 6 per cent. was being now paid on that capital, and if that was the case it could be judged what the canals of India would pay a few years hence. The debt of India was now about 150 millions, but that included all that had been spent on State railways and canals, and all sums spent for the relief of famine; so that if these sums were deducted, and the debt taken which had been incurred in consequence of war, politics, and the like, so as to make it correspond to the public debt of the other great Powers of the world, the debt was just about equal to two years' revenue of India. (Cheers.) That would not waterlog the boat of the Empire.

The rates of interest had been reduced from $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. to 5 per cent., and to $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. and to 4 per cent. The Four per Cents. did at one time stand at a premium, and the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. stood now at a premium. Now, if they looked at the financial quotation of the debts of the other countries of the world they would find that the Indian Government was borrowing at a rate which was the most favourable in the world, next to that of England itself. It was also said that the public debt was raised not locally, not from the natives, but in England. That was true of the debt for the guaranteed railways; but excluding that, and excluding also the debt which had been raised in this country, they would find that of the remaining debt raised in India—about sixty millions sterling—nearly one-third was held by the natives. (Cheers.) That was not a bad sum for the natives to invest, and they would have invested much more if it had not been that the Government had been constantly reducing the rates on account of the English competition. The natives would invest their money at 5 or $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., but money could be raised in London at $4\frac{1}{2}$ or 4 per cent. Still they had already invested twenty millions, and they were lending us further, on the average about two millions a year, to carry on public works. The other day, when a sum of two millions was wanted for the service of the year, no less than twenty-three millions were tendered, and out of the twenty-three millions nine millions were offered by the natives of India. (Cheers.) Then they were further told that we must add to the debt the sum of ninety-three millions spent on guaranteed railways. Well, let that be added, and the effect would be that on the total thus consolidated the interest would not be above $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on the whole. He would like to know if there was any other Government except Holland which was paying $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on its national debt. He had recently verified all these figures, and they would be able to judge for themselves whether the finances of India were in a sound state or not. Sir Richard then proceeded to show that the population, notwithstanding reductions by famine, was increasing, that cultivation was increasing, and that trade was increasing immensely. The houses of the people were being improved, the interior of their homes were being made better, they had better furniture and better utensils. Their ancient industries were at least on a par with the palmiest days of the Mogul Empire, and steam and machinery, formerly unknown to them, were being introduced. Their food supply was said to be deficient, but it was impossible to understand a proposition of that nature in the face of the fact that the people were storing food to the extent of millions of tons annually for their sustenance in times of drought; and, in addition, were exporting hundreds of thousands of tons annually to Europe and the colonies. Wages are rising, and so far from the people being starving or famishing, the Government of India, taking chest measurement and stature as a test, could put more men into the ranks of the army than any other Government under the sun. Taking all these facts, the condition of the people was tolerably satisfactory, and as good as could be expected considering their past history and their surroundings. Sir Richard then dwelt on several dangers which were always overhanging India, the periodical recurrence of famines, the liability to financial derangement by reason of the exchange, the highness of the general death-rate, the political and financial derangement which was also threatened from the Afghan frontier and the alien rule. As to the last mentioned, he did not think any other people on earth would behave under foreign domination so well as the people of India did—(cheers)—while most of the native States were loyal to the backbone. The remainder of the lecture consisted of a description of the various products of India and its commerce and industry, pointing out openings for English enterprise. He remarked that the natives were rapidly elbowing the Europeans out of the field, and he recommended that young men proceeding to India to enter on commercial pursuits should possess themselves of a technical knowledge of their profession before going out, and when there should live and conduct their business cheaply and economically.—At the close there was some discussion, in which Mr. Hyndman, Mr. Alexander Roger, late member of the Council of Bombay, Mr. Pfounders, Mr. Shaw, of Madras, and others took part; and the proceedings terminated with a cordial vote of thanks to Sir R. Temple on the motion of the noble chairman.

GENERAL ROBERTS IN THE CITY.

THE Fishmongers' Company entertained Major General Sir F. S. Roberts, V.C., G.C.B., C.I.E., and a distinguished company, in their hall at London-bridge, on Thursday. After the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, which were honoured with great cordiality and warmth, the Prime Warden then proposed "The health of the Guest of the Evening," whom they had met to honour.

General Roberts, who was received with loud cheers, said: The magnificent and flattering reception which I have met with would be almost overwhelming if I did not feel that it is more a tribute to the army generally than to any individual member of it. On behalf of the army to which it is my pride and glory to belong, I gratefully accept the distinguished honour which has been conferred upon me this evening, especially as I have fresh in my mind the grand qualities of those soldiers whom I have had the privilege so recently to command through the war in Afghanistan. I may say with truth of them that there was no officer or man, British or native, who was not animated by the same high spirit of courage and endurance so essential to military success. It cannot be repeated too often, or insisted on too strongly, that victory is the joint achievement of the general and of those who carry out his orders. Kandahar would never have been reached and Ayub Khan have been defeated if the troops had not cheerfully undergone the utmost fatigue and privations, and faced danger unusually great. To know that their Queen and country appreciate and applaud the sacrifices they have made is the highest reward which can be given, and there can be no doubt that the splendid hospitality which this historic company has extended to me and to some of the officers who served with me through the late campaign will be accepted by them as a mark of approval of the city of London, and I think I may say of all England. The fact that the first two charters presented to this company were granted by the victors of Crecy and Agincourt prove the truth of the maxim that the object of war is to ensure peace. Those two warriors, Edward III. and Henry V., would never have made England great or prosperous if they had only cultivated the art of war. Nor, on the other hand, would this company and similar corporations in this City have so successfully pursued the arts of peace unless they could have always felt that when the hour of trouble came they could rely with confidence on the courage and ability of their soldiers and their sailors. I feel assured that the trust which the great mercantile communities of England have for centuries past placed in our land and sea forces has undergone no diminution, and I earnestly hope it may never do so. The generous welcome which we have received, Mr. Prime Warden, at your hands this evening shows that the members of this company are not unmindful of the privileges which were conferred upon them long since by the two soldier Kings—to whom I may refer to the fact that my name is the last on the illustrious roll of your freemen—a roll which includes princes, statesmen, philanthropists, and soldiers—as a proof that this loyal and ancient company still delights to honour those whose highest aim is to do their duty. For this beautiful casket which you have given me and for the high personal distinction which you have conferred upon me this evening, I cannot adequately thank you; but believe me that, though my mode of expression may be weak, my feelings of gratitude are deep and strong. As long as English soldiers know that the heart of the English people beats in unison with their own, so long will they be successful, and I am quite certain that whilst this is the case, whether in the hour of victory or the moment of death, their watchword will always remain for their Queen and their country. In the course of the evening a very handsome gold casket was presented by the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers, with their freedom, to Sir Frederick. This is the first testimonial presented to the General since his return to England. The casket, which was handed round during the evening for the inspection of the company, is oblong in shape, with a domed lid, and is designed in the style of the Italian renaissance. In the front, enamelled in heraldic colours, are the arms, crest, and motto of the General, with his supporters, a Highlander and a Goorkha, in repoussé gold. On the left side is a palm branch and the legend, "Palmarum qui meruit ferat; " on the right a cross with laurels, and the words, "Semper paratus pugnare pro patriâ," and at the base is engraved the motto of the Royal Artillery "Quo fas et gloria ducunt." The domed lid is divided into six panels; the decorations including the General's Orders, the Victoria Cross, the Grand Cross of the Bath, and the Order of the Indian Empire, the oak, the emblem of England, and the shamrock of Ireland, the country of General Roberts's birth. The following is the inscription:—"Presented by the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers of the City of London to Major General Sir Frederick Roberts, V.C., G.C.B., C.I.E., late Commander of her Majesty's Forces in Southern Afghanistan, on his taking up his freedom, Dec. 9, 1880." 8 scrolls are entwined, engraved with the twelve chief battles and incidents in the General's career. The work has been designed by Messrs. Howell and James.

On Tuesday evening Sir Frederick was presented with the freedom of the Merchant Taylors' Company and entertained at a banquet subsequently in the ancient hall, after which the General, accompanied by Lord Lytton, attended the distribution of the regimental prizes to the 23rd Middlesex Volunteers at St. James's Hall.

A meeting of the Senate of the University of Dublin was held in the dining hall, Trinity College, on Friday, to consider a grace sent down by the Provost and Senior Fellows that the honorary degree of LL.D. be conferred upon General Sir Frederick Roberts, G.C.B. The grace was unanimously adopted.

HERAT.

RECENT events in Afghanistan and the present condition of Ayub Khan at Herat have combined to attract the attention of England towards that historic city, which for two or three hundred years occupied the proud position of Queen of the Commerce of Central Asia, and now lies despoiled indeed by her cruel conquerors, but still capable of resuscitation and activity. It can, in fact, hardly be doubted that Herat is destined to play a leading part in the future affairs of Asia, and possibly, therefore, in those of Europe also. The importance of its position was well understood in past ages, giving rise to the ancient proverb, "Khorasan is the oyster shell of the world, and Herat is its pearl." A glance at its political history shows that from time immemorial it was regarded as the Gate of India, the outlying bulwark possession of which was necessary to any attempt towards conquest of India. Nadir Shah is reported to have declared the Province of Khorasan to be the Sword of Persia, adding that, "whoever holds that sword in his hand, owning the brain capacity to wield it aright, is lord alike of Iran and Turan." The truth of his saying is exemplified in the conquests of India effected by Alexander, by Mahmud and his successors, by Chingiz Khan, Taimur, Nadir Shah himself, and Ahmad Shah, in all of which possession of Herat was the first step to victory; and not less in the defeat of Muhummad Shah, when the successful defence of the city rendered the invasion of India impossible. Recent writers have derived from these facts a strong argument in favour of a British occupation of Herat. This plea, which has been pressingly urged, rests on two principal lines of reason. The first, an appeal to England's philanthropy in relieving from crushing oppression an afflicted people, and to her justice and humanity in assisting to restore their lost prosperity. The second, an appeal to her own advantage and the safety of her Eastern Empire. With regard to the first, the fate of the Heratis is certainly a hard one. Having through many centuries undergone all the vicissitudes of constant sieges, conquests, and revolutions, they fell in 1717 into the cruel hands of the Abdali Afghans, and from that time have suffered under their tyrants. Themselves industrious, enterprising, and inventive, they are governed by a race of professional plunderers and murderers, under whose yoke their peaceful arts are destroyed and their commerce crushed. They are represented as now turning longing eyes and earnest prayers to England for release. The Afghan domination is so hateful to them that they need but little assistance from without to rise and break free from it. Supposing, then, England to have interfered in their behalf, the question arises to whom shall their future guardianship be entrusted, their own strength being manifestly insufficient to maintain their coveted position in the midst of their warlike neighbours. Persia will, of course, be suggested as a natural protector. But Persia having transferred her seat of government in 1510 from Herat to Meshed, 228 miles to the west, would not now neglect this creation of her own in favour of its former rival. And a graver objection lies in the fact that Persia could not remain neutral. The annexation of Merv by Russia would so increase the Russian influence at work in Persia that Herat, guarded by the latter country, would be in all respects a Russian city. To think of making it over to Russia herself is obviously absurd. Her presence there would be a standing menace to our frontier; and the dangers thus courted far greater than those we sought to avoid by the first Afghan war of 1838 and the Persian war of 1856. The advantages to England of securing the position are equally evident. The fertile provinces of Eastern Khorasan, Afghan, Turkestan, and Badakshan only require the shield of British protection to flourish happy and contented. They form the natural glacis of the great mountain ranges of the North West, and have the Oxus for their natural boundary. England, therefore, having arrested the advance of the Russian columns from Samarkand and Ferghana by the conclusion of the Treaty of Berlin, and having stopped her intrigues in Cabul by the invasion of Afghanistan, would, by occupying Herat and extending her protection to these provinces, so strengthen her frontier that it might be regarded as impregnable. The land is fertile, the climate good, the water supply so abundant that, according to Captain Marsh, a few years of assured peace would suffice to turn the desert into a garden. The wealth of the country is so great, its resources in wood and minerals, in corn, wine, and oil so extensive, that it could maintain an army of occupation without assistance. Yet such an army would not be separated from its base. The road to Kandahar is protected on the east by impassable mountains, and on the west by deserts no army could traverse; and the road to Cabul, though little known at present, offers no real difficulties, and might easily be made feasible for guns. An additional source of strength would be the enlistment in our service of the splendid Turkman cavalry, which was for ages the terror of Persia, and has recently repulsed an advance of Russia. Last, not least, the advantages to trade would be incalculable. All the roads but one available for caravans converge on the favoured city of Herat, which might again become the great centre of Central Asian trade. It is certain that its possession by Russia would mean the exclusion of England from all the markets of Central Asia.

These and like reasonings are not novel, and urge a policy which is at present Utopian. But they are put forward because, mutatis mutandis, they exactly represent the strong feeling as to Herat and Merv that underlies the objection of the Kauffman party to the proposition of a neutral zone. It is said that General Skobelev favours such a plan of settlement. But the object of his present strategy is the domination of Merv. While that remains the object of Russian aggression the facts and probabilities about Herat ought not to be forgotten, not that there is any likelihood of a British advance thereto. But the importance of carefully observing that city, and of being as far as possible never again kept in the dark as to what is being prepared behind its walls, is strongly demonstrated by the arguments which urge a more forcible mode of ensuring our influence at Herat. It would be possible, now that the country between Meshed and Herat is quiet, to extend the telegraph from the Persian side and put our representative at Meshed in a position to observe and report news from Herat or Merv. How strongly the arguments which are not sufficient to persuade any Ministry, unless forced by circumstances, to touch Herat weigh in favour of retaining our hold on Kandahar need not again be urged. The intentions of the Home Government are veiled, but stated to be adverse, while the Supreme Council of India is said to advocate the maintenance of our present hold. The alternative proposed by Lieut. Col. Browne—viz., of retiring hereafter from Kandahar and retaining Pishin, Bhor, and the Peiwar, makes a nice point for military engineers to discuss as to the exact difference between the effect of this or of the retention of Kandahar. But, at all events, it is well to see that there is a growing chance of a fair medium being adopted between advance to Herat, which, in truth, is a dream of the future, and would at present be too bold for almost any practical politician, and that withdrawal from all the results gained by the successes for which his countrymen are worthily feting General Roberts—that withdrawal which would be ever described in the words applied to it by the late Viceroy of India.

KURAM FIELD FORCE.—The following farewell order has been issued by Major General J. Watson, C.B., V.C., commanding, dated Kohat, Oct. 29, 1880:—"The divisional headquarters, Kuram Force, will be broken up on the 31st inst. Officers of the divisional staff will return to India under such orders as they may receive from the adjutant general or heads of their departments. The Major General himself takes leave of the troops, which he has had the honour to command for twelve months, with the expression of his kind regards for all those who, with him, have patiently kept watch and ward in Afghanistan, holding themselves ready for any emergency which might arise to try their discipline and courage. The Major General in January last had the honour to submit to H.E. the Commander in Chief a report of operations by the late Brigadier General Tylor, in which many of the officers and troops of the Kuram Force took part, and proved their power to drive the Afghan over his highest hills and through his most difficult passes. Although the Brigadier General's despatch has not been published, the Major General feels sure that the names of officers honourably mentioned will not be unnoticed by H.E. the Commander in Chief. Many of the officers and men of the force have been more than two years in the field without a day's leave, and the Major General congratulates them on the prospect of, at last, returning to India, and enjoying the liberal furlough opened to them by Government. Some time ago, by direction of H.E. the Commander in Chief, the Major General had the pleasure of submitting recommendation rolls of all officers, staff and regimental whom he considered deserving of commendation and reward. Although it is not in the Major General's province to repeat the names of those so sent in, yet he may beg that all those officers who held responsible posts and who have performed their duties with zeal, intelligence, and energy—all in fact whom the Major General would wish to see again associated with himself in any future field service—will rest assured that they are not forgotten.—By order, (signed) A. P. PALMER, Colonel, A.A.G.K.F. Force."

HOME NEWS.

THE DUKE OF BUCKINGHAM.—A largely attended meeting of magistrates of the county of Buckingham was held on Friday, at the Shire Hall, Aylesbury, to consider the most suitable means of celebrating the return of the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos and the Ladies Grenville, from India, in January next. Mr. Henry Cazenove, high sheriff of the county, presided. Lord Carington moved, seconded by Hon. P. Barrington, "that a public welcome, on behalf of the county, be given to his Grace the Duke of Buckingham, lord lieutenant of the county." Lord Chesham proposed, and Sir P. Duncombe seconded, "that an address be presented to his Grace congratulating him and the Ladies Grenville on their return to the county, and that such address be presented by the High Sheriff and others on behalf of the county."

THE LATE BRIGADIER GENERAL BROOKE.—The Serapis, troopship, Captain Twiss, which arrived at Portsmouth on Saturday, brought home the body of Brigadier General Brooke, who was killed in a sortie outside Kandahar while endeavouring to rescue a wounded man. The gallant officer's remains, after interment in India, were exhumed at the request of his relatives, and during the voyage the coffin containing them was deposited in a mortuary chapel specially erected for the purpose on the starboard side of the upper deck. Lieutenant General Prince Edward of Saxe Weimar, C.B., commanding the Southern Military District, accompanied by his staff, proceeded to the southern jetty of the dockyard at one o'clock and received the coffin, which was brought ashore by soldiers, followed by naval and military officers, all being uncovered as it was placed in a van on the line of railway, the 108th Regiment which was drawn up on the jetty, presenting arms, and the ship's ensign being lowered. The van was attached to a passenger train, which left shortly afterwards; the body, in charge of relatives, being taken to Ireland for interment.

THE INDIA MAIL SERVICE.—We understand that the recommendations of the Peninsular and Oriental Company for the mail service to India and the Far East for 1881 have been virtually agreed to by the Post-office authorities, but have been referred by the latter to the India-office before being finally settled. We believe that if this arrangement is confirmed it is proposed to have a uniform delivery in London of the Eastern mails every Tuesday morning, the convenience of which will cause a great amount of satisfaction.—London and China Express.

THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE.—The regulations for the open competition of June, 1881, for the Indian Civil Service have been issued. The examination will be held on June 2 and following days. Candidates must be natural born subjects of her Majesty, above seventeen and under nineteen years old on June 1, 1881, free from disease, constitutional affection, or bodily infirmity, and of good moral character; and must have paid a fee of £5. The examination will include English composition, history, and literature; Greek, Latin, French, German, Italian, mathematics (pure and mixed), natural science, logic, elements of political economy, Sanskrit, and Arabic. Persons desirous to be admitted as candidates must apply on forms, which may be obtained from "The Secretary, Civil Service Commission, London, S.W.," at any time after Dec. 1, 1880. The forms must be returned so as to be received at the office of the Civil Service Commissioners on or before April 1, 1881.

THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE TOWARDS HINDUSTAN.—On

Tuesday, Dec. 7, the first of a series of lectures on the above subject was given by Lieut. Col. Burnaby, in the Birmingham Town-hall. The gallant colonel, after tracing the steady progress made by Russia in the direction of India, and giving a lucid historical account of the country and politics down to the capture of Samarcand, continued:—By thus establishing herself in Bokhara, Russia came within striking distance of Merv. Merv promises ere long to be the theatre of events which may have great influence on her Majesty's Eastern Empire. It may not be uninteresting if I talk to you a little about this important military position, which from Khiva and Bokhara is the key of Herat in the same way as Herat is considered to be the key of India. The basis of Merv has an area of 60 miles by 40. It supports about 60,000 Turcomans, who cultivate some of the land. This produces an abundance of barley, wheat, and Indian corn. It has a magnificent supply of water from the Moorgaub River, and the richness of its soil, if properly cultivated, would make it one of the most important places in Central Asia. Should it be taken by the Russians it would grow corn and supply cattle for an army of more than 500,000 men, and would be invaluable to them as a granary and depot when prepared to march on Hindustan. This short résumé shows that the Russians who are now established in Bokhara, would have no difficulty in taking Merv if they choose to do so vis-à-vis Chargui; but their present object is not so much to immediately possess themselves of that position as to establish their ascendancy along the north of Persia, after which Merv will be included in the new frontier. Will England permit this? Let us hope that England, even under the present administration, will not be so blind to her own interests. We ought never to forget that we are a great naval and not a great military Power. Once Russia is established at Merv the day will not be far off when sepoy and cossack will be engaged in a death struggle which will decide the destiny, not only of Hindustan, but of the whole of the British Empire. Colonel Burnaby asked what other object could the Russian Government have in its costly annexation of the, for the most part, impoverished country that lies between themselves and Hindustan, and quoted the opinions of Vambéry and Terentzeff in confirmation. In conclusion he said that in case Russia occupies Merv the retainment of Kandahar would be more essential than ever for the future security of Hindustan. "You may observe that in this lecture I have not touched upon the capture of Khiva by General Kauffmann. I have not done so, as I should have been compelled to take up too much of your time, and the events which led to its capture and the falsehoods told by the Russian Government are still fresh in many of your memories. I can only conclude by thanking you for your kindly attention, and by asking you, in the interests of the British Empire, to insist upon our retention of Kandahar."

THE AFGHAN CAMPAIGN.—On Monday evening, at the ordinary meeting of the Royal Geographical Society, Captain T. H. Holdich, R.E., who was lately in charge of the surveys in Afghanistan, read a paper on "The Geographical Results of the Afghan Campaign." Sir H. Rawlinson presided.—Captain Holdich, in the course of his lecture, stated that the work of geographical survey was still growing in Afghanistan. Already from 25,000 to 35,000 square miles had been mapped, and, further, there had been secured on the far west a knowledge of the position of a series of very well-marked peaks, which might help us to extend our maps to the banks of the Oxus, and enable us to join hands with the Russian surveyors in Central Asia. Ere long Afghanistan would be an open map to us. It had been found that roads were easily constructed along the worst of the river beds, and these beds afforded facilities for reaching the interior of the country to an extent which was certainly unexpected. Taking as comprehensive a view as could be taken of the whole geographical system of Afghanistan, especially on that side of it nearest to Russia, it could be no longer maintained that it offered very serious geographical obstacles to the improvements of a modern well-equipped division. Everything new that was learned diminished the value of the supposed barriers between Afghanistan and its north western provinces. Describing the Hindu Kush, Captain Holdich held that, so far as the Koh Daman or plains of Cabul were concerned, the line of the Hindu Kush was hardly a defensible, and was certainly a most undesirable, military frontier. There was no reason why the geographical foothold obtained in the country should be abandoned because the campaign was over, especially when the two years' occupation had led, as he firmly believed, to a widespread feeling towards the invaders on the part of the people generally, which could hardly be described as one of toleration, but which rather seemed vaguely to express an acknowledgment that we had been fair and honest foes, with whom friendship would be quite possible on any other terms than that of our being invaders. From a military point of view Kandahar was the most important point in Afghanistan; its broad open plains being ill suited for Afghan tactics. Compared to Kandahar, Cabul was but an arsenal, and a convenient strategical point from which to govern turbulent northern tribes. Every scrap of geographical information which could be casually gleaned about the approaches to Herat from the north and north west, or from Herat to Kandahar, tended more or less to modify our former opinions of their difficulty and danger. As we found geographical difficulties vanishing, so we found modern armies were rapidly developing new powers of mobility. History had a habit of repeating itself, and we should find that the march of General Roberts on Kandahar would not be the last achievement of its sort in high Asia.—In the discussion following the paper, Sir R. Temple, General Hills, General Macpherson, General Sir H. Thuermer, Major Woodthorpe, Mr. Blandford, and the Chairman joined in congratulating the reader of the paper and geographers generally on the geographical results of the campaign.—The chairman spoke of the gradual awakening of the British Government to the importance of surveying, as manifested in the improvements of this branch of the service. Much of this improvement was due, he thought, to the lessons derived from the Franco-German war.—A vote of thanks to Captain Holdich concluded the proceedings.

THE annual general meeting of the Institution of Civil Engineers will be held on Tuesday next at 8 p.m.

ARRIVAL OF THE "SERAPIS."—The Serapis, Captain Twiss, which left Bombay on the 13th of November, arrived at Portsmouth on Saturday morning, having been somewhat delayed after leaving Malta, owing to the fracture of two blades of her propeller, probably from wreckage. As she encountered a favourable wind on passing Gibraltar she was enabled to use her sail power, by which means she made up for lost time. The Serapis disembarked the 62nd Regiment at Aden, and brought thence the 1st

It consists of Colonel Colthurst, Majors Hole and Cockburn; Captains Fitzgerald, Collis, Meredith, and O'Beirne; Lieutenant Corse-Scott, Howard, Lumsden, Jones, Clayton, London, Chambers, and Twigg; Quartermaster Beedle, twenty-seven sergeants, fourteen drummers, 408 rank and file, twenty-three women, and forty children. Four soldiers and a child died on the passage.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—On Wednesday, Dec. 8, tenders were received at the Bank of England for Rs. 35,00,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, Rs. 18,27,000; to Bombay, Rs. 15,00,000; and to Madras, Rs. 1,73,000. Tenders on all Presidencies at 1s. 7½d. received about 6 per cent.; above that price in full. Compared with the previous week, this price shows a decline of 1-16d. Yesterday tenders were received for the same amount, of which Rs. 33,26,000 were allotted to Calcutta and Rs. 1,74,000 to Bombay. The average rates were 1s. 7-812d. both on Calcutta and Bombay. Tenders on both Presidencies at 1s. 7-13-16d. will receive about 13 per cent.; above that price in full.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The report states that the receipts for the past half-year show an increase of £43,665, the expenses a decrease of £8,794, and the net earnings an increase of £52,459, as compared with the corresponding period of last year. The amount required to cover the guaranteed interest paid by Government for the half-year was £200,257. The difference between this sum and the net profits of the period, subject to small adjustments under the arrangement made with the Secretary of State applicable towards the cost of the new Nerbudda bridge, is £105,625. Of the total increase in the gross receipts £13,012 is due to coaching traffic, £23,031 to goods traffic, and £7,622 to other receipts. The amount of guaranteed capital remains unchanged at £8,125,300, of which £200,000 consists of 4 per cent. debentures maturing in 1882, and £375,000 of similar debentures maturing in 1884. The capital expended during the half-year amounted to £83,054, of which £35,153 was applied to work on the new Nerbudda Bridge, while £28,256 was spent on new additional rolling-stock, and the balance chiefly on works at stations and minor bridges.

Refunds were made to capital during the half-year, amounting to £26,947, of which £25,000 came from the fire insurance fund as part payment of the cost of the new Nerbudda Bridge, as mentioned in previous reports. The net additional debt against capital during the half-year amounted, therefore, to £56,107. The total expenditure on capital account was thereby raised at June 30 last to £7,602,330, exclusive of stores and materials on hand, or in transit to India, which represented a further sum of £309,006.

EAST INDIA RAILWAY.—We are officially informed that at the half-yearly general meeting, convened for the 4th proximo, the board of directors will recommend the payment of a dividend of £1 7s. per cent. on the deferred annuity capital of the company, in addition to the guaranteed interest at 2 per cent.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.—The report states that the gross receipts for the half-year ended June 30 last amounted to £1,324,920, and the expenditure to £650,960, leaving as profit £677,505, inclusive of certain items brought in by the operation of the special funds accounts. The company's moiety of the surplus profits for the half-year reaches in sterling £46,458. Out of this it is proposed to distribute a dividend at the rate of 4s. 6d. per cent., in addition to the guaranteed interest of £2 10s.

CEYLON COMPANY.—The directors have issued an interim report, which states that the coffee crop of 1879-80 yielded net slightly more than was expected, and that the latest accounts of the 1880-81 crop were favourable. Intimation is also made that large extra quantities of cinchona have been planted, and that experiments are in progress, or about to be instituted, with tea, cacao, caoutchouc, &c. The expenses have been considerably less; but unfortunately the company does not pay. Affairs in Mauritius do not mend appreciably; the company is involved in lawsuits both there and in Ceylon, and this year already calls amounting to £101,337 have been made, of which £82,940 has been paid, about £21,000 of the share capital paid has been forfeited, £9,900 of fully paid shares have been surrendered, and about £2,000 in money has been made over to the company besides. The directors add that they are sorry that they find it to be necessary, and they have determined to call up capital next year, as in 1880. In the circular of the 3rd January last it was mentioned that circumstances might enable the directors to distribute these calls over 1881 and 1882; but the short yield of coffee for the season 1880-81 has quite destroyed the hope of such mitigation. Due notice of these calls will be sent to the proprietors, and the directors express their great regret at the suffering and trouble it may cause to many.

MADRAS RAILWAY.—The twenty-eighth half-yearly meeting of the shareholders took place on Monday at the City Terminus Hotel; Col. J. T. Smith presided. The chairman, in opening the proceedings, said on the last occasion their officers had been occupied in endeavouring, as far as possible, to reduce expenditure and to increase the efficiency of the service. This he was glad to find had been gained; but it was a matter of regret that although economy in the expenditure had been attained, yet, owing to the fact that troops had not been required to be moved, or any great quantity of grain required to be carried, the result of the half-year's working had not been so favourable as they expected. The reduction of the fares has had a marked effect on the passenger traffic, and for the year, he thought, this increase would be about one million. The people could now travel at the rate of ¼d. per mile, and the loss to the company consequent on the reduction of fares had been about £200. They had also had under consideration the question of reducing the rates of goods carriage, but this required to be dealt with very carefully; but they had arranged to send parcels at a uniform rate for any distance, and this, he had reason to think, would be of great benefit, and he had also reason to suppose that this department would be a decided success. It had, however, only been in operation for six months, and in that time it had paid its way. Changes had been made in the locomotive department, but they had to be cautious in this respect. The superintendent gave them notice that some of their stock was getting old, and would have to be renewed. An attempt had been made to get native coal, but it was found that, considering the steam producing power of the coals, it was more economical to have English coal delivered into their yards at Madras. No great engineering works had been completed during the half-year as they had not yet the consent of the Indian Government to construct three bridges which were in contemplation. They had, however, made a junction with the Madras Irrigation Company's Canal, and this he considered an advantage, as all the traffic brought to the line was seasonable and serviceable. He had also to report that the short line to Bangalore had been handed over to their agent and manager, and he anticipated that it would be opened by Jan. 1. After alluding to the gold discoveries at Mysor, he said that there were seventeen joint-stock companies formed to work these mines, and the expenditure of large sums of money in the country must be beneficial to the company. He concluded by moving the adoption of the report. Mr. Spring seconded the motion, which, after some discussion, was adopted; and the proceedings closed with a cordial vote of thanks to the chairman, directors, and officials.

MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.—A meeting of the mortgagees of the above company took place on Wednesday, Dec. 8, when a resolution was proposed to the effect that the terms offered by the Government be accepted so far as regards the mortgage debenture holders, and that on the transfers being completed the Secretary of State for India will, in redemption of the mortgage debenture debt due by the company, pay £75 for each £100 of principal of the mortgage debentures, with interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, on each £75 from Nov. 1, 1880, until such amount of principal is paid, the £75 thus paid being received by the holders of the mortgage debt on giving up their securities as in full discharge of all claims for principal and interest against the company, and in full discharge of all claims, if any, against the Secretary of State for India. An amendment to this resolution was put and lost, and then another amendment was carried to the following effect:—"That this meeting requests the committee of bondholders to represent to the Secretary of State for India that the offer made by him is not considered adequate, and to propose that the sum of £82 be substituted for the sum of £75 in such offer." This amendment was put and carried—forty-one voting for and thirty-one against it. The meeting was then adjourned till Jan. 4.

DEVALA MOYAR GOLD MINING COMPANY.—It is announced that the transfer books will be closed from Friday, 17th inst., to Friday, the 24th inst., both days inclusive, for the purpose of distributing a portion of the profit derived from the sale of the Rhodes Reef.

INDIAN MAMMOTH GOLD MINING COMPANY.—The first general meeting was held at the Cannon-street Hotel on Thursday last; Mr. Goodson in the chair. The chairman explained that this was a statutory meeting in accordance with the requirements of the Act of Parliament. He then read a long statement in reference to the differences which had arisen with regard to the title, and remarked that the lease of the property granted by the Raja to Mr. Minchin had been transferred to Capt. Cooksley and Mr. Adams, the vendors to the company, and it was now in the office of the company's solicitors in Bombay. The directors had received an offer of £50,000 for part of the company's property, which would receive the consideration of the board. A long discussion took place in reference to the sum of £15,000 having been paid to the vendors before they had really got possession of the property, and, after explanations from the chairman, the proceedings terminated.

THE "PISTON" FREEZING MACHINE (ASH'S PATENT).

The "Piston" Freezing Machine Freezing and Moulding Dessert Ices, Icing Wines, and making Block Ice.

ASH'S "PISTON" FREEZING MACHINE is the most effective and economical method of freezing known. It is rapidly becoming a part of the "cuisine" in the establishments of the aristocracy of this country; it has received the highest patronage, and is used in all parts of the world. By this process Ice Creams are frozen in shapes ready for table—an operation never before accomplished—entirely superseding the use of ice pots and moulds; it also forms a Wine Cooler and produces Blocks of Ice. When not used with the usual ice and salt mixture, as on board ships, in the Tropics, &c., Ash's Freezing Powders are most effective, and guaranteed to succeed.

Price of the Machines, from 50s. each.

The "Piston" Freezing Machine (without the Fittings) forming a complete Wine Cooler.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered. CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma. CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague. CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms. CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manila, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1864.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, 13th July, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanied each bottle.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Dec. 4; Madras and Allahabad, Dec. 2; Calcutta, Dec. 1.

THE reports on the state of the season and the prospects of the crops for the week ending Nov. 23 state that rain has fallen throughout the Madras Presidency and the general prospects continue satisfactory. There has been slight rain in parts of the Deccan and prospects are generally good. In Bengal there was no rain, except light showers in parts of Behar; prospects are, however, very favourable, and the sowing of the cold weather crops is nearly completed. The usual autumnal fever prevails in many places. Good and general rain fell in all districts in the North Western Provinces and Oudh, which has greatly benefited the rabi crops, and a much larger area will now be sown. All immediate fears as to the rabi are over, but more rain is wanted in Cawnpore and part of Allahabad. Prices have fallen in Fyzabad, Rae Bareilly, and Partabgarh, but have risen a little in Cawnpore. Several districts in the Central Provinces have had rain, the kharif outturn is good on the whole, and the rabi sowings have been completed; fever is abating. In Burma there has been no rain; the crops have suffered in places from want of the later rain, but generally they are good. In Assam and the other provinces and States the prospects are good, except in parts of Gwalior and Northern Bundelkhand, where there is still reason for anxiety. Throughout India prospects are now generally satisfactory, though in some places more rain is still required.

A FURTHER rainfall is reported from the North Western Provinces, and there is a decided improvement in the crop prospects. The last official report of the two worst districts is as follows:—"At Rae Bareilly there were showers on the 10th and 13th, but rain was not general. The sowings are almost over and the crops are thriving. The demand for work is slackening somewhat, and wages are falling. The fodder difficulty is increasing. The Cawnpore irrigated crops are thriving. The markets are well supplied and prices are unchanged."

THE health reports for the same week are as follow:—Bombay: Fever in Sind and Guzerat. Bengal: Usual autumnal fever prevalent in many places, in Nuddea very severe; in Bhagulpore cholera decreasing. North West Provinces and Oudh: Gorakhpur, fever prevalent; slight fever in Meerut; general health good. Punjab: Slight fever prevalent in Rawul Pindi; general health good. Central Provinces: Fever abating. British Burma: Cholera abating in Prome; cases still occurring in Pegu; otherwise health good. Assam: Malarious fever prevalent in Gauhati. Mysor and Coorg: Health good. Hyderabad: Ague prevalent. Central India: Manpur, fever prevalent below Ghats; elsewhere health good. Rajputana: Reports good.

THE recent telegrams referring to Afghanistan from Kandahar, Quetta, and Teheran are as follow:—

"The only important news of the past week is from Herat, whence we hear that the tribal confederation against Ayub Khan has fallen through and its leaders have dispersed. Details are yet wanting, but there is no doubt that the immediate cause was the defection of Khan Agha, the Jamshidi chief, who left the camp of the confederates when already on the march towards Herat, and joined his son-in-law, Ayub. The danger is for the time averted; but all accounts testify to Ayub's extreme unpopularity and the harsh and oppressive character of his rule. From Cabul there is no news at Kandahar, caravans being, it is said, detained at Ghazni on account of the dangerous state of the road, which is infested, between that place and Khelat-i-Ghilzai, by numerous bands of robbers."

"Intelligence received at Teheran from Herat states that Ayub Khan having been informed that the tribes in the Kushk district had revolted, desired to despatch a force against them, but that, his troops having been without pay for a long time past, refused to march."

"All is quiet in Afghanistan. Abdul Rahman is meeting with no success whatever in his efforts to collect revenues at any distance from his capital, the Ghilzais and other tribes acting as if entirely independent of his rule. The presence of the British at Kandahar is indeed the only security existing against universal anarchy in Afghanistan. A column is on the point of starting against the Marris to complete the work which was left unfinished by Macgregor."

YESTERDAY'S telegram from Allahabad states that the feverish symptoms have disappeared, and Lord Ripon's convalescence is now completely established. No more bulletins respecting his Excellency's health will consequently be issued.

LORD RIPON has declined to preside at the annual meeting of the Doveton College, a Protestant institution. The affairs of the college are just now exciting much notice in Calcutta.

SPEAKING at Puna recently, the Marquis of Ripon said that what India wants is peace and rest that she may devote herself to the advancement and progress of agriculture and commerce.

THIS week's telegram says that, in consequence of the illness of the Viceroy at Allahabad, "India may almost be said to be without a Government. Sir John Strachey, who was appointed president of the Council for the period of the Viceroy's tour, has been visiting some friends at Bankipore prior to proceeding to Bombay, whence he sails for England on Saturday. The other members of the Supreme Council are in Calcutta, but for the present they are without any head, and, therefore, unable to act as a corporate body. There was some talk of their being summoned to Allahabad, but such a course would be most inconvenient, and doubtless detrimental to the Viceroy's health as well, and, as Lord Ripon cannot be fit for work for some time, it seems likely that as soon as Sir John Strachey is relieved by Mr. Baring, who is expected by this week's mail, one of the other members will be gazetted president of the Council."

THE Indian papers are chiefly filled with the particulars of the Viceregal visit to Bombay. The amount of work in the shape of official visits, inspections, receptions, and orations performed by his Excellency was only too likely to bear fruit in the shape of the illness from which the latest telegram states that he is now pronounced convalescent. His speeches were most felicitous, and he evidently earned a large amount of popularity, in which the Marchioness of Ripon shared.

IN his reply to the address from the Municipal Committee of Puna, his Excellency the Viceroy said:—

"I am well aware that that reception is due to the fact that I occupy the great position of the representative of your Queen-Empress of India; I doubt not you are well aware how deep is the interest which her Majesty takes in all that concerns the welfare and advancement of her Indian subjects. Her Majesty from time to time does me the honour of addressing to me a few words; and I can truly say that there is scarcely an occasion upon which, in those letters, there is not contained some message to her people in India, messages always expressive of the deep personal interest with which she ever regards the inhabitants of this great jewel of the English Crown."

MR. ADAM, the new Governor of Madras, arrived at Bombay on Monday week, and left for Madras on Thursday. He will assume charge of his office at once.

THE Duke of Buckingham and Chandos, late Governor of Madras, sailed from Bombay for England on Monday.

THE latest telegrams state that the excitement among the Sonthals has subsided.

MAJOR MICHELL, political officer, Naga Hills, has seized one of the most ill-affected and influential chiefs and sent him a prisoner into Assam.

As already telegraphed, orders have been given for the immediate removal of the telegraph wire between Lundi Kotal and Peshawur, and an officer has been detailed to superintend the work. It is presumed, says the Bombay journal, the troops will follow, and our withdrawal from the Khyber Pass be accomplished.

A DISASTROUS fire has occurred at Rangoon. A large amount of property was destroyed, the principal fire engines having completely broken down. The damage is estimated at nineteen lakhs of rupees.

COLONEL H. H. GOUGH, C.B., V.C., who has just returned from Southern Afghanistan, where he was in command of a cavalry brigade, has resumed charge of his appointment as commandant 12th Bengal Cavalry.

THE thanks of the Secretary of State have been given to Mr. Campbell Thomson, executive engineer, Rajputana State Railway, for his services in supervising the practical course for students of the Royal Indian Engineering College, Cooper's-hill, during 1879-80.

It is stated, says the Englishman, that, in consequence of the opposition which the proposed Rent Bill has met with from the landholders in Bengal and Behar, it is to be transferred from the Bengal to the Viceregal Legislative Council.

THE Indian Government has passed a decision on the question at issue between the Calcutta merchants and the local custom-house regarding alleged misdescription of cotton goods claiming exemption from duty. The Government acquits the importers of any intention of fraud, and admits that the action of the customs authorities in imposing penalties was injudicious, although not illegal. It was ordered that in future penalties shall not be imposed indiscriminately in every case of misdescription, and that in ordinary cases it will be sufficient simply to levy duty. The importers, therefore, may be said to have got the best of the dispute.

THE secretary of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce has received a letter from the India-office stating:—"No official information has reached the Government regarding the alleged proposal of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal that the Government of India should reimpose a moderate duty on all classes of cotton goods, and Lord Hartington has no reason to suppose that such a proposal would be entertained by the Government of India."

AT a meeting of the electors of North East Lancashire Mr. Grafton, M.P., read a letter from the Secretary for India as follows:—

"The rumours to the effect that there is an intention to reimpose a uniform rate of duty on cotton goods, including those now free from duty, have probably risen from the speech of Sir Ashley Eden, the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, in which he said that the present system had so broken down that it would probably be necessary to revert to a uniform rate. The Manchester Chamber of Commerce wrote to me on the subject, and has been informed that we have no official information on the subject, and have no reason to suppose that the Government of India would entertain such a proposal. I believe that this reply has already been published in some of the newspapers, but you may probably think it desirable to repeat the substance of it as from myself personally. And you are quite at liberty to add that, as at present advised, I should most strongly object to the adoption of any such retrograde policy."

THE Marquis of Hartington has fixed Wednesday next, at the India-office, to receive a deputation of Lancashire manufacturers on the subject of the Indian import duties and the attitude of the Indian Government in relation thereto.

It is strange, the Lahore paper remarks, that we have heard nothing yet of any recognition by the Government of the services of the Naga Field Force. Recently occurred the anniversary of the assault and capture of Konoma—as gallant an action as any in our Indian annals; but, except the bestowal of the Victoria Cross on Lieut.

Ridgeway, and the grant of the Order of Merit to five non-commissioned officers and men of the 44th Native Infantry, nothing has been done to reward the troops for their continuous and arduous labours throughout a very harassing and protracted campaign. The 44th N.I. alone lost three British officers killed and wounded, three native officers, and seventy-two of all ranks killed and wounded. The hard fighting and hard work which has fallen to this regiment during the past two years has not been surpassed by any encountered by other portions of the native army, and it is bad policy to leave them unrecognized while the more favoured regiments obtain full reward and compensation. It was understood that a medal would be granted for this as well as for previous campaigns on the Eastern frontier, and six months' batta would be money as well invested there in compensating good soldiers for their labours as in any other part of India.

A TELEGRAM from St. Petersburg states that on the night between the 18th and 19th inst. the cavalry under Colonel Navotsky, belonging to General Skobelev's force, occupied Kelat-Nadir after a severely-contested engagement, inflicting a serious defeat upon the Tekke Turcomans, who made an obstinate defence. The Russians captured many rifles, as well as several thousand sheep and a number of horned cattle. A body of troops with artillery was advancing from Merv to render assistance to the Tekkes. According to intelligence from Tiflis, the Russian troops who were concentrated on the Russo-Persian frontier have been withdrawn to their headquarters.

THE St. Petersburg correspondent of the Standard states that there is no truth in the statement that Lord Dufferin, before his departure, received instructions with a view to an agreement being come to between England and Russia.

It is proposed to make the chancel of the Lahore Cathedral a memorial of the British soldiers who fell in the late Afghan campaign. The Civil and Military Gazette writes:—"As the advance on Cabul has made the years 1878-79-80 very eventful ones for India, and more especially for the Punjab, from whose boundaries large armies have lately sallied forth, and as many regiments recently engaged in the expedition were closely connected with the Punjab, and have had to mourn the loss of comrades in battle or victims to disease, it has been suggested that no more fitting place to establish a lasting memorial of such friends could be found than in the capital of the Punjab, now wanting its cathedral to fit it to rank as the northern capital of Christianity in India. The total cost of the cathedral is estimated at Rs.2,50,000, of which sum a little over Rs.2,00,000 have been promised. The chancel is the only portion of the edifice for which funds are still required. The committee, therefore, solicit contributions for this part of the building, and they suggest that the names of all the British soldiers who have died in their country's service during the last Cabul campaigns should be engraved on mural tablets, to be hereafter placed in the chancel."

DURING the week ending Nov. 25 there were 337 deaths in Calcutta, giving a death-rate of 40.9 per 1,000 per annum. In Madras during the same week there were 298 deaths, and the death-rate was 38.9 per 1,000 per annum. In Bombay during the week ending Nov. 23 the deaths numbered 361, giving a death-rate of 27.43 per 1,000 per annum.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—Rev. W. Greenway; Lieut. Col. Crispin, 4th Bombay Rifles; Mr. W. W. Alexander, inspector of schools, Punjab.

THE VICEROY AT BOMBAY.

THE Viceroy arrived at Bombay on Nov. 27 and dined that evening at the Byculla Club, the chair being taken by Sir Michael Westropp, the chief justice of Bombay, who had the Viceroy on his right hand and the Governor on his left. The Bombay Volunteers furnished a guard of honour of 200 men. After the customary loyal toasts the chairman proposed the health of the Viceroy, whom he described as one who, by descent and experience, was both statesman and diplomatist.

The Viceroy, replying, said that the chairman, at all events, truly described him as having a hereditary interest in India. His grandfather was Governor of Madras, and his first recollections of life were connected with those stirring scenes which marked the viceregalities of Lord Ellenborough and Sir Henry Hardinge, when his (the Viceroy's) father was chairman of the Board of Control. The chairman next proposed the health of the Governor of Bombay, and the Hon. Mr. Ashburner proposed the health of the Army and Navy and the Volunteers. The Commander in Chief, replying, referred to the Maiwand disaster as an event which, though it cost a great many valuable lives, yet attained the end which was desired—viz., stopping Ayub's advance. The event had been subjected to many adverse remarks; but he could assure his hearers that, speaking simply as commander of the Bombay Army, he had not in any way lost confidence in the Bombay sepoys, and he trusted he might have the opportunity, which hitherto had been denied him, of leading them against an enemy. The Viceroy, in proposing the toast of the Byculla Club, referred to General Warre's speech, and said the Government of India, and himself individually, highly appreciated the great undoubted efforts made, under difficulties which it was difficult to over-estimate, by the Bombay troops. General Warre, in returning thanks, alluded to the strenuous exertions General Phayre made to reach Kandahar in time to meet General Roberts, who got to the ground in time to scatter the already almost scattered forces of Ayub. General Phayre did not meet an enemy, so did not reap the benefit of his extraordinary exertions. The Viceroy said that General Phayre's services were already acknowledged in official despatches. On Nov. 29 the Viceroy held a levee, which was very numerous attended. After the levee he held a review of the troops in garrison and the volunteers, numbering in all about 1,500. The 66th Regiment, which arrived on 28th, took part in the movements, and was loudly cheered when marching past. Subsequently the non-commissioned officers and men of the 66th were entertained at dinner by the members of the Bombay Government. About 400 sat down, and during dinner the Viceroy, accompanied by the Governor and the Commander in Chief, entered the dining tent. The Viceroy addressed the men as follows:—Non-commissioned officers and men of the 66th Regiment, I am very glad to have this opportunity of associating myself with the welcome which is given you on this occasion by the members of the Government of Bombay. The great feat of arms which was performed by your gallant comrades who died to the last man in defence of the standards of the Queen-Empress has already been acknowledged, as you are perfectly aware, in glowing terms by the Commander in Chief, Sir Frederick Haines, whose words have been cordially endorsed by the Government of India. Your feat will live in the memory of your country and in the memory of the world so long as great deeds and noble self-sacrifices have their value among men. But, 66th, you must remember that to have been comrades of those who died so gallantly throws great responsibility upon this noble regiment, because you have to maintain, each and all of you, in your future history, the fame which has been won for you by those who have died for their country. I will not detain you longer, except to say how heartily I wish you God speed, and how firm is my confidence that throughout the world you will know how to defend those colours which will be again entrusted to you by your Queen. Three cheers were called for the Viceroy and heartily responded to, and three cheers were called for the Queen. Col. Hogge, commanding the regiment, in responding, thanked the Viceroy for the kind words he had uttered, remarking that if upon any future occasion the 66th should be called upon they would fight equally as well, but he hoped with better result. Col. Hogge then called for three years for the Commander in Chief, which were heartily given, and one of the men called three cheers for General Burrows, which were also enthusiastically given. General Warre said he was more pleased at that cheer for General Burrows than at the cordial welcome they had given him. The Viceregal party then left, the Viceroy saying, "Good-bye, men; God bless you." On Nov. 30 the Viceroy received a deputation from the Chamber of Commerce, who presented a long address. His Excellency, in reply, said he was glad to have an opportunity of meeting the representatives of the mercantile community of Bombay. He appreciated very highly the enterprise of that community, and set a high value upon the maintenance and extension of all that concerned its interests. In regard to the first and most important question in the address—that of through communication on through lines of railway—the Viceroy said he sympathised with them in principle as he thought it very desirable that those through lines should not be subject to a brake of gauge, but at the same time the chamber must recollect it was a very different thing to decide the question in the first instance and to go back from a policy which has already been adopted and carried out. He acknowledged generally the great advantages of railway communication and extension, and it was the desire of Government to obtain all possible information on the subject. As the Hon. Mr. Gibbs was head of the Railway Department the interests of Bombay were in no danger of being neglected. After referring to the petroleum factories bills as matters which would require careful attention, he came to the subject of telephonic communication, when he distinctly declared his preference for private companies over Government when the former could do the work. At the same time he said the monopoly of electric communication now in the hands of Government, both in India and England, must be carefully safeguarded, but he conceded that Government was bound to see the wants of the public amply supplied. He stated that a proposition was now before Government in regard to the establishment of telephone exchanges, and that the matter would be most carefully considered. The Viceroy afterwards visited the Crawford Market and the School of Art. In the evening his Excellency distributed prizes to the pupils at St. Francis Xavier's College, a Roman Catholic educational institution, and afterwards delivered a brief address, in the course of which he enlarged upon the benefits of education and the necessity, in these days of keen competition, of a thorough education.—Pioneer.

THE SONTHALS.

THE Sonthal country, which in 1855 was the scene of a rebellion on a small scale, is again causing some anxiety to the Government. Signs of discontent have for some weeks past been apparent among the rude aboriginal tribes who inhabit that country. The numbering of their houses and other preparations for the census to be taken next February seem to have frightened them into an idea that a poll-tax or some other obnoxious impost was about to be imposed. This restlessness was especially manifest in the neighbourhood of Jamtara, a station on the main line of the East Indian Railway, and the deputy magistrate in charge of that subdivision at length thought it necessary to call the attention of the deputy commissioner of the Sonthal Pergunnahs to the matter. That officer at once proceeded to Jamtara, where he met a deputation, which invited him to go to Narainpore, twelve miles distant. On his arrival there he found about 200 men collected, to whom he tried to explain matters; but, finding that they would not listen, he returned to Jamtara. On the way back he heard that after he had left Narainpore seditious and threatening language had been used. On the following day 600 Sonthals, armed with clubs, assembled at Jamtara and assumed an insolent and menacing attitude. Thereupon the deputy commissioner arrested a man named Kyree and three others as ringleaders, and despatched them by train to Bhaugulpore. The Sonthals present showed intense excitement, but made no attempt at a rescue and dispersed, vowing that they would murder the two sahibs. That same night the subdivisional officer's bungalow was burnt down, but luckily without injury to its occupants. No further overt act has yet been reported, but the excitement shows no signs of abating, and it is rumoured that large bodies of Sonthals are collecting among the hills. The Bengal Government is taking every precaution and has strengthened the local police force, while the safety of the Jamtara station has been entrusted to a detachment of the East Indian Railway Volunteers.—Times Telegram.

NATIVE SOLDIERS AND THE FOREST DEPARTMENT.

UNDER instructions from Government the Commander in Chief, Sir F. Haines, has directed officers commanding regiments of native cavalry and infantry to afford every facility to conservators of forests, working under the orders of the local Governments, when called upon for the names of suitable non-commissioned officers of the regiments under their command, and for assistance in their selection for employment in the Forest Department. Only young men of good constitution and active habits are to be named; they should possess fair powers of observation, a good sense of locality, and such other qualifications as are likely to make them useful forest officers. They should not exceed the age of thirty years. The men should be familiar with the language of the district in which they are to be eventually employed. Commanding officers who may have suitable men in their regiments, for whom they wish to find employment, are to submit the names of such men to the Conservator of the School Forests at Dehra Dun, in the North Western Provinces. Men who may be selected for employment in the forests will at first be employed on probation, under the conservator by whom they were selected, and they will receive pay under the local Government. The time of probation in the forests, whether of the school circle or of other provinces, will be one year. The men who, on the expiry of their probation, are considered as desirable to retain, will then be called upon to make their choice as to the conditions of service. They may either take their discharge from the army, in which case their year of probation will count for service under the civil pension rules, or they may serve in the Forest Department, and be transferred to the Native Unattached List, and come under the pension rules laid down for men in that list. Those men whom it is not considered desirable to retain in the Forest Department at the termination of their year of probation will return to their regiments in the rank in which they left it and be absorbed as soon as possible.

CRIME IN CEYLON.

THE Ceylon police administration report for the past year discloses, as the inspector general remarks, that there was a general increase of lawlessness in the island during the year, especially as regards serious crimes; murders, manslaughters, serious offences against the person, malicious injuries, robberies with violence, gang robbery, all were more numerous than in the preceding year. The highways round Colombo, it is noticed in particular, were very unsafe on account of gangs of robbers. Towards the end of the year, however, matters appear to have in some respects mended. It would seem from this report, therefore, that man has been eminently vile in Ceylon during the past year. "The chief cause of the prevalence of crime," says the inspector general, with a boldness which should commend itself to a certain department of the public service in this country, "has been the working of the criminal courts of the island." A large percentage of undoubted criminals, he goes on to state, were acquitted, and thus it came to pass that "the criminals, who were getting off every day, and all their fraternity, openly laughed the police to scorn and became bold beyond measure." The inspector general thinks the remedial measure required is the introduction of the Indian Penal and Procedure Codes, and there is no doubt that if anything can reduce the crime of a country it is the regular administration of a scientific body of criminal law. Under the head of accidents it is noticed that fatal accidents to toddy drawers were very numerous, 225 of these men having been killed from falls while climbing cocoanut trees to draw the juice. Most of these accidents resulted from the breaking of the rope with the help of which the men climb the tree.—Englishman.

PASSING IN RUSSIAN.

A CORRESPONDENT, writing to a contemporary, says it appears to him an anomaly that as yet no reward or encouragement of any kind has been offered to officers for the study of the Russian language. Rewards are granted for passing examinations in the Persian and Arabic, but these are spoken at great distances from India, while the Russian Empire via the Chitral Pass, Zebek and Fyzabad, in Badakshan, is now only 338 miles from this country, a distance which is rapidly decreasing with each year. When on a visit to the Russian ironclad Petropaulovski, in the harbour of Smyrna in 1876, the officers of that vessel informed him that under a recent order of their Government all naval cadets were required to pass an examination in English before obtaining their commissions, and it was expected that the order would shortly be extended to the army also. He also ascertained at the same time that it was a fallacy to imagine, as is generally believed, that nearly all Russian officers are acquainted with French or German. Many certainly are, but by no means the majority. The correspondent in question suggests for the consideration of Government that rewards of at least Rs.1,000 and Rs.3,000 should be offered for passing examinations in the Russian language according to the higher standard and high proficiency tests respectively. These rewards, he says, however, would merely recoup the student of a small portion of his outlay, for instruction is not obtainable in India, and at least a year's residence in some part of Russia is absolutely necessary. He has on some half-a-dozen occasions received rewards for passing in a few Eastern languages, from Persian down to Canarese, but invariably he has found it, financially, a losing business in the end.—Times of India.

CARRIER CORPS AND COOLIES.

At the United Service Institute, on Friday, Sir Garnet Wolseley in the chair, a paper was read by Major G. Salis Schwabe, 16th Lancers, "On Carrier Corps and Coolies on Active Service in China, India, and Africa." He referred, first, to the Chinese experience in 1860, when, on the landing of 10,000 allied British and 7,000 French troops, Sir Hope Grant ordered a Chinese coolie corps, 4,000 strong, to be organised into ten companies of 400 each. The French, landing at Shanghai, raised a corps of 1,000 strong. During March and April the Chinese Coolie Corps rendered excellent service in unloading transports; 300 went with 2,500 troops to Chusan. In May the whole British force, which, with followers, amounted to 14,000, moved. To each seven battalions of European infantry was attached one company of the Chinese Coolie Corps, for carrying sick, ammunition, camp equipages, rations, wood, &c., doing their work well. On the first advance the excellent work of the Coolie Corps prevented the whole expedition coming to a stand, and throughout the campaign they did so well that in 1867 Lord Napier suggested a carrier corps for the Abyssinian campaign of 3,000 strong. Only 1,650 Bengal coolies, however, disembarked in Africa fit for duty in January and February. Of these 104 died and 294 were invalided. They did much good service, but were not so satisfactory as the Chinese coolies in 1860. In the Lushai expedition of 1871-72 a carrier corps was organised, but the transport arrangements were weak and there were the dangers of failure from the Governor General not having accepted Lord Napier's suggestions, though the work of the carriers justified the wisdom of their employment. In Ashantee in the autumn of 1873 native Carrier Corps were engaged, but at first the results were not satisfactory. Lieut. Col. Colley agreed to take the transport organisation out of the hands of the commissariat, when, by vigorous action on the part of Sir Garnet Wolseley, a sufficient number of carriers was got together, and then, within three weeks, the advance was made and the campaign was successfully brought to a close. The Duffla Expedition in 1874-75 showed further the advantage of Carrier Corps, provided the organisation is careful and the strictest discipline is maintained, independently of the commissariat. The great feature of the lecture was the Zulu experience, when, on the arrival of Sir Garnet Wolseley, the lecturer was made commander of a Kaffir Carrier Corps, which did admirable work. They were two thousand strong and carried 85,000lb. of stores—besides cooking utensils, camp equipage, and baggage—eleven miles and deposited their loads next day at Fort Chelmsford, eight miles further on. At first the Kaffirs were Natal natives, but they were soon superseded by Zulus, who did their work wonderfully well, considering the stories told of them by the Natal natives, the Zulu experience showing that carrier transport was superior to pack animals—an experience verified by the recent great march of General Roberts. Local carriers were inferior to an organised corps from a distance, and experience showed that Chinamen were far better than the natives of any other part of the world, and he therefore favoured Sir Hope Grant's suggestion of the embodiment of a permanent nucleus of a Chinese coolie corps for expansion on commencing any of our campaigns in barbarous countries without roads.

THE RETENTION OF KANDAHAR.

At a meeting of the East India Association, held on the 15th inst.—General Sir A. Taylor in the chair—Lieut. Col. Browne, R.E., read a paper on "The Retention of Kandahar and the Defence of the North West Frontier." After comparing the merits of Kandahar and Peshin for permanent occupation by England and declaring in favour of the latter, Col. Browne said, in face of the more urgent claims of railways to Peshin, to Peshawur, and to Thall, in the Kuram Valley, a railway along the Punjab border was not an urgent want. It would suffice for the present to construct a good bridged road. This would prepare the way for a railroad in the future. He suggested that the whole front of the defence should be further connected by rail to the rear, with Calcutta, Bombay, Karachi, and linked together by a cross line from Ghazee Khan and Mooltan and Lahore. Should Russia's advance, either towards Herat or Badakhan, require the precaution, the frontier railway and its connecting link from Dehra Ghazee to Mooltan should be completed in time to enable us to concentrate, as needed, to the north or to the south. Might it not be worth considering, he asked, whether a European military colony in Kashmir and Hazarab might not immensely strengthen our position in that quarter, while helping to solve some important social questions in India and doing away with some of the expense and difficulties which short service and the abolition of a local European army had brought in their train? He was opposed to the retention of Kandahar, and also opposed to returning to the old frontier of 1876; but in place of Kandahar he advocated the selection of the Peshin Valley. Kuram had so many advantages that the Afghans should not be allowed to return to it. On the whole, he advocated withdrawing from Kandahar in the spring and retaining Peshin, Bori, and the Peiwar. Russia would be thrown back on the line of the Upper Indus for any fulfilment of her somewhat problematical designs upon India, and the illusions the Afghans might yet entertain as to our relative powers would be dispelled. A discussion followed the reading of the paper. General Cavenagh concurred in the views expressed by Col. Browne as to the Indian frontier. He was, however, opposed to giving up the Khyber Pass. Sir George Malcolm, on the other hand, was altogether opposed to the withdrawal from Kandahar, on the ground that it was a retrograde step which would encourage our enemies. The abandonment of Kandahar would be a timid and weak policy, and, seeing that our charter for holding India was courage, he could not but view with regret any proposal to give up Kandahar. If we left Kandahar we should leave Russia master of the situation. Mr. Maclean strongly opposed the Peshin frontier as worse than useless. Sir A. Arbuthnot, while not expressing any opinion on the question of the temporary retention of Kandahar, was convinced it would be a great mistake to annex it. A great mistake had been made in deporting Yakub Khan and excluding him from ruling over the country. General MacLagan supported the views of Col. Browne. The discussion was continued by Lord Mark Kerr, Rajah Rampal Singh, and Col. Wood, after which Col. Browne replied briefly, and a vote of thanks was passed to him for his interesting paper.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THE CABUL CAMPAIGN.*

It has grown so much the fashion to expect, even from military narrators, elaborate judgments on the conduct of military affairs, that it is quite a relief to read Major Mitford's plain soldier-like story of his personal experiences. Such a work as his in no degree touches on the province of the historian; it rather affords the most valuable materials to him. Major Mitford takes us into his company [at the Kuram, and with him and his gallant Bengal Lancers we start on the expedition which set forth on Sept. 23, 1879, to avenge the massacre of the gallant Cavagnari. Nor do we say farewell until the 27th of the following January. We leave him enjoying the unaccustomed pleasures and well-earned rest of a British cantonment, even though it was only Peshawur. The march, the battle, and the encampment, the peaceful occupation of Cabul, and the stand made with beleaguered Sherpur, are in succession described with a bright clearness and plainness which thoroughly match the illustrations. As the latter most faithfully depict the fantastic piles of Afghan cliffs, where the weathered stone simulates ruinous battlements, so does the graphic description bring before us the actors in the scenes of fighting, pursuit, and punishment, and the more peaceful relations of trafficking and sight-seeing. It would be useful for some of those who have made an outcry about imaginary severities and wasted their sympathies upon the Afghans to study the stories of treachery that occur in every few pages. On the vexed question of Yakob's faith Major Mitford quotes the opinion of a Kizil Bash, named Ibrahim Khan, who had been a native officer in Hodson's Horse and gave information as to the whereabouts of "General Saifollah Deen." This opinion, Major Mitford says, was confirmed by others, and he thus states his own conclusions:—

"Whether all the accusations brought against Yakob Khan are true none can say, but quite enough has been proved to show that he is utterly false and treacherous, and that he should never be allowed to return to Cabul. Better far let the Russians occupy Afghanistan. The extra energy of the Nihilists would find a wide field for its diffusion, and a safer one for the civilised world in general, and the Czar in particular, than the secret societies of St. Petersburg and the cellars of the Winter Palace."

The events which led to and the hard work—sharp fighting and continuous excitement—which characterised the retirement within Sherpur are told by Major Mitford, only so far as they concerned his own regiment. He declines to express any opinion on the operations of General Massy's Cavalry Brigade, but briefly records the gallantry of the forty-four men of the 14th Bengal Lancers and the devoted bravery of Lieut Hardy, who refused to desert his guns, or the wounded young subaltern, Lieut. Forbes, who had only joined a week before. We cannot refrain from quoting a passage which needs no comment. He mentions that the bodies of the slain were so much hacked though not, as he elsewhere notes, mutilated in the loathsome manner some correspondents described, as to make it impossible to bring them in for burial. Among the dead was "the corpse of the only son of an old native officer who was with me at the time, but this too had to be abandoned for the same reason. I told the father, a fine-looking, broad-shouldered old grey-beard, how sorry I was not to bring in his son's body for the performance of the ordinary funeral rites, but the old fellow said, 'What better funeral can he have than to die in battle?' and then, catching hold of my hand, burst into tears. Poor old boy! He soon followed his son." He subsequently states that the bodies of Forbes and Hardy were afterwards found buried under a bank, and were reinterred with military honours in the cantonments cemetery. The hardships and privations endured, as well as the dangers of battle, are told in a cheerful way, as matters of no consequence, but it is easy to put together enough to show how severely our native troops must have suffered, and well earned has been the praise and reward bestowed on them; nor is it out of place to remind our readers that the personal service so modestly narrated in these pages adds another chapter to a record already sufficiently honourable. Major R. C. W. Mitford served throughout the Indian mutiny campaign of 1857-59, and was present at the action of July 5, near Agra, with the Neemuch mutineers, the battle of Agra on Oct. 10, 1857, affair of Futtehpoore Sutree, and other minor actions in the Agra district. Present with Hodson's Horse at the capture of Lucknow, commanded a detachment of the regiment in the action of Nawabgunge, Bara Benkee, and Selimpore, and was highly mentioned by the Governor General "for gallantry in capturing a party of rebels with twenty dismounted sowars. Proceeded with 150 sabres to join the force under Major Bulwer at Jabrowlee, and on Oct. 16 charged and defeated a large body of rebel infantry, receiving a slight wound. In the subsequent action of Jabrowlee, on Oct. 23, the detachment of Hodson's Horse under his command captured three guns and cut up a large number of the enemy's infantry; was severely wounded in this action whilst assisting an officer of the Uncovenanted Civil Service who was attacked by several of the rebels, and would probably have been cut down but for timely aid. On partially recovering from his wound he rejoined the 3rd Regiment of Hodson's Horse as adjutant, and served the Trans-Gogra campaign of 1859, up to the final surrender of the rebels—(medal)—and recommended by Lord Clyde for the Victoria Cross. We make no apology for quoting this record from "Hart," and we hope that next year fresh honours will require a new and completer list of services, as well as a second edition of this plain unvarnished tale of the doings of the 14th Bengal Lancers in the "Cabul campaign."

INDEX TO THE HISTORIES OF THE INDIAN MUTINY.

THE index promised by Mr. Pincott has now appeared. It gives a summary of all the occurrences which took place in any town or district, and of all the actions recorded of any person mentioned in Kaye's "Sepoy War" and Malleon's "Indian Mutiny." Valuable, however, as this very complete analytical index is to possessors and students of the works of these authors, to which it is an indispensable addendum, it is a most useful auxiliary to the student of general history who desires a shorter road to a clear purview of events than that which lies through voluminous works. In the words of the preface: "The method of arrangement enables the progress of the mutiny to be traced with remarkable distinctness." The article "Mutiny" contains an excellent chronological series showing the "fearful rapidity with which the outbreak spread," and the districts successively involved in it while whosoever desires further knowledge can turn for details to the exact page of either Kaye or Malleon. In fact, under the modest guise of an index, Mr. Pincott has furnished a complete guide to the history of the great mutiny, not a fact nor a person of importance enough to be mentioned in the volumes referred to being omitted. Although Mr. Pincott is a purist in the spelling of Indian names, he inserts some well-known names in their familiar and historic form, e.g., "Cawnpore, see Kahnpur." Many would have appreciated an extension of this relaxation in favour of the old-fashioned and general reader, but all will profit by Mr. Pincott's zealous and successful industry.

OLD STORIES.*

IN retelling the more or less familiar tales which Mr. Ascott Hope has selected he has exercised a judicious amount of excision as well as alteration. Doubtless to the young readers of new Christmas books this volume will contain novelties, although we are disposed to think that even in these days, "when the printing-press is so ceaselessly pouring forth fresh masses of fact and fiction, there will be a prompt recognition of some well-known favourites even in their new disguise." The indestructible nature of the ancient stories, that, like gems, have been exported from the East to the West, handed down from generations, recut and reset, and are still welcome gifts, is admirably exemplified in the Hope collection. An amusing chapter is devoted to a collection of the sayings and doings of the wise folks of Gotham, which sagacious parish, as the compiler is careful by innuendo to warn his young readers, is not to be identified with a place near Kegworth. Too accurate a knowledge of English geography might otherwise mislead them, but they must remember that these old world tales acknowledge no bounds of history, time, or place. Mr. Murray's illustrations add much not only to the appearance but to the intrinsic worth of the volume.

PUBLIC INSTRUCTION IN BENGAL.

IT is satisfactory to see from the report on public instruction in Bengal for the year 1879-80 that the proportion of Government expenditure is being steadily reduced, whilst contributions from private sources increase. Thus in the year under notice this has fallen to 46 per cent, from 47½ per cent. in the previous year. Of the cost of collegiate education, the Government share has fallen from 52½ to 51½ per cent.; or, if university charges be added, all of which fall on the candidates, from 44 to below 43 per cent. In secondary education the Government share has fallen from 35 to 34½ per cent., and in primary education from 28½ to 25½ per cent. Of the cost of special instruction the Government share is naturally much higher, amounting to 82 per cent. These figures refer only to those colleges and schools which receive aid from the State. If the expenditure incurred in the maintenance of unaided institutions be taken into account the proportion of the Government expenditure to the total cost will be very much less. The sanctioned estimates of expenditure for the year amounted to Rs.25,23,000; the actual expenditure was Rs.24,73,000. The receipts passing through the Government treasuries amounted to Rs.4,50,000, a sum in close accordance with the estimates. The actual net Government expenditure amounted to Rs.20,22,415, against Rs.20,73,000 estimated, a saving of more than Rs.50,000 having thus been effected. Adding the cost of medical education, which is provided for in the estimates of the Medical Department, the departmental returns show that, out of a total expenditure of Rs.47,68,000 in all Government and aided institutions, the cost incurred by Government amounted to Rs.21,97,000. In the previous year the total cost of education in connection with schools and colleges receiving aid from the State was Rs.45,45,000, and the share borne by Government was Rs.21,72,000. The Government expenditure has therefore increased by only Rs.25,000; while the expenditure from private sources has increased by Rs.1,98,000. The only head under which the expenditure of the department has exceeded the sanctioned estimates is that of "direction and inspection;" and this is explained as being due for the most part to the appointment of three assistant inspectors for the divisions of Bhagalpur, Chittagong, and Chutia Nagpur after the estimates had been framed. Altogether, excluding unaided pathshalas, tols and muktals, which are outside the Government system, there were 39,376 places of instruction under Government supervision, with 819,030 pupils. Last year the number of schools was 33,278, and of pupils 727,707, so in round numbers there has been an increase of 6,000 schools and 100,000 pupils, which is certainly satisfactory. The institutions are thus classified:—Government schools and colleges, 301 schools, 29,332 pupils; grant-in-aid schools and colleges, 1,708 schools, 88,005 pupils; circle grant schools, 290 schools, 12,355 pupils; primary grant schools, 30,414 schools, 582,992 pupils; and unaided schools and colleges, 6,663 schools, 106,346 pupils.—Englishman.

MAJOR BARING AND MANCHESTER.

THE reply of Major Baring to the Manchester deputation constitutes the first public utterance of the future Indian Finance Minister in connection with his coming duties. We are not told specifically what was the subject laid before him by the deputation which he promised to take into consideration, but we suppose by subject, subjects are meant, and that these were the various questions alluded to in the telegram, and that the observations sent out to us were the principal heads of his speech, and not merely incidental remarks of interest to India introduced in the course of a reply on a subject not told us. The gentleman who summarised the speech into the words given in the telegram is possibly not a master of précis writing, and, therefore, we are perhaps not justified in complaining of his informing us in India of the views of the chambers of commerce of this country, instead of giving the substance of any remarks that Major Baring may have made on the same. It may be hoped, now that the drain on the resources of the country to meet the unproductive expenditure of war has to a great extent ceased, a renewal of energy towards developing its material resources will follow. It has been many times authoritatively admitted that the slackness in the prosecution of public works was only of a temporary character, unavoidably caused by more pressing demands on the public funds elsewhere, and that, as soon as these circumstances permitted, the portion thus diverted would again be applied to their legitimate uses. Having entered into a conflict, wisely or not, need not be here argued, it was inevitable that every consideration would yield before the overwhelming necessities of war. Having launched upon the venture, and perceiving the danger of increased taxation, the only way to support its burden was by retrenchment in the current expenditure, and, of all the varieties of the latter, that on public works was, perhaps, the one which could be retrenched with the least permanent injury to the public weal to meet the wants of insatiable war. It would seem, although we are told nothing of Major Baring's views on the general question of public works, that, at least with regard to that portion of them comprising the extension of railways, he sees no probability of any such extension for the present. As railway construction constitutes the outcome of the latest ideas on the material development of India on a large scale, the views of the gentleman who is to have a large hand for the next few years in its material prospects are, apparently, that in the matter of public works the capacities of the country are not likely for some time to be much more than equal to parochial works such as fall to the lot of an English vestry. India has already experienced the fact that the remission of the duties on cotton goods primarily depends on financial considerations. The information that the duties still remaining are maintained on the same economic grounds as were their abolished predecessors is not new. While, however, the same argument could in former times be advanced with every show of reason, the existing emasculated duties in their present form can scarcely be bolstered on such specious logic. One of two courses with regard to them is indeed inevitable. Before any considerable lapse of time it will be necessary either to equalise or to abolish them in their entirety.—Englishman.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

KASHMIR.—The recent rising in Gilgit is now said to have been due in some measure to the excitement caused by the events during our occupation of Cabul. The insurgents were commanded by one Pahalawan Bahadur, a chief of Yassin, and at first succeeded in taking some frontier forts. They met a check at Sher Kila, but an attempt by Major Biddulph to relieve that fort failed, owing to the sickness of the Kashmir troops. Thereupon Major Biddulph withdrew to Gilgit fort and invited Amanulmaek, Chief of Chitral, to invade Yassin. That chief agreed to do so, and sent a force to occupy Yassin. This had the effect of dispersing the Yassins, who had followed Pahalawan Bahadur to Gilgit, and all danger to the latter country appears to be now at an end. Pahalawan is said to be a fugitive in Wakham, while the Chitral Chief is treating Yassin as a conquered country. The relieving force from Kashmir will, however, proceed. One thousand men are already well on their way and a second thousand have started.—Times Telegram.

THE BENGAL RENT BILL.—A crowded meeting of Eastern Bengal landholders was held at Dacca last week to protest against the Rent Bill now pending before the local Legislature. The meeting resolved that the proposed measure was calculated to revolutionise the whole system of land tenure, to throw great difficulties in the way of the landholders, and to set the landholders and tenants against each other; also, that any alteration in the existing law was uncalculated for, the tenants in Bengal being happy and prosperous. A memorial embodying the views of the meeting was adopted, and a committee was appointed to procure signatures prior to its submission to the Lieutenant Governor.—Ibid.

ROADS IN ASSAM.—The opening out and maintenance of road communications in Assam were conducted during the last official year at a cost of Rs.1,99,908 to that province. Considerable assistance was given to official efforts in these directions by private gentlemen both in the way of direct contributions of money, labour, and material, and in supervision of work. A tea company in Sibsagar contributed Rs. 10,000 to the furtherance of the object under notice. All contributions, it need not be said, were thankfully received. With the beginning of the present year the Assam Local Cess Regulations came into force, the object being to consolidate the regulations for the material development of the province, leaving one cess to deal with all local improvements. The Chief Commissioner draws attention to the necessity of an improvement in village water supplies in reference to the regulations. He urges, though perhaps not with force commensurate with the importance of the subject, the great need of improving these supplies of water. The subject has been ably and persistently advocated by Dr. De Renzy, and it is satisfactory to see its importance is beginning to be perceived in executive quarters. District officers have yet to learn that pure water is of more value to the people than good roads.—Englishman.

A NEW SCHOOL AT SHILLONG.—The opening of a middle class Government-aided school at Shillong on the 1st of March of next year is notified. A committee of management, nominated by the Chief Commissioner of Assam, will exercise supervision and control over the school. There will be two trained mistresses in charge. Instruction will be given in the scriptures and the ordinary elementary items. Boarders will be taken at a charge of Rs.25 per mensem, and day scholars of Rs.10 per mensem. Boys will be admitted between the ages of four and eight, and girls between those of four and sixteen.—Ibid.

CARRIER PIGEONS.—The Pioneer has a suggestion that on the Naga frontier carrier pigeons should be employed as a means of keeping the necessarily widely separated military stations in communication. The great difficulty that has been, and is likely to be, experienced in dealing with the Nagas is to guard our frontier effectually against raiding. The great desideratum is a means of rapid communication between the various isolated posts and threatened districts, which would facilitate the interception of retreating raiders, even in cases when it failed to give sufficient warning to provide for their warm reception. Telegraphic communications are out of the question, and the relative situations of the posts, tea gardens, &c., to be connected would often render heliography impossible. The cost of a carrier-pigeon service would be trifling, while the certainty and rapidity of communication ensured would compare fairly even with a system of telegraphs when the chances of the latter being cut are taken into consideration. The Nagas have a very keen appreciation of the danger of having their retreat cut off, and if this were effected in one or two instances, by means of intelligence rapidly conveyed to posts actually stationed inside the hills, the moral effect in preventing future raids would be very great.—Bombay Gazette.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.—The Government of India has under consideration a project for the construction of a new line of railway in the Punjab, between Delhi and Ferozepore. The line of direction, it is proposed, should pass through Rohtak, Hansi, Hissar, and Sirsa, though an alternative route via Rewari and Hansi will also be examined. A reconnaissance of the country between Delhi and Ferozepore is about to be at once commenced, and the duty has been entrusted by the Government of India to Mr. H. Lambert, superintending engineer. The Allahabad paper says that the construction of a line between Amritsar and Pathankot is expected to be shortly sanctioned.—Ibid.

THE SITUATION IN BURMA.—The situation in Burma seems very unexciting at present, and tending possibly towards some sort of understanding with the Government at Mandalay. At all events, there is no immediate probability of war. Both King and people find it very much to their interest to smooth the river trade for the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company, and the company is well satisfied with the treatment it receives; so there is just a chance that things may go on as they are for an indefinite time, even if the more genuine rapprochement between the British Government and that of King Theebaw, spoken of above as possible, should not be brought about. The river trade itself is a screw which can be put on the native Government at any time; that is to say, its stoppage would be very embarrassing for Mandalay, though, of course, that would be an extreme measure. The best thing that could happen, perhaps, would be for the present Government to get broken up, as may happen at any time through some internal convulsion. More satisfactory arrangements than any that can well be made with it might be possible with another régime. Meanwhile the Rangoon-Toungo Railway is to be set on foot at once. This is an important step in many ways. There is no physical obstacle to prevent its ultimate extension to Mandalay. The hills on the way have gaps which would allow of an extension without anything except heavy cutting being necessary.—Pioneer.

THE BENGAL LAND QUESTION.—Mr. Reynolds's conference with the zemindars of Behar came off on Dec. 1 at the Bankipore commissioner's office. The Maharaja of Durbanga and many members of the Behar Landholders' Association and representative zemindars from the Behar districts summoned by the several collectors, were present. Mr. Reynolds, after receiving an address and hearing the adverse opinion of those present, said that if the bill was well understood it would not appear so revolutionary as the speakers represented it to be; that at any rate they ought to have confidence in the sense of justice of their Lieutenant Governor, Sir Ashley Eden, who could not countenance any measure which would have the effect of taking away their rights; and that the bill does not express the opinion of the Bengal Government but of the Rent Commission only. Coming to details, he said that the majority of the commission think that, under custom, ryots with three years' holding have a right of occupancy, that the incident of transferability was of course new, and, as they have brought forward weighty arguments showing it to be very injurious to the zemindars and ryots alike, these arguments will have due consideration. The right of distraint will not be abolished altogether but kept up in a modified form. As for the Bhaulee tenures of building lands and trees these were mere matters of detail which the Government will settle to their satisfaction when the bill is taken up.—Times of India.

THE SETTLEMENT OFFICER IN THE PUNJAB.—Settlement operations in the Punjab are almost complete, only five settlements are now on hand, whereas in the beginning of 1879 there were eleven. For the present a staff of five settlement officers will be kept up, other officers working in the Settlement Department being gradually brought back into the regular line of the commission as there are vacancies. The first settlement officer is to be called senior settlement officer or deputy commissioner of settlement, and will draw Rs.1,100 a month. The other four settlement officers will draw the substantive and officiating pay of their rank in the commission; the following settlement allowances being granted—viz., two of Rs.600, two of Rs.400, and one of Rs.200 a month. There will be three assistant settlement officers with a monthly settlement allowance of Rs.100 each, or Rs.200 if they are in charge of a separate party. One extra assistant settlement officer will be attached to each settlement, with an allowance of Rs.50 a month as at present. Mr. W. E. Purser has been gazetted senior settlement officer; and Capt. J. A. L. Montgomery and Messrs. E. B. Steedman, T. G. Walker, and R. G. Johnson, settlement officers. Messrs. J. Wilson and A. Kensington are likewise gazetted assistant settlement officers, but the former continues to act as settlement officer, Sirsa.—Pioneer.

DEATH OF A FRONTIER CHIEF.—The death is announced at Lahore of Mahomed Amin Khan, Khan Bahadur, of Gandiam. This chief, who attended the durbar, was a man of considerable importance in the Upper Miranzai Valley, Kohat District, where he did excellent service and worked heartily in the interests of Government under General Roberts and Col. Waterfield.—Times of India.

REWARD FOR SAVING LIFE.—The Royal Humane Society has forwarded, through the Secretary of State for India, a handsome silver medal to Police-constable Nizam Din, of the Jullunder District, for gallantry in rescuing a man from drowning at Nur Mahal in the spring of the current year.—Ibid.

NATIVE PROBATIONERS.—In the Punjab, as perhaps might have been expected, the selection of the Government for the much-coveted appointment of a probationer for the native Civil Service has fallen upon a gentleman who did good service in Afghanistan, Mahomed Atzal Khan, Gandapur, the gentleman in question, is a chief in the Dera Ismail Khan District, and is well educated in English and Persian.—Pioneer.

THE ASSAM IMMIGRATION COMMISSION.—The Government of Bengal has appointed a committee to consider the Assam immigration question, consisting of the following gentlemen:—Mr. A. Mackenzie, president; Mr. Colman Macaulay, Mr. Browne of Messrs. Schoene, Kilburn, and Co., Mr. Inglis of Messrs. Bigg, Dunlop, and Co., Mr. Wilson of Messrs. Jardine, Skinner, and Co., Mr. Aitchison, tea planter, Assam, members, and Mr. Hare assistant secretary, Assam Government, secretary. The first meeting of the committee will be held at the latter end of December.—Hindoo Patriot.

GENERAL REID.—A farewell ball was given on the 30th ult. at Lucknow to General Reid, who has been officiating as judicial commissioner of Oudh for some time past, and is now about to return home. His name will be remembered in the province with very friendly feelings, and the compliment just paid him appears to have been the expression of genuine cordiality.—Pioneer.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—At date of mail the unfixed tonnage in port stood at 32,000 tons. London via Canal: The market closed quiet at £2 15s. to £2 17s. 6d. for rice or wheat, £2 15s. for jute, £3 for cotton, £3 2s. 6d. to £3 10s. for hides, tea, shellac, and other choice cargo. Linseed nominal, rape nominal, poppy, £3 2s. 6d. For London via Cape: The market closed quiet at £2 7s. 6d. to £2 8s. 9d. nominal for wheat, £2 13s. 9d. nominal for linseed, £2 16s. 3d. nominal for rape, £2 17s. 6d. for poppy, and £2 11s. 3d. for jute. For Liverpool via Suez Canal: Quotation, rice or wheat, £3 nominal, oils and measurement, £3 5s. to £3 10s. For Liverpool via Cape: Wheat or rice, £2 7s. 6d., linseed, £2 10s. nominal, jute, £2 7s. 6d. to £2 8s. 9d. nominal, oils, £2 17s. 6d.—Englishman.

COMPANIES.—At a general meeting of the Great Eastern Hotel Company, held Nov. 27, an interim dividend of Rs.5 per share for the half-year ended Aug. 31 was declared.—Ibid.

ASSAM IMMIGRATION.—The Assam Gazette contains the remarks of the Government of India on the report on immigration to Assam via Dhubri for the year 1879-80. The success of the Dhubri route the Government considers fully established, as proved by the number of immigrants using it. Although the actual total in the year was less than in 1878-79, yet the proportion borne by immigration through Dhubri to immigration via Goalundo has risen in a remarkable degree. In 1877-78 it was 36 per cent., in 1878-79 it was 40 per cent., and in the year of report 577 per cent. The diminution must therefore be due to general causes, which have lessened immigration to Assam for the time being, causes, in all probability, to be found in the good harvests which enhanced the difficulty of recruitment, and possibly also in the present condition of the tea industry. The relative popularity of the Dhubri route has increased. Regarding the proposal to close the route via Goalundo, the Government says:—"This is no doubt in part due to the establishment of a daily service between Kaunia, the terminus of the Northern Bengal State Railway, and Dhubri. It is shown that 3,004 persons used the steam ferry from Kurigram to the latter place. You are of opinion that the time is rapidly approaching when the route via Goalundo should be closed to immigrants proceeding to Assam Proper; for although some establishment might still be necessary at Goalundo for despatching coolies to the Surma Valley districts, the expense of keeping up two routes and of maintaining two depots would be diminished by the adoption of this measure. It has been noticed that the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal entirely agrees in all that you have said in favour of substituting Dhubri for Goalundo as the place of embarkation for Assam, but that he thinks that the change can hardly be made till the communication between Kaunia and Dhubri is completed, and till some steps are taken for the more speedy conveyance of immigrants from Dhubri to Gauhati. He further considers that the matter should be borne in mind when Act VII. of 1873 (B.C.) is under revision. As you have been informed, it has now been decided to appoint a commission to frame a draft bill for the amendment of the Act, and this question may, as suggested by the Government of Bengal, be referred for the commission's consideration."—Englishman.

CALCUTTA VITAL STATISTICS FOR SEPTEMBER.—The number of births registered in September was 668, against 583 in the preceding month. It exceeds the numbers in the corresponding months of the past decade, excepting 1876 and 1877. There is an increase of 64 births over those of the corresponding month of the previous year. This excess is observable amongst all races except non-Asiatics and "other classes." The mean number of the last ten years is 548. The number of deaths registered in September was 812, against 825 in the preceding month, giving an annual ratio of 22.6, against 23 per 1,000 of population. The diminution of 67 deaths, as compared with the corresponding month of the previous year, is principally due to a falling off in fevers and bowel complaints, and is shared by all classes of the community except "other classes." There were 18 deaths from cholera, against 22 in the preceding month. The figure is lower than those of all the corresponding months of the past decade, excepting 1874, and is less by 27 than the decennial average. There were only two deaths from smallpox, being one short of the preceding month and of the decennial average. From fevers there were 242 deaths, against 295 in the preceding month. The total is considerably less than those of all the corresponding months of the past ten years, and is less by 152 than the mean of the decade. Among the different races the ratios were as follow:—Hindus, 365; Mahomedans, 375; mixed races, 275.8; and non-Asiatics, 59.2.—Englishman.

MADRAS.

THE FUTURE ADMINISTRATION OF COORG.—Some time ago we stated that it was likely that when Mysor was ruled by a native prince Coorg would still be connected with the province, the resident being the superintendent of the small State. Both the Coorg and the European planters memorialised the Government of India not to allow Coorg to be made a district of the Madras Presidency. We learn now that their request has been acceded to, and the proposal that was made by the Chief Commissioner and desired by the people themselves has been sanctioned by the Viceroy in Council.—Madras Times.

THE SAPPERS AND MINERS.—Major Blood has been deputed to Madras for the purpose of conferring with Col. Sim in view to assimilate the equipment of the Sappers with that of Bengal and Bombay. Major Blood is at present the officiating commandant of the Bengal Sappers and Miners and an officer of great experience. He has, from the experience he gained in the late Zulu and Afghan campaigns, in which he served, drawn up a work on pontoon bridge-making, which has so commended itself to the Inspector General of Ordnance in Bengal as to lead to Major Blood being sent to Madras for the purpose stated above. Major Blood will go to Bombay after he has done with Madras to confer with Major Bedford, the officiating commandant of the Bombay Sappers and Miners.—Ibid.

THE LATE LIEUT. BRAINE, M.S.C.—It was stated recently that the health of the 30th Regt. M.N.I., stationed at Dera Ghazi Khan, was altogether unsatisfactory. We now regret to record the death of Lieut. Edmund Francis Braine, quartermaster of that regiment. Lieut. Braine had been ailing for some time past with a "laryngeal abscess," and on the night of Nov. 10 succumbed to the disease. This young officer received his first commission in the 1-21st Fusiliers in 1870, entered the Madras Staff Corps in 1876, and was posted to the 30th N.I. in the same year. Many players in Madras will recollect Lieut. Braine on the boards of the theatre of the 1-21st Fusiliers when that regiment garrisoned Fort St. George.—Ibid.

MUSKETRY PRACTICE.—The returns of musketry practice in the Madras army during the past official year show that the figure of merit of the native infantry of that army was 73.30, an increase of 2.54 points on the figure of merit of last year. The figure of merit of British infantry under the commander in chief of Madras was 104.71 as against 101.83 in 1878-79. The 48th Regiment, for the second year, heads the list. It is pointed out in reference to the native infantry that a large number of good shooting regiments were on field service, and that thus heavy duties were entailed on those left behind. It is notified with regret that, owing to inaccuracies in marking, his Excellency the commander in chief in India is compelled to withhold again the first infantry prize for good shooting. Target practice, in many instances, was not superintended as directed, and in consequence "scores incompatible with correct marking were recorded."

CULTIVATED LANDS.—From certain proceedings of the Board of Revenue we gather that there is in this Presidency a diminished area under cultivation this year, as compared with the area cultivated last year, of 122,000 acres. There is a falling off of 5 under seeds or 119,000 acres, of 129,000 under food grains, but an increase of 10,000 acres is shown under the head of green and garden crops, and 23,000 acres under topes and orchards. Special crops, such as cotton and indigo, show an increase of 93,000 acres. The total cultivation this year is still below the average of normal years before the famine by nearly three million acres. From the same proceedings we gather that the exports of oil seeds and oil were valued in 1877-78 at Rs.64,86,324, and in 1878-79 at Rs.61,24,104; that of cotton was Rs.35,05,294 and Rs.99,79,360, and of indigo Rs.39,28,762 and Rs.39,48,898.—Madras Times.

THE STAFF OFFICER OF FORT ST. GEORGE.—We understand that the appointment of staff officer and superintendent of details, Fort St. George, will not be abolished, as was anticipated. The Government have decided to retain the post. We believe this appointment is retained on account of the extra duties devolving on the officer commanding the Centre District by the abolition of the Northern and Southern commands. It was further found impracticable to impose the duties on the assistant adjutant general, the assistant quartermaster general, or even the superintendent of pensions, as the work of one and all will be considerably increased consequent on the abolition of the aforesaid commands. Colonel Bruce is at present the staff officer and superintendent of details, and it is doubtful if he would accept the appointment should the Commander in Chief be disposed to offer it to him permanently.—Madras Times.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—At the meeting of the Legislative Council on Nov. 27 the bill to abolish the Neilgherry Commission was passed, but not without some opposition. The Water-rate Bill was also passed, and in this case also the passing was not without opposition. Sir Neville Chamberlain stoutly fought the battle of houseowners, as he considered that the measure would prove a hardship to them. He called attention to the strong feeling prevalent among the native community with regard to the imposition of taxes, and added that the water-tax was looked upon by a great many houseowners as a most inequitable tax.—Madras Times.

FAREWELL ENTERTAINMENTS TO THE DUKE OF BUCKING-

HAM.—On Friday, Nov. 26, H.H. the Begum gave an al fresco festival in honour of the Ladies Grenville. On Monday, Nov. 29, the Mahomedan community of Madras feted the Duke of Buckingham. The spacious grounds of the Aziz Bagh, the residence of Muhammed Mahund Sahib Bahadur, the chairman of the committee, near the Thousand Lights, Mount-road, were illuminated by means of the electric light and numberless lamps. A wide and lofty pandal erected in front of the verandah formed an entrance-hall to the house, and led the way to an inner drawing-room, where, under an elegant shamianah, or canopy, supported by four silver posts, a golden and crimson chair of state was placed for his Grace the Governor, with a golden chair of less height on either side, for the Prince of Arcot and the Lady Mary Grenville respectively. The rooms were handsomely furnished and brilliantly illuminated. After dinner was over, Muaz-ud-Dowlah Bahadur, son-in-law of the Prince of Arcot, proposed the health of the Queen-Empress of India in a few words, and the toast was drunk, all standing. Then the Hon. Mir Humayoon Jah—the grandson of Tipoo Sultan of Seringapatam, and great grandson of the yet more redoubtable Hyder Ali, the Indian Napoleon—proposed the health of the guest of the evening in a lengthy speech, which, unfortunately, reached the ears of those only who were in his Highness's immediate vicinity, and his Grace's reply also was heard only by those who were sitting at the central table. His Grace was understood to have expressed himself highly gratified at finding that his efforts to do his duty had been appreciated by the natives of this Presidency and much pleased with the entertainment that the Mahomedans had been so good as to give him. Shortly after the Governor had resumed his chair Muaz-ud-Dowlah Bahadur rose, and the party moved off into the adjoining bungalow, where a large company of Europeans and natives, including the young Maharaja of Vizianagram, had meanwhile assembled to witness the presentation of the address. There was first a display of fireworks near the house, and, when this was over, the Duke retired into the inner room and took his seat under the canopy with the Prince of Arcot on his right hand and the Lady Mary Grenville on his left, and a crowd of Europeans and natives on each side. The address in Persian was now read slowly and clearly by Muhamed Mahmud Saheb Bahadur, and the English translation by Ahmad Moheddin Khan Bahadur, H.H. the Prince of Arcot's secretary. His Grace, in reply, expressed his grateful sense of the kind wishes that had been expressed regarding himself and his family. It was the endeavour of those who were appointed by her Majesty to govern various parts of her Empire to rule the people committed to their care with impartiality and justice without regard to caste or creed. He hoped after his return to England frequently to hear of the progress of affairs in this Presidency, and he trusted that he would soon be informed that the Mahomedans had qualified themselves for taking a large share in the administration of this country, of whose community they form so important a section. The Persian copy of the address, engrossed in beautiful characters on vellum, was now rolled up, placed in a long silver box, and respectfully presented to the Governor, who handed it to Lady Mary. His Grace was then conducted to the large hall to witness a Hindu nautch.—Times of India.

THE LATE MISS CODD.—We regret to announce the death of Miss Margaret Codd, which took place about one p.m. on Nov. 27 at the residence of the Hon. Gajputee Rao, Nungubakum. The deceased lady was the eldest daughter of the Rev. E. Codd, of Leamington, England, and came out to Madras in February, 1878, having been specially recommended by the late Lady Anna Gore Langton as peculiarly well qualified to direct the education of the young ladies of the Goday family. Miss Codd was very successful in her work. If any proof were wanting of the wholesome influence of English education on a Hindu lady by the constant presence of an English lady of the tact and accomplishments of the deceased it would be found in Miss Sitayama Gajputee Rao. The cause of Indian female education and reform has suffered no small loss in the untimely death of Miss Codd.—Madras Mail.

HEAVY RAIN.—Extremely heavy rain has fallen in many parts of the Presidency. The railway service is interrupted in more than one place owing to the carrying away of bridges or the flooding of the lines.—Pioneer.

GOOD SERVICE PENSION.—A good service pension has been conferred on Col. W. A. Gibb, M.S.C., in the place of Col. L. W. Buck, who has succeeded to colonel's allowance. Col. Gibb's war services began in 1844, when, as an ensign, he was present at the capture of the fort of Werker during the rebellion in the Maratha country, and he recently commanded a brigade in the Afghan War.—Pioneer.

BOMBAY.

DEATH OF THE ARCHBISHOP OF GOA.—The news of the death at Lisbon of the Archbishop of Goa has been received with great regret by the Roman Catholic community of Goa and Western India.—Times of India.

A GAME ACT.—A bill for establishing a close season for game and fish is now pending before the Bombay Legislature, and has provoked considerable discussion and some opposition. The animals which it is proposed to protect are bison, nyghau, antelope, samber, cheetah, chikarah, bekri, hog deer, and hares, also all birds and fish used for food. The measure came before the Council on Monday week, and was postponed for further consideration.—Times Telegram.

THE WESTERN RAJPUTANA.—The Western Rajputana State Railway, an important and direct communication between Bombay and Northern India, will be formally opened by the Governor of Bombay and Mr. Gibbs and the members of the Supreme Council on Jan. 1.—Ibid.

THE HARBOUR OF KARACHI.—We quote the following passages from the address presented by the Harbour Board to H.E. the Viceroy:—"We would respectfully urge for attention two works, without which the effects of the dredging cannot be complete or permanent, viz., the curved extension of the east pier or groyne, and the removal of the serious rocky obstruction of Deep Water Point. The necessity for these works has long been represented from observation and experience by the port engineer and successive master attendants, and their desirability was recognised by Sir Andrew Clarke, though on his advice the Government of India gave dredging the precedence, a view which has lately been repeated by the Government of Bombay. We submit, however, that the amount required for these works, about one lakh of rupees for the pier extension, and two and a-half lakhs for Deep Water Point removal, might be expended at once with great advantage and ultimate economy, by acceleration and larger development of improvement and by saving of repeated dredging in the lower anchorage and entrance. This board would therefore respectfully press these works on your Excellency's attention, feeling, as they do, that the funds at their command can only meet the much required extensions of accommodation works, which, by cheapening the operations of commerce and developing the local resources, will tend eventually to relieve the State of any burden for the improvement or maintenance of the harbour." With reference to progress of trade, so far, a few figures may be quoted. In 1843-44, the first year of British possession, the total value of imports and exports of Karachi was rather under 12 lakhs of rupees, and by 1856-57, before the influence of the railway and harbour works was felt, had risen to about 135 lakhs. In 1878-79 (considered a bad year) the value was 576 lakhs, and in 1879-80, 895 lakhs—a sudden increase, partly, but not entirely, due to the Afghan war.—Times of India.

KATHIAWAR.—The Kathiawar administration report for 1879-80 is reviewed in a resolution of the Government of Bombay just published in the Government Gazette. The resolution is dated July 28, but the delay in its publication is explained by the addition of a letter from the Secretary of State, to whom it has been submitted. The amount of tribute due from the various States in the Kathiawar Province for the year was Rs.12,16,163, and there were also Rs.1,74,449 arrears due from previous years. The distress which marked the year 1878-79 happily abated in the beginning of the year under review, and, the rainy season proving favourable on the whole, the autumn and winter crops were excellent in quality and quantity, and grain became cheaper than it had been for years. Owing to this favourable condition of things, not only the whole amount of tribute due for the year was collected, but arrears also were paid off to the extent of some Rs.1,03,737. The general attitude of the different chiefs and the management of their States is regarded with warm approval; and Government specially acknowledge "the helpful interest taken by the chiefs in the military operations undertaken by Government in Afghanistan, and which was manifested in a joint contribution of 1,000 baggage ponieshipped from Kathiawar ports to Karachi in November, 1879. The internal economy of the chief States in regard to public works, education, the administration of justice, &c., is generally satisfactory. Fault is found in one or two instances only. The principal delinquent is the Thakur of Malia, who was found to be unequal to the task of controlling the lawless and violent tribe of Mianas which is settled in his State. It was found necessary for Government to assume the criminal jurisdiction in the Malia State without interfering with the Thakur's jurisdiction in civil revenue matters. The judicious steps taken by the Political Assistant, Mr. FitzGerald, in disarming the Mianas and destroying their wandhs, or camps of grass huts, which were used mainly to facilitate their predatory proceedings, received the commendation of Government. A hint is given to the Rana of Porbanda that "it would give Government great pleasure to hear that he had revised the system of duties on exports and imports at Porbanda, which appear to be vexatious to his subjects and a hindrance to the prosperity of the place." Government regret that the Jam of Nowanagar "should have found it necessary to part with his able Dewan, Mr. Narayenrow Kharkar," and hope "that his Highness, with the help of his new Dewan, will take steps which will rapidly clear his State of the debt incurred in the late years of disaster." Lord Hartington records the satisfaction with which he has read Colonel Barton's account of the year's operations, "testifying as it does to the excellent relations which prevail between the chiefs and the political agency, and to the admirable spirit evinced by the rulers as a body in regard both to imperial and local affairs." His lordship notes also "with particular pleasure the consideration which upon the return of prosperity has been shown by the respective durbars to the cultivators to whom advances were made during the recent distress; while the liberal scale on which public works are prosecuted in many States, and especially in Bhowanagar, is the best augury for the future prosperity of the province."—Bombay Gazette.

FATAL GUN ACCIDENT.—We learn that Mr. Radenhurst, senior, an assistant inspector in the Abkari Department of the Ahmednagar collectorate, met with an unfortunate accident on the 23rd instant, which resulted in instantaneous death. It appears that he had been out shooting, and, after having bagged two antelopes, was returning to his camp. On the way he happened to see a wolf, and in the act of taking his gun, which was loaded, out of a country cart, it exploded, and its contents lodged in his right breast, causing instant death. This sad accident occurred in the Kopergoan taluka and not far from the Sanwatsur station of the Dond and Manmad State Railway.—Puna Observer, Nov. 27.

RETURN OF H.M.'S 66TH FOOT.—This gallant regiment arrived at Bombay on Nov. 28 from Karachi, numbering sixteen officers, one lady, three children, 421 men, forty-two women, and thirteen children; besides ninety-five followers and ten horses. The names of the officers are Lieut. Col. S. G. C. Hogge, commanding, Major J. T. Ready, Capt. J. Quarry, Harris, W. A. D. Mackinnon, W. J. de la Pöer Beresford-Peirse, and F. M'C. Bruce; Lieuts. Fennel, J. W. G. Fitzgérald, C. M. Edwards, M. L. O'Donel, and H. Lynch; Second Lieuts. G. L. Melliss and F. W. M'T. Bunny; Paymaster E. G. P. Mayers, and Surgeon Major H. Waghorn.—Times of India.

THE KANDAHAR GARRISON.—The following military movements are reported by the Kandahar paper of Nov. 15:—The headquarters and wing 78th Highlanders marched into Kandahar this morning. H-1 R.A. also marched in from the Argandab. A large sick convoy, escorted by the headquarters and detachment 3rd Q.O. Light Cavalry, under Capt. Morley Mayne, and two companies 8th N.I. left this morning for India. Major Crawford, 60th Rifles, and Lieut. Moss, 2-7th R.F., also went down on sick leave. Capt. Brandish, R.S.F. Militia, and Sub Lieut. Batten, 2nd P.C., left for India at the same time.—Times of India.

THE TERAI.—According to reports from Nepal, dated Katamandu, Nov. 16, the rice crop throughout the Terai is not likely to exceed half the average, owing to the failure of rain. There are no apprehensions, however, of a scarcity, as there is a surplus in store from previous crops.—Pioneer.

KASHMIR VINECULTURE.—We hear that his Highness the Maharaja of Kashmir has applied for permission to engage the services of three Frenchmen for working the liquor distillery which has just been established at Srinagar, and for generally supervising the vineyards and other industries in his State. Amongst other labours, one of the men is intended to supervise a glass manufactory, his Highness having determined to make, in his own territory, the bottles necessary for wine, which he expects to turn out next year in considerable quantities.—Ibid.

THE CALCUTTA CENSUS.—We are glad to hear that the superintendence of census work in the city of Calcutta and suburbs is to be entrusted by Government to Mr. Beverley, C.S., as special census officer. There could be no better appointment. The experience he gained in connection with the last census will be invaluable, and his report on the occasion left practically nothing to be desired.—Statesman.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1880.

THE NEW COMMANDER IN CHIEF.

It sometimes happens that even well-informed organs of public opinion express rather their opinion on what ought to be than their knowledge of what is about to be. Information as to future appointments partakes occasionally of misdirected ambition, "which falls on the other side." But when a great journal which, whatever it may have lost, undoubtedly possesses still certain especial advantages of information as to military matters, announces an appointment of which it finds itself compelled to disapprove, there is an air of verisimilitude which compels belief. "As one compelled, in spite of scorn, to teach a truth he could not learn," the Times has announced that all antecedent guesses and rumours may be put aside. The valuable and important office, the great military prize of the office of Commander in Chief in India, has fallen to the lot of Lieut. General Sir Donald Martin Stewart, G.C.B., B.S.C. The bestowal of the additional honour designated by the former letters at the Lahore Durbar was received with approval by all who had watched with interest the military and administrative success achieved by Sir Donald Stewart in Afghanistan, and especially the victorious march from Kandahar to Cabul, which, although it has been partially eclipsed in the public mind by the subsequent march of Sir F. Roberts from Cabul to Kandahar, will hold the next place in military annals. It is not too much to say that that march, with its accompanying defeat of the enemy and its relief of the forces beleaguered at Sherpur, rendered the subsequent achievement of Sir F. Roberts much easier than it might otherwise have proved. We are not going to follow even great authorities in the fault of instituting invidious comparisons, or of abstracting from the fame of one general to add to the laurels of another. "Sparta has many a worthier son than he" would be a truth admitted frankly by either general, as it is the true expression of that self-effacing feeling which has not been the peculiar property of the gallant Outram in that service which will rejoice to have furnished from its ranks the new military head of the armies of India. It is with the more regret that the carping comments will be read which disparage beforehand the claims to such a high preferment of the late commander of the forces in Afghanistan. It is quite true that the date of admission to the service which stands against General Stewart's name is 1840. Twenty-five years have passed since he served against the hill tribes on the Peshawur frontier and was first mentioned in despatches. The records of the Mutiny briefly remind us that he commanded the volunteers serving in the Allyghur District in the May and June, and volunteered to carry despatches from the Government of the North West Provinces to the officer commanding at Delhi. As deputy assistant adjutant general he served throughout the siege of Delhi and obtained anew mention in despatches and the brevet of major. His services at the siege and capture of Lucknow and in Rohilkund gained for a third time mention and the brevet of lieutenant colonel. Ten years later, as commander of the Bengal Brigade in the expedition to Abyssinia, he earned the honour of C.B. But these are old world stories, and it by no means follows that a brave and efficient officer of that date should retain the bodily and mental vigour needful for the discharge of the duties of Commander in Chief in India in 1881. This at least seems to occur to any one who reads the captious criticism on selection by seniority which the appointment has called forth. It almost seems as if the critic had forgotten that the new Commander in Chief is the man who held Southern Afghanistan free from outbreak, who proved himself not merely a gallant and vigilant commander, but a most able governor, at once strong and conciliatory, coldly calm (though deeply loved by his staff, the best proof of the real qualities of a general, who held his lightest wish law, and never thought of criticising Sir Donald's orders), to whom it has been owing that the long and peaceful occupation of Kandahar by our forces was what may be fairly called a peaceful one. There have, indeed, in the recent operations been melancholy illustrations of the disadvantages of allowing too much weight to the claims of seniority and rights of succession. But whether we regard the military governorship or the achievements in the field of Sir Donald Stewart, it does seem extraordinary to object to his seniority and talk about his forty years' service. But the real objection taken is that, as a distinguished officer of the Bengal Army, an ornament to the Staff Corps, he may not unnaturally know so much of the merits as to be blind to the defects of the existing system. It would certainly seem to anyone who was not predetermined to think no officer but one fit for the post, or, indeed, but one fit for any high command, that the thorough experience that Sir Donald has acquired by the hardest tests and trials of the whole system, the entire mechanism of the army in India, is about the best qualification that a commander in chief could possess. We pass over the very obvious merit which has earned the offer of the command which Sir Neville Chamberlain has felt himself obliged to decline by reason of his physical weakness. The defects of the Indian army system, which have been most thoroughly brought to light, not by the inquiries and lucubrations of the commission, but by the stern and crucial tests of the campaign, will not find an upholder in the general who has been severely tasked to remedy the disadvantages caused by them, not on paper, but in the camp, the march, and the battlefield. There is an unwise, an ill-placed, ill-timed jealousy which prompts the envious disparagement of a commander who has so ably led the armies of India, which, we make bold to say, reflects more discredit upon the ill-concealed object of this admiration and laudation than the offerers of it are aware. Suum cuique is a motto that might well be remembered. The generals, of whom the one has passed over his chance of a splendid appointment because he felt unequal to the adequate discharge of the active duties, while the other who has succeeded "by virtue of seniority," let his junior have all the honour and distinction of the relief of Kandahar, are not the only ones "among the seniors" of the Indian service who could fill the office even of a reforming commander in chief without fear or favour. We do not believe that the early announcement of the appointment of such an Indian officer, even though he be "a senior," as Sir Donald Stewart will evoke any feeling in India sympathetic with the dolorous disappointment which vibrates through every line of the complaint that the prize was not awarded to either of the two unnamed expectants.

HOME NEWS.

SIR F. ROBERTS IN DUBLIN.—The degree of LL.D. was conferred upon General Roberts last Thursday by the Senate of the University of Dublin, in the Examination Hall of Trinity College. Dr. Webb, the public orator, in a Latin speech, recited the exploits of General Roberts in India. The Vice Chancellor, in presenting the degree to General Roberts, also spoke in Latin. General Roberts signed his name in the college register, and, after repeated calls for a speech, said: I cannot make a speech in Latin, and I am afraid every one here would not understand me if I spoke in Persian or Hindustani, so the best thing I can do is to say in a few words of English how extremely proud I am to be here to-day and to receive the very hearty welcome you have given me.

THE LAWRENCE MEMORIAL.—On Wednesday, Dec. 15, the executive committee held a meeting at the Jerusalem Chamber. They adopted the principle of the design submitted by Mr. Boehm, who, to indicate Lord Lawrence's character, has seized on an incident related of his earlier career in the Punjab. He exhibits a sword and a pen to the Sikh chieftains, and demands to know by which they choose to be governed. Mr. Boehm will now proceed with the work. The statue is to be placed in the south east corner of Waterloo-place, opposite that of Sir John Burgoyne. The committee discussed the second object of the memorial—viz., the benefit of Indians visiting England; but came to no conclusion, as it cannot yet be known what surplus will remain after the statue, which is the first object, has been erected. Fresh receipts, about £800, from eighty-four donors, will now be advertised in the Times.

THE LATE BRIGADIER GENERAL H. F. BROOKE.—The remains of the late General Brooke, which had been brought home from Kandahar, and arrived in her Majesty's ship Serapis on the 11th inst., were interred in the family burial-ground at Colebrook, county Fermanagh, on the 14th inst. The coffin, which was covered with the Union Jack, on which were placed numerous wreaths of white flowers, was carried by men of his old regiment, the 94th, under the command of Capt. Lionel Brooke, 94th Regiment (brother of the deceased). The chief mourners were George Cecil Brooke (son of the deceased), Capt. Arthur Brooke, R.N., Capt. Hastings Brooke, Capt. Lionel Brooke, Mr. Frank Brooke (brothers of the deceased), and Major Hall, of Narrow Water (brother-in-law). Among those who were present were Viscount Cole, M.P., Viscount Crichon, M.P., and Lieut. Campbell and Lieut. Maclean, of the 94th Regiment; 500 of the Colebrook tenantry followed the remains to the grave. The deepest sorrow was shown amongst them for the loss of one who had been so well known and beloved by them all. During the day a telegram was received by Lady Arabella Brooke from the Dowager Marchioness of Ely expressing the sincere sympathy of her Majesty the Queen with her and Mrs. Brook in their great sorrow. The coffin, which was made at Bombay of teak, had on it a brass plate with the following inscription:—"Brigadier General H. F. Brooke; born August 3, 1836; killed in action, Kandahar, Southern Afghanistan, August 16, 1880; aged forty-four."

INSTITUTION OF CIVIL ENGINEERS.—At the general meeting, held on the 16th inst., the scrutineers reported that the following gentlemen had been duly elected to fill the several offices in the council for the ensuing year:—Mr. James Abernethy, president; Sir W. G. Armstrong, C.B., F.R.S., Sir J. W. Bazalgette, C.B., Mr. F. J. Bramwell, F.R.S., and Mr. J. Brunlees, vice-presidents; Mr. G. Berkley, Mr. G. B. Bruce, Sir John Coope, Mr. E. A. Cowper, Mr. A. Giles, Sir Charles A. Hartley, Mr. H. Hayter, Dr. W. Pole, F.R.S., Mr. R. Rawlinson, C.B., Mr. A. M. Rendel, Dr. C. W. Siemens, F.R.S., Mr. D. Stevenson, Sir W. Thomson, F.R.S., Sir Joseph Whitworth, Bart., F.R.S., and Mr. E. Woods, other members of council.

ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.—On Monday a general meeting of the members of this society was held at 22, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. The chair was occupied by Major General Sir H. C. Rawlinson, K.C.B., F.R.S., president and director, and amongst the numerous attendance present were General MacLagan, Lieutenant General Sir H. E. L. Thuillier, F.R.S., C.S.I., Colonel Keatinge, V.C., C.S.I., Lieutenant Colonel T. H. Lewin, Sir H. Clive Bayley, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., Mr. J. Fergusson, F.R.S., Mr. W. S. W. Vaux, M.A., F.R.S. (secretary), Mr. R. M. Cust, and Mr. E. L. Brandreth. The receipt of several presents to the society since its last meeting was announced by the secretary, after which the following elections were made by ballot:—As resident members, Mr. Asped and Mr. H. Haggard; as non-resident members, the Rajah of Peshwar, the Rev. C. Swinnerton, late chaplain to the forces in Afghanistan, and member of the Bengal Asiatic Society; Rev. James Long, member of the Bengal Asiatic Society; J. Vindhyeswar-Prasad, of the Sanskrit College, Benares; M. Vinson and Mr. Herbert J. Allen, of her Majesty's Consular Service, China. Mr. Cust read a paper contributed by Professor Dawson, on "The Invention of the Indian Alphabet," in which the author examined the various views which have been held on this subject by Drs. Weber and Burnell, Professor Max Müller, Mr. E. Thomas, and others, and announced his now definite opinion that the Indian alphabet was a truly Indian invention, though there are reasons for supposing that we do not now possess the original alphabet. He added that General Cunningham and Mr. Thomas have expressed very decided opinions in favour of this view. The art of writing was, he thought, known long before there was any sign of an alphabet in India, while he considered it not unlikely that the first notion of it may have reached that country from without.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.—The following information is supplied by the Admiralty:—From the East Indies.—The Seagull was at Jeddah on the 21st November, and remains. The Eclipse and the Dryad were at Rangoon on the 19th November and would remain for the present.

THE LOSS OF THE "CARTSBURN."—The report of a court of inquiry held at Aden into the circumstances attending the loss of the Cartsburn, of Greenock, through fire whilst on a voyage from Dundee to Bombay, has been received by the Board of Trade. The court find that the fire originated in the cargo in the lower hold and was caused by the spontaneous combustion of coal. Ventilators fore and aft in the cargo appeared to have been dispensed with by the surveyors, and no warning was manifested until efforts with a small crew would have been unavailing to check the hold the fire had gained. The conduct of the master under the circumstances is commended.

TROOPS FOR INDIA.—The Fumna, Capt. Church, left Portsmouth on Sunday morning with troops for Bombay. She takes out Capt. Lavie, Lieuts. Sharland, St. John, and Brereton, and the 4th Battery 9th Brigade Royal Artillery, from Gosport; Capts. Montgomery and Ilderton, Lieut. MAILS FOR INDIA, CHINA, AND AUSTRALIA, via BRINDISI.—The Postmaster General has issued a notice stating that, in consequence of the severe strain put upon the Post-office at Christmas and the New Year by the exceptionally large number of letters and cards passing through the post, it is very desirable that all letters, &c., intended for the Indian mail via Brindisi, on Dec. 24, or the India, China, and Australian mails, via Brindisi, on Dec. 31, should, in order to ensure their being duly forwarded, be posted, whenever possible, before Dec. 24 and 31 respectively, or, in any case, at an early hour on those days.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders were received yesterday at the Bank of England for Rs. 35,00,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, Rs. 20,08,000; to Bombay, Rs. 14,12,000; and to Madras, Rs. 80,000. Tenders on all Presidencies at 1s. 7½d. will receive about 80½ per cent.; above that price in full. Compared with last week this price shows a decline of 1-16d.

SIND, PUNJAB, AND DELHI RAILWAY COMPANY.—The directors have just issued their half-yearly report as made up to June 30. It shows gross earnings amounting to £603,032 against £519,722, a working expenditure of £322,280 against £328,716, and a net revenue of £280,752 against £191,005, the present occasion being, it is stated, the first within the experience of the company on which the amount required to pay the guaranteed interest has been exceeded. The amount in excess of that required to pay the 5 per cent. guarantee is £3,872, of which the Government would take one-half, and the remainder would belong to the proprietors were it not that there are certain sums outstanding amounting in the aggregate to 11,856, all of which it is expected will be got in. The capital receipts to the date already given were £11,079,573, while there was lodged with the Secretary of State for India in Council at the same date a balance of £148,842 standing to the company's credit.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY.—The sixty-ninth half-yearly report of the directors was issued on Saturday. It states that, under the new arrangement for working the line as the property of the Government, it is worked as a whole, and the separate accounts of the Jubbulpore line therefore no longer appear. The gross receipts of the half-year were £2,082,183 on the whole of the company's system, a decrease of about £80,000 on the corresponding half of 1879. This decrease is chiefly in the receipts from the carriage of grain, the passenger income having fallen off only £11,000. The number of passengers carried was greater than in the corresponding half-year. Working expenses came to 678,334 last half-year, or 32.58 per cent. of the gross receipts, as against £722,514, or 33.41 in the corresponding period of 1879. Owing to the saving in expenses thus realised the net income of £1,403,849 shows a falling off amounting to but £36,000. For the twenty-three weeks of the current half-year that have elapsed the approximate gross receipts show an increase of £36,000 on those of the last half of 1879. The company's share of the net income for the past half-year, calculated in accordance with the Purchase Act and contract, is Rs. 10,77,322. This sum has been brought home at an average exchange of 18.7 13-16d. per rupee, and has yielded £88,890, which enables the board to recommend a dividend of 27s. per cent. for the half-year on the deferred annuity capital in addition to the guaranteed interest of £2, leaving about £400 in hand. The accounts appended to the report are full of details of the highest interest to shareholders, and an abstract return shows that the difference between the conventional rate of 18.10d. per rupee and the actual rate at which the money of the company has been remitted under the new arrangement is £95,706.

THE EASTERN TELEGRAPH COMPANY announce that an interim dividend of 2s. 6d. per share on the ordinary shares of the company, free of income-tax, will be paid on the 14th January in respect of profits for the quarter ended 30th September, 1880; and that a dividend of 3s. per share on the Six per Cent. Preference shares, less income-tax, for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1880, will be paid on the same date.

OOREGUM GOLD MINING COMPANY OF INDIA.—A meeting of shareholders of this company was held at the Cannon-street Hotel on Monday, to hear reports from the neighbourhood in which mining operations were being carried on. Sir W. Arbuthnot presided, and said that the meeting was convened for the purpose of hearing from Colonel Arbuthnot the general prospects afforded by the Colar Gold Mining District. He himself knew the neighbourhood well, and could say that the climate was excellent, and it would be easy to construct roads across the country to the principal seaports. Colonel Arbuthnot said that the country was quite open, and there were reefs running across it. He believed that all that had been stated with respect to the district was quite correct. He had been down some of the shafts of the Ooregum Mine, where native operations had been carried on, and he could see that the remaining reefs were plainly auriferous. Some of the quartz had been washed in his presence, and had always been found to contain gold. In reply to questions, he said that the natives had worked to the depth of sixty-eight feet. He did not remember that any quartz which had been crushed did not produce gold. There was a plentiful supply of native labour in the district and it was cheap. Machinery could be worked by water power, and there was plenty of quartz lying about. Fuel also was plentiful and cheap, and a railway was close by in connection with the western coast. Both Colonel Beresford and Mr. Bray had telegraphed that the prospects of the mine were better than when he left. Twelve stamps were at work daily, crushing some sixty tons a week. The Chairman said that the one lying on the bank had been found to produce about 1¼ oz. of gold per ton. Mr. Pegler, who was called upon to speak, said that when he was in India, the Mysor Gold Fields were always spoken of as being very rich. He thought that there would be no difficulty in extracting gold by the simplest process, that of washing while more delicate processes would produce more profitable results. The rocks were of an unmistakably auriferous character. Several shareholders having spoken, the meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to Colonel Arbuthnot and the chairman.

CEYLON COMPANY.—The half-yearly meeting of this company was held on Tuesday, at the Cannon-street Hotel; Mr. G. S. Simpson in the chair. The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said that their representative in Ceylon had been unwearied in his exertions to promote economy. One small estate, Citrus, had been sold, and they hoped soon to sell others; in fact since the report was written they had sold one or two others. It was a main subject now with them to get rid of all estates which gave a debit to profit and loss, keeping only such as yielded a profit. As to Mauritius, he said that they had been informed that their estates had been cultivated with a view of getting everything possible out of the land, but that was not the way to make agriculture pay, whether it was sugar or anything else. They had now given directions to study the ultimate good of the property. The most recent statements as to the condition of the crops in Ceylon were favourable. As to the general prospects of the company, he said that they relied a good deal upon the cheapness of labour in Ceylon. It was very cheap indeed; and, if carefully superintended, he believed that more actual work was to be obtained there for a small cost than in any other part of the globe. Economy, industry, and efficiency was what they inculcated upon every estate; and in the deliberations of the board he assured them that plain common sense was being studied, and he hoped that it would result in a satisfactory return to all. Mr. P. F. Robinson seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously, and the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

SIR R. TEMPLE ON EDUCATION IN INDIA.

A MEETING of the National Indian Association was held at the Society of Arts (by permission of the council) on Thursday evening, Dec. 16, at which an address was delivered by Sir Richard Temple, Bart., G.C.S.I., D.C.L., "On the Effect of Western Education on the Natives of India." Sir Arthur Hobhouse, K.C.S.I., took the chair. Sir George Campbell, M.P., G.C.S.I., Colonel Macdonald (late Director of Public Instruction in Madras), Rev. James Long, Syed Ameer Ali, and others were on the platform, and amongst the audience were many Indian gentlemen. Sir Richard Temple at the outset of his lecture paid a brief tribute to the memory of Miss Mary Carpenter, who was the founder of the association, or who at least had largely contributed to its formation. He then proceeded to say that the education of the natives was either direct or indirect. The direct comprehended that which was afforded by the State. There were 66,000 schools and colleges, taken together, in India, and there were not less than 1,900,000 boys and girls attending them. This direct education which was being given by the State might be regarded as intellectual, or moral, or scientific, or as practical and technical. The intellectual portion of the direct education had been afforded with considerable success. It had extended to literature, history, and to everything which was comprised in the general term of literæ humaniores. The natives of India had always proved themselves very proficient in languages, not only their own languages but those of Europe also. It had been well said by Lord Northbrook that very few European foreigners could speak English as well as it was spoken by the natives of India. (Cheers.) So far, therefore, the State education had been highly successful. The moral branch was, however, to a great extent, as yet, incidental. An effective teacher, while affording instruction in history and literature, virtually afforded a good deal of ethical education also; but absolute instruction was not afforded in ethics and moral philosophy to the same degree. There was thus a certain amount of moral instruction afforded systematically and a great deal incidentally. Scientific education chiefly consisted of instruction in two branches of the applied sciences—namely, medical science and the science of civil engineering. In both these branches great success had been attained. The medical colleges had turned out a great number of fully competent native medical men, both as surgeons and physicians; but, besides this, medical schools were being established year after year in different divisions of the Empire, and hundreds of licentiates—who were not exactly medical men, but were really competent hospital assistants and apothecaries and the like—were turned out. The same satisfactory results were found in civil engineering, students being educated not only as civil engineers, but also as overseers and assistant overseers. He believed that much more ought to be done with respect to the teaching of science generally. As to the technical or practical branch of education, it must be admitted that very little worthy of the name had as yet been done. Some art education was no doubt given; some education also in mechanics. In some districts of India—especially in Madras, in some parts of Bombay, and in some parts of the North Western Provinces—some instruction had been given in agriculture, but there was great room for the popular development of this branch of instruction. Turning next to what he called the more recondite part of the education, the indirect, he pointed out the educational effect of the great field of cadastral survey of India which had been completed, and was maintained and corrected year by year, the influence on the native mind of legislation which embodied the best ethical ideas of a nation for the time being, and the education that lay in witnessing the impartial administration of law and justice to rich and poor alike, as well as in the encouragement given to the natives to resort to arbitration, to serve as arbitrators, as assessors at criminal trials, as jurymen, and as honorary magistrates. The educational effect of the criminal code was incalculable in its humanising influences, and one of the most remarkable effects of British rule was the establishment of hospitals throughout India. He next referred to the educative influence of commerce, of local municipalities, of the railways, on which thirty-five millions of persons travelled yearly, of machinery and steam, of the post-office, and of savings banks, which had been instrumental in greatly developing thrift among the natives, and he concluded with some pregnant general observations on the results which this education was producing and might yet be expected to produce on the minds of the natives. Its first fruits would be to steady the intellect of the natives. They had most retentive memories and very expansive imaginations, but they had not sufficient steadiness and maturity of thought, and they subordinated their reason to their imagination. It would strengthen their mental stamina, and strengthen, as it were, their muscles. Next there would be, and, indeed, there was already, a great elevation of the standard of moral rectitude. The most blessed circumstance now perceptible in India was that all the educated natives showed a much higher standard of integrity, rectitude, and honour in all secular and temporal affairs than they had ever shown before. (Cheers.) When he first landed in India he never expected to see the blessed results which he had seen. In those days corruption, and worse, were rife among the native public servants of Government; but the state of matters was now quite the reverse. High native officials, graduates of the universities, were just as honourable and trustworthy as English gentlemen. He had often asked natives to what they attributed this, and they ascribed it mainly to English education. Another remarkable result was the great increase of general and political intelligence. That was good for us. It made natives take an interest in the affairs of the British Empire; but there was no doubt it had created a fresh body of public opinion, and Englishmen must bear that in mind. Referring to the effect of Western education on caste, he would gladly believe that old ideas and traditions regarding it were being weakened, but he could not see any signs of that. The natives who came to this country had to break their caste in crossing the ocean, as they were also obliged to do by living in London; but he rather expected that most of them, when they returned to India, would have to conciliate their caste brethren and go through various ceremonies in order to be readmitted to the magic pale of caste. Education under British rule had not affected the religious belief of the great mass of the people. He did not think it had affected the belief of the Mahomedans at all, nor the great mass of the Hindus. But it had affected the belief of the upper classes of Hindus. A majority of the upper class of Hindus no longer believed in Hinduism as a religion, but in abandoning it they had not become irreligious; they had not gone into atheism, infidelity, or materialism, but had a firm belief in the immortality of the soul, in an all-seeing Judge who would decide omnisciently and immutably regarding the eternal destiny of every one of us according to our conduct in this life. They had also the firmest conviction in the immutable principles of right and wrong. He concluded by some interesting remarks in reference to the spread of education among Indian women. Education was making rapid progress among them also. Girls' schools for all classes were being established, school mistresses were being trained for them—an excellent outlet being thereby afforded to native widows—a Zenana Mission was in progress, and there could be no doubt that another generation would see remarkable progress in female education. The natives of India were worthy of our best esteem, conscientious regard, and friendly efforts on their behalf, and if these were given the result would be the establishment of British rule better than it could be established by cannon and bayonets, while we would be obeying the behests of that All-wise Providence who had entrusted to us the Empire of India for the good of the human race. A short discussion followed Sir Richard Temple's address, opened by Mirza Peer Buksh, and then the chairman (Sir Arthur Hobhouse) made some observations. He referred, in corroboration of Sir R. Temple's remarks, to the evidence that had come before him, while legal member of Council at Calcutta, of the powerful effect produced on the minds of the natives by our law and its administration. He also spoke of the incalculable benefit caused by the absolute incorruptibility of our public service, and urged the practical importance of admitting natives to high executive and judicial posts, which he considered would have a valuable bearing on education. Direct education was working in India very powerfully, and he was glad to hear Sir R. Temple's opinion that its result was visible in an elevation of moral rectitude. He did not think that caste showed signs of decay, nor did he desire that it should be rapidly broken through. Mr. Hodgson Pratt proposed a vote of thanks to Sir R. Temple for his very interesting address, which was seconded by Syed Ameer Ali, and, after a vote of thanks to the chairman, the meeting terminated.

LAMPLOUGH'S EFFERVESCENT PYRETIC SALINE.

Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates.

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,

CAPTAIN FRED. BURNABY

Says page 13:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physic—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cockle's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact, the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines, when I administered to him five will never fade from my memory; and a friend of mine, who passed through the same district many months after-theme of conversation in the bazaar."

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Dec. 11; Madras and Allahabad, Dec. 9; Calcutta, Dec. 8.

REPORTS on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending Nov. 30 state that in Madras, Bombay, and Bengal general prospects are good. In Madras there was a considerable rainfall, and standing crops are thriving. In the Bombay Presidency there was rain in the Deccan and a slight fall in Sind. In Bengal, where there was no rain, harvest operations continue with, in some cases, more than an average yield. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh also no rain fell during the week; rabi sowings are being pushed on, and the prospects of the crop are now improved. In the Punjab agricultural prospects are not reported to be unfavourable; but rain is generally required for spring sowings. Slight rain again fell in most districts of the Central Provinces; the kharif outturn has been good on the whole, but jowari and cotton have been slightly injured in places by recent rain. In Burma reaping has commenced; the outturn will be affected by the deficient rainfall in the latter months, but to what extent is not yet known. In Assam and in the other provinces and in almost all native States, prospects remain good; but in Mysor, Hyderabad, and Marwar the recent heavy rain has done some damage; whilst there have been complaints of drought from some parts of Northern Bundelkhand. Prospects throughout the Empire are, on the whole, good; and the grounds for anxiety which was at one time felt in regard to parts of the North Western Provinces and Oudh have for the present been removed.

THE general health reports for the same week are as follow:—Bombay: Fever continues, but is abating in Guzerat. Bengal: Fever still very prevalent in many places, and deaths reported very numerous in Nuddea and in Sudder Division of Jessore. Cholera in Cuttack, Pooree, and Maldah, and some cases reported from Bhuddrach and Deoghur. Small-pox in Pooree and Chumparun, and at Jhalda, in Manbhoom. North West Provinces and Oudh: General health, with the exception of slight fever in Bareilly and Agra, and some cholera in Fyzabad, is good. Central Provinces: Good. British Burma: Cholera in parts of Pegu, but few fatal cases; a little small-pox; otherwise public health good. Assam: General health fair; fever about Ganhati. Mysor and Coorg: Health good.

THE situation in Cabul is described by the Times correspondent as critical. We quote his words:—

"The latest Cabul news would seem to indicate that the Ameer is still far from feeling his position assured. He continues to push on the enlistment of soldiers and the manufacture of arms, and has imprisoned the Mir Butcha chief, whose name was a year ago so familiar as one of the leaders of the Yakub faction. Sirdar Yassuf Khan, formerly the Governor of Cabul, was also arrested, and Sirdar Shere Mahomed Khan has been banished to Turkestan for disrespectful conduct in a durbar. The Ameer is said, moreover, to have been unsuccessful in an attempt to collect the arrears of revenue for the last two years and to be somewhat unpopular with the people. Asmutullah Khan, the Ghilzai chief, is still in apparent favour; but, as the Ghilzais are known to lean towards Yakub, it is impossible to place much faith in the continuance of their friendly relations with Abdul Rahman. The situation, in a word, is most critical, and it will not be surprising if within the next few months the Ameer is obliged to fight for the throne on which we placed him. The Kuram Valley has been quiet since the withdrawal of the British troops, and the Turi tribes are still in undisturbed possession. It remains to be seen whether they will be able to hold their own without our help during the period of anarchy which many Indian politicians believe to be about to commence in Northern Afghanistan."

THE telegraphic news from Kandahar is as follows:—

"Travellers from Herat report that Khan Agha Jamshadi was, on his arrival in Herat, imprisoned and shortly afterwards put to death. Ayub has found out that the stoppage of trade has done himself more harm than us; and Hasim Khan, Governor of Farah, has been personally escorting caravans on their way to Kandahar through a tract of country infested by robbers. Colonel St. John has now completed arrangements for the administration of the provinces. Sirdar Gul Mahomed Khan, grandson of Kohendil Khan, an independent ruler of Kandahar in Dost Mahomed's time, has charge of the Trans-Helmand District, where he is well known and respected. Sherirdi Khan, the Wali's nephew, is appointed Governor of Tirin, in the north; Mahomed Hasam Khan, his brother, is managing the country between Kandahar and the Helmand; and Mahomed Khan, the Wali's brother, that to the east of the city between it and the independent Kahar and Ghalai country. Each is allowed a small number of mounted and infantry levies to keep order in the districts, to levy the revenue, and to protect the caravans from robbers. This last is very necessary, as the country round Kandahar has been well-nigh drained of supplies by our army and Ayub's, and both troops and citizens are mainly dependent on the corn brought from a distance. General Hume held a general parade on the 22nd inst. of all the troops in the garrison, and at the close congratulated the commanding officers on the efficiency evinced by the steadiness and the accuracy with which all the movements were carried out on this the first occasion on which the troops had been brought together. Some raiding has been going on in Persian Seistan from the Afghan border. Sirdar Shere Ali Khan has reached India. He goes temporarily, at his own desire, to Karachi. He will be treated by the British Government with all due honour and liberality. The latest news from Herat indicates that the coalition formed against Ayub Khan has dissolved, but he is said to be very weak there."

THE troubles in Gilgit seem to have now quite subsided. Major Biddulph, with a small escort, has visited the Sher Kila Fort, lately besieged by the Yassinis, and proceeded towards the Yassin frontier with a view of collecting information about the occupation of that country by the Chitral chief. On his return to Gilgit he reported that he had found everything quiet and that the Kashmir troops were arriving.

THE correspondent of the Times has telegraphed that the report of the Viceroy's resignation is officially contradicted. The Viceroy leaves Allahabad for Calcutta on Jan. 3. He was able to leave his bed on the 24th.

THE first meeting of the Supreme Council since the Viceroy's illness was held in Calcutta on Thursday last. Mr. Stokes, the senior member present, presided.

SIR JOHN STRACHEY left India on Christmas Day. Mr. Baring was expected to reach Calcutta on the 27th inst.

SIR STEUART BAYLEY, the Chief Commissioner of Assam, will take three months' leave, to begin in January. It is believed that Mr. Cockerell, secretary to the Bengal Government, will act as his locum tenens.

A TELEGRAM from Allahabad, dated Dec. 24, informs the public that the report of the appointment of Sir Donald Stewart as commander in chief of the forces in India, in succession to Sir Frederick Haines, is declared to be untrue.

MR. DONALD MACNABB has proceeded to take charge of Beluchistan affairs from Sir Robert Sandeman, who remains for a short time to complete the settlement with the Marri tribe, against whom General M'Gregor's expedition was directed in October. The tribe submitted as a whole, but one section refused to fulfil the terms imposed upon them. Sir Robert Sandeman has gone with a small force to support the principal Marri chief in coercing the refractory section.

GENERAL PHAYRE's despatch describing his march to relieve Kandahar was published in last Saturday's Gazette of India. This document is a long record of the efforts made to overcome the difficulties arising from the heat of the weather, the scarcity of supplies, and the insufficiency of transport, and it presents no points of any particular interest, except so far as it shows how wholly unprepared the reserve force was to take the field. Most of the transport cars were under repair when the news came of the Maiwand disaster. The transport cattle were weak from want of grain and forage, and most of the cattle attendants had deserted. The advanced force, after leaving Quetta, was nearly brought to a stand by the desertions of the drivers of 300 carts, and half a regiment of native infantry had to be utilised as drivers. The lesson to be learnt from these and many other incidents mentioned by General Phayre is an obvious one, and it is to be hoped that the Indian Government will lay it to heart and lose no time in putting the Transport Department on a sounder footing.

It is notified in Bombay General Orders of Dec. 7 that Major General Robert Phayre, C.B., Bombay Staff Corps, is appointed to the Divisional Staff, vice Lieut. General J. Forbes, C.B., whose period of service on the staff expires on the 5th proximo.

LIEUT. COLONEL J. W. H. JOHNSTONE, Bengal Staff Corps, has been strongly recommended to the notice of her Majesty by the Government of India to receive some special mark of approval in recognition of the services performed by him in relieving the besieged garrison of Kohima, Naga Hills, in October, 1879.

THE attention of Government is called to the danger of allowing the troops stationed at Kohima, in the Naga Hills, to remain there, in face of the fact that, consequent on the failure of transport arrangements, they are practically without supplies. The garrison is 128 miles from its base.

It is stated that the bronze stars for the march from Cabul to Kandahar are to be made from the metal of some of the guns captured from the enemy at Sherpur and Mazra. The work will be done at Calcutta.

WE are authorised to state that officers of the Indian service on furlough entitled to medals for the Jawaki campaign can receive the same on application at the Military Department of the India-office.

THE Maharaja Sir Runodeep Singh, Prime Minister of Nepaul, arrived at Calcutta on Wednesday to pay his respects to the Viceroy.

SIR RUNODEEP SING, Prime Minister of Nepaul, is accompanied by fifteen ladies, forty military officers, three hundred male attendants, fifty bandsmen, and fifty maid servants.

MR. LOVERY, a Eurasian gentleman, has been appointed sheriff of Madras. The new sheriff of Bombay is a Parsee.

A BOMBAY journal says that the abandonment of the Khyber is only now delayed pending a complete understanding with the local tribes. The tribesmen are to hold the Pass in our interest against all comers and give us timely warning of any hostile movement. No fortifications will be allowed, but the military road will be maintained in good order.

THE Englishman understands that the British Indian Association are preparing a most elaborate address of welcome to the Viceroy, in which the principal points dwelt upon will be the proposed rent law and the license tax. It is to be hoped that the state of his Excellency's health will be taken into due consideration in regulating the length of the address.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times says that the Duke of Buckingham's departure seems to be much regretted by the natives, and during the last few weeks he has been constantly employed in receiving addresses and attending entertainments given by them in his honour. The European community appear on the whole to hail the change with relief, and their general verdict is that his Grace's tenure of office can hardly be described as successful.

GENERAL C. C. JOHNSON sent in his resignation of the office of quartermaster general the day he sailed from Bombay—very loyal conduct on his part, as he thus reverts to the rank of colonel and loses considerably in pocket by forfeiting certain furlough allowances that he might have held on to by the rules of the service.

THE native community of Madras have subscribed over ten thousand rupees for the erection of choultries as a memorial of his Grace the Duke of Buckingham.

AT the meeting for the Patriotic Fund at Allahabad Sir George Couper announced that subscriptions had already been received or promised amounting to two and a-half lakhs. Sir George also suggested, very properly, that the committee should issue an order that no pressure was to be put on the people to induce them to subscribe.

DR. J. ANDERSON, superintendent of the Indian Museum, the Pioneer hears, has returned from leave to Calcutta and taken over charge of his office from Mr. Wood-Mason.

THE success which attended the floating of the Indian loan caused as much surprise in India as it apparently caused in England. Rupee paper has in consequence changed hands enormously at very advanced rates.

THE refusal of the Viceroy to preside at the meeting of the Doveton College has been attributed to the unsatisfactory condition of that institution. But the Times of India says that it has been explained that the telegram was followed by a letter from the private secretary, explaining to the Doveton committee that Lord Ripon regretted he could not comply with their request on account of the multiplicity of engagements already upon his hands requiring his attention and attendance on his Excellency's arrival in Calcutta. The same paper adds that "it ought not to be forgotten that Lord Ripon presided at the annual meeting of a Church of England school at Simla the other day, and that one of the best of his recent educational speeches was made at another strictly Protestant institution at Amritsar."

THE Bombay Gazette says:—"Bombay cannot be charged with fickleness. The allusion of Lord Ripon at the recent banquet given in his honour to the 'indomitable energy of Sir Richard Temple' elicited a burst of cheering as loud and as prolonged as that which greeted Sir Richard himself when he rose to respond to the toast of his health in the Byculla Club last March. The heartiness of the demonstration appeared to strike the Viceroy, who was evidently surprised by the electrical effect of the allusion to our late Governor."

THE policy of the new Council of Agency at Jaipur is a curious illustration of the uncertain tenure of Western ideas and improvements. The death of the enlightened and improving Maharaja is but of yesterday, but we are already informed that the new council have abolished the Photographic and the Meteorological Departments. The Jaipur Medical Hall is to be handed over to any enterprising druggist who will take it and the Jaipur Hotel will soon be a thing of the past.

THE Statesman hears that a committee, consisting of Major General Napier Campbell, R.A.; Col. Childers, R.A., superintendent Madras gunpowder factory; Col. Baily, R.A., superintendent gunpowder factory, Kirkee; and Major Walker, R.A., superintendent small arms ammunition factory, Dum Dum, has been appointed by Government. The officials, it is said, have arrived at Calcutta and will hold their meetings to deliberate upon the best means to simplify the process of proving gunpowder.

NEWS comes from Central Asia to the effect that the Russians have pushed forward telegraph lines to Mamagan, a place on the Sir Daria to the north east of Knokand and on the direct line between Tashkend and Kashgar.

THE Raja of Jhind has given the sum of Rs.100,000, and the Maharaja of Patiala Rs.5,000, towards the repairs of the golden gates of the Golden Temple at Amritsar. The Maharani Surnomoye, of Kassimbazar, has given a donation of Rs.2,000 to the Naini Tal relief fund. The Maharaja of Darbhanga has given Rs.5,000 to be laid out in Government securities towards providing a scholarship and prize for the study of Sanskrit.

THE Government of India have refused to extend the State Railway Savings Bank rules to guaranteed railways not earning a surplus profit, the Madras Railway Company being one of them. They also refuse to entertain any proposal in regard to granting pensions to the officers and servants of that company, as this can only be done under exceptional circumstances, which do not exist in its present financial condition.

THE Austrian ports—or rather the port of Trieste—receive large quantities of goods from India for distribution in Austria, Germany, and Italy. Last year the total value of exports from India to Austria was but a little under 186 lakhs, and this was an increase over the figure for the year before. The returns for the first half of the current year are not yet available; but such statistics as have been published show that the mercantile relations between the two countries are still flourishing. India's chief export to Austria is raw cotton, of which 90 lakhs worth was sent during the six months, against less than 67 lakhs for the same period of last year. This, with the largely-increased exports of Indian raw cotton to Germany, Italy, and Russia, will compensate for the decrease in the amount sent to France. The chief article which India imports from Austria is paper, some Rs.267,500 worth being imported within the six months.

THE returns of the trade and navigation of British India for the first seven months of the financial year show that the value of merchandise exported and imported was respectively Rs.39,41,15,565 and Rs.28,91,25,567. These figures in the corresponding period last year were Rs.35,18,02,100 and Rs.21,27,39,206. The import duty collected was Rs.2,38,81,720, as against Rs.2,28,63,428; the export duty Rs.32,24,608, as against Rs.27,64,831. For the month of October the imports were Rs.4,48,01,107 and exports Rs.5,01,53,295, against Rs.3,34,10,808 and Rs.4,70,85,318 in October, 1879.

In India, in the three months ending June 30, eighty persons were killed on railways, but of these only seven were passengers, and six are said to have met with their deaths from misconduct or want of caution. Three passengers were injured, six railway servants killed, and twenty-seven injured from causes beyond their own control. Thirty-nine servants were killed and one hundred injured from misconduct or want of caution. One person was killed whilst passing at a level crossing, twenty-three while trespassing, and two committed suicide. One person was injured in attempting to commit suicide, and two killed from what is described as "miscellaneous causes." The accidents to trains, rolling-stock, permanent way, &c., were, in point of number, considerably below the average, although the mileage has so largely increased. On the Great Indian Peninsula the number of goods trains, or parts of goods trains, engines, &c., leaving the rails decreased from twenty-one to eight, and the failures of machinery from ten to nil, but it is reported that the cases of fire in trains considerably increased. In a resolution of the Public Works Department the attention of Government and officers concerned is invited to a large increase in the number of cattle accidents on the South Indian and Northern Bengal State Railways, and in the number of failures of machinery, springs, &c., of engines in the Punjab, Northern, and Indus Valley State Railways; to the large number of broken rails on the Northern Bengal State Railway; and also to the fires in trains on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. Eighteen trains, it seems, caught fire on this line, but under what circumstances is not explained. Nor is the extent of the damage done by the fires stated in the circular of the Railway Department.

DURING the week ended Nov. 27 there were 412 deaths in Calcutta, giving a death-rate of 50 per 1,000 per annum. In Madras during the same week there were 265 deaths, and the death-rate was 34·6. In Bombay during the week ending Nov. 30 there were 380 deaths, being a death-rate of 28·40.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—Major A. Gore-Anderson, 60th Rifles; Lieut. W. H. Bishop, 11th Foot.

THE Government of India has lately intimated to the home authorities its intention of reorganising the divisional and district staff of the Royal Artillery serving in that country. The following establishments will in future be sanctioned:—Bengal—Nine colonels, fourteen lieutenant colonels, eight adjutants, two riding masters. Madras—Four colonels, seven lieutenant colonels, four adjutants, and two riding masters. Bombay—Four colonels, seven lieutenant colonels, four adjutants, one riding master. This establishment includes the inspector general, the deputy adjutant general of artillery, Bengal, and the assistant adjutant general, Madras and Bombay. In no case is the total number of both grades to exceed forty-five, or the number of colonels eighteen. The tenure of these appointments will be for five years.

UNDER existing rules an officer proceeding to join an appointment giving him additional pay has to travel at his own expense. A case lately occurred in which an officer of the artillery was ordered to proceed from Trichinopoly to Jhilm, a distance of some 2,500 miles, to join a staff appointment, and found that his travelling expenses would swallow up his extra allowances for many months. So he appealed through the Madras Commander in Chief to the Duke of Buckingham and the latter referred the question to the Controller of Military Accounts. Officers will be glad to hear that the latter, with the concurrence of the Government of India, has decided that officers proceeding on field service are allowed free conveyance, whether posted to staff appointments carrying increased allowances or otherwise.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

DR. HUNTER ON INDIA.*

UNDER the collective title of "England's Work in India," the Director-General of Gazetteers and Statistics has republished the four lectures which last year and this excited general attention. In the preface Dr. Hunter says that the first two chapters, which deal with the primary duties of every Government—namely, the protection of its subjects and the development of the country—gave rise, when delivered as lectures, to a too favourable view of our position in India. The last two chapters, which are entitled the "Work to be Done," and deal with "the functions of an Asiatic administration connected with the food supply and self-government of the people," caused "an unduly despondent view" and a belief that English rule was proving itself a failure. Dr. Hunter desires that these views should correct and counterbalance each other. The result of carefully reading his review of the work done in the past and the difficult tasks that now tax the wisdom and energy of the Indian Government will, he hopes, be a calm resolve that "Englishmen will with a firm heart enter on the new duties which are there being forced upon them." Dr. Hunter very clearly shows that the poverty which affects, as it always has affected, too large a proportion of the population of India, has been increased by the beneficent protection resulting from the British rule, which has caused an increase of population beyond the feeding power of the land; and, after soaring into imaginary heights of future representative government, he says—"Administrative improvements can do much, but the Indian people themselves can do more. The poverty of certain parts of India is the direct and inevitable result of the over-population of those parts of India. The mass of the husbandmen are living in defiance of economic laws. . . . There is plenty of fertile land in India still awaiting the plough. The Indian husbandman must learn to mobilise himself and to migrate from the crowded provinces to the under peopled ones." And if, as Dr. Hunter omitted to state, such a migration takes place from any British provinces to the native States, where the population is only one-third as crowded, we shall be told that the migration is an escape from the intolerable burden of British government. Dr. Hunter warmly supports Mr. Hume's plea for the establishment of a real effective Agricultural Department, and we would gladly see this topic more widely ventilated. We regret to see that Dr. Hunter, who must know better, repeats the electioneering statements about the vernacular Press without note or comment or any qualification. He might have told the people of Edinburgh, many of whom, in their capacity of Midlothian voters, carried away the idea that the native Press was forbidden to offer fair criticism, that all that was prohibited was incendiary sedition. There is lying before us now an article quoted by the Calcutta Englishman from the Amrita Bazar Patrika on English ideas of governing India, which we commend to Dr. Hunter's perusal, both as a proof of the freedom of the Press and of the admirable way in which English endeavours for the good of India are appreciated by the class who clamour for representative government. But his little book contains so much that is useful and valuable that we hope it will be widely read. His peroration, which exhorts his countrymen to realise how great a responsibility lies upon them to legislate for India in the interest of India, or, as he says, "the Indian people," has a curious echo in words which we quote from the Indian Mirror commenting on Lord Northbrook's address at Birmingham:—

"It is undeniably true that at the present day political questions affecting Europe, and more directly England, exercise the minds of the educated classes in India far more than at any previous period of our history. The cause of this greater and growing interest is undoubtedly due to the transfer of the government of the country from the East India Company to the Crown, and to the consequent change, whether for better or for worse, which has brought the final decision of questions of Indian policy within the venue of the British Parliament. The result is naturally that every educated native who is capable of using his judgment is prepared to cast in his lot with the Liberal Party, from whom alone, as he has already seen from the working of the Conservative policy, he can hope for a concession of those rights and privileges to the inestimable value of which the study of English history and literature has opened his eyes."

THE SOLVENCY OF INDIA.*

THE question to which Mr. Thorburn has endeavoured to give a satisfactory reply is being asked and answered in various ways. The English inquirer into the facts about India must begin to feel rather bewildered as authority after authority presents him with a new statement generally differing from, sometimes diametrically contradicting, the one which has preceded. Mr. Thorburn has gathered together a strong array of facts and is clear and decided as to the conclusions arrived at. He finds the explanation of the shortcoming of the Indian revenue to be a simple one. The native States have surpluses to invest or waste because they do not pay their fair share of the expenses of the empire. British India has a deficit because it has to pay for its neighbours as well as itself. The native States, he argues, receive as much benefit proportionately as British India from our armies. They derive advantages also from the Central Governments establishment and from the political service, but they do not pay their quota, which he calculates at 27½ per cent. of their aggregate revenue, 12,500,000. That is to say, that instead of 700,000, which the native princes pay at present, they ought to contribute nearly three and a-half millions of pounds sterling, which would be a very comforting addition to the imperial revenue and enable the puzzled Finance Minister to make both ends meet. As might be expected from a member of the Madras Civil Service, he is especially strong on the subject of "Travankor," which "gets exactly the same protection as Tinnevely and Malabar from foreign enemies and domestic sedition; but, while the British districts pay for it at the rate of 35 per cent. of their revenue, Travankor pays at the rate of only 14 per cent." He deals also with Mairor, and shows that it will be advantageous to take territory, which he carefully maps out, instead of additional contribution; indeed a "peaceful and entirely unobjectionable rectification of frontiers is particularly desirable in Mairor and Travankor." Mr. Thorburn is severe on the money wasted in native States on armies and palace expenditure, and so induce a profitable economy, the savings effected by which would make the payment of the additional contribution less burdensome to the taxpayers. He has other fiscal remedies—e.g., a marriage tax graduated according to the proposed expenditure. The probable amount to be raised by this novel tax is put at Rs. 9,50,000 per annum. Another recommendation is the resumption of Inams, followed by the recommendation to substitute whipping for imprisonment and so save the expense attendant on the latter form of punishment. The most valuable portion of the pamphlet is devoted to a vindication of the Madras land assessment from the charge of excess. Mr. Thorburn is of course at home in all the facts and figures, and shows where reforms could be effected, one being the buying out of zemindars.

THE ORDER OF VALOUR.*

THE handsome volume which the care and industry of Mr. O'Byrne have compiled surprises us at first sight by the fact that it is not an extended edition of a previously existing compilation, but is a novelty. The idea of placing in the hands of the public the official records of the acts of valour for which the much-prized Victoria Cross has been bestowed is one that entitles the editor to the thanks of all. But the other day we heard very well informed men surprised by the statement that the holder of a Victoria Cross might by a new act of valour gain the additional distinction of a bar. The possessor of Mr. O'Byrne's work will have had the opportunity of being acquainted with the royal warrants instituting and creating the Order of the Victoria Cross, which has been awarded to over 350 members of the service of all ranks, of whom 140 names have the asterisk attached, which means that they survive no longer. The records of each act are given in their official form, and it is impossible to avoid noticing that the particulars of the gallantry of the defenders of Rorke's Drift is curiously noticeable for the omission of the name of the locality. The last named upon the roll of our heroes is Capt. Ridgeway, B.S.C., for conspicuous gallantry throughout the attack on Konoina. The arrangement of the headings enables the reader to see at a glance the several services and regiments, while the nominal index renders reference easy. Mr. O'Byrne has furnished a complete history of the "new order of chivalry instituted in the nineteenth century."

* "The Victoria Cross: A Chronicle of Deeds of Personal Valour." Edited by ROBERT W. O'BYRNE, Esq. W. H. Allen and Co.

THE "ANTIQUARY."*

THE January number of this magazine, which commences the second year of its existence, contains among other interesting papers one upon "Some Traditions and Superstitions Connected with Buildings." Mr. Gomme traces back through the numerous local legends which tell of churches which were, like the Kirk of Deare, obliged to be built on ground designated by supernatural objects to the original site, the ghostly superstition which required each new building to be founded in human sacrifice. He naturally is led to correlate the almost modern customs which obtain in Africa, in Borneo, and in Burma. He seems somewhat doubtful as to the statement that when the late King of Burma built his new capital, Mandalay, the posts of the principal gate of the royal city were erected on the bodies of slaves. But there is more reason to credit the statements made by those who had sufficient opportunity for local inquiry, and the murderous savagery of royal Burma is quite in keeping with such traditional rites. The Antiquary promises to be a success if we may judge from the programme of articles and papers for the coming year.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—In Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine for this month there is an interesting article on the Indian Famine Reports which well repays perusal. I wish to call your attention to the writer's remarks on the export trade of India (p. 739), as I find that many Scotchmen, who are usually long-headed political economists, entertain the idea that we can tax foreign nations who consume Indian products without injuring our own subjects. Suppose the case of your wishing to sell a horse or a carriage or a cow. Would you be grateful to Government if it made a law enacting that you were only to sell your property to your neighbours in your own village, or else pay a heavy tax if you sold it to an outsider? All property subjected to an export tax immediately falls in value. Facilities for transferring property to any part of the world is one great source of increased value. The American owners of pigs and wheat would rebel at once if the Government of the United States were to attempt to impose a tax on their property which they send to foreign countries. We injure the poor in India by imposing a heavy tax on the export of rice. Were we to abolish this foolish tax the cultivation of rice in India would immediately and enormously increase, thus supplying the people with vastly increased supplies of food. We do not tax the rich merchants by an export tax; they take good care to reimburse themselves. We cannot tax consumers in foreign countries, for, if we increase the prices of Indian products by export taxes, consumers will buy from other countries, just as they are now buying inferior rice from Siam, Saigon, &c. Our common Indian rice is in quality far superior to the rice of Siam; free the former from cruel export duties and it will be generally eaten throughout all the world, in Europe, Asia, Africa, America, and Australia. Some of the rice grown in the Pillibheet District is as beautiful in appearance and as excellent in quality as that of South Carolina. Lastly, a system of export duties on Indian produce would ruin Indian finance. It would send down exchange to 1s. 6d. the rupee. The India-office requires eighteen millions sterling to be remitted home every year; private individuals require about seven millions more. If twenty-five millions sterling cannot be remitted in produce it must be remitted in rupees; and how many sovereigns do you think the India-office would realise by the sale of 200 millions of rupees in London every year? The simple mode of meeting famines in India is by providing food for the starving, which the British Government has never yet done in a satisfactory manner. Its duty is to ascertain the existing stocks of food compared with the amount of food which will be required, and to publicly advertise for tenders to supply the deficit. Thousands of tenders would be presented and grain supplied by competing contractors. Export taxes check agriculture, free trade would enormously increase the production of food, and in famine years that food would be detained in the country by purchases effected by Government contractors.—Your obedient servant,

THE DUKE'S ADMINISTRATION IN MADRAS.

SOON after his arrival the new Governor presided at a banquet given in honour of Sir Frederick Haines, whose tour of command at Madras had just then come to an end; and in the speech he made on that occasion he uttered a sentence which was thought lightly of at the time—was, in fact, regarded as pleasantry:—"I have taken the reins," said he, "and you will find that I also hold the whip." Madras has since discovered that those words were indeed pregnant with meaning. Nothing of importance took place, of course, until symptoms of the famine began to assert themselves; but during the quiet months that preceded that event his Grace gave ample proof of an independence of spirit, and an indifference towards the opinion of his colleagues in Council, that had never been heard of in a Governor of Madras before. Unfortunately for everyone the Duke from the first day could never conduct business on terms of official friendship with his senior member of Council—a piece of ill fortune which to a certain extent no doubt prejudiced his mind throughout the whole period of his administration. Sir William Robinson had officiated as Governor for seven months prior to his Grace's arrival, and he at once assumed a quasi patronising air towards his successor which the Duke was the last man in the world to tolerate. The only member of Council indeed with whom the Duke of Buckingham has worked for the past five years on terms of respect and official pleasantness was the late Mr. Robert Ellis. From the day of Mr. Ellis's retirement the Duke may be said to have done exactly as he pleased in all things. He maintained a perpetual guerilla warfare with Sir William Robinson, and with Sir Neville Chamberlain he has to this day carried on a never-ending series of disputes. With Messrs. Hudleston and Carmichael he has had his own way without a struggle. An administration thus conducted could hardly be crowned with any great success, while universal unpopularity might be expected as its certain doom. The conduct of the Duke of Buckingham during the famine is now a matter of history; no man could have worked harder, and though it may be urged that if he had not done so he would have proved himself unfit for his position there can be no doubt that by his example he instigated others to work, and that by his personal influence the charity of England was largely stimulated. With the exception, however, of his behaviour during the famine, the Duke has not been fortunate in his government of Madras. The Rampa disturbance and its pitiful mismanagement will long be remembered as the chief blot of his régime; while the numerous things he has left undone will rankle for many a day in the minds of the people of Madras. He leaves the Native Army of the Presidency as he found it—without a single grievance redressed. He has effected nothing towards the improvement of the municipality of the city of Madras or of mofussil Local Funds Boards. He has disappointed everyone in his attitude with regard to railways; great things were expected of him as ex-chairman of the London and North Western; but his policy has been retrogressive rather than progressive. In education he has never evinced any special interest, nor does he leave behind him a single public building that owes its foundation to his energy. It is true that he has erected, at enormous outlay, a new Government House at Ootacamund, concerning the necessity of which, however, even his friends are silent. Madras is as ill drained and its condition is every bit as insanitary as it was five years ago. The changes effected in the Judicial Department have not been productive either of improvement or of economy; while in many instances they have given rise to discontent and inconvenience. The employment of natives in high positions under Government has met with the Duke's approval, but the advantage gained by the movement in Madras is said to be imperceptible. In the teeth of these shortcomings it cannot be denied that the Duke of Buckingham has been no idler during his sojourn in India. He has been a hard working busy official from the day he landed. He has travelled a good deal in his Presidency and has evinced the greatest zeal in every direction. Personally hardy, and a man of strictly regular habits, he has never been absent from duty or unable to attend to his daily budget of correspondence. He has been indefatigable in his support of the Madras harbour works, and in the prosecution of his pet scheme—the Buckingham Canal—he has worked like a horse. The former undertaking is still sufficiently incomplete to render speculation as to its ultimate success doubtful, but the practical failure of the latter as a remunerative work can no longer be questioned. In the dispensation of patronage the Duke has been singularly unfortunate. Hardly an appointment that he has made has been well received by the services under his control. For a man of his Grace's antecedents, knowledge of the world, and previous history, he has proved himself extraordinarily susceptible to the blandishments of sycophancy. Those, therefore, that have been cumbered about much serving at Government House have had no cause to complain of his Grace's administration. In the matter of his promotions and appointments the Duke has not only given a good deal of offence to the officers of various departments, but he has also been blamed for culpable dilatoriness. Men have been frequently kept waiting for months for simple confirmation in their appointments, and vacancies have been left open for over half a year that should have been filled in a week.

His Grace's carelessness of private interests was adverted to on a former occasion in these columns; and at the same time his refusal to withdraw erroneously delivered censure was aminadverted upon. —Pioneer.

THE POPULATION OF INDIA.

THINGS have not yet come to such a pass in India that any doubt need be entertained of the means of subsistence sufficient for the increasing population not being obtainable within the country itself. Mr. Caird assumes that the population of India increases at about the rate of 1 per cent. a-year, but the Government, basing their conclusion on the different census reports, think that until the information on this subject is more complete the normal increase of an Indian population might be taken at 0.5 and 0.6 per cent. In the country immediately under British rule there is an average of 211 persons to the square mile, and, with the feudatory States included, of 165 to the square mile. In the order of density Oudh stands highest, with 468 persons per square mile; Bengal next with 397; then the North Western Provinces with 378; Madras, 226; Mysor, 187; the Punjab, 173; and Bombay, 131. The least densely populated province is British Burma, with 31 persons to the square mile; then Coorg with 84; the Central Provinces, 91; Assam, 99; Ajmeer, 119; and the Berars, 129. In Bengal, however, there are seventeen districts in which the population is over 500 to the square mile, thirteen such in the North Western Provinces, seven in Oudh, three in the Punjab, one in Madras, and one—a very obvious one—in Bombay. The general average in the case of Bengal and the North Western Provinces is brought down by the large area of mountainous and thinly-peopled hill country, and in the Punjab the large desert tracts produce a like result. It is worthy of note that more than 50 per cent. of the whole population are engaged in agricultural pursuits, for of the estimated number of adult males, namely, 62,000,000, 34,844,000 are returned as agriculturists, the next class in point of importance, the industrial, numbering only a little over eight millions, while the class designated as labourers are rather less. It is self-evident, therefore, that the problem to be solved has to do almost exclusively with those now engaged in agricultural occupations. It is pointed out in the famine commission report that the agricultural population is not restricted to adult males, large numbers of women and children being engaged in agriculture, but this does not affect the value of the statistics we have referred to, for, on the principle of averages, we gain from them approximate accuracy of the true facts. More important is the statement that "many artisans and professionals, besides their trade, own and cultivate land, and must be added to the population that lives on the soil, as must also the greater part of the labouring population," and we are quite ready to accept the suggestion that "probably 90 per cent. of the rural population, or rather more than 80 per cent. of the total population, is closely connected with the land," specially as this is about the proportion in other countries which are essentially agricultural. The institution of new industries, such as the production of tea, coal mining, jute weaving and spinning, cotton weaving and spinning, railway workshops, and rice cleaning have already done much, and are likely to do still more towards raising the wages and improving the condition of the labouring classes in various parts of the country. Yet Mr. Caird has told us that wages in India do not rise and have not risen. The policy of the Government in respect of remedying the evils of over population is of more consequence, however, than the hastily formed and as hastily digested views of Mr. Caird on the subject. In their despatch relative to his report on the condition of India occurs this passage:—"We do not see how Government can take steps to restrict the increase of population. Emigration from the densely peopled districts to the colonies, to the tea districts, or to other sparsely peopled parts of India is conducted on a voluntary system, regulated by law, and under carefully devised rules for the protection of our Indian subjects, and no restrictions are placed on those who seek to better themselves in foreign lands. As yet such emigration may be comparatively small, but obviously it would be impossible to make it in any way compulsory. We have at different times tried to promote systematic emigration from the Ganges Valley into Burma, into the Central Provinces, and into the tea districts. But if our efforts have borne very little fruit it may be said to be in a great measure due to the strong attachment to their homes which prevails among all classes in India. During the last few years communications between the districts of redundant population and the tea districts, where labour is much in demand, have been improved; we are considering the advisability of largely reducing the fees on the registration of emigrant labourers; and we hope that before long the transport of labourers to Assam or Cachar may be somewhat cheapened. But such emigration could never, without heavy State subsidies, which we do not advocate, provide for the normal increase of population among the 100 millions of the densely peopled Ganges Valley. We fully admit that the density of the poor population and the gradual increase of the landless labourer classes in Bengal and the North Western Provinces constitute a very serious administrative difficulty. But we look to the spread of education, the improvement of communications, the gradual growth of manufacturing and other industries, as the agencies by which the evils of over population may be mitigated." Probably the spread of education, railways, manufactures, and other industries will prove wholly inadequate to serve the purpose contemplated, but the Government are on the right track in enumerating them, while we are inclined to regard Mr. Caird's alarming calculations in regard to the public increase of population in India during the next ten and twenty years as partaking of the character of those alarming calculations connected with the probable exhaustion of the Welsh, Scotch, and English coalfields.—Times of India.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE SONTHALS.—No fresh acts of violence are reported from the Sonthal country, but some anxiety is felt lest an outbreak should occur on the occasion of the great national festival known as the Bandhna, which will take place on the 3rd of January. Strong police reinforcements have been sent, and a detachment of fifty sepoy of the 11th Madras Native Infantry, under European officers, has been despatched from Barrackpore to Jamtara, whence they will march through the Sonthal Pergunnahs to Nya Dooruka. The police have arrested an ascetic known as Babajee, who possessed great influence with the people of Sonthal, and who is charged with inciting them to resist the census-taking. This man had set himself up as a person of great sanctity and as gifted with supernatural powers, and had for some time been in the habit of issuing a series of extraordinary orders to the people, such as that they should kill every white animal in their possession, all of which were blindly obeyed by the simple tribesmen. Notwithstanding his profession of poverty and his allegation that he lived upon grass, the sum of Rs.2,000 was found in his house. No attempt was made by the Sonthals to resist his arrest. The objection of the people to being numbered, and their fear that the census was a preliminary to their deportation or to the imposition of a poll-tax, are the ostensible reasons of the present restlessness, but there is some ground for believing that the exactions and oppression of the money lender, that bête noire of the Indian rural population, are at the bottom of the movement.—Times Telegram.

THE CRIMINAL TRIBES.—The census preparations are proceeding rapidly, and every effort is being made to ensure its being the most complete record yet obtained of the Indian people. Among the orders issued by the Bengal Government is one to the effect that the steps to be taken to procure information regarding the criminal tribes, when these lists are once obtained, will become the duty of the police. Each district is to keep them constantly corrected, and it is hoped that a sensible diminution of crime may thus be brought about.

IRRIGATION IN THE N.W.P.—In the event of a total failure of the rain required to prepare the soil for the rabi sowings—and for a large portion of these provinces this calamity has been but just missed this year—it becomes an interesting problem to calculate what would have been the actual value of a canal running through the distressed parts. We may take it for granted that, under the circumstances supposed, no crops whatever could be grown without artificial irrigation, either by canal or well, and for the purposes of our problem may work out the actual value of the crops grown and compare it with the cost of constructing the canal. In 1878-79, a year of famine, it was computed in the Irrigation Revenue Report of that year that the Ganges Canal, with a length of 593 miles of main channel, produced crops worth Rs.4,11,02,350, or Rs.66,300 per mile, the capital cost of the canal being Rs.51,500 per mile. Thus supposing a season in which the kharif crops failed entirely and there were no rains to enable the rabi to be sown, it may be said that the canal would more than cover its original cost by the value of the produce, which could not have been brought to maturity without it. Again, if we take out the value of the canal in the same way, based on the rabi crops only, which we will assume could not be given at all without its aid, we shall find the value of crops raised to be about 29,500 per mile of canal, or 57 per cent. of the cost of its construction. On the supposition, therefore, that a drought occurs once in ten years only, it would appear that a canal which would hardly pay its expenses in an ordinary season would be worth constructing as a protection against total failure. The above figures are worth weighing in considering whether it is worth while to construct such a work as the Sardah Canal, which, we believe, is now to be started as a relief work in the distressed districts of Oudh. It seems clear that in a season like the present, when kharif has produced not more than a four anna crop, and when the rabi cannot be sown, the canal, had it been in existence, would have saved its own value in crops. Turning again to the canal returns for 1877-78 we learn that an area of 1,037,000 acres was cultivated by a canal 539 miles long, which cost Rs.51,500 a mile.—Pioneer.

THE POLICE OF UPPER INDIA.—The total cost last year of the police force in the North Western Provinces and Oudh was Rs.4,450,984. Of this sum Rs.3,666,299 were payable from provincial revenues and Rs.784,685 from other sources. The force consisted of 25,413 officers and men all told, of whom 7,214 were armed with firearms, 11,822 with swords, and 6,377 with batons only.—Indian Herald.

A NEW GAOL INDUSTRY.—A novel departure is being meditated by the Rangoon Gaol authorities in the matter of what are known in this country under the comprehensive name of gaol industries. It is proposed to start a new "industry" in the shape of the retail sale of "Europe" goods. It is reckoned that as the gaol pays no rent, and as rent is a very serious question in Rangoon, it will be possible to undersell the legitimate traders. A more barefaced attempt at gaol interference with the course of private trade it is impossible to conceive, and it is to be hoped that the ingenious projectors of the scheme may not be permitted to carry it out into practice. Under no shadow of a pretext could the establishment of a retail shop of this nature be termed a gaol industry. The suggestion itself is a strong commentary on the continued tendency on the part of the gaol authorities to make their establishments so many Government trading centres in which the main object in view is to make money by trading.—Englishman.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.—Perhaps the best solution of the difficulty as to who is to make a railway between the Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railway and Hardwar would be to allow the Oudh and Rohilkund Railway Company to go westwards only as far as Rurki, and to give to the proposed Dehra Dun Railway Company a concession for a broad gauge railway from Saharanpur, through Rurki, Hardwar, and then on to Dehra and Rajpur, the Oudh Company to have running powers at all times to Saharanpur, and during fair time only to Hardwar. The Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railway Company also might have running powers, during fair time only, to Hardwar. A concession to the Dun Company of the sections from Saharanpur to Hardwar would ensure the raising of the capital for the whole line to Rajpur, while the accommodation of the Oudh and Rohilkund Company's traffic would be perfectly provided for.—Ibid.

OSTRICH FARMING.—An attempt is to be made at ostrich farming in the North West Provinces, the stock being imported from the Cape. This is not, however, an attempt to develop the resources of the country emanating from the fertile brain of the Director of Agriculture, but a private speculation.—Ibid.

THE STAMP REVENUE IN BENGAL.—The progress of the stamp revenue of Bengal is shown in the following table:—1874-75, Rs.89,54,520; 1875-76, Rs.93,50,190; 1876-77, Rs.95,47,880; 1877-78, Rs.1,08,14,520; 1878-79, Rs.1,07,84,594; 1879-80, Rs.1,14,98,422. The report of the department for 1879-80 is before us, and it is, on the whole, an encouraging one. The increase over last year is Rs.7,13,828, or 6.62 per cent., and of this increase only Rs.2,44,501 come from court fee stamps. This amounts to 34.25 per cent. of the whole increment. We are always suspicious of an improving revenue from increased litigation. The amount payable to the Imperial Government under this head is Rs.1,03,50,000, consequently the local Government is to the good to the tune of Rs.11,48,422, a by no means despicable sum. The cost of collection was 2.34 per cent. against 2.32 in 1878-79, and 2.28 in 1877-78. The incidence per head of the population in Calcutta is Rs.4.38; Howrah, Rs.4; Nowakally, Rs.3; Chittagong, Rs.2.9; Durbhungah, Rs.0.6; Chumparun, Rs.0.4; and in Singhbhum, Rs.0.2. The average in Bengal being Rs.1.82, or 2 annas 11 pies. In ordinary 1 anna receipt stamps the sales amounted to Rs.1,92,153, representing over three million stamps. In the case of instruments stamped subsequently to execution, in which there is a penalty due, the number was 2,178, and the amount of duty and fines Rs.20,051-11-6. The attention of the revenue authorities and of the courts is drawn to this fact, as these represent, in many cases, an attempt to defraud the revenue.—Indian Daily News.

KASHMIR.—Vine-growing and wine-making have proved so successful in Kashmir under the superintendence of M. Ermens that the Maharaja has decided to increase his vineyards and has sent M. Ermens to France to bring out fifty lakhs of new vine cuttings. We also learn that another important industry, that of beet sugar-making, is likely to be successful in Kashmir, for, just before starting for France, M. Ermens was very successful in an experimental manufacture of sugar from the Kashmir beetroot. The beetroot yielded 7 per cent., and the sugar has been pronounced excellent. In France the maximum is from 8 to 10 per cent.—Englishman.

ASSAM FORESTS.—From the progress report of forest administration in Assam for the year 1879-80 we gather that the new system of appointing to the Indian forest service officers who have been trained in France is not altogether appreciated in this country. One such officer "was allotted to Assam, but as he was not acquainted with the language of the people, and on account of the great contrast between forest work in Europe and India, he was first employed under a senior officer to assist in the forest survey." The Chief Commissioner sanctioned during the year the appointment of ten apprentices to be admitted in the Central Forest School at Dehra Dun, in the N.W. Provinces, and under these orders six apprentices were entertained, but only three proved after trial sufficiently good men and willing to go to Dehra Dun. The year was an extremely favourable one for fire protection in Assam. While in 1878-79 only 33,259 acres out of a total area of 90,342 acres, or 36.8 per cent., were successfully secured against fire, in 1879-80 the area saved from burning was 91,935 acres out of a total of 92,605, or 99.2 per cent. This very satisfactory result was chiefly due to the extreme wetness of the season, the grass being too green to burn fiercely and there being little wind to fan it; but something must, however, be attributed to the more efficient measures taken to protect the reserves from fire; clean fire lines, 200 feet in width, being made, and to a larger expenditure on this object. The financial results are satisfactory, the department being self-supporting and yielding a net profit of Rs. 31,506. This amount is somewhat less than the profit of the previous year, owing to the present depressed state of the tea industry caused by low prices, which has had the effect of exhausting many of the less powerfully supported tea concerns, and has disinclined them from taking up fresh land for cultivation. Nearly two-thirds of the income of the forest department in Assam is derived from payment for timber standing on waste land disposed of for cultivation, the most valuable timber in the province being cal. The question of utilising the young shoots of bamboos for the manufacture of paper has now for some years past been under the consideration of Government, and great diversity of opinion is said to prevail regarding the cost of production and the quantity of young shoots which may with safety be taken from a clump of bamboo; opinion differs also as regards the cultivation required to ensure the highest yield in the way of young bamboo shoots. To obtain by actual experiment correct information on the above points a bamboo farm was started, but no very decisive information has been as yet obtained. The Shillong experiment farm was taken over by the forest department, and contains fifty thousand young seedlings of the wild apple (Pyrus Indica), which it is intended to grant for sale.—Pioneer.

ACCIDENTS ON THE PUNJAB NORTHERN STATE RAILWAY.—It appears that an accident similar to those reported as having occurred on the Punjab Northern State Railway took place on the 18th October, between Surabaya and Mudjokerto, the result being fatal to the European engine driver and two native stokers. The accident is ascribed to the malice of native carriers dreading the competition of the railway, who had hence dug away the earth from under the rails where the accident happened. Perhaps a similar explanation may be given for the Rawul Pindi accident, as there used to be a large carrying industry between that place and Jhelum which is now greatly injured by the railway, and it is quite possible that some rascality on the part of native carriers may account for the disasters on the new line.—Times of India.

PATRIOTIC FUND MEETING AT ALLAHABAD.—A public meeting was held at the Mayo Hall, Allahabad, on Dec. 4, to further the object of the Patriotic Fund in the North-West Provinces. The Lieutenant Governor, Sir G. Couper, Bart., presided, and there was an influential attendance. The Chief Justice, Sir Robert Stuart, proposed the first resolution, which ran as follows:—"That this meeting sympathises with the object and aims of the meeting held at Simla on Sept. 14, 1880, under the presidency of his Excellency the Viceroy, at which it was resolved that, in order to mark the high appreciation in which their countrymen hold the gallantry displayed by the troops in Afghanistan, and the courage and endurance with which they have borne the hardships of the campaigns, a fund should be raised, to be called 'The Patriotic Fund,' and to be devoted to the relief of those who have been disabled, and of the families of those who have died during the war." The resolution, which was seconded by Mr. Simson, was carried unanimously. The second resolution was proposed by the Hon. Mr. Pearson and seconded by the Rev. J. Stephenson. It was to the following effect:—"That to further the objects to promote the success of the Patriotic Fund, and in compliance with the invitation addressed by the central committee to the public of these provinces and Oudh, through the Hon. Sir George Couper, a provincial committee be formed, on which the following gentlemen be asked to act, with power to add to their number:—Sir George Couper, president; Sir Robert Stuart, vice president, and Messrs. G. W. Allen, Atkinson, C.S.; Ajudiah Nath Pundit; Col. Brownlow, R.E.; Major Birch; Mr. E. Birch; General Cobbe, C.B.; Messrs. C. P. Carmichael, C.S.; T. Conlan; P. Corbett; R. Carr; Major Clifford; Major C. A. Dodd; Baboo Dwarka Nath Bannerjee; Rev. F. Francis; Col. Glass; Bubu Gaya Pershad; Messrs. A. S. Harrison; C. H. Hill; Munshi Hanoman Pershad; Munshi Jowalo Pershad; Messrs. J. L. Lyell; A. L. Markham, C.S.; H. Martin; Mahomed Muhsin Khan Bahadur; Capt. H. Okeden; Mr. G. Peddie; Babu Pramoda Churn Bannerjee; Messrs. H. S. Reid, C.S.; C. Robertson, C.S.; Raja Banspat Singh, of Barah; Raja Ram Pertab Sing, of Manda; Lalla Ram Churn; the Hon. Messrs. Spankie and Straight; Messrs. J. Simson, C.S.; A. P. Sinnett; Rev. J. Stephenson; and Col. Smithet; members; and Messrs. W. Tyrrell, C.S., and G. W. Allen, secretaries. Some other resolutions were also passed.—Times of India.

MORTALITY IN THE NORTH WEST.—The return of mortality in the North Western Provinces and Oudh for the month of October, 1880, is a striking contrast to the return for the corresponding month of last year. This year the total deaths from all causes in the month numbered 119,043, of which 91,248 were from fevers. Last year the total deaths during the same period was 429,115, of which no less than 401,082 were due to fever.—Ibid.

DEATH OF THE MAHARANI OF KASHMIR.—The Queen Consort of the Maharaja of Kashmir died Dec. 1, and her remains were cremated on the right bank of the river Tavi on the following day. The ceremony is thus described:—"The corpse was carried on a bier preceded by silken banners and military music and followed by his Highness the Maharaja, the durbar officials, and a large multitude. Silver and gold coins were thrown on either side as the procession moved. The funeral pyre stood near the river's brink, surrounded by attendants and priests, the body was placed on it, and, after the usual ceremonies, consigned to the flames." Special sowars on camels had been sent to recall the three princes who had proceeded to Lumbagan for the celebration of Prince Ramsingh's wedding, but they had not arrived when the sad ceremony took place. The greatest sympathy is felt by all classes for his Highness's bereavement. The late Queen Consort was much beloved for her many virtues and her loss is deeply deplored. The Court has gone into mourning for a whole month.—Times of India.

LIEUTENANT CURZON, 34th Foot, has been appointed an extra aide de camp on the staff of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS AT SIMLA.—It is proposed to build on the ridge at Simla a large public building which shall serve all the purposes which a town hall does in towns in England or on the Continent of Europe. A building, designed by Mr. Tyndall, superintending engineer, provides:—(1) a town hall for public durbars or meetings, banquets, concerts, balls, and the annual exhibition of the Simla Fine Arts Society; (2) a station library and reading-room; (3) a library and lecture-rooms for the United Service Institution of India; (4) a masonic hall; (5) accommodation for the local volunteers; (6) a meteorological observatory for the reporter to the Government of India; (7) a theatre; (8) three large places of business for first-class shops on the basement, and a restaurant. The building will also furnish what is so much required at Simla—a place of public meeting and shelter during the long rainy season. It has been decided to apply for a loan of two lakhs of rupees.—Times of India.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—At date of mail the disengaged tonnage in port stood at 30,319 tons. London via Canal: The market closed firm with a decided upward tendency for weight at £2 16s. 3d. to £2 17s. 6d. for rice, £3 for wheat, £3 to £3 2s. 6d. for cotton, hides, tea, &c. Seeds nominal, poppy, £3 2s. 6d. For London via Cape: The market closed weak at £2 2s. 6d. for rice, £2 5s. for wheat, £1 15s. for saltpetre, £2 7s. 6d. nominal for linseed, £2 7s. 6d. to £2 8s. 9d. nominal for jute, £2 10s. for rape, and £2 12s. 6d. for poppy. For Liverpool via Canal: There are no transactions to report. The market is quiet at £2 17s. 6d. to £3 for rice or wheat, oils and measurement, £3 5s. For Liverpool via Cape: Rates for the mail, rice or wheat £2 5s., jute, £2 7s. 6d. nominal, linseed, £2 10s. nominal, oils, £2 15s.—Englishman.

THE MEDICAL LIBEL CASE.—The appeal against the decision of the magistrate of Allahabad in the charge of defamation brought by Dr. Hall, of Allahabad, against the editor and printer of the Indian Medical Gazette, has been heard in the High Court, Allahabad, when the judge announced that he would in his judgment reverse the finding of the lower court.—Englishman.

ZEMINDAR STUDENTS OF AGRICULTURE.—An endeavour to get zemindars in the Madras Presidency to send pupils to the Saidapet Farm for the purpose of studying agriculture has met with but little success, only two zemindars responding to the invitation. How reluctant, or even averse, Indian landowners are to agricultural improvement is shown by the action of one zemindar, who on attaining his majority gave up the farm which had been established by the Court of Wards during his minority. The question, how far it is justifiable to utilise the frequently large surplus funds available in estates under the management of the Court of Wards is still a vexed one, and the influence of the court varies in its action as the holders of opposite views find themselves in a position to give effect to their different opinions. It would seem a stretch of privilege to employ trust funds in providing stipends for students of agriculture, but it would seem reasonable that improvements, on methods proved by experiments, should be introduced with no sparing hand by the trustees, as would be done by any improving landlord with his own estate. It has been found impossible to attract a good stamp of pupils to the Cawnpore Farm, but an endeavour is being made, we believe, to train some Eurasian lads as apprentices; and if they will only recognise "nobility of labour" and not look upon agricultural work as a mere excuse for lounging, there can be no reason why they should not develop into valuable managers for estates under the Court of Wards.—Pioneer.

QUARTERS IN RANGOON.—Rangoon abounds with broken-down houses, whose supports are sinking deeper into the earth, and whose frowning roofs of decaying thatch look crushed and dismal after the late heavy rains. The white ant revels in the rotted woodwork; the rails are falling to pieces, the thatch hangs loose, the ragged matting is hung with masses of dingy cobwebs, which cling to them and are not to be easily swept off the torn fibres to which they have suspended themselves. Many of these sad dwelling-places are unsafe and unhealthy, but they are tolerated and inhabited instead of being knocked down for the benefit of the public. It is only recently that attention is being called to the sickness and fevers which prevail here amongst subordinates, for which bad accommodation and wretched food are in a great measure answerable. In a climate so singularly unfavourable to Europeans and Madrassis alike it is high time that attention should be paid to the quarters occupied by commissariat and warrant officers. New ones are now being built for the commissariat officers on Godwin's-road. Quarters are also being constructed for subalterns of the Royal Artillery, and when money is available houses will be built for officers of the European regiments. Rents even in cantonments are exorbitant, and the accommodation provided poor to a degree. Sickness is very prevalent amongst sepoys and ordnance lascars, but the warrant and non-commissioned officers suffer severely too, thanks to the decaying, damp, mouldy tenements in which they are compelled to live.—Indian Daily News.

MADRAS.

PONDICHERRY.—Monsieur Laugier, Governor of the French Colonies in India, has been appointed Governor of Guadeloupe in the West Indies by decree of Nov. 2, 1880, and the same decree appoints M. Drouhet, Directeur de l'Intérieur of French Guiana, as Governor in the place of M. Laugier.—Madras Times.

GOLD MINING.—It is reported from the Colar goldfields in Madras that forty-four tons of quartz recently crushed at Ooregum yielded 400z. of gold, and that much gold is believed to have been lost during the process owing to the defective machinery and retorts.—Times Telegram.

INTENDED ALTERATION IN LIGHT APPARATUS.—It is intended to exhibit a fourth order fixed white dioptric light instead of the light at present exhibited at Calicut; and from Dec. 8, and during the time the alteration is being carried out, a temporary light will be shown from a platform in front of the lighthouse column. The platform will be about twenty-five feet above the level of high water, and the temporary light should be visible in clear weather, in every direction seaward, from a distance of about nine miles. Further notice relative to the new light will be given when the change is effected.—Madras Times.

THE LATE FATAL ACCIDENT AT THE HARBOUR WORKS.—This accident having been reported to Government, his Grace the Governor has expressed his deep regret at the sad occurrence and loss of life occasioned thereby; and has intimated to the superintendent of the harbour works that the Government are willing to sanction any reasonable amounts which he may consider suitable as gratuities to the widows and families of those who lost their lives.—Madras Mail.

CAMP OF EXERCISE.—The camp of exercise for the Madras Volunteer Guards which was proposed to be held during the Christmas holidays has fallen through. The Local Government object to sanction the expenditure of a camp of exercise so soon after the one held at Guindy in March last. Probably the camp will be held during the Easter holidays.—Madras Times.

CIVIL ENGINEERING COLLEGE.—With reference to the Government order assembling a committee for remodelling the Civil Engineering College at Madras, Col. Sankey, the chief engineer, has suggested that the propriety of Government offering yearly one or two scholarships to the Lawrence Asylum at Ootacamund might be also considered and reported on at the same time. The asylum has in its workshops means for imparting a certain amount of mechanical instruction in the way of smithery and carpentry, and boys in the institution are precisely of the class from which this department, as well as the local fund boards and municipalities, would gladly draw their subordinates. The principal must also often be sore pressed to find an opening for such of them as he finds of age for adopting a calling in life. The scholarships now belonging to the Civil Engineering College are as follow:—Second department, five of Rs.15 each; drawing class, five of Rs.8 each; survey class, five of Rs.8 each—all tenable for one year; and the Walker scholarship, about Rs.13 per mensem, tenable for two years. As in the case of the Lawrence Asylum boys many are orphans of both parents; the least sums at which in such cases the scholarships could be fixed would probably be Rs.20 for a European and Rs.15 for a Eurasian per mensem, with probably freedom from college fees and charges for books and instruments; but of course these and all other matters would be carefully considered should the proposal as now generally put forward be accepted by Government. Col. Sankey adds that both the principals of the Lawrence Asylum and of the Civil Engineering College have each expressed their concurrence in the proposal. The committee appointed by Government have been requested to consider the above suggestion.—Ibid.

DUTY ON SPIRITS.—The Government of Madras, in order to prevent arrack, the country spirit, from superseding imported spirits, levy a higher rate of duty upon it than that charged on imported spirits. Here are their own words:—"The duty on both Colombo and puttai arrack within the High Courts limits are higher than the duty on imported spirits; the latter being thus protected." In Madras there are forty-eight shops licensed for the sale of Colombo arrack and ninety-three for the sale of puttai arrack. "The shopkeepers enter into an engagement called a dowie, wherein they agree to sell, or at any rate pay the duty on certain quantities supplied to them daily from the Government stores. The revenue is obtained by issuing the liquor to the shopkeepers at a price higher than that at which it is obtained from the contractor, and the difference constitutes the duty."—Madras Times.

MADRAS GAOLS.—Deducting the convicts admitted by transfer, the total number of prisoners in confinement in the gaols under the control of the Inspector General was 42,847, or 19,210 less than in 1878. The number of convicts admitted under fresh sentences amounted to 20,021, against 34,202 in the previous year, and the daily average number in gaol to 15,377 (males 14,739 and females 638) against 21,390 (males 20,486 and females 904). On the last day of the year there were 11,934 convicts in prison (11,329 men, 434 women, and 171 children), of whom 11,093, or almost 93 per cent., were undergoing sentences of rigorous imprisonment. In addition to these there were 294 persons under trial, 149 civil debtors, 37 security prisoners, 2 State prisoners, and 27 lunatics (viz., 21 non-criminals and 6 criminals). The Inspector General will take the cases of all lunatics of either class sent to any gaol during 1879 and report the average length of time which elapsed before transfer to a lunatic asylum of criminals and non-criminals respectively. During the year 72 persons were executed and 476 transported beyond seas.—Government Report.

COLONEL MALLESON.—Colonel G. B. Malleson, for some time sanitary commissioner with the Government of India, and afterwards tutor to the Maharaja of Mysor, arrived in Bombay last week, much to the surprise of his many friends in this country. There have been many surmises as to the object of this visit; but we think we are correct in stating that he has returned to India at the invitation of his old ward, the Maharaja of Mysor, to be present at his Highness's installation on the 1st January next.—Indian Herald.

RETIREMENT FROM THE SERVICE.—After a long and faithful service in India, the last five years of which were engaged in administrative duties as deputy surgeon general of the Southern Division, and for a short time of the Mysor Division and Ceded Districts, Dr. J. Wilson, at Trichinopoly, retires from the service in the early part of next year.—Madras Times.

THE PATCHEAPPAH SCHOOLS.—The report for the past year shows that the income during the year amounted to Rs.58,049-6-11 and the expenditure to Rs.57,394-12-3, leaving a small balance of Rs.654-9-8 in favour of the year, which, being added to that left at the end of 1878, raised the total balance remaining on hand at the close of the year under report to Rs.79,985-15-1. The receipts, however, showed a decrease of Rs.4,557-4-7 as compared with those of the year, notwithstanding the steady advance in the collection of fees in all the schools, being in round numbers about Rs.2,615 in excess of 1878. There was at the same time an increase in the disbursements of Rs.2,866-5. The decrease on the receipt side is mainly attributable to the grants from Government for the Central or High School having been reduced from Rs.700 to Rs.200 per month. The roll at the beginning of the year in Patcheappah's High School showed a numerical strength of 447. There were 460 admissions against 391 withdrawals during the year, leaving 316 names on the roll at its close. The average daily attendance was likewise better than in the year previous, being 614, or 91 per cent. of the strength. As regards examinations the success of this institution was considerable. The number allowed to go up for the matriculation examination was 43, of whom 35 passed, two being placed in the first class. This result compares favourably with those of several previous years. The inspector of schools visited the institution in September, 1879, and the results of his examination were fair in many of the subjects, though there were failures in others. Mr. Fowler notices specially the large size of the classes, but it is indeed to be regretted that the sudden reduction of the Government grant mainly led to this increase in the number of admissions, as it became necessary to make up for the loss by an additional revenue from fees. The trustees had under their consideration the question of extending the usefulness of the central or high school by raising its standard so as to meet the growing desire of the Hindu community for a liberal education beyond the point hitherto reached by this institution, and also to keep pace with the progress made by the other educational establishments; and being satisfied that the time had come for gradually developing the school into a college under the new principle, and that the accommodation and resources of this single institution would not be permanently equal to the task of meeting the increasing demand for a middle class education on a secular basis, the trustees resolved to add an F. A. class to the high school and to establish a separate middle school to absorb its junior classes. In Govindu Naidu's school the income of Govindu Naidu's charities amounted to Rs.10,666-0-3 against 12,278-10-0 in the previous year, while the expenditure aggregated Rs.14,334-15-2 against 12,726-14-4. The decrease in the receipts is chiefly owing, as already observed in the case of the central school, to the reduction of the Government grant to this primary school from Rs.300 to Rs.100 per month. The number of boys at the commencement of the year was 447, the admissions 400, and withdrawals 404, so that there were 443 left at the end of the year. The average daily attendance was 481, or 90 per cent., the same as in last year. The director of public instruction, when reviewing the inspector's report on the school, noticed certain shortcomings, and ascribed them to the inferior qualifications of some of the masters.

THE LADIES GRENVILLE.—The ball given by Madras to the daughters of the Duke of Buckingham took place in the Banqueting Hall on the 2nd instant and was a great success. After supper H.E. Sir Neville Chamberlain proposed "The Queen," which toast having been drunk, he rose again to ask the company to drink the healths of the Ladies Grenville, coupled with the name of his Grace their father. The toast was drunk with three hearty cheers, and yet another, while the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" filled the hall with stirring melody. The Duke acknowledged, on behalf of the Ladies Grenville, how gratified they felt at the entertainment that had been given them, and expressed his personal appreciation of the honour that had been done them; he was sure that when they were all settled again in the old country they would often look back to the pleasant five years they had spent in Madras, that though they were leaving India they were not likely to forget the friends they had made here, and that it would always give them sincere pleasure to welcome again in England those who had so largely contributed to their happiness in Madras. It was attended by about three hundred and sixty ladies and gentlemen, of whom a hundred had come to Madras for the special purpose of taking part in it.—Times of India.

A SACRIFICIAL MURDER.—Some time ago the headmen of certain of the hill tribes in the Vizagapatam hill tracts mustered their gangs, and, as a preliminary measure, plundered the village of Chitrakonda, carrying off such of the inhabitants as were unable to escape, for the purpose of making a propitiatory sacrifice preparatory to an attack on the police station. The morning after these poor wretches had been taken prisoners a piece of ground was prepared for the sacrifice, in accordance with the ceremonies of the tribe, and cooked food was offered to the unhappy victims, which, naturally enough, they refused to partake of. Their heads were then cut off by order of the headman of the fituridars (or conspirators who had organised the expedition) with his own sword. The blood of the slaughtered men was then mixed with rice, and smeared by the man who had butchered them over their foreheads, with which the disgusting and superstitious observances came to an end. The attack on the police station did not take place after all, but the main facts as to the murders were not denied, though the nine persons who were accused denied that they had been committed in furtherance of a sacrifice for the purpose alleged. Two out of the nine protested that they had not taken any part in killing the pariahs, who are usually the only victims in such cases, though on this particular occasion the headman of the village had also been killed for having given up the family of one of the hillmen to the police. The joint sessions judge of Vizagapatam, before whom the case was tried, found eight of the nine prisoners guilty, and sentenced the ringleader to death and the remaining seven to transportation for life. The High Court, in disposing of the case last Monday, confirmed the sentence of death passed upon the first prisoner, who was the actual perpetrator of the murders; but, as it was not proved that the others had actually taken any part in the crimes, the sentences of transportation for life passed upon them were reversed, and the men were ordered to be discharged from custody.—Times of India.

RAMPA AFFAIRS.—Though it is reported that everything is quiet at Rampa the Government have decided not to withdraw all the troops at present. Under existing arrangements a detachment of fifty will be located at Nursipatam and another detachment at Woodigoodiem.—Mail.

BOMBAY.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION.—The municipal election at Bombay enables us to form an opinion of the interest taken by the ratepayers in representative institutions. There were thirty-nine candidates for the thirty-two seats, and 1,795 votes were recorded. This would represent only about one-tenth of the possible voters, as each one who actually went to the poll had from one to five votes, and the whole number of eligible voters numbered over 6,000. The female ratepayers voted in good numbers.—Englishman.

RAILWAYS.—The Limri and Gondal Railway was formally opened by the Governor of Bombay at Bhanagar on the 18th inst. At a banquet the same evening Sir J. Fergusson made a speech in which he praised the Thakore of Limri for the manner in which he administered his State, and said that his energy placed him in the front rank of the Indian Princes who had distinguished themselves by their public usefulness. He then proposed success to the new railway, and mentioned that it was only commenced in March, 1879, and that all the carriages had been manufactured in the Thakore's own territory—a boast which no other Indian railway could make.—Times Telegram.

LEGISLATIVE.—The following rule has been made by his Excellency the Governor in Council under the provisions of section 49 (a) of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, 1879:—"When the right to claim a certificate under section 46 accrues the prescribed fee shall be paid and the certificate demanded within ten days from the accrual of such right, otherwise the conciliator shall dismiss the application." It is notified in the Gazette of India that the Governor of Bombay in Council, with the previous sanction of the President in Council, has declared certain enactments, specified, in force in Sind to the extent to which they are in force in the Presidency of Bombay not including any schedule district. Notice is also given that the Governor in Council has extended Act XXI. of 1860 (Registration of Societies), Act I. of 1877 (the Specific Relief Act) to the Province of Sind, and Bombay Act V. of 1875 (the Bombay Land Revenue Code), with the exception of section 104, to the collectorates of Karachi, Hyderabad, and Shikarpur.—Times of India.

THE appointment of Mr. Sorahjee Shapoojee Bengalee to be sheriff of Bombay for the ensuing year is gazetted.

THE MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.—The following gentlemen have been elected members of the corporation:—Sir Frank Souter, The Hon. Rao Saheb V. N. Mandlik, Mr. Grattan Geary, Dr. Thomas Blaney, Mr. F. Matthew, Mr. Dosabhooy Framjee, Mr. R. N. Coghlan, Mr. John Macfarlane, Mr. Mahomed Ali Rogay Major Portman, Dr. Macdonald, Khan Bahadoor Byramjee Dadabhooy, Mr. Homejee C. Dady, Mr. D. S. Kemp, Mr. C. A. Turner, Mr. P. M. Mehta.—Times of India.

H.E. THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.—His Excellency the Commander in Chief has arranged to proceed on a tour of inspection through the Southern Mahratta Country, leaving Bombay on Dec. 23. His Excellency, who will be accompanied by the military secretary, adjutant general, quartermaster general, one A.D.C. and a medical officer, will return to Bombay about the end of January.—Times of India.

THE ADJUTANT GENERAL.—We hear that the Secretary of State for India has approved of the nomination made by his Excellency the Commander in Chief of Col. A. Lyttleton Annesley, late 11th Hussars, as adjutant general, thus overruling the Bombay Government, who think that the appointment should be held alternately by a British and Indian officer.—Ibid.

JACOBABAD.—The very name of Jacobabad—the town of Jacob—tells its own tale, and in a quiet corner of the station is the tomb and monument which commemorate the founder of the station, General John Jacob, one of the men whose memories afford lasting proofs of the wonderful influence which some of the pale-faced Aryan race can at times exert over his dark-skinned brother. In a quiet corner of the little English cemetery, surrounded by a low, thick hedge, is the tomb of General Jacob, consisting of a low plinth of unfaced brickwork, surrounded by two plain but massive blocks of granite, on one of which a small slab bears the intimation that "beneath this stone lies the body." At the head of this simple tomb I noticed a little chiragh—a small earthen lamp of the most primitive form—with a slender wick burning fitfully and ingloriously in the splendour of the evening sun. Before the tomb and the lamp—a Hindu—one of the Purdesi race, with his wife and children near him, stood making poojah—worshipping a Melecha—a Feringhee. He had travelled many miles on a pilgrimage to this shrine, but neither the journey nor the fear of the ridicule of his brother Hindus, or the scorn of the Moslems around, could deter him. He was not an exception; such pilgrims are frequent at this quiet and almost forgotten shrine.—Correspondent of Times of India.

COURT-MARTIAL AT ADEN.—We hear from Aden that a general court-martial is now being held at that station for the trial of Major B. Saldwyn, commanding 14-8th Royal Artillery, on charges connected with some deficiencies or irregularities in the accounts of his battery. Col. Chads, commanding her Majesty's 62nd Regiment, is president of the court, which held its first sitting on Wednesday, Nov. 24. As there were not enough field officers at Aden to compose the court, Lieut. Col. Davis, Bombay Infantry, and Major Sexton, R.A., were sent to Aden on special duty to sit as members, while Lieut. Col. Mignon, deputy judge advocate general, went from Puna to conduct the proceedings. We believe that the court had finished its sittings before the English mail left Aden for Bombay, but some time must necessarily elapse before its decision can be made public. We think we are right in saying that the last officer tried by court-martial in this Presidency was Major Fletcher, R.A., who was tried at Nusseerabad towards the close of 1876.—Bombay Gazette.

THE CORPORATION AND THE C.D. ACT.—Government have overridden the Bombay Municipality's resolution not to contribute the grant of Rs. 15,000 a-year asked for towards the cost of working the C.D. Act in the town, by stopping the amount out of the annual contribution of Government towards the maintenance of the local police force. The corporation is about to hold a special meeting to protest against this as arbitrary and illegal.—Bombay Gazette.

HYDERABAD.—We hear from Hyderabad that an officer of the Nizam's regular troops was cashiered last week for gross misconduct, a step which the members of the court-martial deemed necessary for the welfare of the service. Our informant does not give any particulars of the offence.—Ibid.

THE CHOTA OODEYPUR MURDER.—It is stated that Chundra Sing, son of the Raja of Chota Oodeypore, whose case was the subject of a protracted investigation at Godra before Mr. H. M. Birdwood, and who has been hitherto kept under police surveillance at Godra, has been ordered for the present to be released and to be allowed to proceed home. The Raja of Chota Oodeypore, who had arrived in Bombay, had an interview with Sir James Fergusson on Dec. 6 at Government House.—Ibid.

Her Majesty the Queen has been pleased to approve, on the recommendation of his Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding in Chief, of the grant of a silver medal for "distinguished conduct in the field," without annuity or gratuity, to Lance Corporal F. Druce, 9th Royal Lancers, as a reward for his gallant conduct in the action near Killa Kazi on December 11, 1879.

THE NEW BENGAL RENT BILL.

It would appear from the news which was published in our last issue that the attitude of resistance to the new bill as formulated in accordance with the views of the commission, which the landowners of Bengal and Behar have adopted, has produced an effect on the Government. The landholders of Eastern Bengal protested strongly against there being any need for legislation, and especially against the bill as revolutionising the system of land tenure. The Bankipore meeting obtained from Mr. Reynolds the assurance that, as weighty arguments had been adduced showing the proposed transferability of holdings to be injurious to the zemindars and ryots alike, these arguments would have due consideration. Dr. Hunter, in his work elsewhere noticed, summarises the condition of things and the effects generally of the new proposals. The land law of 1859, which was intended to protect the rights or the interests of the cultivators against the encroachments of the zemindars, who had been converted into landlords by the settlement of 1793, divided the cultivators into four classes, of which those who had held for twelve years had a right of occupancy, and their rents could only be enhanced for certain specific reasons by a suit at law. The lowest class, however, were left unprotected. They are now the principal objects of the protective legislation which is intended to save them from the oppressive enhancement of rents or rack-renting. The former class are to have their occupancy rights consolidated into a valuable peasant tenure, transferable by sale, gift, or inheritance. All "unearned increment" is to be divided between the proprietor and cultivator, who will be joint sharers in the increasing value of the land caused by new communications and growth of trade. But the lowest class, who have hitherto possessed no rights, and who have multiplied and increased, and, by their eagerness for the needful land whereon to live, have become self-devoted victims of the avaricious landowners, are, in the interests of the country, to receive benefits which the landlords assert amount to spoliation of their rights.

"The commissioners declare that the competition for land, if unchecked by law or custom, will reduce 'the whole agricultural population to a condition of misery and degradation;' and they have resolved, so far as in them lies, to arrest this slow ruin of Bengal. They enunciate the principle that 'the land of a country belongs to the people of a country; and, while vested rights should be treated with all possible tenderness, no mode of appropriation and cultivation should be permanently allowed by the ruler which involves the wretchedness of the great majority of the community if the alteration or amendment of the law relating to land can, by itself, or in conjunction with other measures, obviate or remedy the misfortune.'" They propose to give a quasi occupancy right to all tenants who have held for three years. If an enhanced rent be demanded the tenant may quit his holding, but the landlord must pay him compensation, which will swallow up the increased rent for several years. Dr. Hunter remarks that the landlords have rights as well as the tenants. It cannot be gainsaid that the latter have had wrongs. The zemindars have largely profited by the increasing competition that the increased population has entailed; and, although their property in the soil was an absolute creation of the Government, who reserved full power to protect the cultivator, yet they have, in the course of nearly a century, come to look upon the land rights, which in many cases they have purchased as an investment, as absolute property, and consider themselves, like all proprietors, at liberty to take it to the best market. The Bengal tenants have resorted to legal methods of resistance to the encroachments of the landowners. The landowners now resort to constitutional means of defending what they believe to be their vested rights against the proposed measure, which they contend contains vast and various innovations which really are designed to upset the permanent settlement and destroy their proprietary rights. Their case has been argued out in the Calcutta Review by Babu Ashutosh Mookerjee, whose articles have been reprinted in the more accessible form of a pamphlet. He points out that the landowners themselves clamorously called for some reform in the existing law relating to the recovery of rents; in the attempt to afford facilities to the zemindar without pressing unfairly upon the ryot it was found needful to place the whole law of landlord and tenant upon a satisfactory basis. Hence the commission and the new bill of which the landowners so loudly complain. The general ground that the permanent settlement must be the unalterable basis of all land legislation is occupied in force by Mr. Mookerjee. But the strength of his contention lies in the opposition to the transferability of the third class of occupancy rights, and the "flagrant innovation of investing three year rights with occupancy rights in a modified form. The difficulties which present themselves in the solution of the Bengal land question are not blinked. The ryot, says Mr. Mookerjee, in this respect no better than his landlord, has never been known to postpone the requirements of his family to the requirements of political economy. Over population, subletting, and subdividing are the three most prominent features in the economy of the Bengal peasantry. The commissioners do not propose to impose any checks on minute subdivisions or underletting; on the contrary, they permit underletting to the extent of allowing a right of occupancy to grow within a right of occupancy. An eminent native member of the commission points out the inextricable cable confusion that would result, and Sir Richard Garth is quoted as being of opinion that "the most effectual way of protecting such people (meaning the improvident ryots of Bengal), and preventing them from wasting their substance, would be to secure them a permanent interest in their property by prohibiting the alienation of it in any shape or way. They might be allowed to underlet in the case of minors, lunatics, or others labouring under disability; and some means might be taken for protecting (for a time at least) present interests which have been created by way of under lease. But I should have said that, with these exceptions, it would be more prudent to prevent underletting altogether." Dr. Hunter has made it exceedingly plain that the overcrowding of the lands is the real source of most of the distress which admittedly affects parts of Bengal and Behar. And it does not appear how the owners of these new occupancy rights, even though by twelve years' possession they have proved themselves more deserving than others, are to be safeguarded against the temptations which have proved too strong for the zemindars. The remedy may well seem likely to prove a fomenting cause of a worse form of the disease. In the opinion of the opponents of the bill "the innovation and the injustice involved in permitting free trade in holdings in which a right of occupancy has been or shall be acquired by twelve years' occupation, are eclipsed by the innovation and the injustice involved in extending the same right of occupancy, in a modified form and in a circuitous manner, to ryots who have held land for three or more, but less than twelve, years;" and one of the native members of the commission, Babu Peary Mohun Mookerjee, observes, with reference to the provisions in the draft bill intended to secure these novel rights that the compensation for disturbance, plus the compensation for houses built or works done on the land, "perhaps without the landlord's knowledge or consent," will generally exceed the price at which existing occupancy holdings are sold, and consequently these ryots will in many cases enjoy a more valuable right than existing occupancy ryots. It certainly seems as if the object of the framers of the bill was to reduce the zemindars to the position of rent-chargers, to use a term which is not strictly applicable. They have, apparently, determined to create a peasant proprietary over the largest tract of Bengal. That there is absolute need of some regulating and reforming measure is undeniable; that the Government are not gainers by the permanent settlement, and that the landowners have strained and abused their rights, are propositions all supportable by proof. But the new law requires much pruning and modification if it is to be more than a doubtful experiment, certain to alienate the landowners, and by no means to be confidently regarded as likely to restore prosperity to the cultivators. The forces of nature will prove too strong for the theories of its framers.

THE LATE MR. W. H. JONES.—The Trades' Association of Calcutta have, we think, done themselves honour in recording their sense of Mr. Jones's character and of his services to their own body in the subjoined resolution:—"Again it falls to our lot to record the loss of an old friend and valued fellow worker. For sixteen years Mr. William Henry Jones held the office of treasurer in this association, and now the place that knew him knows him no more. An upright tradesman, a sincere friend, a generous helper of the needy, a patriarch in his own household—his death leaves a blank which it would be difficult to fill. Quiet and unassuming in manner, sound in judgment, strong in adherence to his convictions, he had many friends and no enemies, and in thus bearing testimony to departed worth the committee desire to tender the expression of their sincere sympathy to his sorrowing family."—Indian Daily News

At a general court-martial, assembled at Bareilly, on Monday, Nov. 8, Driver George Austan, of H. The court found the prisoner guilty of all the charges and sentenced him to imprisonment with hard labour for 672 days. The above sentences have been approved and confirmed by the Commander in Chief in India.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

IN connection with the movement in support of the patriotic fund about to be initiated at Allahabad we may appropriately give some information concerning the recent operations of the central committee, of which Lieut. W. J. B. Bird, S.C., of the military secretariat, is the honorary secretary. Several meetings of this committee took place before the Government left Simla. Local committees have been and are being formed in the various provinces to receive such subscriptions as may be offered, but great care is being taken to guard against all appearance of pressure for subscriptions on the native portion of the community. The Bank of Bengal in Calcutta has been authorised to receive subscriptions. Arrangements have been also made by which local contributors may lodge their donations in the Local Government treasuries. The Commander in Chief has directed officers commanding regiments and batteries and heads of departments which have taken part in the war in Afghanistan to submit the names of sufferers by the Afghan war, without race or caste distinction, who may be thought entitled to assistance and relief from the fund. The co-operation of the "Afghan War Relief Fund" Committee, which has been formed by many of the most influential men connected with India at home, has been secured. Communication has been opened up with the Bombay "Military Relief Fund" Committee. About 3½ lakhs of rupees have been placed at the disposal of the central committee, not reckoning the sums received by the Bombay or any local committees, from which no report has hitherto been received, nor certain large donations from one or two native princes which have been mentioned in the newspapers, but of which no official report has yet been received.—Pioneer.

GOOD-SERVICE PENSION.

A GOOD-SERVICE pension has been conferred on Col. R. H. Sankey, C.B., of the Madras Royal Engineers, in the place of Col. C. S. Elliot, who has succeeded to colonel's allowances. The record of Col. Sankey's services is as follows:—"Col. Sankey was employed in the suppression of the mutiny of the Bengal Army, 1857-8, and was present at the actions of Nov. 27 and 28, 1857, at Cawnpore; also throughout the siege of that place by the Gwalior troops; reconnoitred alone the proposed crossing of the Gogra for the Goorkha force at Tandah, February, 1858; capture of the fort of Nowranee on the Gogra, Feb. 17, 1858; action of Phoolpoor, Feb. 20, 1858 (mentioned in despatches); constructing bridge of boats across the Gogra River, for which he received thanks of the Government of India; capture of the fort of Ferozepore, Jumalpoor, Feb. 26, 1858, for conduct at which was recommended for the Victoria Cross (mentioned in despatches); engagement at the Kandooral nullah, March 5, 1858 (mentioned in despatches); constructed bridge across the Goonatee River, for which received thanks of the Government of India; attack on the Char Bagh, Lucknow, March 12, 1858; attack on the south-east suburbs of Lucknow, March 13, 1858; led 80 Goorkhas across the city of Lucknow, March 14; attack on works in front of Alum Bagh, March 15; attack on southern suburbs, Lucknow, March 18 and 19, 1858; served as commanding Royal Engineers of the Southern Afghanistan Field Force; received thanks of the Commander in Chief in India for construction of road for heavy artillery through the Gwajah Pass, and took part in the cavalry combat of Jan. 4, 1879, at the Ghlo Kotal, in the advance upon Kandahar (mentioned in despatches); received brevet majority for services in the Indian Mutiny, and made Companion of the Bath for Southern Afghanistan campaign. (Medal with clasp for Indian Mutiny.)"

OFFICERING OF THE NATIVE REGIMENTS.

Now that the drill season is fairly in swing special attention ought to be given to the officering of the native regiments. We see, by last October's Army List, that no regiment has anything like its complement, and those may be reckoned lucky who have four out of the requisite seven. The regiments not on service have suffered in supplying those on service, and there are not enough in the whole Staff Corps and on the General List to continue to do so. The Commander in Chief's remarks about the musketry for the native army would be more to the point were he to supply regiments with officers to carry out his wishes and instructions, but, as is the case with most regiments this season, one wing commander has to superintend the whole of the musketry practice of his wing. Now this entails the dull monotony of sitting from, say, 6.30 a.m. till noon for twenty-four days in succession (Sundays excepted), and superintending the expenditure of 32,060 rounds of ammunition, and only relieved by having to go about a dozen times in the morning to compare the targets with the registers, yet all the thanks old officers, some of them over thirty years' service, get is to be told that their performances are not up to the mark and that their commanding officers must look better after them. This musketry is the bane of the native army. Why, if native officers are supposed to command their companies, are they not allowed to superintend and be responsible for the keeping of correct returns at musketry? This is done in the Hyderabad Contingent, and those regiments compare favourably with any in India in that respect. In one or two regiments of the Native Infantry musketry has had to be altogether suspended, owing to the circumstance that not a single officer was available for that duty. Now-a-days it has become quite common to see field officers doing subalterns' duties; and, indeed, in two regiments recently one officer carried on all the duties from commanding officer down to wing subaltern.—Times of India.

AN INTERESTING RELIC.

MAJOR BRYANT, of the 2nd Beluchees, a corps which has rendered good service in the field upon more than one occasion, has now in his possession a sword captured in action by a native officer of the detachment of the regiment, which, under Major Bryant's command, behaved so gallantly in the action at Kudbaj. The sword—which is of the finest temper—is an old cavalry sabre, with the royal arms and the monogram "G. R." engraved on one side of the blade, and the name "Ensign Terrington" on the other. The weapon was captured in single combat at Kudbaj, the native officer who took it having a severe hand-to-hand contest with his opponent, paying with a severe wound for his ultimate triumph. The history of the sword is, perhaps, its most interesting feature. Carried into Afghanistan during the first war, most probably by the officer whose name it bears, it fell into the possession of the father of the man from whom it was recaptured at Kudbaj, and is still a weapon which the most curious in such matters might envy for its good qualities.—Times of India.

THE 1ST BOMBAY GRENADIERS.—Just a week had passed by when Bombay was given an opportunity of welcoming back from active service another regiment that has proved itself to be possessed of that sterner stuff which goes towards the making of good soldiers. The 1st Bombay Regiment of Native Grenadiers has won golden opinions for its conduct in the Maiwand engagement; and those who witnessed the disembarkation at the Apollo Bunder on Dec. 5 could not have failed to notice the splendid physique and soldierly bearing of the men. The men bore the appearance of those who have had to go through sheer hard work; and it must have been a source of some consolation to them to know that their services have met with due recognition at the hands of the public. Out of 648 of them of all ranks engaged at Maiwand 366 were left dead on the field, inclusive of two officers, Lieuts. Hinde and Whitby. They expended the second largest number of rounds of ammunition, viz., 124,900; and by their volleys had for some time driven back the enemy's regulars. But success was hopeless in the presence of an overwhelming foe; they gradually lost ground, and, as a last attempt, endeavoured to form a square, which proved unsuccessful. Their colours were honourably lost, and amongst their wounded were Lieut. Col. H. S. Anderson, commanding the regiment, Capt. J. Grant, and fifty-nine men. The regiment rendered valuable services during the siege of Kandahar, and Lieut. Col. C. M. Griffith, the 2nd in command, was especially brought to the favourable notice of Sir Frederick Haines, the Commander in Chief in India, by Lieut. General Primrose, commanding the First Division Southern Afghanistan Field Force. The Grenadiers left Kandahar on Oct. 8, stayed for a day at Quetta, and then marched on to Pir Chowkee, where they took train to Jacobabad. At the latter station they waited the arrival of the Viceroy, when they helped to line the roads and furnish a guard of honour. They then proceeded to Karachi and embarked on the 2nd inst., on board the B.I.S.N. Company's s.s. Khandalla, which has been chartered by Government for troops returning from the front. The vessel arrived on Sunday, Dec. 5, bringing five officers, eight native officers, 410 rank and file, and twenty-two followers. The officers who have arrived are:—Lieut. Col. H. S. Anderson, Lieut. Col. C. M. Griffith, Capt. J. Grant, Lieut. W. C. Aslett, and Surg. A. H. C. Dane, M.D. An entertainment was given to the regiment on the following Monday in the Apollo Bunder Gardens, the arrangements being carried out by Capt. Tennent, Bombay Volunteers, and the Nanabhooy Byramjee Jeejeebhoy. At six o'clock, the time fixed for the commencement of the proceedings, the gardens were brilliantly illuminated as on the first evening of their opening, and a large number of spectators, including H.E. the Governor and Lady Fergusson, were present. The men were drawn up along the avenues, and visitors, as they entered, were enabled to scrutinise them closely and see what fine fellows they looked. Shortly after six o'clock the regiment was marched to the open space in the centre of the gardens and addressed by H.E. Sir James Fergusson as follows:—"Colonel Anderson, officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of the 1st Bombay Grenadiers, I am very proud, as Governor of this Presidency, to meet you on your return from your long and arduous service. On your way to meet the enemy you were long employed in labour, not so glorious, but quite as honourable as that on the battlefield. When you were called upon to meet the enemy you were not so fortunate as some of the regiments, which have gained an easy victory, when you met a force of overwhelming numbers; but we know you bore yourselves on that occasion like the successors of those gallant soldiers who have long composed the Bombay army. It is comparatively easy to rush upon the foe, but it requires the discipline, the courage of trained soldiers to stand for hours under a withering fire. In those trying hours you stood side by side with European soldiers, and I am sure you sustained the honour of the army with no less constancy. Though you were not so fortunate under those circumstances to bring back your colours, you nevertheless returned to those who honour the sacrifices you made. The Governor, his Excellency the Commander in Chief, and all the chief civil and military officials of the Presidency, as well as a large portion of the public, come here to welcome you to-day, and when you return to your homes I trust you will feel that you have been received by those who appreciate your conduct, and I trust you will long remain honoured members of the Bombay army. The honour of the 1st Bombay Grenadiers has not suffered in your hands. To-day you will receive some small entertainment from your fellow-countrymen, and I trust it will give you pleasure, and that you will feel that your sacrifices have not been in vain. It gives me great pleasure to see your gallant colonel here, who would have been left on the field of Maiwand but for the gallant assistance the men in the ranks rendered him. I trust he will long live to be at the head of your regiment. Three cheers were then called for Colonel Anderson and heartily given, and three equally hearty cheers were given for the regiment. His Excellency the Commander in Chief then briefly addressed the men, reminding them that in the race which many horses ran only one could win, and although they had been unfortunate on this occasion he trusted they would not relax their efforts in the future. The speeches were translated to the men, sentence by sentence, by Colonel Anderson. The men were then marched off in sections to the open space at and about the dancing board, where carpets had been spread for their use. They seated themselves in rows upon this spot, the high caste Hindus being at one end, the Mahomedans in the middle, and the low caste Hindus at the other end of the space. Each man had served out to him two pounds of native sweetmeats, with a sufficient quantity of curded milk to moisten it. This food—which, in the bulk, looked quite sufficient to cause the consumers to suffer from indigestion for months afterwards—rapidly disappeared, and the men, far from being indisposed in consequence, appeared to brighten up under its influence. At this time there were hundreds of people in the gardens, including most of the principal European and native inhabitants of the city. The military element was very strong, and a number of volunteer officers and men also turned out in uniform to do honour to the gallant regiment.—Times of India.

NATIVE LIBERALITY.—The Lieutenant Governor of Bengal has accepted the offer made by Maharani Raj Roop Koer of Ticcarea to maintain the dispensary at Ticcarea independently of Government aid, and has also sanctioned the proposal to rank the dispensary in Class I. of such institutions. Sir Ashley Eden has also conveyed, though the Commissioner of Patna, his thanks to the Maharani for the liberality she has displayed; The Lieutenant Governor has also requested the Maharani to nominate an assistant surgeon for appointment to the dispensary. The Maharani has already paid Rs.27,000 for the support of the dispensary, and now promises a donation of equal amount, payable in three yearly instalments. In order to meet the current expenses of the dispensary as a first-class institution she will pay the sum of Rs.1,080, less the amount of interest on Rs.9,000, the instalment of the donation for the first year, and so on until the donation has been fully paid up and the full income needful for the support of the institution is secured.—Indian Daily News.

PRIZE AND FOUNDER'S DAY AT LA MARTINIÈRE COLLEGE.—The Lucknow Express has the following:—On Tuesday afternoon the annual prize distribution and founder's feast took place at La Martinière College under the presidency of General Cureton, C.B., commanding the division. There was a large attendance of visitors on the occasion, and both the exhaustive and interesting address of the principal and that delivered by the gallant general from the chair were listened to with marked attention and repeatedly applauded during the course of delivery. As regards the examination of the whole school, the examiner—Mr. Pirie—remarks:—"In the course of a fourteen years' experience amongst the schools and colleges of India I have learnt the condition of most of them; and have no hesitation in saying that the Lucknow Martinière is the best conducted institution of its kind in the Bengal Presidency." The health of the school has on the whole been good. The conduct of the boys has been satisfactory. The examiners' reports on the girls' school were very satisfactory.—Pioneer.

GEOGRAPHICAL RESEARCH.—At a meeting of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, held at Calcutta on the 1st instant, a paper was read "On the Eastern Frontier of Thibet," by M. l'Abbe Desgodins, who has lived for twenty-one years in that country. Beginning from the Himalaya Mountains north of Assam, M. Desgodins described the boundaries of Thibet, up to the Kueulun Mountains on the north, giving at the same time an interesting account of the tribes about the frontier. In reply to some questions about the Sanpo River, M. Desgodins stated that he had not been able to establish beyond all doubt that the Sanpo River falls into the Brahmaputra, as he was unable to explore the country personally; but from the information he was able to collect from the natives of the country he had come to the conclusion that the Sanpo River cannot flow west to the Irrawaddy, but that it must flow south to the Brahmaputra. He has ascertained that there is no large river between the Sanpo and the Saluen which could give rise to the Brahmaputra. General Walker said that by his researches M. Desgodins had made it almost certain that the Sanpo River joins the Brahmaputra, though of course this could not be established without doubt until the tract of country yet unexplored had been opened out. He said that he intended to try and prove the identity of the Sanpo with the Brahmaputra by floating logs down the former river. Another paper read was a "Report of a Visit to Nongpang Lake," on the Burmese frontier, by Mr. S. E. Peal. This paper gives an account of a journey made by Mr. S. E. Peal in February, 1879, from Jaipur to the Nongpang Lake in the valley of the same name. The journey was made chiefly by water, by the Dihing, Namoun, and Namtsik Rivers.—Pioneer.

AN INDIAN OFFICER IN THE DIVORCE COURT.—On Thursday, Dec. 16, the case of Birch v. Birch was before Sir James Hannen. Dr. Deane, Q.C., and Mr. C. A. Middleton appeared for the petitioner. The petitioner, who was at the time only 17 years of age and a ward in Chancery, married the respondent, then a captain, but now a major in the Indian Staff Corps, at Hollington, near Hastings, in November, 1863. In October, 1864, shortly after Mrs. Birch had given birth to her first child, they went out to India, and there they lived and cohabited together until 1866, when Mrs. Birch returned to England with her husband's consent. Major Graham Birch came to England in 1875 and lived with her until the end of October, 1876. Before leaving England he pressed the petitioner to promise that she would join him in India, but her health being still impaired, she declined to give the promise. All correspondence ceased between them in December, 1878. She subsequently saw the respondent on Jan. 4, 1879, at the London-bridge Hotel, but he declared that he would never again live with her. This was their last interview. It appeared that when at home in 1875 Major Birch made the acquaintance of a young and unmarried lady named Windmill, that she followed him to India in November, 1876, and that they have since lived together as man and wife at different places abroad and in England. On discovering this fact Mrs. Birch filed a petition for divorce on the ground of her husband's adultery and desertion. Both charges were established and the court pronounced a decree nisi, with costs.

OBITUARY.—We have to record the death on the 21st inst., on board ship, when returning home on sick leave from Hong Kong, of the Hon. Charles Bushe Plunket, chief magistrate of police at Hong Kong. The second son of John, third Lord Plunket, and brother of the present peer, he was born in June, 1830, his mother being Charlotte, third daughter of the late Right Hon. Charles Kendall Bushe, Chief Justice of the Court of Queen's Bench in Ireland. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he graduated in due course, and was called to the Irish Bar in Hilary term in 1866. He was assistant resident councillor at Penang from 1862 to 1869, and police magistrate at Singapore from 1869 to 1871, when he was appointed inspector general of police at the Straits Settlements. Mr. Plunket married in 1860 Emmeline, daughter of Mr. Robert Murrell, by whom he has left a youthful family.—Times.

INDIAN RAILWAY MEETINGS.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.—The half-yearly general meeting was held on Dec. 17 at the City Terminus Hotel. Colonel James Holland, the chairman, presided, and in moving the adoption of the report said that the last half-year he ventured to prophesy that the present half-year's accounts, although they would not be very unsatisfactory, would certainly not present what he might call a "bumper." They had added during the half-year about £75,000 to capital, of which £26,000 had been expended in additional sleepers, in doubling the line into Bombay, and in flattening the slopes on the Bhore Ghaut; £25,000 had been expended on new engines, £5,500 on workshops, and £5,000 on block signalling, which they had now introduced throughout the line. They had also laid out £11,000 on the work at the Bombay terminus. Some exception had been taken to the amount they proposed to lay out on this new terminus—£120,000 or £130,000—but his colleagues and himself considered it very moderate, having regard to the importance of the work and the cost of material and labour. Passing to the revenue account, he referred to the decrease of £157,000 in the carriage of food grain, and said the other companies had also suffered in this respect, and the decrease was owing to the crops being so satisfactory that there had been scarcely any necessity to transport grain from one part of the country to another. In the past half-year their food grain traffic amounted to 13 per cent. of the total of the goods carried, against 26 per cent. in the corresponding period of 1879. There had also been a falling off of £30,000 in cotton owing to poor crops in their district, £20,000 in sugar, and £12,000 in teel seed. On the other hand, they had increases of £70,000 in linseed, £10,000 in salt—which was a very satisfactory article, as they conveyed it from the coast up the country—and £25,000 in wheat. He thought it remarkable, in face of the abnormally low price of wheat in England, owing to the vast quantities sent from America, that India should still have been able to send such a large quantity as between 60,000 and 70,000 tons. They could not expect till there was an improved line of communication from the North West to have a very large amount of wheat at any time, because the East Indian Railway Company competed with them, and, owing to their exceptional advantages as to fuel, they could carry at rates which would actually entail loss to this company. They, however, had great hopes that before long this improvement in the communications with the North West would be carried out, and, when completed, it would be the shortest line from the North West to the coast. Their piece goods showed an increase of £5,000 and building materials an increase of £7,000. The total loss on goods traffic was £102,000. Up to 1876 they had gone on steadily increasing their rate of dividend, and within a reasonable time they looked forward to their normal dividend being at least 5 per cent.; but, coming to 1879, the profit for the year, instead of being £4 12s. per cent., had declined to £3 18s. 8d. per cent., and the cause of this falling off was that between 1875 and 1879 they made very considerable reductions in their rates for the carriage of many of the main articles of produce. He must confess that they had some misgivings at the time that they were possibly going rather too low, but they were anxious to try how far the lowering of rates would benefit their railway. They were now not satisfied that the rates were sufficient, and had referred the question to their agent, who would carefully investigate and report on the matter. They were most unwilling to enhance their rates, but it was better not to do the work than to do it at a loss. Referring to the expenditure, he stated that every item had been reduced, and it reflected great credit on the establishment that the reduction in expenses should almost have covered the decrease in the receipts, for it was to be remembered that whether a great traffic was conducted or not the stock and staff of a large railway must be pretty nearly the same. They had not yet got into a paradise of cheap coal. They had received only 7,000 tons from the Nerbudda Company, but he believed that company was preparing vigorously to supply them with considerably more, which they would be glad to take. They had agreed to take 50,000 tons annually from the Worrara Colliery belonging to the Government, but there had been a breakdown in the machinery there and in the past half-year they had received only 6,600 tons. The percentage of native to English coal was 31 against 28 in the corresponding period. They had made complaint with regard to the cost of the police, a body with whom they had nothing to do, except to pay, and from their latest advices they had every reason to believe that something like justice would be done to them. Mr. Alexander H. Campbell seconded the motion, and in reply to questions the chairman said their expenses in nearly every item were less than those of the East Indian Railway Company. As their iron rails wore out they replaced them with steel. They charged four pices for third class and two and a half for fourth class passengers. Certain negotiations were now going on between their officers and themselves as to abolishing the fourth class and making it all third class. The report was unanimously adopted, and a surplus dividend of 4s. 6d. (in addition to the guaranteed dividend) was declared. The usual votes of thanks were passed.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The half-yearly general meeting was held on Dec. 17, at the offices Finsbury-circus. Lieut. Col. P. T. French, the chairman, presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, thought he might say that it was satisfactory all round. He congratulated them on the revival of trade and also on the estimation in which their stock was held in the market. It was gratifying to see that they had reduced the expenses by £8,794, and that the guaranteed interest on the capital, amounting to £200,257, had all been earned, and £105,625 in excess, which, but for the Nerbudda Bridge, would have been divided between the proprietors and the Secretary of State. It was, however, gratifying to know that there had been such a large sum in addition to the ordinary guaranteed 5 per cent. As to the passenger traffic, they had carried 15,000 first-class passengers, against 10,000 in the corresponding half-year, 104,000 second-class passengers, against 70,579; 308,800 mail third-class passengers, against 182,000; and 2,702,000 ordinary third-class passengers against 2,515,756. The subject of fares was a most important one, and they deliberated very carefully on the whole subject of rates and fares. They had reduced the first-class fare from fifteen to twelve pies, with power to the agent to reduce it to ten pies; the second-class fare from seven to six pies, and the mail third-class fare from four to three pies, the ordinary third-class fare remaining unaltered at two and a-half pies. In the corresponding half-year they carried, as to their ordinary goods traffic, 17,000 tons of material for the Rajputana State Railway and 20,000 tons of food grains—a total of 37,000 tons, which was equal to £34,000; but, notwithstanding that they had not had this advantage in the past half-year, they had had a handsome increase in their goods traffic—24,700 tons to 356,952 tons, the increase in money being £23,000, to £320,947. There was an increase of 37,000 tons and £38,000 in cotton, which was partly owing to reduced rates from Broach and other points touched by the sea competition to Bombay, and partly to improved crops. The net profit of their line in the past half-year was £3 15s. 5d. per cent., which was solely from legitimate earnings in their own district, unaided by any extraneous traffic. With regard to the Nerbudda Bridge, he thought they might almost rely on its being finished next April. He referred with great satisfaction to the expected through opening on the 1st prox. of the State (metre gauge) line between Pahlapur and Ajmere, by which their line would be placed in direct communication on the shortest route with the North West. This 500 miles of additional traffic could not fail to bring an enormous amount of traffic to them. The country was fine and rich, and, being very sandy, the traffic would not be interrupted during the monsoon. He fully endorsed the eulogiums bestowed upon the staff by the agent. Mr. William Hartridge, deputy chairman, seconded the motion. In reply to questions the chairman said they had expended on the new Nerbudda Bridge, out of surplus earnings, £256,000, and £25,000, which came out of revenue, for what was called the fire fund. They hoped the whole work would be finished for £340,000, and they expected that what they received for the materials of the old bridge would add considerably towards the amount now required. The report was unanimously adopted and votes of thanks to the staff were unanimously agreed to.

SIND, PUNJAB, AND DELHI RAILWAY.—The half-yearly general meeting of this company was held on Thursday, Dec. 23, at the offices, Gresham House. Mr. William Patrick Andrew, the chairman, presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, congratulated the shareholders on the satisfactory condition of the affairs of the company. He regarded the surplus which had been earned beyond the guaranteed dividend of 5 per cent. as an indication of what their profits would have been had the "missing link" been supplied to their system—if the Indus had been bridged over, and the branch lines been constructed to the Khyber and the Bolan Passes. It was very encouraging to think that the undertaking had rendered important service to the Government in conveying troops and warlike stores, and so efficiently had this service been performed that their officers had been commended both by the Commander in Chief and the Viceroy. Between October, 1878, and February, 1880, they conveyed, without accident, during the two Afghan campaigns, in 1,181 trains, of which 428 were special, 304,130 troops and followers; 82,140 horses, mules, ponies, and bullocks; 2,223 camels; 4,897 bullock carts; 414 guns, artillery and engineer carriages; and 86,560 tons commissariat stores. Their large increase in their earnings in the past year was not merely attributable to the carriage of troops, but was owing to a great extent to the increase of the regular traffic of the country. The Karachi harbour had a material effect on their prosperity, and it was therefore gratifying to learn that it had been so greatly improved that it had recently been declared capable of receiving ships drawing 24 ft. of water. Mr. Edward Thornton, the deputy chairman, having seconded the motion, Sir Bartle Frere, who was introduced to the meeting by the chairman, observed that it was not often that two men like the chairman and himself could congratulate each other on the fulfilment of hopes and expectations and the carrying out of their plans formed a quarter of a century ago. He congratulated them on the realisation of many things which appeared in times past to be little more than dreams of the future. The chairman saw the beginning of the work by the results of which they were now benefiting; but his own memory went still further back, to the time when Mr. Andrew and he first designed the plans which were now arriving at completion. It would be difficult for anyone to exaggerate the importance of efficient means of communication between the sea and the capital of the Punjab, or with the seat of the Empire of India, which Delhi at that time was by tradition. The chairman had had the boldness to see and the foresight to lay before his countrymen both the importance and the practicability of connecting these points by railway, and he remembered the scorn with which that gentleman's views were regarded at the time. The great men, however, who at that time ruled the destinies of India—men like Lord Dalhousie and Lord Lawrence—looked far into the future and immediately recognised the practicability of the scheme, and Mr. Andrew might, with him, look back with satisfaction to the relations which then existed between him and the merchant princes who ruled India and to those of her Majesty's Government who controlled the rulers of India. He then referred to the former difficulties of communication between the sea and the Punjab when there were no means of sending rapidly anything larger than a post-office parcel, which was conveyed by ponies. There were camels and river boats, it was true, but they took months to convey anything from the sea to the Punjab. Many of those present remembered that being the state of affairs. Now, however, they had continuous railway communication throughout the whole of the valley of the Indus and the valley of the Ganges, and the results had not only not falsified the predictions of the chairman and those who acted with them, but had far surpassed anything which they at first even dared to hope for. For the first time in their history the guaranteed interest had been exceeded by the net revenue of the undertaking, which had strengthened the Indian Empire, developed its resources, and provided a safeguard against famine; it had, further, been the means of employing millions of Indians, and it would add to, rather than prove a burden on, imperial resources. It was unnecessary for him, after what had been said by the Viceroy and others of the value of the line from a military point of view, to say anything on that part of the question. The report was unanimously adopted and votes of thanks to Sir Bartle Frere, the chairman, and directors terminated the proceedings.

THE "PISTON" FREEZING MACHINE (ASH'S PATENT).

The "Piston" Freezing Machine Freezing and Moulding Dessert Ices, Icing Wines, and making Block Ice.

ASH'S "PISTON" FREEZING MACHINE is the most effective and economical method of freezing known. It is rapidly becoming a part of the "cuisine" in the establishments of the aristocracy of this country; it has received the highest patronage, and is used in all parts of the world. By this process Ice Creams are frozen in shapes ready for table—an operation never before accomplished—entirely superseding the use of ice pots and moulds; it also forms a Wine Cooler and produces Blocks of Ice. When not used with the usual ice and salt mixture, as on board ships, in the Tropics, &c., ASH'S Freezing Powders are most effective, and guaranteed to succeed.

Price of the Machines, from 50s. each.

The "Piston" Freezing Machine (without the Fittings) forming a complete Wine Cooler.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manila, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1884.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, 18th July, 1884.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanied each bottle.
